Fire claims Bacon Street home

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

A three-alarm blaze Feb. 21 swept through the second and third floors of the home at 82 Bacon St., leaving in its wake smoke and fire damage exceeding $250,000.

According to Fire Chief Charles McNutt, the owner of the property, 81-year-old Helen Cullen, escaped the burning house without injury after several passersby and two mailmen, Eugene McDonald and James Invernizzi, alerted her to the burning fire.

McDonald and Invernizzi were walking their postal routes and happened to be in the same area when they noticed heavy smoke coming from the house. McDonald said he was aware Cullen was in the home since he had delivered a package to her earlier in the day. His feelings were confirmed when he saw Cullen's car in the driveway.

The two went to a number of houses before finding someone who could alert the fire department.

McDonald and Invernizzi then proceeded to knock on the door and call out to warn Cullen. When she did not respond, a passerby who was helping out kicked in the door.

"When we went in, (Cullen) didn't answer," said Invernizzi. Once she was found, they informed her about the fire.

"She was totally unaware at the time that the house was on fire," said McDonald. Both McDonald and Invernizzi said they talked Cullen into leaving after checking to be sure no one else was in the house.

"We just walked her out of the house. Jim (McDonald) went up to the second floor to clear the floor and see if anyone was up there," said Invernizzi.

Preliminary investigations have determined that a clogged woodstove was the source of the fire. McNutt said the stove's chimney had built up with creosote, which acts as a fuel, and the resulting fire came out the flue on the second floor. McNutt estimates the fire was in progress behind the petitions on the third floor and second floor ceiling for more than an hour before the first alarm was sounded at 12:20 p.m.

Fire departments from the 13th Metropolitan Region: Arlington, Medford, Woburn, Stoneham and Somerville, were called in to assist. Woburn Fire Department was already on stand-by, because Winchester's ladder was being repaired.

Nursing homes react to Medicaid cut threats

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

If proposed cuts to the Medicaid budget come to pass this year, more than 100 elderly people will be displaced from facilities in Winchester, say local nursing home officials.

According to the Massachusetts Federation of Nursing Homes (MFNH), almost 75 percent of the people who currently live in nursing homes depend on the Medicaid program to pay for their care.

Petra Langer, spokesperson for the Federation, said Massachusetts, to date, owes $200 million in back payments since 1985 to nursing homes across the state.

And beginning April 16, the state will cease Medicaid payments until June 30 due to shortfalls in the FY90 budget. With the start of the new fiscal year, state officials hope to continue to make Medicaid payments.

The possible cuts in the FY91 budget however, as outlined by Gov. Michael Dukakis, include cutting off all Medicaid funding to intermediate care (Level III) nursing home residents; reducing Medicaid rates by $100 million and denying Medicaid coverage to anyone whose income is more than $1,200 a month.

"People have to realize that (the cuts) wouldn't be a burden on the

Planners offer up rezoning proposal to Board of Selectmen

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

The Planning Board's proposed Main Street zoning changes continue to draw opposition from neighbors and property owners.

Planning Board Chairman Daniel Chane presented his board's proposal for zoning changes on north Main Street to selectmen at the board's Monday night meeting. According to Chane, the changes address the "strip zoning" that has been in existence in the area since 1924. The 150-foot zoning line dissects parcels on angles, and makes a number of them non-conforming to the general business use.

Chane said the purpose of the more restrictive zoning changes is to alleviate non-conforming uses while at the same time provide buffering for residential properties (RG) and address traffic and parking problems in the area.

"Our biggest goal has been to control the growth of business — not to stop it — and to give back the integrity in some of these neighborhoods," said Chane.

But some neighbors and property owners aren't pleased about the Planning Board's efforts, and have presented a petition with approximately 200 signatures to selectmen in opposition to the plan.

"We are emphatically against doing any changes," said David Mullen, spokesman for the group.

Concerns of selectmen Monday night centered on the financial impact of the plan as well as the presentation to Town Meeting.

Task Force submits report to school board

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

After more than 100 hours of discussion and budget scrutiny, the Task Force on School Closing brought in the final numbers on its extensive review of the school budget.

At the School Committee's Feb. 27 session, Dr. Claudia Richter, chairman of the task force read aloud a five-page summary of the efforts of her group in the last few months. A minority report was also presented, which outlined the conclusions drawn by four of the 12-member group.

School Committee Chairman Edward O'Connell prefaced the presentation of the reports by stating that because the reports were received only hours before the meeting began, the School Committee would not discuss the findings, or accept comments from the audience on the topic.

The reports will be an agenda item for public discussion at the scheduled meeting of March 13. At that time, O'Connell said he felt School Committee members would have enough time to properly absorb and respond to the information contained in both reports.

The Task Force was formed by the School Committee in November, 1989 in response to public outcry over the possible closing of the Vinson Owen Elementary School. Faced with budget cuts of $900,000 for fiscal year 1991, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Charles Mitsakos had proposed closing the school in conjunction with moving sixth grade students to McCall Junior High School.

Since that time, the Task Force has met regularly to hash out the

Article hopes to prevent Vinson closing

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Members of the Vinson Owen Coalition hope a Town Meeting warrant article will stop the School Committee from closing that school.

Coalition Chairman William Galatis appeared before selectmen at the board's Monday night meeting to ask for their support. Galatis said his group is planning to present a warrant article to selectmen next week to halt the Vinson Owen School closing.

The proposed closing comes as a result of reductions in the school budget. Superintendent of Schools Dr. Charles Mitsakos has targeted Vinson Owen School as one area in which the town could reduce $350,000 from the school budget. School Committee members have indicated that if the override question proposed by selectmen fails at the March 27 polls, the school will close.

Galatis said his group sees the issue of closing Vinson Owen School "as a ploy to keep the town hostage" in an effort to pass the override question.

According to Galatis, the Coalition was formed by a group of parents as a result of concerns about the school budget process, particularly in relation to the announcement of the proposal to close Vinson Owen School.

Galatis cited Newton as an example of a town that closed a school and is presently in the process of reopening it at a cost of $1.1 million to the town.

"I feel we're given away a town jewel," said Galatis of the proposed closing.

In conjunction with the closing of Vinson Owen, school officials have proposed moving the sixth-grade students to McCall Junior High School. Galatis said his group is also concerned "whether the move can be made properly." He cited the Middle Level Task Force report, which was formulated when the

McNutt said that heavy water streams brought the blaze quickly under control, but it was not fully extinguished until an hour-and-a-half later. Because the fire was inside the partitions of the house, McNutt said the blaze was difficult to chase.

McNutt reported extensive fire damage on the second and third floors, and the first floor stairwell. The first floor was also heavily damaged by water.

According to McNutt, the Bacon Street fire was the third property owned by Cullen to burn in as many months. In December, 1989, Cullen lost four apartments at 616 Main St. in a two-alarm blaze. Since that time, she has also lost property owned in Somerville to fire. McNutt added Cullen was not insured for any of the properties.

McDonald and Invernizzi cited the "Carrier Alert" program, a postal service program which encourages employees to be aware of any irregular situation on their routes. McDonald said carriers watch for a build-up of mail as a sign of an accident or illness, and keep an eye out for possible housebreaks and other situations.

"It's been an on-going program for many, many years," said McDonald. "Over the years, I think (postal carriers) have been a great assistance to the local fire and police departments."

HOW DO LOCKSMITHS PROTECT THEMSELVES FROM BURGLARS?

Last week a headline in a North Shore newspaper caught my eye.

"ALARM SYSTEM CHASES WOULD BE BURGLARS FROM LOCKSHOP"

The incident was interesting as another illustration of how alarm systems are preventing needless losses. But beyond that, it reveals the method a locksmith has chosen to protect his stock of locks. Namely an electronic alarm system!

Law enforcement officials and locksmiths agree that good locks and good alarm systems work hand-in-hand as the two key elements needed to protect your home from burglary and vandalism.

Every day without an alarm system you gamble on winning nothing and losing everything...everything in your home that is dear to you. You also risk the most important factor -- your family's personal safety.

Is there anything that deserves a higher priority on your personal action list than looking into an alarm system for your home?

Why not do it before the burglar arrives?

POLICE LOG

Saturday, Feb. 24
10:10 p.m.

Officer Stephen Roche was dispatched to the phone booth on Main Street to speak with an individual who called in a complaint.

The Winchester resident told police three youths in a vehicle had thrown a bottle at him while he was walking down the street.

According to police reports, the man said he believed the suspects were driving a Monte Carlo or Grand Prix and were heading south on Main Street.

The police observed a vehicle traveling south on Main Street at Swanton Street fitting the description of the car in question.

The vehicle turned right onto Main Street from Swanton Street and the police reversed direction and activated the cruiser's blue lights. The suspects' vehicle then accelerated to approximately 55 to 60 m.p.h., said police reports.

Police then activated the siren and closed the distance between the cars. The vehicle was stopped in Woburn on Main Street. The driver was placed under arrest for failing to stop for police. Inside the car, police found unopened beer bottles in the rear seat, according to reports.

The operator, a 17-year-old Woburn youth was also charged with being a minor transporting alcohol.

The passengers, an 18-year-old Melrose youth and a 16-year-old Saugus youth were also placed under arrest for being minors in possession of alcohol.

The three were handcuffed and transported to the station with the assistance of Officers Jonathan Dean and Lawrence Hill and a Woburn unit.

The three were taken to the station and the caller was contacted but he declined to press charges against the suspects, said reports.

The driver was cited for speeding, failure to stop for police and driving with defective equipment.

A computer check showed the driver also had an outstanding default warrant from Stoneham police for being a minor in possession of alcohol.

5:50 p.m.

Officer Lawrence Hill was assigned to Church Street traffic in front of St. Mary's Church on Washington Street when he observed a vehicle traveling north on Washington Street from Mt. Vernon Street drifting from one lane to another.

When the vehicle approached the church, the officer flashed his flashlight at the car. The vehicle turned onto Dunham Street without signalling, said police reports.

The police officer pursued the vehicle in his cruiser and turned down Dunham Street to apprehend the driver.

The driver was attempting to turn around half way down the dead-end street. The vehicle was up on the sidewalk when the officer activated the cruiser's blue lights.

The driver did not stop until the officer had yelled to the driver to turn off his engine, according to police reports.

The driver was identified as a 35-year-old Lowell man. The officer noted that the man's eyes were half-closed and glassy.

The officer also detected a strong odor of alcohol from the driver's breath, said reports.

According to police, when asked about his erratic driving, the man shrugged his shoulders. When asked why he turned down Dunham Street, the man told police he did not know, reports said.

At this time, Hill notified the station and asked for assistance. Officer Stephen Roche arrived at the scene and the officers administered a battery of field sobriety tests, said reports.

The man could not complete these tests and was placed under arrest. He was brought to the station and booked. According to police reports, a computer check showed that the man had been arrested three previous times on operating under the influence charges. The driver's car was towed from the scene.

12:45 a.m.

Officer Peter MacDonnell was on patrol checking the doors at the businesses around the Waterfield lot when he observed two vehicles parked in the lot.

Several individuals were seen in the vehicles and beer bottles were seen on the pavement outside the doors of the vehicle, said police reports.

Also, police observed a 12-pack of beer in one of the vehicles and a six-pack of beer in the other car.

In the cars were an 18-year-old Woburn woman, a 21-year-old Stoneham man, a 19-year-old Woburn man, a 19-year-old Saugus man and a 20-year-old Stoneham man.

After identifying the individuals, they were transported to the station with the help of Officers Carl Fuller, Joseph O'Connor and Lawrence Hill.

Also, according to reports, police found unopened beer bottles in the car driven by the 21-year-old. He told police he had purchased the beers himself.

The 21-year-old was charged with furnishing alcohol to a minor. The other four youths were charged with being minors in possession of alcohol, police reports said.

Friday, Feb. 23
3:49 a.m.

Officers Peter MacDonnell and Daniel Perenick were traveling on Pond Street when they observed a vehicle operating without its lights on. The vehicle took a right turn onto Pond Street off of Chesterford Road and traveled east on Pond Street.

The police reversed direction and activated the blue lights in an effort to stop the car. The car speeded up when the police got closer and then took a right onto Main Street.

Dispatch was notified and car 924 was advised of the situation. The suspect's car then took a left onto George Road, a right onto East Street and then went back to Cross Street, according to police.

The car then took a left onto Forest Street and out to Washington Street. At this point car 924 joined the pursuit and the vehicle was followed west on Cross Street where it was stopped at Cross Street and George Road.

The driver of the car, a 16-year-old Winchester youth, was advised of his rights and placed under arrest.

The car was towed from the scene. According to police records, the boy told police he didn't stop because he was frightened.

The driver only had a learner's permit. His parents were notified and the boy was booked and later bailed.

The driver was cited with failure to use headlights, operating without a license and failure to stop for police officers, said reports.

WCC and Conservation Commission reach accord

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Conservation commissioners and representatives of the Winchester Country Club have come to an agreement regarding the water flow through a stream on the club's property and the use of fertilizer and pesticides on the grounds.

Prior meetings between different members of the two sides had resulted in confusion on both issues. According to Conservation Administrator Elaine Vreeland, the commissioners want to ensure the level of water in the stream remains the same for the benefit of abutters.

A formula was needed to determine the percentage of water the club could take from the stream for watering the grounds without affecting the current level.

When the formula defined by the Conservation Commission in the order of conditions did not suit the Winchester Country Club (WCC), an appeal was filed with the Department of Environmental Protection. This action allowed the club to obtain another public hearing with the Conservation Commission and to solve the discrepancy locally.

The two different formulas, one from the commission and one from the club, were reconfigured with additional information on the watering practices at the club at the commission's Feb. 26 meeting and agreed upon by both parties in an amended order of conditions.

Paul Carter, representing the WCC, outlined information on the club's watering uses. The club would be using more water during the stream's high flow times, in May and June when more water was available, said Carter. The stream's water level would see a small reduction in July and August however, noted Carter.

Commission Chairman Jerome Cura called the additional information "comforting."

In regard to the fertilizer and pesticide issues, the commissioners' concern was the quality of the water in the area. Extensive vegetation and algae growth on the Aberjona River in recent summers has sparked concern among the commissioners and has pointed toward pollutants in the water as the source.

Commissioner Joshua Alper said he felt the club representatives had "stonewalled" commissioners by not previously providing information and records on the care of the greens on the club's course.

"If the system increases the level of pesticides in the stream, then indeed we can regulate it," added Alper.

The club produced more information regarding the type of care they used in the golf course — what Vreeland called "more of a guarantee" the club would not add pollutants to the stream.

Soviet visitors find new friendships in Winchester stay

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Soviet visitors made a seven-day stop in Winchester recently to bring the new feeling of glasnost to America — and to make some new friends.

"Our countries have to be friends, that was the main point of our coming here," said Grigory Libman, a Soviet electro-mechanical engineer through an interpreter, "We would like to be friends with each and every country — and we started with you."

Libman was one of 12 intercontinental travelers to visit Winchester through the Winchester Unitarian Society. The Soviets arrived in Winchester following a one-week stay in New Haven, Conn. The trip was sponsored by American-Soviet Homestays, Inc., a private organization formed to promote increased contact and understanding between Americans and Soviets.

"If our two very vast countries are not friends, it could be disastrous — and both sides know it," added Libman.

The Soviets' whirlwind seven-day tour of Winchester included a day trip to Boston, an all-around tour of Winchester, a walk around Winchester Hospital, a church visit and trips to the Winchester schools.

Winchester resident Ellen Garness had a chance to polish up her Russian during the Soviets' visit to the Jenks Senior Center on Monday. Although Alexander Feschenko had been acting as interpreter for the group, he was unable to attend the Jenks visit and Garness stood in as official translator.

The visitors took part in the "Eating Together" program at the Jenks and enjoyed an appearance by Stephen Baird, a former Winchester resident and currently a street performer in Boston.

When asked about Soviet Chairman Mikhail S. Gorbachev, Libman praised the leader, saying, "Our country and your country's (current relationship) is thanks to Gorbachev's leadership." Libman's wife, Lubov Korkina, an economist, agreed.

Although Libman noted that many of the Soviet people were anxious to retain Gorbachev in his position of power, "we do have lots of people not of this mind ... We have great strain and struggle to get these two points together."

The Soviets all agreed the experience in the United States was a positive one. "We have a lot to learn from you," added Libman.

Planners outline rezoning proposal

Selectman Judith Muggia questioned the financial impact and asked if commercially zoned property in the Main Street area would "fetch a higher price" than residentially zoned property.

"That bothers us a lot and we're concerned about it," said Planning Board Member Ed Rodriguez. "The preliminary information seems to be a wash, or the percentage is so small it wouldn't make a difference."

Selectman Steve Powers suggested the Planning Board should consult the town's assessors to determine the financial impact on properties in the area.

Selectman Robert Deering said he agreed the Planning Board should be allowed to plan exclusive of the tax impact. However, he pointed out the town's efforts to increase the commercial base.

"No matter what we did on Main Street, we're not going to build up the tax base that much," added Deering. Deering said he found it "ironic" that some of the same people fighting to keep development from going on in that area "are now fighting to keep that property commercial."

"I'm a little confused about what the neighbors want," said Deering.

Selectman William O'Leary pointed out that presenting the plan as separate articles — possibly as many as 17 — to Town Meeting could be confusing and make passage of all of them difficult and possibly result in a disjointed zoning plan.

"Half a loaf is better than none. It's a very serious problem," said Chane of the zoning. "What you get this year does not say the rest of it is dead. We feel it's a good plan."

Planning Board Member Margaret Roll agreed. She noted that the board had thoroughly discussed issues of disagreement throughout the process. "We are all in concert with this plan," she added.

The parcels in the board's proposal extend along the west side of Main Street from Clark Street to Sheridan Circle and along the east side of Main Street from Swanton Street to Main Street.

The Planning Board will bring the proposal to Spring Town Meeting for a final decision. The plan requires a ⅔ vote to pass.

Article to be filed

move was considered last year. That report stated the town should plan one and one-half to two years for the move.

With regard to the Task Force on School Closing, Galatis commended the group's work, but said he was concerned that only seven of 92 suggestions were being presented to the School Committee.

"There is still a great amount of uncertainty, a great amount of conflict," said Galatis. "We don't think this is a precinct issue. We think this is a town-wide issue."

He added that he thinks the Vinson Owen School closing issue "has been used as an emotional club over each and every resident's head."

Among the suggestions put forth by Galatis on behalf of the Coalition were: full disclosure of the task force including all majority and minority recommendations; a one-day public hearing to review the results of the task force's findings; and perform a review of town government to see if it is being managed effectively.

"I suggest (the review) not as a criticism, but to see if we're (managing our departments) in the best way," said Galatis. "Maybe it's just a fresh approach to an old problem ... Maybe it's time we sit back and try to figure out more creative ways to solve our problems."

Selectmen Chairman Thomas Schmitt suggested Galatis consult Town Counsel Wade Welch and Town Moderator John Sullivan on the proper way to frame a warrant article.

"The management report is very interesting," said Schmitt. "Given the fiscal constraints of the town, this may be timely."

ELECTION '90

Jervey seeking a third term

William T. Jervey, 22 Stone Ave., has announced his intention to seek re-election to the School Committee for a third term.

Jervey has been active in school and community service for the 11 years he has lived in Winchester. He has served on the Muraco School Parents Association, coached youth basketball and softball, was director of the Girl's Youth Basketball program for three years, chaired the Town Day Committee in 1984, and is a member of the Town Meeting and Capital Planning Committee. He was Chairman of the School Committee in 1987-88, and is vice president and director of software development for Wellington Management Company in Boston.

His wife, Pamela, has also been active in community and civic affairs, and is the assistant director of the Children's Cooperative Theater. Their children, Christopher and Allison, are both students at the high school.

Jervey points to his experience and thoughtful leadership as being important contributors to the successful management of our schools during this time of continued financial crisis.

"Eight years ago, our spending per pupil was fifth among the eight members of the Lincoln-Sudbury consortium, and $230 more than the average of the towns which surround us. Today, our spending is the lowest within the consortium, and we are spending $230 less than the average of our neighbors. Woburn spends $700 more per student than Winchester; Medford spends $300 more; Lexington spends $850 more. As we have kept our costs down, however, we have not sacrificed our ability to deliver a first rate education. We read recently in Boston Magazine that Winchester has one of the top eight or 10 school systems in Eastern Massachusetts.

"None of this happens by accident. The School Committee must work closely and carefully with the school administration and the community to balance priorities and direct resources to where they will be most effective. Our attentiveness to early childhood and early primary programs, to individual differences and learning styles, to curriculum and program reviews, and to controlling our special education costs has paid obvious dividends.

"Although not everyone will always agree on priorities, our record over the past six years clearly has been among the most successful in all of Massachusetts. I hope the residents of Winchester will allow me to continue this work for another three years."

(Submitted by the committee to re-elect Bill Jervey).

McKay wants to restore leadership

"I can not influence what is going on at the state level, but I sure can take a stand against the same nonsense when I see it happening in the Winchester School Committee" said Dr. William (Bill) McKay, candidate for School Committee."

"Both the state leadership and our own School Committee have shown that they are unable to manage a crisis. They are so immobilized or else caught up in political concerns that they have lost sight of what is in the best interests of their constituents. They have opted for the dramatic 'quick fix' regardless of the fact that it will do the maximum damage."

McKay said "While I agree that the alternatives to school closings are unpalatable, they should at least have been seriously considered by the School Committee and presented to the taxpayers. Cuts in state aid leave us with the choice of funding more of our school budget with town funds or making major cuts in the school system.

"I have never run for political office before, but I could not remain a bystander when the School Committee reacted to the current financial crisis by turning its back on its own policies and goals." You do not deal with a financial crisis by abandoning a major component of your educational policy-committment to neighborhood schools. Furthermore, if a school had to be closed, why is the committee doing it in such a disruptive way?"

McKay said that on previous occasions the committee stated its policy was to plan for change in such a way that there is the least disruption to students. "Instead, in this crisis the committee will shuffle one third of our elementary school children. Vinson-Owen will be closed and children sent out of their neighborhood to Ambrose. Most of the children in Ambrose will in turn be sent out of their neighborhoods to Lynch and a few to Lincoln. Some Lincoln students will also be moved."

"To make room for the moves," McKay continued, "sixth graders will be sent to the third floor of McCall Junior High School. They will be separated from the rest of the school because, against the recommendation of last years' Task Force on the Middle School, they are being moved before there is a plan to integrate them into a middle school.

"As if this disruption were not enough, our most vulnerable group of children, the three and four year olds in the special needs pre-school are going to be moved from Lynch to Muraco. Finally, as the incumbent has stated, the increase in elementary enrollment will require reopening a school or further redistrubution within three years. Can the School Committee possibly believe it has remained faithful to its policy of protecting children from disruption?

"If the School Committee wants its proposed moves to scare us it has succeeded. I am personally scared because the committee has panicked in a crisis. While I agree that additional money is preferable to damaging cuts and major unplanned policy changes, I am also very concerned about a School Committee which abandons its principles and policies under stress.

"I think it is time for leadership which can cope with the bad times as well as the good. Leadership which knows what is important. Leadership which respects the voters of Winchester and comes before them honestly and humbly when it needs more money to maintain quality education. Lastly, leadership which goes all the way, on every occasion, to protect our school children from the political follies of adults."

Lombardi insists school budget is in wrong hands

Mark Lombardi

"My name is Mark Lombardi and I am a candidate for School Committee. I am the only candidate who believes that we can live within the guidelines of Proposition 2½ while continuing to provide a first class education to our children and without closing an elementary school.

"I am a life long resident of Winchester. After attending Winchester Schools, I realized that they provided me with the opportunity to learn and the ability to compete sucessfully with students from all areas of the country at both the undergraduate and graduate college level. My wife and I did not coincidentally decide to raise our four children here, but deliberately worked to afford a home in Winchester so that our children would have access to the same opportunities provided to me as a child.

"I feel strongly that now is the time for a different type of leader who is willing to demonstrate financial foresight and contingency planning. We all want a top notch educational system but the cost of this must be balanced with a reasonable tax rate so as not to discourage people from raising their family in Winchester and staying here when their children have grown.

"Considering the town's past spending habits, Proposition 2½ guidelines, and the state's current fiscal problems; the current budget crisis should not come as a surprise. I believe that my years on the Finance Committee and as a Town Meeting member will help me to aid the School Committee to move from crisis management to planned financial management.

"The big picture is not only that "schools are doing well" as the incumbent candidate states, but rather that taxpayers are not doing so well. With increasing costs to taxpayers across the board, we should be requiring that all public officials plan to live within our means. Let's stop comparing ourselves to surrounding communities and give surrounding communities reason to compare themselves to us. Let's lead and stop following.

"As a local businessman I realize that there are times when business is good and purse strings can be loosened. These are not those times. We must tighten our purse strings over the next few years and stress efficiency in operations while strengthening essential educational programs.

"In the coming weeks, please take time to listen to what the candidates are really saying. As the incumbent School Committee candidate stated, "the people making the decisions must be doing a good job, look at the record." Yes, look at the record. With the pending closing of the Vinson Owen School, the hasty move of the sixth graders to McCall, and the refusal to address a balanced budget, I would hate to see what a bad job looks like.

"I need your help. Please work with me to promote fiscal credibility, leadership, and imagination within our School Committee."

(Submitted by the candidate).

Schmitt: money at root of problems

"People have asked what the key issue in this year's selectman election will be. The answer is easy: town finances. Rhetoric is likely to be profuse and spirited. That's fine. Political debates focus issues and help people make informed decisions. For that reason, I want to share information that as chairman of the Board of Selectmen, I asked to be developed in connection with the town budget.

"Are we spending like there is no tomorrow? I don't think so. The town manager's budget recommends a spending increase of only 1.3 percent, even if the override passes. If it fails, we will operate with a decrease of 3.5 percent. Last year Town Meeting authorized a budget increase of only two percent. The year before spending increased 4.7 percent. Those figures do not suggest that we are "opening the flood gates" of spending.

"What about staffing levels? In 1988, the town had 612 full-time equivalent workers. If the override passes, next year's recommended staffing will be 554, a three-year reduction of 58 positions, and 12 fewer than today. If the override fails, staffing is likely to be 529, 37 fewer than today. Our employees continue to provide a high level of service. But cuts have taken place, and they affect the services we provide, particularly at critical times, such as during heavy snows or serious fires.

"What about evaluating personnel, prioritizing needs and allocating resources? As chairman of the Board of Selectman, I have insisted on a rigourous review of municipal priorities. Our work is a matter of public record. Public safety is the highest municipal priority. Proposing to restore four firefighters confirms that commitment.

"We have also recommended elimination of seven other municipal jobs, four in town administration. Continually assessing town operations; requiring high productivity, and allocating resources effectively should be among a selectman's highest priorities. Managing a large organization is what I do for a living, and is a skill I want to continue contributing to Winchester.

"Then why do we have such serious financial difficulties? There are two reasons. First, the state's reduction in local aid payments. Last March the state promised us $3.8 million. In August, Winchester was cut to $3 million. Next year's state aid is certain to be even lower. Second is the money in our "bank accounts." Three years ago the town had nearly $2.5 million available in reserve cash. To offset state aid reductions, we have drawn those accounts down to less than $1 million. We can no longer rely on those accounts to help operate the Town.

"I hope this answers some of the questions about Winchester's finances. As chairman of the board, I have insisted this information be available to everyone. We have gathered data, analyzed it, heard views on how to address our budget problems, and placed clear options before the voters. Three years ago I promised to serve with energy and devotion. I have. I make that same pledge today, and ask that on March 27 you give me the privilege to serve three more years."

Pavelle hopes to bring new ideas to library board

Anne Deborah Pavelle

"My name is Anne Deborah Pavelle, and I wish to become your elected member of the Board of Trustees of the Winchester Library. A trustee is a volunteer to whom the governing of a public library is entrusted. A trustee is the vital link between the library and the public. I wish to be your link.

"I want our library to be the public's library, not just a public library. I propose to work to implement several changes. I want to make the library more user friendly by:

- Moving the children's circulation desk downstairs.
- Developing a volunteer group through the Friend's to handle renewals over the telephone during specific hours.
- Installing a pay telephone within the library.
- Reviewing the cost effectiveness of fines on books and videos.
- Conducting a survey to determine preferred library opening hours and days.

"I will keep the public better informed by:

- Determining whether the trustee's meetings can be included in Cable TV's monthly program listing.
- Placing closed suggestion boxes in every room.
- Writing newspaper articles following the trustee meetings.
- Placing the agenda of the meetings in the newspaper.

"Finally I propose to set up a fundraising group through the Friends. This group would have specific goals to improve our library. Funds would be raised with this particular purpose in mind.

"I am a Winchester resident of 12 years, married with two children in high school and one in elementary school. I received my B.A. from Douglass College (Rutgers University) and my M.A. from Case-Western Reserve University. I am a practicing speech language pathologist, professional storyteller, Brownie leader and a very active user of the library. I have an open mind, a deep interest in our library's welfare and a willingness to serve our town."

Residents must register to vote

Residents are reminded that to vote in the March 27 Town Election, you must be registered by Wednesday, March 7.

According to the town clerk's office, in order to vote you must register at Town Hall, 71 Mt. Vernon St.

You will be asked to fill out an affidavit of registration. This is a simple form which requests your name, address, occupation and date of birth. You must: be a U.S. citizen; be a Massachusetts resident; and be 18 years old by election day.

Voter Registration takes place in the Office of the Town Clerk Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and at the following special registration sessions: Saturday, March 3, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Wednesday, March 7, 4 to 10 p.m.

Task Force submits final report

spending practices of the School Department by running through the school budget, line item by line item.

The majority report, supported by Richter, Judy Gans, Susan Haskell, Cynthia Krumme, Susan Lindmark, Carolyn McCane-Chin, Joanne Ronayne and Sarah Swiger, outlines the members' stance that closing an elementary school "is a response to a difficult financial problem that is educationally preferable to the alternative cuts in programs and/or staff, which would otherwise be required."

The report also states that the majority of the Task Force members "felt the move of the sixth grade to the junior high in FY91, the reduction of staffing and assessment of user fees are reasonable although unfortunate ... " The Task Force majority report also noted that the eight members would suggest keeping the current educational and extracurricular programs intact.

The majority report however, called for review of the following budget reductions: reduce two additional custodians ($36,000); reduce two additional instructional aides at the high school ($20,000); reduce one additional clerk or secretarial position in the school system ($20,000); reduce $6,250 from the "Not Otherwise Classified" line item for System Services; reduce System Services dues by $3,000; eliminate professional taping of football games ($2,000) with an allocation of $50 for taping of game by athletic personnel and finally, reduce the telephone budget by $12,000.

The majority report also calls for possible fee increases and review of long-term planning issues.

The minority opinion, supported by Linda Pickering, Dr. David Moriarty, Diana Deering and Deborah Dimes, stated that the primary function of the Task Force was to "prioritize spending with the hope of maintaining five elementary school."

" ... as a result of thorough examination and detailed subcommittee reports we earnestly believe the monies are available to maintain five elementary schools."

Reductions adopted in the minority report were discussed within the Task Force group as a whole, noted Moriarty. The total savings amounts to $1.2 million with some overlapping, according to minority opinion task force members.

Among the more than 90 possible reductions, minority opinion members called for the utilization of one principal for two schools at a savings of $105,932, according to members. Also, reductions in instructional aides, custodians and one guidance counselor at the high school, condensation of section within a course offering at the high school, one art course and the reduction of various administrative costs were outlined.

In conclusion, the report maintains the five elementary schools can be and should be maintained, the sixth grade move to McCall should be deferred for a year and a program of long-range planning to anticipate future school system housing needs should be examined.

Mitsakos questioned the some of the figures in the reports and will respond to the findings at the committee's next session.

O'Connell noted the School Committee will "look for gems" in the reports, or rather line item reductions that can be made to save other items.

Resident Bill Galatis questioned the possible closing of Vinson Owen School, noting if the need arises in the next few years to reopen the school, the costs could be higher. "We all believe this town needs five elementary schools. We should use that as the number one priority and go from there ... and think seriously about other recommendations."

Medicaid cuts plan draws fire

long-term care provider — but the society," said Beth Metcalfe of the Salter Healthcare Services. "Everyone is affected," added Florence Metcalfe, director of nursing at the Winchester Nursing Center.

Medicaid, according to Langer, was originally designed to provide health insurance for the poor. "Medicaid was never intended to pay for nursing home stays," added Langer.

Because nursing home residents had no other payment options, Medicaid began to pick up the tab for nursing home care. And due to the cost of that care, residents' savings are soon dwindled.

But Langer admits part of the large growth in Medicaid participation has been due to potential nursing home residents intentionally impoverishing themselves in order to meet Medicaid's financial requirements.

According to Langer, the state manages the Medicaid budget but 50 percent of all payments come from the federal government. Therefore, of the $800 million expenditure this year for Medicaid, $400 million of that is picked up by the federal government, said Langer.

Langer also noted that last year, Medicaid payments were halted in mid-May. Nursing homes that could not make payroll, pay bills — were considered to be in an emergency situation, and were given their Medicaid payments. Langer said those nursing homes who required emergency assistance constituted 350 of the 550 facilities in the state, indicating the large percentage of nursing homes that rely heavily on Medicaid reimbursement.

Langer said a similar emergency program will be set up this year, but many nursing home officials are worried the money to fund the program will not be available.

"Virtually every nursing home in the state will be affected (if the cuts are instituted)," said Langer.

Salter Healthcare Services, owned by Gershon Salter, has two nursing home facilities in Winchester, the Aberjona Nursing Center and the Winchester Nursing Center, as well as a facility in Woburn.

Most disturbing to the Winchester nursing home administrators is the possible displacement of Level III residents, who are deemed by the federal requirements of Medicaid to require 24-hour care.

"Sometimes (elders) don't have a home to go back to. Some will end up in the streets," said Salter of the potentially displaced Level III residents.

Salter added that many Level III patients have outlived family and friends and are stricken with Alzheimer's disease, are diabetic or have severe arthritis. If living alone, these patients are in danger of forgetting to take medication or not eating properly. Said Beth Metcalfe, "These people are here because they need help — they need medical attention."

While officials from Salter Healthcare say they feel they can weather this latest financial setback, they maintain many nursing homes will not be as fortunate and the outcome will be further reduction in the availability of beds to Level III patients.

Beth Metcalfe noted too, that federal requirements could be more stringent as far as the financial history of potential residents. And while the system needs to be capped, she says it is unrealistic to expect the cuts to be made within a year.

Langer said by the end of the calendar year, Level III persons could be displaced and further patients could be denied admission to nursing homes.

For displaced persons, the next alternative would be home healthcare, said Langer. But that budget took a cut of $11 million last year and for people who require 24-hour care, the program would not be enough.

Beyond that, Florence Metcalfe notes there is no contingency plan for these displaced elders.

Currently, the MFNH is attempting to negotiate with the state in order to receive Medicaid backpayments. In the meantime, MFNH officials are encouraging the public to become educated on the issue and contact their local legislators.

Vets helping out police department

By DAN CHANE
Special to The Star

"Although I am still a long way from my goal, I remain confident that concerned citizens such as yourself will come forward to assist in funding this vital project."

With this statement, Chief of Police Joseph N. Perritano ends a note of thanks to all donors to the Winchester Police Department Equipment Fund.

Citizens have indeed come forward to fund the purchase of new semi-automatic firearms for our police department — which will bring to our men the security that departments in surrounding towns already have.

After a suggestion from V.F.W. member Ed O'Connell, our own Aberjona Post 3719 Veterans of Foreign Wars have become the main headquarters for donations.

Chatting easily with Post Commander E. George Delorey this week, the local observer noted that not only did members heartily approve of the arrangement — they contributed generously to the fund.

At present, Jimmy O'Donnell and "Red" Carroll are ministering to the growing fund — and George asks that donations for the fund be sent to the Veterans of Foreign Wars on River Street in care of Jim O'Donnell.

Winchester has been truly supportive of this cause and Chief Perritano mentions that the project is now about half funded.

Commander Delorey feels justifiable pride that Aberjona Post 3719 has been able to contribute in a positive way, with both the organization and town officials working together to benefit all of Winchester.

The winds of change begin to eddy around the little brick building — flag snapping smartly in the breeze — and Commander Delorey mentions that the age of active members is increasing.

Many changes in the way the post does things have come about due to this fact, and the younger veterans are being actively recruited as members. Sadly, the bond that unites those who have sacrificed so much for their country does not appear as strong as in years past and membership continues to dwindle.

Young or old — it really doesn't make much difference. Love of country is still stronger than any personal convenience for most of the members — and this concern for the greater good is reflected in their graciousness in embracing the cause of the Winchester Police Department.

Were there more civic concern of this calibre, Winchester would not be in the fix it is today.

Good going, guys!

Between the Lines:

Selectman Bill O'Leary would like the federal government to make more of an effort to understand the fiscal crunch hitting cities and towns in Massachusetts these days. O'Leary blasted Sen. John Kerry for planning a seminar in Washington, D.C., on issues facing towns like Winchester. O'Leary noted that with the town's current fiscal crisis, no one would think of requesting funds to attend such an event. "I think it really shows how out-of-touch some of our elected officials can be," O'Leary said at the selectmen's Monday night meeting. "If they want to have these conscious-raising-type forums, they should have them in a place we can go to."

Plans for Arthur Griffin's grist mill photography museum are moving along. One or more warrant articles will show up at Town Meeting to address some issues, such as parking and use of conservation land. According to Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia, Griffin's architect is currently working up a plan that will be better suited to the proposed Shore Road site.

Piecing together a history

By TERRY MAROTTA

I hold a christening dress in my hands made by a woman named Catherine, born in 1844.

I have had it cleaned, and its delicate folds are filled now with a special acid-free tissue. At the neck are faint milk stains, at the hem a small rip, at the cuffs a wedge of newer linen inserted on either side, the better to fit some long-ago baby's pudgy wrists. Each member of my family has worn this dress in his turn, the husky and the wan, both those who grew and prospered and those whose faint flames went out soon.

I hold the license for this women'a marriage, in 1865, to a man named James, a "mechanic" according to the spidery scrawl on the document, which crumbles further as I touch it.

I hold the certificate of appreciation made out to him when he left the mill in New Hampshire to start a new life further south. "We the employees," it reads in fine calligraphy, the loops below the lines painstakingly shaded, "reguest — aye! — desire you to accept this tribute of our high esteem as a faint expression of thanks for your kind efforts to render our daily toil not only agreeable but pleasant..."

Catherine had 10 babies to wear the little dress. Only five of them grew up. One was Caroline Theresa, named for the girlhood friend she left behind in Ireland. They called her Carrie. In time she became a teacher, married one Michael Sullivan, had four children is six years, and died carrying the fifth. The one she gave her name to came in 1907; fought her demons like the rest of us; bore her disappointments; lived a long laughter-filled life; and departed it, all unexpected, at the celebration of her own 80th birthday.

I am her child, named for her who was named for her who was named for a young girl gone to dust in County Galway.

Catherine died when my mom was one. Her pretty mother Carrie died when she was two. Were it not for stories remembered and items saved, I would have no knowledge today of what these women were like. Instead I hold their letters:

"We've had a fine old time on our wedding trip," wrote Carrie to her brother in 1903, "I'm going in bathing today (if there isn't another person in the water!")

When the babies arrived, her mother sometimes came to stay a while. After leaving again, Catherine wrote in the unstandardized spelling of the times, "I feel lonsome for the little ones. The villege is quiet...Please thank Mr. Sulivan for my very pleasant visit."

Summers, Carrie took the little ones up to Catherine's house in the country, while her young husband, Michael, stayed in the hot city to work. This midweek correspondence captures their joy. With the first baby: "Your letter found us in bed this morning, Old Dearie," which is what she called Michael. "James was fast asleep and his mother beside him, faster asleep..."

There are the details of domestic life: "Canned 15 jars of rhubarb for pies"; and "Caroline pulled the legs and arms off her doll"; and "the days go so quickly here. I don't feel the time passing."

But time does pass, whether we feel it or not. One June night in 1910, she wrote, "I am going to try the boys together in one bed, and Caroline in the crib, and Julia in the new bed and the fat lady in the big bed by herself" (she was eight months pregnant.)

She went on: "Tomorrow is our anniversary, Old Dearie. Seven happy years for me. Make it as many hugs 'til Saturday... Your Own Carrie... P.S. James is quite interested in weddings. Says he thinks he'll marry Margaret Gilligan, but I can come live with them when I get old!"

But she never got old. This was the last letter she wrote. She died of toxemia that Saturday, at 31. According to the accounts in the newspaper, "the floral tributes were numerous and handsome." She was buried with her stillborn baby in her arms.

Ten days later, her young widower wrote the first of many midweek letters to his motherless children. "My four Little Dearies," they all begin. I know because I hold them in my hand. And I remember the man who wrote them, since he did not die, but lived long and fully; saved all the letters and remembered all the tales. My son Michael is named for him. My daughter Carrie is named for his bride. Someday they too will know what things are these that I hold in my hands. And why I have thought it important to pass them along.

Coalition opposes VO school closing

TO THE EDITOR:

Vinson Owen Coalition is writing to inform the citizens of Winchester that we are opposed to the move of the sixth graders to the McCall Junior High School. We strongly believe that it is educationally unsound to do so in that essential long range planning necessary to implement such a major change in the educational system has not been accomplished.

In the School Committee minutes of Aug. 23, 1988, the Superintendent of Schools cited the need for long-range planning in this area. Consequently, in the fall of 1988 the School Committee established the Middle Level Task Force. It was charged with "the responsibility of developing recommendations that would ensure an orderly transition" into this new configuration. One of their key recommendations was that the sixth grade move should be implemented only after a one to two year transition period of extensive planning to address the educational, emotional, physical, psychological, and social needs of the sixth grade students. Yet on March 1, 1989 the School Committee suspended the work of the Middle Level Task Force and as a result this vital planning is still incomplete.

We believe that isolating our sixth grade children on the third floor of McCall is educationally unsound. Furthermore, we agree with the Chairman of the School Committee when he stated at a School Committee meeting on April 25, 1989 that the decision to move the sixth graders to McCall was not based on pedagogical reasons. We say, base your decisions on what is best for our children, not on the dollar.

Vinson Owen Coalition
William Galatis, Chairman

Medaglia suggests other alternatives

Open letter to the School Committee:

We must rise to the challenge of finding a better way to manage the dollars we spend within the boundaries of the revenue we receive, with or without the help of an override of Proposition 2½. The future of Winchester Public Schools is in desperate need of innovative ideas, as well as individuals who will deal effectively with current and anticipated budget requirements. The following points need to be addressed:

1. Mr. Jervey's memo to the School Committee on the FY 1991 Budget Process dated Oct. 18, 1989 states that within five years the elementary school population will increase by 150, as a result we will more than likely have to continue to add 1½ teachers per year at this level.

2. The cost of living is again on the increase according to latest Consumer Price Index. Salaries of classroom teachers must keep pace with the cost of living or the quality of the educators will decline.

3. The problem of yearly budget shortfalls will not likely disappear as state aid to local communities is not likely to continue for school districts at its historic average rate of 40 percent of school budgets across the state. Winchester is one of many communities affected by these cutbacks. According to a report titled, "Public Education in Massachusetts: A Broken Promise," compiled by the State Department of Education, the Massachusetts Association of School Committees and the Massachusetts Association of School Superintendents (December 1989), education as we have known it will not be continuing in Massachusetts. This report was based on a survey of 216 school districts, representing 238 cities and towns or ⅔ of the state's school districts, which enroll 77 percent of all school children. Of the 178 communities hardest hit, 38 percent attempted to override Proposition 2½ but it failed in 58 percent of these communities.

With this in mind, it becomes critical to the survival of public education in Winchester that we redefine our policies and our philosophies of education. We must formulate a creative plan that will best serve the long term needs of all of our community.

There are alternatives to the proposal by the Superintendent and the School Committee which are worthy of serious consideration. The Committee's proposal would require a major disruption in the educational process of 466 elementary school students. If we were not looking at a projected increase of approximately 150 elementary students (according to Mr. Jervey's projections) within the next five years, I might not have

This week in history

30 years ago: 1960

Two Winchester residents spent that week's school vacation in New York and New Jersey visiting the United Nations Building and several television shows. The pair were seen by relatives in the audience of Gene Rayburn's "Dough Re Mi" show and after the program the couple got the emcee's autograph. The Winchester residents also got a chance to look in on "I've Got a Secret" and two Arthur Murray dance shows.

There was a total eclipse of the moon that Sunday morning in March. But residents were reminded that the eclipse would be an extended one and in order to take in the whole show, interested viewers would have to make a night of it. According to Walter Webb of the Charles Hayden Planetarium staff at Boston's Museum of Science, astronomers hoped the spectacle would not be rained out, as was the last moon eclipse in 1956.

A property on Myopia Hill Road, with half-acre lot, three bedrooms and two baths, and a maid's room and half bath, was on the market for just $44,900.

Winchester's hockey team upset predictions on that Tuesday night with a 4-2 victory over a favored Needham team.

20 years ago: 1970

Work had begun that week on the construction of the new high school on Shore Road. The contract was awarded Wednesday, Feb. 25 to White Construction Company of Burlington. Pile drivers began work on Tuesday on this first phase of the construction. White had bid the project at $10,489,000 — without the pool.

Board of Selectmen Chairman Paul Amico of Kirk Street was returned to the board for a second term by a vote of 1,588 in the Town Election Monday. Also elected to the board was William Chapman Jr. of Hillcrest Parkway. Chapman, formerly chairman of the Planning Board, received 2,169 votes in the election. In the hotly contested race for School Committee, Lane McGovern of Yale Street and Stephen Parkhurst of Ridgefield Road defeated incumbent Samuel Perkins II of Ware Road. The snowy election day saw 5,581 residents cast their votes at the polls.

Winchester parents were warned to keep their children under close supervision during the time of the solar eclipse expected on March 7 that year. Direct viewing of the eclipse could cause permanent eye damage, warned the director of science at Winchester's public schools.

a problem with this plan. However, this is not the case. This course of action will undoubtedly require another major disruption in the lives of this same segment of our population when we will more than likely have to reopen an elementary school (according to the Superintendent).

Other communities have implemented the following in order to preserve the core of the educational process.

1. user fees for athletics and extracurricular activities;

2. reduction of transportation services; and

3. reduction of non-essential programs and non-essential support staff.

We cannot afford not to consider the aforementioned alternatives, nor can we afford to maintain a building which is underutilized such as the high school. This underutilization of the high school was addressed in the "Task Force Report on Declining Enrollment, October 1982." After considerable research, the task force, projecting a continued decline in the secondary school population, made the following recommendations:

1. Close the Lincoln School.

2. Convert McCall Junior High School to an elementary school and house the Lincoln population at McCall (no redistricting required).

3. Convert a portion of the High School building to "house" McCall population (grades 7 and 8) in this segregated area with a separate administration and separate programs. Under this "house" concept, the two principals would work cooperatively to create a schedule for common areas; such as, cafeteria, gym, shops, etc., that would maintain segregation.

At this point, I feel compelled to mention the previous comments of the Superintendent and the School Committee when they stated at a previous meeting that it is not appropriate to "mix adolescents and pubescents." If one studies the "house" concept, this integration of the two groups is not likely to occur and if it should occur it will be under the supervision of school personnel. As it is, we are currently placing both groups (grades 7 to 12) together in an unsupervised area on a school bus to and from school.

No matter what course of action we pursue, it will be a very painful process and will affect some segment of our school population. I only wish to call attention to alternatives which in my mind present more long-term solutions and are far less disruptive to the youngest element of our community. We must not allow these young and powerless members of our school community to become the victims of our lack of foresight and initiative.

'Chomping at the bit'

TO THE EDITOR:

I am taking this time to briefly respond to a quote attributed to School Committee Member Donna Brandt-Landry. At a recent School Committee meeting she said, "I myself have been chomping at the bit to respond" to recent letters to the editor.

Well, I have been "chomping at the bit" recently also and feel compelled to explain my position.

As a life-long resident of Winchester, home owner, former Winchester school teacher, and graduate of the Winchester schools, I have a good idea of what is happening in town. I, like many others, don't see any effort by the School Committee to closely scrutinize the budget. Spring water, car phones, and fax machines may seem like small expenses to you but to me it shows a blatant flaunting of unnecessary spending. If the School Committee ever expects to earn credibility in budget matters, at least make an effort to eliminate unnecessary, non-educational expenses.

Until then, don't bother responding to letters to the editor, don't ask me to override proposition 2½, and don't expect me to support incumbent candidates.

Denise Randall

Wells comments on override issue

TO THE EDITOR:

One of the decisions we will make in voting on the debt exclusion in the March election is how much money we want to pay for needed services. That decision faced us on last year's ballot in the override question and we chose the expensive way.

When the vote was concluded we had rejected taxes. But town obligations had to be met and Town Meeting was forced to approve fees and charges to pay for them — notably the $50 fee for bringing our trash to the Recycling Center. That at least saved us from dumping it on the front lawn or the patio.

We lost money that way. If we had supplied the same amount of money for that service in property taxes it would have cost each of us 15 to 28 percent less, because property taxes are deductible on our federal income tax returns — fees, charges and all other taxes except income taxes are not.

Every $100 you pay in property or state income taxes cost you $85 or less than what you would have paid in charges, because of the federal deduction.

Remember that when you vote in March or the next time you talk to Rep. Paul Casey about what the State should do.

Bill Wells

Override is good investment

TO THE EDITOR:

To a major extent one's opinion on whether Proposition 2½ should be overridden is more reflective of one's "perspective" than it is a matter of facts. There are a number of different perspectives or viewpoints that one can adopt, and each one tends to lead to its own conclusion.

The first and most obvious perspective is to view the override of 2½ in terms of its impact on taxes. A second perspective is to view local taxes in terms of the services it supports. A third perspective is to view local taxes in terms of investment in the town in which one lives, and to view benefits to the town as benefits to oneself.

A fourth perspective is the one on which I wish to focus. It is the perspective that extra property taxes paid increase the selling price of one's home, and thus it is a wise financial investment. In fact, because of the special circumstances that Winchester is currently in, paying increased taxes is such a good investment that it surpasses all other currently available investments. It is worth more than investing in bonds; it is worth more than investing in the stock market; and it is worth more than investing in additional real estate.

Since one can view the dollars spent because of the override as an investment in one's own property, I will sometimes refer to the increased taxes due to an overrride of 2½ as the "override investment." I believe that a conservative estimate for the "return on investment" for overriding Proposition 2½ is 20 percent per year. Thus paying additional taxes because of the "override investment" is twice as good an investment as the stock market over the past 30 years, and four times as good as putting money in the bank. If I am right (and I believe that I am), then an override of 2½ will benefit nearly everyone in town, not just those with children, not just those who want to use the libraries, and not just those concerned with town safety and infrastructure. It benefits any one who owns a house!

Before going into the details of my argument, let me first admit that if one were to treat the topic in detail and with rigorous financial arguments, then the issue would be mired in technicalities. While a technical treatment of real estate issues is appropriate for a scholarly journal, it is quite inappropriate for a letter to the editor. Fortunately, one does not need an MBA to understand the essence of why the "override investment" is an excellent investment (as well a good public policy). All one needs to do is to consider what is involved in buying and selling a house, and then apply some common sense.

The proposed tax increase for this year is about .075 percent of property values, or approximately $200 this year on a $300,000 house. This increase in taxes is extremely small compared to the price of the house. For example, suppose that you were to sell a $300,000 house in Winchester this year. Then the difference between your asking price and your lowest acceptable price might be as much as $15,000, which is the total amount paid in increased taxes over 75 years. And one additional person being interested in moving to your neighborhood might be just enough to allow you to get your asking price rather than your lowest acceptable price. In other words, an increase in demand by one person for housing in Winchester can mean a considerable increase in the price of one's house.

Now let us consider why people choose to move to Winchester. There are several reasons why Winchester is a very desirable place in which to live. It is convenient to Boston and to Route 128. It has a desirable housing stock. It has nice neighborhoods. It is a safe place in which to live. In addition to all of these attributes is another significant one. Winchester has the reputation of having an outstanding school system. I have deliberately put the word reputation in bold because it is the reputation of the school system that is important to new home buyers. The reputation of the school system is even more influential in the decisions of new home buyers than the quality of the school system. The reputation of our school system is one of the key success factors in attracting new home owners. In business terms, one might view the reputation of our school system as a significant competitive advantage.

It is extremely hard to build the reputation of having an excellent school system. Winchester worked extremely hard for many years to establish its school system as a center of excellence. No school system can do this overnight, or even in a matter of a couple of years, unless it does extraordinary things. Unfortunately, it is easy to destroy one's hardearned reputation. It is the same with all types of reputations, whether it be a business reputation, a personal reputation, or a town reputation. Good reputations are hard to make and they are easy to destroy. And once destroyed, they are hard to recover. If it became commonly believed that the Winchester School system was "going down hill," it would take many years of concerted effort to rebuild the reputation.

I believe that we are in danger of damaging the reputation of the Winchester school system by failing to have the school budget keep pace with inflation. If we do not pass the debt exclusion this year, then we are sending a clear message to prospective home buyers. The message is: "Winchester believes that we are spending too much on our schools, and we intend to decrease the budget every year until we are satisfied." This message will get retranslated in the real estate market as "Winchester no longer is willing to pay for high quality education." While many people will choose to move to Winchester independent of reputation of the school system, there are also many people who care deeply about the reputation of the school system. If Winchester can no longer attract these people, then our housing market will contract accordingly, and the market price of nearly every house in Winchester will fall (some more than others).

In evaluating the value of the override investment, one needs to compare the difference in housing prices whether we vote down overrides versus whether we pass overrides. To illustrate what I mean, consider two residents now each owning $300,000 homes, one in Winchester and one in Wellesley. Let us suppose that Wellesley votes for overrides of 2½ and that Winchester votes them down. Suppose further that in the year 2000, both residents try to sell their houses. The one in Wellesley goes for $350,000 (with increases mostly keeping pace with inflation), and the one in Winchester sells for $335,000, with the primary difference in selling prices due to perceptions that the school system in Wellesley had become superior. By saving a total of $2,000 in taxes over 10 years ($200 per year), this resident has lost $15,000 in property values (and all other house owners in Winchester had also lost value in their homes.)

I give this example not as evidence of my premise, but solely to illustrate it. Perhaps Winchester residents will not lose 5 percent of their home value in the next 10 years because of not passing an override, but it is even more likely that a growing difference in the school system will have a far greater impact on housing prices over the next 10 years. (And a 5 percent gain in property values over 10 years is more than 30 percent return on the "override investment" per year, six times the return from putting money in the bank.)

To make the story a bit more personal, my wife and I moved to our current neighborhood three years ago largely because of an excellent neighborhood school, and because of Winchester's excellent school system. If we were to make the decision today, we would probably choose to move to another town. We have seen evidence in the past couple of years that the citizens of Winchester are willing to pay what it takes to maintain a high quality school system. We would instead look to move to other towns that have an excellent school system and in which proposition 2½ had been successfully overridden. In discussing this issue with friends who are parents of small children, we have heard others who voiced a real concern and fear over the future of education in Winchester. And these fears and concerns will impact not only on parents and those concerned with education in Winchester, it will impact on every home owner in Winchester, and it may cost each

RECYCLING NEWS

Ask Michael Recycle

What is business doing?

What are local businesses doing to help recycling?

Thanks to the support of local businesses, more than 1000 copies of "Winchester Recycles", an informational guide to recycling, were published and are being distributed. Sponsors for the guide include: Ann Blackham & Co., E.B.M. Inc., Bonnell Ford, Fells Hardware, John Edward Airey Removal & Recycling, Litho-Craft, Winchester Co-Operative Bank.

The Mr. Donut Shop kindly donated coffee and donuts for a recycling promotion day at the Transfer Station. John Edward Airey Removal Co. sponsored and funded a gala recycling promotion day last November which included pastries, raffles and prizes.

George Nowell and Sons and Airey Removal, both private waste haulers, have worked closely with the town on recycling issues, and actively encouraged recycling among their clients. Local retailers have also embraced recycling. Hendersons Stationary has begun marketing a complete line of recycled paper products. Recycled note cards can also be found at D. Duck and Co.; Airey Disposal Co. sells a variety of recycled and related products.

We applaud these businesses and look forward to expanding the role the business community plays in the recycling effort.

ELECTION POLICY

The Winchester Star has an editorial policy on the number of press releases that will be accepted from candidates for major townwide offices. This policy is implemented in an effort to be fair to all candidates.

By the newspaper setting the limit, a candidate with greater staff or financial help does not automatically have access to more coverage simply because the candidate is able to do more public relations.

All candidates for major townwide office will be allowed free space for an announcement of candidacy including a head-and-shoulder photograph, and two other press releases. These may include a picture and caption, such as one taken at a fundraising event, or a letter to the editor from the candidate. Letters of endorsement of candidacies by others will not be accepted.

All press releases must be limited to 500 words, and releases should be typed double space.

No release will be accepted for the March 22 issue which immediately precedes the election.

Deadline for press releases is Monday at 4 p.m. However, releases submitted on Friday are appreciated. The Star will make every effort to print the releases the week submitted.

The Star will publish staff-generated and other coverage of the election, such as interviews, candidates' forums, and the League of Women Voters questionaire. Legitimate "news" about a candidate will also be published at the editor's discretion.

home owner far more than he/she expects. The best way to protect our home investment is to vote in the debt exclusion this year, and to vote for an override next year.

Having addressed the issue that an override can be considered a good business decision, one might ask whether it is still a good investment even if one does not plan on moving. The answer is emphatically yes, especially since the expected return on investment is so high. Even if a person never moves from his or her home, the increased equity in a home is useful if he or she wants to borrow, and increased equity is passed on to the heirs of the estate. More importantly, a person can never be sure that he or she will never move, and thus the increased value of the house may be turned into cash at some later point.

To reiterate, nearly everyone has something to gain by voting for a 2½ override. Although the debt exclusion is not as good as a general override, it is important for everyone that we vote for it. And it is equally important that we vote for a general override in the years to follow. Please vote for an override since it is in your interest as well as those of your neighbors. Also please help to make your neighbors aware of the benefits of a general override.

Donors to fire fund are thanked

TO THE EDITOR:

Many thanks to everyone who donated to the Main Street Fire Relief fund and to the merchants of downtown Winchester who put mugs and signs on their counter-tops during the holidays (Jack Childs of Hendersons great idea!) to college and to everyone who worked on the fund.

A special thanks to Ed Goodwin of the Winchester Cooperative who was so helpful with the organization of the fund.

Residents thank fire department

TO THE EDITOR:

During this time of budget debates and cut-backs, we are greatful to have this opportunity to thank the outstanding performance of the Winchester Fire Department's, trained Emergency Medical Technicians.

On Jan. 27, 1990 Louise Vigorita (our grandmother) went into cardiac arrest. When summoned by neighbors, Joseph Nicosia and Michael Beaton, two of Winchester's skilled E.M.T.'s came to her rescue.

Their quick arrival and heroic actions brought her back to life and immenently to the hands of the emergency room staff.

Through this letter we are expressing our sincerest appreciation for the talents of these two individuals.

WTA opposed to override

TO THE EDITOR:

Here they go again!

For the third time in 18 months, the voters of Winchester are once again being told to override Proposition 2½ or the "quality of life" in Winchester will irreparably be damaged. What nonsense! Twice before the voters of Winchester overwhelmingly defeated these override attempts and now the voters' mandate for fiscal responsibility is being dismissed as "yesterday's news!" I think it's about time that the proponents of this "limited override" of Proposition 2½ acknowledge the fact that fiscal responsibility is not "yesterday's news," rather, fiscal responsibility is today's reality! The people of our town will not settle for less.

The problems confronting Winchester are not the result of the so called restraints of Proposition 2½; rather these problems are the direct results of unrestricted spending. As a community we must choose between limited spending or unlimited spending. We must choose between limited taxes or unlimited taxes. Let's be realistic. Since the town has failed to bring spending down to a sustainable level, this will not be the last override attempt. If this override succeeds, we can expect a succession of overrides year after year until the annual tax increases of the bad old days of pre-Proposition 2½ return. Can we afford this fiscal nightmare? I don't think so.

As a life long resident of Winchester, and as a former member of the Board of Selectman, I am deeply committed to our town. What greatly disturbs me is the lack of confidence our citizens have in our elected town officials. Many prominent members of our town have written several letters to the editor pointing out specific areas in the budget that can be cut. It would appear that these recommendations have fallen upon deaf ears. The only word our town boards want to hear is "override," and that is, quite frankly, a simplistic and convenient abdication of fiscal responsibility!

As chairman of the Winchester Taxpayers Association, I cannot, in good conscience, support this $1.3 million override of Proposition 2½. On Thursday, March 8, the Winchester Taxpayers Association has invited Chip Faulkner, the Vice Chairman of the Citizens for Limited Taxation, to be our featured speaker at a forum on Proposition 2½ to be held at the Sons of Italy Hall. Refreshments will be served from 7:30 to 8 p.m. and the public is cordially invited to attend. We urge all concerned citizens to keep March 8 open and to come to a forum that will distinguish fact from fiction, and hopefully, will present a different perspective on Proposition 2½. The outcome of the March 27 election is up to you, the voter, to make. If you come to our forum, I am confident you will make the right choices. After all, your choices will directly affect your life and your town. Choose Wisely!

Donors are thanked by WCC

TO THE EDITOR:

As it kicks off its major fundraising effort for tuition aid for 1990-1991 through solicitations of other charitable organizations and local businesses, Winchester Child Care would like to publicly thank the following groups that contributed generously last year:

EnKa Society, Social Service; First Congregational Church, Mission and Benevolence; Parish of the Epiphany, Outreach; United Way; Winchester Savings Bank; Winchester Unitarian Church, Social Outreach; and Winchester Women's Club, Juniors.

Winchester Child Care also gratefully acknowledges private scholarship contributions made in 1989 in memory of Patricia Swartz.

With funds from these groups and individuals, and contributions from Winchester Child Care itself, the WCC Scholarship Committee awarded nearly $10,000 in tuition assistance to low-income families in 1989-1990. As need for assistance has grown dramatically each of the last several years, the committee hopes to be able to raise that amount to $15,000 for the coming school year. Winchester Child Care, a parent-sponsored, nonprofit organization, operates the Kids' Corner after-school child care and enrichment program housed in McCall Junior High.

Dewald speaks out on schools

TO THE EDITOR:

Last year, we were told that the School Committee could only constrain overspending by laying off a large number of teachers (about 20). In spite of these scare tactics, the override of Proposition 2½ failed. This year, the School Committee has decided to hold the electorate hos-

"Real Estate & You"... THE BEST TIME TO FIX YOUR HOME UP TO SELL

Many homeowners wait until they are ready to move, then they do their painting, gardening, and whatever it takes to make their home look terrific. Then, as they sign the listing agreement, they look at us and sigh, saying that they wish they had done all of this work on their homes the week they moved in, so they would have a real opportunity to enjoy their home at its best.

If you've recently purchased a home, consider the possibility of going through the house as if you planned to sell it soon. Maximize your curb appeal now so that you will reap the benefits every time you pull into your driveway. Go ahead and plant those flowers and bulbs so you'll have your own supply of fresh flowers on your own dining room table. Hang pretty curtains, and if your house needs a new kitchen, do it now so you'll have time to practice your gourmet skills on your own family and guests! And remember, when your house looks its best, you enhance and contribute to the value of all the homes on your street.

SCHOOLS

Vocational education week begins March 11

Students, teachers and alumni of the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School in Wakefield will join schools throughout the state in celebrating "Vocational Education Week" from March 11 through March 17. Several activities have been planned throughout the week to focus on the unique benefits of vocational education.

According to Sharon Farrington of the Northeast Committee for Vocational Education Week, a "kick-off" Alumni dinner will be held on Monday evening, March 12 at 6:30 p.m.

Anyone who would like to attend the dinner may send a check for $10 payable to Northeast, 100 Hemlock Rd., Wakefield, MA 01880, Attn: Sharon Farrington and tickets will be reserved at the door.

On Tuesday evening, March 13, 1990 at 7 p.m. Northeast will hold its first induction ceremony to the National Vocational Technical Honor Society.

The Third Annual dinner to honor outstanding students from each vocational program will be held on Wednesday, March 14. During the dinner at the school's Breakheart Inn, the most outstanding student in each shop will be honored. Guest speaker will be Kate Sullivan from Channel 7.

The highlight of the week will be the Vocational Education Week Dinner in Worcester on Thursday evening, March 15. Outstanding vocational students from throughout the state have been nominated by their respective schools for the honor of being named the "Outstanding Vocational Student" in Massachusetts. George Ross, a senior in Electronics has been selected by the school's administration and faculty to represent Northeast.

"This is one week where vocational education gets a well deserved round of applause," Northeast Metro Tech School Committee member James G. Wallace of Winthrop said. "Vocational education has a lot to offer students in the 12 member communities."

Foreign language week celebrated

If you see a student clad in a toga or lederhosen, a crowd watching a foreign film in the evening, or the entire Winchester High School faculty and student body eating ethnic food during the week of March 5 to 9, be assured that your eyes are not deceiving you. If you hear anything but English in the hallways on Wednesday, March 7, be assured that your ears are working well.

The unusual sights, sounds, and smells will be the result of Winchester High School Foreign Language Department's celebration of Foreign Language Week. A national acknowledgment of the importance of Foreign Languages in our schools, Winchester will join in the festivities for the first time this year.

According to Foreign Language Coordinator Phil Day, the week will involve the entire high school in highlighting the five languages taught here — Latin, German, Spanish, French and Italian. Each day will feature one of the five, with appropriate foods on the cafeteria menu, an evening film program by the language clubs, and questions of the day read in the foreign language each morning.

In addition, many students are preparing to enter a poster contest sponsored by the Massachusetts Foreign Language Association. Others will be prepared to greet all of their teachers in a foreign language each day, to wear the colors of the national flag, to bring in news articles or other objects from the country, and to contribute to an international hunger program. On Wednesday, March 7, many foreign language students will attempt to use no English at all during the day.

The various activities, all coordinated by Mr. Day, each have a point value. Students will keep a score sheet during the week and prizes will be awarded to the top 20 students.

Four win Globe blue ribbons

Artwork by four Winchester students received Blue Ribbon awards in the 40th annual Boston Globe Scholastic Art Awards program. The Blue Ribbon is the highest honor available in the statewide competition and it ensures entry into the National Scholastic Art Awards competition in New York City this spring.

The award winners were: Mike Collins, a student at McCall Junior High School and three Winchester High School students — Christine Braga, Eric Fertman, and Katie Walther.

The Blue Ribbons, Hallmark and Ricoh award artwork, plus several outstanding portfolios and other works which won awards at regional competitions held throughout the state in January, are on display now through March 9 in the second floor atrium of the State Transportation Building, 10 Park Plaza, Boston. All of the winners will be honored at the awards ceremony at CityPlace in the State Transportation Building on Sunday, March 4 at 2 p.m.

The Boston Globe Scholastic Art Awards program is open to students in grades 7-12 from public, private and parochial schools across the Bay State sponsored by The Boston Globe and administered by The Cultural Education Collaborative, an arts in education agency with a long history of work in schools. Now in its fortieth year in Massachusetts, the competition is designed to recognize and reward promising young artists and encourage them to continue their studies in the fine arts.

Beach party plans underway

Plans for Winchester's first all-night graduation party are going forward at top speed. The June 3 party will be held after graduation, for seniors only, starting at 9:30 p.m. and continuing through the night, ending at 5 a.m. It will offer seniors a safe and enjoyable way to spend a final night with their fellow graduates. A beach party will be the theme of the all-night affair. Beach umbrellas and beach balls will help transform the McCall gym into a favorite summer spot.

The committee has wonderful things lined up for the affair. The graduates can dance the night away to the music of disc jockey Ken Wescott. Wescott has been a favorite in Bedford at their all-night graduation parties, and is sure to be a hit with our seniors, too.

Seniors will be given a t-shirt designed by a fellow classmate. There will be a contest to design the t-shirts in the near future. The design getting the most votes from the senior class will have the honor of appearing on the first annual graduation party t-shirt.

Students can sign yearbooks, watch movies and a video highlighting their years at Winchester High, as well as a video of the graduation ceremony. They can have caricatures done, fortunes told, or dress-up and have Polaroids taken for souveniers. Knock hockey, nerf golf and ping-pong will be available, if the mood suits. They can spend some time trying to identify their classmates' baby pictures. There will be raffles, a variety of food all night, and lots, lots more!

Some outside funding has been gratefully received, but it will defray only part of the cost of the party. Therefore, tickets will be sold in advance for $12 each. However, there will be no need for any money at the party, because everything is covered by the ticket. Announcements will be made at school about purchasing them.

A few guidelines have been developed to guarantee a good time for all. No alcohol will be permitted. Entrance time will be 9:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. No one will be admitted after 11 p.m. unless prior arrangements have been made.

Any graduate who leaves the party will not be allowed to return. Parents will be notified before the student is dismissed, regardless of the hour.

This is a really big job and The Celebration Committee could use your help. If you have a senior and don't feel it would be right to be there at the party, you can still help. Many things need to be done in advance. Underclass parents are needed to chaperone (in short shifts) throughout the night. If you are interested, please call 729-3954.

RELIGION

Del Pino elected vice president

The Rev. Dr. Jerome King Del Pino, Senior Minister of Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church in Winchester, recently was elected to serve as Vice President of the Massachusetts Council of Churches. This will be his second term with the Council, which is an avenue of cooperation for sixteen Protestant denominations in the Bay State.

The Annual Meeting of the Council always is held sometime during the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity (Jan. 18-25), and concludes with an ecumenical service of worship in which MCC church leaders participate. This year, a special panel reflected on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the signing of the Vatican II Decree on Ecumenism — past, present, and future. Three Protestant Official Observers to Vatican II were present for the occasion: Professor James Luther Adams, Professor George Hunston Williams, and Dean Emeritus Walter Muelder.

The Rev. Ernest A. Bergeson, retired pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, was the recipient of the 1990 Forrest L. Knapp Ecumenical Award. The honor is given by the Massachusetts Council of Churches for sustained commitment to the cause of Christian unity. Bergeson now resides in Harwich on Cape Cod, but has served churches in Worcester and Waltham.

In other business, delegates approved a $253,030 budget, and launched "Envoys for Ecumenism" — a new, intentional association of individuals committed to invigorating the ecumenical movement through spiritual renewal in companionship and community.

Altar servers

Altar servers of St. Eulalia Church gathered for this group picture with Father Thomas Foley following a special Mass and Investiture Ceremony Jan. 21. The Church of St. Eulalia is proud of its more than 30 altar servers.

AIDS and the church is topic of March 7 talk

The Church of St. Eulalia, 50 Ridge St., Winchester will host a talk by Sr. Gretchen Gilroy, Director of the Office of AIDS Ministry for the Archdiocese of Boston on March 7 at 8:15 p.m. She will speak on "AIDS and the Catholic Church's Response to It." She will examine the recent Bishops' pastoral on AIDS and how the church has dealt with the disease. The talk will take place in McCarthy Hall at St. Eulalia's. Refreshments will be provided and all are welcome.

Sr. Gretchen Gilroy has been involved in health care administration for many years. She is a former Sr. Vice President at Covenant House in New York and has been a hospital administrator and nursing instructor. She has been the archdiocesan Director of the Office of AIDS Ministry since September of 1988. She received an honorary doctorate in humanities in 1982 from Duquesne University.

Petition drive for Christian cable station begins

Plans are underway for a petition drive seeking to place a religious station on cable television.

Parishioners of St. Mary's Church, St. Eulalia's Church and the Immaculate Conception parish will undertake the drive March 10 and 11 during weekend liturgies, to show Continental Cablevision there is a demand for such a station in Winchester.

According to Mike Leone, public relations manager for the Central Area of Continental Cablevision, the station being considered, Eternal Word Television Network (EWTN), is essentially a non-denominational channel. Although it does have a number of Catholic programs, Leone said it could have a wider appeal to a variety of people in a community. EWTN is currently available in Woburn and Arlington.

EWTN was founded by Mother Angelica, a Franciscan nun whose parish is in Alabama. The station's programming includes Masses, scripture courses and guest speakers, among other religious programs.

Leone said a petition is one way for residents to indicate there is an interest in the community to put a station on the air. He noted that the station also does annual viewership surveys to determine interests in town.

HEALTH

Case management at home program is introduced

Last week, in conjunction with Massachusetts Visiting Nurse Association Week, visiting Nurse and Health Care, Inc. (a partnership of Winchester Hospital and Visiting Nurse, Inc.) announced the beginning of a new program to provide help to families struggling with understanding what services are available to loved ones requiring home health care.

Gail Collins, Director of Visiting Nurse and Health Care, Inc. said, "We find that we often receive calls in the office from patients, family members or caregivers who know they need help but do not know for sure what type of services they need, how much they need or where to get them".

The "Casemanagement at Home" program offers a home assessment by a team of experienced staff knowledgeable in community resources. The nurse and medical social worker will meet with the patient and family members and then consult with the physician. A plan will be developed to put appropriate services in place that will foster independence at home. Coordination and follow up will also be provided.

Visiting Nurse and Health Care provides nurses, therapists, home health aides, social workers, homemakers and private duty staff through its affiliates. For further information about these services or "Casemanagement at Home" anyone can call Visiting Nurse and Health Care, Inc. at 729-7600 or come into the office at 10 Converse Place, Winchester Center.

Local agency takes part in health conference

Special Care Home Health Services will participate in the Sixth Annual Caregivers' Conference at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester on March 10.

The event is being sponsored by the Alzheimer's Association of Eastern Massachusetts and will provide an opportunity for family and professional caregivers of Alzheimer patients to present and discuss critical issues.

Experts in the field will present the most current information on the disease, including research, behavior, management and legal and financial issues.

A special panel will also address the current challenge of caregiving in a time of shrinking public resources.

An Information Fair exhibit at the conference will enable attendees to obtain books and brochures on the subject of Alzheimer's disease.

Special Care also sponsors and staffs the Elder Hot Line, 1-800-233-ELDR, a free service that provides information on the availability and appropriateness of health care options for the elderly.

PAC meeting is March 15

The Parents of Asthmatic Children (PAC), an ongoing support group sponsored by Winchester Hospital's Social Service Department and The American Lung Association, will meet Thursday, March 15, at 7 p.m. in the Board Room.

SENIOR NEWS

Volunteers wanted to plan overnight trips

By MARY P. KELLY
Special to The Star

The three couples, Charlie and Mary Craven, Al and Regina Karnila, and Ray and Helen Murphy, who were the recent leaders of the Overnight Travel Committee at the Jenks Senior Center, invite anyone interested in picking up the responsibilities of planning overnight travel trips for seniors to an open meeting at the Center on Friday, March 9 at 1:30 p.m.

If you are at all interested in joining up with a friend or others to plan and organize future group travel trips for seniors, you are encouraged to attend this meeting.

Past leaders will acquaint those interested with procedures and opportunities to volunteer their skills. No sign-up is necessary, just come to the meeting to learn about group travel. The Overnight Travel Committee is a subcommittee of the Jenks Center's Recreation Committee, which plans day trips, special entertainment events and the Super Sunday luncheons.

World Day of Prayer

Church Women United of Winchester will sponsor a World Day of Prayer on Friday, March 2 at 1 p.m., at Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church, with a service written by women of Czechoslovakia. Guest speaker will be Kip Tiernan, the founder of Rosie's Place.

Following the service a Fellowship Tea will be served in Gifford Hall. All are invited to attend this special day of prayer.

National women's history month

March is National Women's History Month, honoring women who have played and continue to play an important role in America's history. Among those cited for their contributions is Barbara Jordan, former member of Congress, who gave the Keynote Speech at the Democratic National Convention in 1976. Jordan said, "Many seek only to satisfy their private work wants and private interestss. But this is the great danger America faces ... if that happens, who will then speak for America? Who will then speak for the common good?... "

Yard sale items are still needed

The Intergenerational Committee of the Council on Aging is encouraging seniors to support the WHS Junior Class yard sale in the high school parking lot, to be held on Saturday, March 31. If you are doing spring cleaning and wish to donate saleable items, the Center will arrange for pickup. If you can bring in any items for the sale, they can be stored in the Center until the sale. Baked items to sell would be most welcome. Drop these off at any time if they are items that may be frozen.

Call Barbara Ciampa, 721-7136, at the Jenks Center, if you are interested in making a donation or would like further information.

Vacancies in Council on Aging

The Council on Aging will have two vacancies in March and is seeking new members. The COA is a town board consisting of 11 Winchester residents appointed by the selectmen for three-year rotating terms. The Council is concerned with long-range plans, policies and programs for the benefit of seniors.

Anyone interested in applying for one of the two vacancies should send a letter to the Chairman of the Board of Selectmen expressing interest in an appointment to the Council. The COA meetings are held twice monthly, on the second and fourth Tuesdays, at 1:15 p.m. The Council is particularly interested in rounding out the skills represented on the Council with members who have banking, legal or financial management and counseling experience.

Pictured are Louise Barker, Shirley Man and Jennifer Southcott, part of the Tuesday afternoon Recorder Group at the Jenks Center, who are preparing for the Intergenerational Concert in the spring. Any experienced recorder players are encouraged to join the group now, to augment the participants for the concert.

Boys hopes ride on Tuesday results

The Winchester High boys basketball team opened up their quest for the EMass Div. 2 North title as they played host to Tewksbury in a first round game Tuesday night.

While it may have appeared that the 15th-seeded Sachems lucked out in drawing an 8-12 team on their home court for their first game, Winchester is in the unusual position where they have to win two first round games to advance to the quarterfinals. If they won Tuesday night, the Sachems will travel to Salem High tonight (Thur.) to take on the second-seeded Witches, beginning at 7 p.m.

Good news for Winchester came last week when it was announced that Sachem starters Jim McGeehan and Mike Morrison were recovering well from their respective injuries, and were expected to start in Tuesday night's game with Tewksbury. However, starting center Jim Dever's knee injury was expected to keep him out of action for at least this week.

Saez pins down state wrestling Div. II title

By NOAM DI MATTE
Special to the Star

Rob Saez, WHS senior and team captain, captured the Massachusetts Div. II (145-lb.) State Wrestling Championship at Wayland last Saturday night. His effort led the team to a fourth place finish in the competition.

Saez opened with pins over Clough of Georgetown and King of Drury before beating Murray of Wilmington, 13-3, in the semi-finals. In the finals, he totally mastered Dineen of Whitman-Hanson, 6-1, for the championship. Rob's single leg takedown hit in each of the three periods and he ground Dineen into the mat from the top every 15 seconds or so.

With his mother, Digna Pagam, watching her son wrestle for the first time, Rob never gave breathing space to any opponent in any of the four matches. Saez finishes the season this weekend in Essex Junction, Vt. in a try for the New England Championship. Rob, who is undefeated this year (30-0) won the Belmont, Methuen and Central Sectional Tournaments as well.

Five other Winchester wrestlers qualified for the state tournament and contributed enough additional points to garner the team's fourth place ranking, but were otherwise left on Sunday morning with the sore muscles, lethargy and foul taste of defeat that waits for all but one competitor in any wrestling tournament.

For none was the taste fouler than for sophomore Will Thilly, who finished second by virtue of a 2-3 overtime loss to Paul Davis of Franklin, whom Thilly had beaten soundly just one week earlier for the Sectional crown. In tribute to the level of competition between these two, Davis was awarded Outstanding Wrestler for the tournament, and going into the New Englands, both Thilly and Davis have 38-2 records with their only losses going to each other.

Thilly looked sluggish throughout the tournament despite easy wins over Stezynsky of Sharon (WBF), Kelley of Saugus (13-4) and third-place finisher Kirby of North Attleboro (6-1). Against Davis, Will came up twice with the single leg lift; once Davis danced out of bounds and once countered by spiralling and grabbing a leg for a stalemate. With no score in the second, Davis scored an escape when Thilly attempted a turning action but within a few seconds was taken down.

A curious referee's call then obscured this very tight match; Thilly had both hands pulling Davis' left arm between his legs and was turning him for a potential nearfall when the referee stopped the match to allow Davis to adjust his headgear. The referee stated to coach Tremblay that the gear was in Davis' eyes. Videotape shows the gear to be below Davis' chin at the time of the call. Will let his attention stray for a second after the call and Davis shot out for the escape to tie the match.

Bad call or not, Thilly fought the worst two minutes of his life in the third period, failing to gain an escape which would have won the match. In overtime, Davis took the lead with his third escape in the second and Thilly, who could have won on criterion (most takedowns) had he scored a single point in the third, again failed to do so despite a last-second roll of Davis to his back at the buzzer. If the two meet again this season, it will be in the finals of the New Englands for which the top three state finalists qualify. Thilly will have to show a lot more pep if he wants to get anywhere this weekend.

At 130, Jeff Foster, a junior, opened with a technical fall over Greco of Monument Mountain and a decision over Ducharme of Dracut. In the semi-finals he lost 1-8 to first-place finisher Kimball of Rockland, but came back to pin Prescott of Georgetown before losing to Collins of Drury (4-5) to finish fourth. This season has seen some terrific improvement for Jeff who won the Methuen tournament and finished at 34-6-1.

At 135, sophomore Hugh Turcotte regained much of the form that brought him success earlier in the season and also finished fourth to end a 35-14 season, which is sensational for his first varsity year. Unseeded, Hugh decisioned Hornucker of Middleton (7-6) but lost 4-7 to second-seed St. Peters of Monument Mt.

It was in the third period of this match that the fight light clicked on for Turcotte after three bad weeks. He then decisioned three high-ranked opponents in a row: Maurer of East Longmeadow (4-1), Puzzinger of Milton (7-5) and Perrin of Dracut (7-5). Our lad then lost a hard-fought match to Determan of North Andover (4-9) in the consolation finals.

At 140, Chris Ebanks, another super sophomore, was seeded No. 3 but also finished fourth. Chris finished his first varsity year with a 29-9 record. Ebanks pinned Pearson of King Phillip and then outpointed Chelmo of Pentucket, 5-4, before dropping an unclose decision to the No. 2 seed, Johnson of Rockland. He then beat MacLean of Franklin (6-1) before meeting and losing this time to Chelmo (0-1). Chris has shown real talent on the mat and the willingness to work at developing it in practice.

The two-month novitiate of Alex Martinelli at 171 met the grim reality of championship wrestling where raw talent, speed and strength are met with these same ingredients plus years of training and experience. Seeded No. 4 after his surprising but well-deserved victory in the Central Sectional last week, Alex decisioned O'Leary of North Reading before being caught in a cross arm bar for the fall against Cayon of Whitman-Hanson. He then beat Davidson of Wellesley, 7-6, before being eliminated (0-6) by the No. 1 seed, DiFonzo of Dracut.

There are at least two ways of looking at this tournament. The down side is that Thilly has twice finished second in the States with excruciating last-minute losses and Foster and Ebanks missed qualifying for the New England (they are first alternate) by one-point losses. If Thilly, Ebanks or Foster had won their final matches, as in fairness they could have with a little more oomph, the team would have finished second to Franklin instead of fourth, just a few points behind Dracut and North Andover.

On the up side is Saez's resounding victory. This was a well-earned crown for a guy who has had his troubles on and off the mat. We need not lament for Thilly who has won tournaments before and will win again. We can take comfort that Foster, Ebanks, Turcotte and Martinelli have outperformed reasonable expectations and have brought to Coaches Larry Temblay, Mike Kelley and Tony Fortunati, the high state ranking they were aiming for two years early.

With five other winning wrestlers (Adam Finn, Mike Britt, Todd Rotondi, Jamie Mabardy and Bill Branley) returning to the squad next year, and freshman standout Jeremy Huegel looking for a place on the varsity, the team looks to be a major factor for the next two years.

Carzo named to top NCAA post

Winchester resident Rocco J. Carzo, director of athletics at Tufts University, was elected Div. III vice-president at the 84th annual NCAA Convention held in mid-January in Dallas. He replaces Alvin Van Wie of the College of Wooster. Consequently, Carzo automatically became a member of the NCAA Executive Committee.

Carzo began his rise to the NCAA's elite in 1955 as an assistant football coach at Salesianum High School in Wilmington, Delaware. Having received his B.S. in Physical Education from the University of Delaware in 1954, he returned to the school and earned a Master of Education degree in 1956.

Carzo, a backfield star for the Blue Hens as an undergraduate, then spent four years as an assistant football and head lacrosse coach at Delaware. In 1960, he headed west and took a post as offensive coordinator at UC Berkeley.

In 1966, Carzo left California to take the head football coaching position at Tufts University. The rest, as they say, is history. Following a successful eight-year tenure coaching the Brown and Blue on the gridiron, he was named the University's director of athletics in 1973.

While guiding TU athletics through an extended period of growth that has brought Jumbo teams in many sports to regional and national prominence, Carzo himself has steadily gained stature in the NCAA hierarchy. He has held positions on numerous NCAA and ECAC groups on finance, television and officiating. Carzo has also worked for the UPI Bowl Selection Committee and served as president of the Greater Boston Athletic Directors Association.

He has kept his education skills in good repair through the years, from teaching physical education while coaching at Delaware to developing and teaching a summer fitness program at Tufts' European center in Talloires, France. In addition, Carzo is a member of several professional organizations in health and physical education fields and has published a number of manuals in coaching and fitness.

Clarke brings home Golden Glove title

Winchester High graduate Dennis Clarke became the first student from Harvard University in 41 years to compete in the Golden Gloves boxing finals last Wednesday night at the Lowell Auditorium. The Crimson senior decisioned Aly Kirueger in the novice division to become the first Harvard heavyweight champion since Peter Fuller (of car dealership fame) did it back in 1949.

Clarke turned to boxing after a ruptured disc forced him to retire from his first love, football, his freshman year. Dennis played football at Winchester High and was a co-captain and All-Scholastic his senior season in 1985.

Although doctors advised him to give up all sports following the discovery of his injury, not to mention he was an asthmatic, the determined Clarke turned his interests to the fight game at the Harvard Boxing Club. Under the tutelage of 81-year-old former pro fighter Tommy Rawson, head of the club, Clarke quickly developed his boxing skills.

Last Wednesday night, Clarke used his heavy punching power and smarts to win a close decision over Aly Kirueger. Although he possessed a more powerful physique, Clarke fell behind after one round to his more aggressive opponent.

But Dennis began landing some heavy blows in the second round and got himself back into the fight. In the third, both fighters landed effective punches, but a late Clarke flurry earned him the victory and championship.

Clarke will now turn his attention back to his books and is looking forward to doing battle in the working world once he graduates.

Mite IAs boost winning record in tourney play

The Mite IA Yankee Conference team ran its record over February vacation week to 16-6-3 with three wins and a loss in the Tewksbury Mite Tournament.

The Mites started by beating the host team, 3-1. In that game, Rugo Santini scored two goals and John Andrew Koslowski iced the victory with an empty net goal with 14 seconds left on the clock. Assists went to Bobby Norberg, Michael Tambone, J.J. Morrissey and Mark O'Leary. The game was also marked by some great stand-up goaltending by Chris Foley.

In game two of the tourney, Winchester went up against a much older and stronger Medford club and lost, 7-2. Rugo Santini scored both goals in a losing cause. Assists went to Andrew White and Steve Migauski.

In game three, Billerica proved to be no match as Winchester IA won easily, 7-3. This game was highlighted by John Andrew Koslowski's hat trick. Other goal scorers were J.J. Morrissey (2), Mark O'Leary and Rugo Santini. Assists went to Paul Koslowski, Charlie McLeman, Adam White, Mike Foley, Jeff Stevens and Rugo Santini (3).

In their final game of the tournament, Winchester IA had a rematch with host Tewksbury. This time, the score was even more decisive with Winchester winning going away, 7-2. The scoring was started by Rugo Santini when he notched his 53rd goal of the season, unassisted, at 5:29 of the first period. A minute later, Jeff Stevens scored his first of three and the door was open for Winchester to pile it on.

In the second period, Stevens scored again with Charlie McLeman assisting. John Andrew Koslowski scored unassisted and Mark O'Leary also scored with assists going to Paul Koslowski and Rugo Santini before the period ended. In the third period, little Charlie McLeman scored his first goal of the season off a scramble in front of the net. Jeff Stevens grabbed the assist. The final tally came from Jeff Stevens, again on a feed from Rugo Santini.

The parents and children really enjoyed this tournament and it came at a good time, two weeks before the Yankee Conference playoffs start. Winchester Youth Hockey also acknowledged the great support of sponsor Ann Blackham Realty.

Youth Basketball Assoc. sponsoring invitational tournament March 3 & 4

The Winchester Youth Basketball Association will sponsor its annual Winchester Invitational Tournament for the sixth, seventh and eighth grades on Saturday, Mar. 3 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Sunday, Mar. 4 from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Winchester High School Fieldhouse.

The visiting teams will include Reading, Burlington and Melrose. Additionally, there will be a travelling team from Montreal which will participate in exhibition games against Winchester and Reading. The Montreal children will be housed by families of the players of the Winchester teams.

The admission price for each day of the tournament is $1. In addition, there will be a raffle which includes two choice seats for a Red Sox game, autographed basketballs by the Celtics and gift certificates for sneakers. Also, there will be food and drink concessions as well as a program which will provide rosters of the teams, schedule of the games and a listing of all the corporate sponsors of the tournament.

WINCHESTER PAST AND PRESENT

When schools moved from place to place

By ELLEN KNIGHT
Special to The Star

Today elementary students are participating in Colonial Day, a time for learning about life in 17th and 18th century America. The children will be meeting for this event in Town Hall, a Victorian building and a far different educational site than school children had in Colonial days.

During Colonial times, the district that is now Winchester had no schoolhouse at all. The first built within our boundaries was raised after the Revolution in 1794. Before that, children here had to depend on other means for their education.

Education, relates Chapman in his History of Winchester, "was long taken very casually by our ancestors." Many children in the 17th century learned their lessons at home. Others may have attended a "dame school," a school kept by a woman of the town in a room in her own home, such as that kept by "Goodwife Converse" in Woburn, engaged in 1673 to teach for a salary of 10 shillings.

The first schoolhouse for children living in this area was built in Woburn Center in 1713. (It was built by private subscription, the money not having been allocated by the town). However, school was still taught in rooms in private homes.

In fact, until 1760 grammar school moved about from home to home since Woburn then occupied quite a large territory and it was considered only fair to relocate it and make it more accessible to different children at different times of the year. Any district wishing to have the school move into its area usually had to supply the schoolmaster with a horse on which to ride to meeting. The children had to walk the long distances.

During this era of peripatetic education the school sometimes made its way into Winchester territory: to Thomas Belknap's on Main Street, Thomas Reed's on Cambridge Street, to a home on Richardson's Row, and Ebenezer Converse's on lower Church Street.

Not until 1761 did the Town of Woburn appropriate money to maintain regular schools. Even then, it would be another 30 years before the district of South Woburn (present-day Winchester) would have a schoolhouse.

With the building of schoolhouses, the history of education in Winchester leaves Colonial days. However, the educational experience of meeting in a room within a teacher's home survived the Colonial era for quite some time. In fact, one of the homes used as a school still stands at Symmes corner, the house of Deacon John Symmes, where Pamelia Symmes kept school before she became the teacher at the public schoolhouse built in that area in 1830.

While not a Colonial home, it is yet a link with a past with which, through expriences like Colonial Day, we can come in touch with the culture and society that were the foundation of our own and with a time out of which our own has grown.

LETTERS

tage once more by threatening to close an elementary school if we don't vote to override Proposition 2½.

A $13,730,100 school budget was proposed for FY '91 (Winchester Star, Dec. 28, 1989 issue) which funded only four elementary schools. The closing of one elementary school is to save $350,000 which is a meager 2.55 percent of the proposed budget. Of course, there is no fat in our school budget. Yet, a simple calculation shows that only 49.79 percent of budget is for teachers' salaries (the assigned classroom type). It is simply unreasonable to suggest that it is impossible to make a 5.1 percent adjustment in the other 50 percent of the budget that will not affect classroom teachers.

Unfortunately, the perceived budgetary crisis has conveniently distracted the school committee from dealing with some very serious shortcomings in the Winchester school system. Winchester's Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores need to be substantially improved. For admission into a competitive college or university a combined SAT score of 1200 or better is desirable. Unfortunately, Winchester's combined average score for the past five years is only 1008. Since academic achievement of our students is of paramount importance and the SAT scores are a measure of this achievement, higher SAT scores must be expected.

Another problem at the high school is the low enrollment in the Advanced Placement (AP) courses. Winchester High School offers AP courses in Chemistry, Physics, Spanish, and Art. This year only five students are enrolled in AP Chemistry, eight students in AP French, six students in AP Latin, and 14 students in AP U.S. History. Simply put, these enrollments are too low for "outstanding academic achievement" as the rhetoric by the superintendent of schools and members of the school committee would like us to believe. Moreover, a total of 441 AP course scores were reported by the Winchester High School classes of '87, '88, and '89. The enrollment in these three classes was 853 students. Also, 88 percent of these students were reported to enter post secondary education. Therefore, on an average our college bound students took only a miserable 0.588 of an AP course.

The low enrollment in AP courses and mediocre SAT averages make it imperative that a curriculum which stresses the basics be introduced immediately. Currently, over 135 different courses are offered at the high school (not including physical education) to a total of 848 students. This gives a student to course ratio of less than 6.3.

It is clear that graduation requirement at Winchester High School need to be substantially increased. For example, why not require three years of both math and science for graduation. A foreign language requirement should also be considered along with obtaining two AP course scores of a three or greater. Let's stop kidding ourselves: five students in AP Chemistry, six in AP Latin, seven students in German 4H, etc. is an embarrassment. This lack of education does not prepare our young people for a future in the 21st century. The curriculum at the high school needs to be condensed and many marginal courses (All Thumbs, Air Brush, Auto Mech, etc.) must be eliminated while Japanese should be added to the foreign language offereings. A more basic curriculum encompassing English, math, science, history and foreign languages will certainly be in the best interest of our students.

Finally, we need a school committee that will stop its chest-beating and take a leadership role in solving some of these serious shortcomings. Also, we should recall that all members of the present school committee were elected without opposition, and this probably explains their arrogance and inactivity. Remember, this is the same committee that did not respond to the voices of the electorate when it voted for an unprecedented five-year contract for the superintendent.

We should come to expect better results for our money spent. Simply spending more money does not guarantee improved results. The time for complacency is over. Our entire educational system must undergo radical change if this country is to remain in the hands of our children, and one in which they can determine their own future. Frying cheeseburgers for the Germans and Japanese is not going to result in a high standard of living. Our current overemphasis on sports takes precious time away from homework and study. While the Japanese students concentrate on Saturday academic tutorials, our students occupy themselves with kicking the soccer ball to the extreme. It is a sad commentary on our times. Again, an override will not solve these problems.

Robert R. Dewald

Livingstone questions task force membership

TO THE EDITOR

I have been following the Task Force on School Closings established by the School Committee in December through its inception, attendance at some meetings and recent newspaper articles about its progress. I have had and continue to have serious concerns about the make-up of the Task Force and question the criteria used for choosing its members.

It appears that some members have come to the table with preconceived ideas on the education budget and the town's fiscal crisis. Some members of the Task Force were heavily involved with various pro-override political organizations during last year's override debate. I question the judgement of putting these individuals on the Task Force even though the positions some of them occupy on school parents' association boards were requested.

Some examples: The President of the Muraco Parent Association was last year's president of CSA. CSA actively campaigned for the override. She is also the wife of last year's chairman of the Finance Committee who this year is treasurer of the incumbent School Committee candidate's campaign.

The president of the High School Parent Association is the wife of a School Committee member.

An at-large member was a candidate last year for Board of Selectman. Her campaign position was in support of a general override of Proposition 2½.

Also one member's husband is employed by the school administration on a part-time basis. I believe she is also a member of The Alliance for Winchester's Future, a very pro override group.

Although I am certain many people are anxious to disagree with me on this and will certainly respond in Letter's to the Editor, let me state emphatically that my comments are not intended to question these task force members' concern, commitment or ability to perform the job given them, but rather to state that the School Committee should not have named them. The School Committee should have named people who were truly impartial on issues affecting the education budget to this task force. In fact, they did not.

Consider for a moment who applied but were not chosen. There was a PhD administrator at Harvard University, another PhD who has taught at the university level and who regularly deals with budgets and a business executive with Raytheon. To my knowledge none of these individuals was involved on either side of the override debate or has publicly taken a position on the town's financial situation at the time the task force was chosen. Ask yourself — to establish an impartial task force with the skills necessary to review our educational system and the education budget — who would you have chosen?

Mary Livingstone

CLUB NEWS

Garden Club meeting held

Helen Williams hosted the Feb. 12 meeting of The Winchester Estates Garden Club with Marge Owens as co-hostess. Susan Nesline, Vice President conducted a business meeting discussing spring clean up and maintenance of the strips at Capri Terrace and Wincrest Drive.

The topic of the February meeting was a plant clinic with Keith Hutchins and Suzanne Sullivan from Wilson Farms. Keith gave an entertaining and colorful history of the Wilson Family farms in both Lexington, Mass. and Litchfield, N.H. Suzanne, an expert in plant care, gave great advice to club members on how to care for their ailing plants.

Members will meet this March at the home of Roseann Chang of Wincrest Drive. It will be a craft workshop with Florence Gosselin.

The Winchester Estates Garden Club was founded in 1963 to maintain the strips located on Wincrest Drive and Capri Terrace. Membership is open to all residents of the Winchester Estates area.

COMING EVENTS

Anderson speaks to AAUW March 7

The Bedford-Lexington Branch of The American Association of University Women, meeting at the Bedford Public Library on Wednesday, March 7 at 7:30 p.m., will feature a program entitled "Facing Global Challenges."

Nancy Anderson, well known environmentalist, will speak to the members of the AAUW, their guests, and members of the community who are interested in addressing the issues of our troubled environment. Anderson, Director of Environmental Affairs, Lincoln Filene Center for Citizenship and Public Affairs, has organized numerous conferences nationwide, and is the Director of the New England Environmental Conferences. The latest of those conferences attracted over 1,500 persons from throughout the region and across the nation. It was co-sponsored by over 250 environmental groups, government agencies, and businesses.

The public is welcome to attend this important program at 8 p.m., and the social hour which begins at 7:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the Bedford Public Library, Wednesday, March 7.

Ileitis, colitis support group

The National Foundation for Ileitis & Colitis Winchester Group will have a meeting March 22 at 7:30 p.m. at Winchester Hospital, 41 Highland Ave., (Kingsbury Seminar Rm.). Admission is free; for more information call (617)449-0324.

One out of every 100 Americans has either ileitis (also known as Crohn's disease) or ulcerative colitis; 200,000 of them are children or adolescents. These digestive diseases are chronic, incurable and life-threatening. Meetings provide people with new informaiton concerning treatment. Patients and families can share problems and receive emotional support.

Meeting planned on Exploration

A special meeting for boys and girls, ages 12-14 and 15-17, from Winchester and their parents and friends has been scheduled for Sunday, March 4, 1990, from 2 to 3 p.m. at Wellesley College, Pendleton 105 East. The purpose of this meeting is to acquaint individuals from Winchester and others with the two separate Exploration Summer Programs which will be held on the Wellesley College Campus again this summer.

Exploration, a non-profit, enrichment program for junior high and high school students offers both the day and residential options for all interested participants. Both programs will be discussed at the March 4 meeting.

Further information about the meeting, about the programs, and about receiving a copy of the program video for viewing in your home may be obtained by calling (617) 329-4488, the Exploration office, or by writing to Exploration, 124 High Rock Lane, Westwood, MA 02090.

Scot Symphonic band performs benefit concert

Mark your calendars for a special benefit concert sponsored jointly by the Friends of the Winchester Public Library and the Winchester Community Music School. The concert will feature the Scot Symphonic Band of The College of Wooster, Wooster, Ohio and will occur on Friday night, March 9 at 8 p.m. at McCall Junior High School.

The Wooster Scot Symphonic Band, which has performed in 25 states during previous spring tours, will perhaps be remembered by many in Winchester because about eight years ago it gave, as a benefit, the annual Spring Concert for ABC (A Better Chance). That concert received resounding praise for the band's musicianship and the varied nature of its repertoire.

Clad in Dress MacLeod tartan kilts, this colorful musical group also features a Bagpipe and Drum Corps and Highland Dancers. A Scottish uniform was selected more than 50 years ago because of the Scottish Presbyterian heritage of the College, and the pipe band and dancers have been a part of the Scot band since its early years.

The band's repertoire is selected from standard band literature and is planned for a variety of tastes. Most of it is "serious," but the program also includes music written in a lighter style. Quoting the director, Nancy Ditmer, "No band concert would be complete without the music of Scotland."

The band is composed of approximately 80 musicians representing all areas of the college. The members of the band are about 90 percent non-music majors. All value a college in which they can pursue a liberal arts education and also continue to perform music meaningfully. They come from all four classes and represent nearly every area of professional interest.

Two local Winchester students are members of this band. They are: Katherine Mortensen (former President of the Winchester High School Band; a senior music major at Wooster: pianist and percussionist); and Jason Boone (former Drum Major of the Winchester High School Band, and now a junior at Wooster; saxophonist). Boone also has been selected this year as the Drum Major of the band, and leads it in complete Scottish regalia during the fall marching season.

The members of the band will be housed and fed on the night of the concert in Winchester by local friends of music and supporters of the Library.

A free-will offering of $5 is invited for the benefit of the sponsoring organizations (checks to Winchester Community Music School). Tickets (free-will offerings) for admission to this benefit concert are available at Henderson's Stationary, the Winchester Public Library, BookEnds (at the rotary), Cradock Apothecary, and at Winchester Community Music School (at McCall, during late afternoons). Otherwise, call and leave a message at the Library to reserve tickets.

Lenten concerts are planned

In observance of Lent, the Masterworks Chorale & Orchestra will present music of Bach and Dvorak in a pair of related concerts centered upon the drama of "Death on a Cross — A Mother's Grief." Performances will take place in Sanders Theatre, Cambridge, on March 11 and April 1, at 4 p.m. Artistic director Allen Lannom will conduct.

Appearing in these concerts will be Winchester residents Terry Seferian, Richard Pharo and Constance Rosenberger.

Tickets to each concert are priced at $19, $14, and $9 (students and seniors $6). Substantial discounts are available for parties of ten or more. Reservations should be made as early as possible by calling (617) 924-8073.

Sanders Theatre is conveniently located at the corner of Kirkland and Quincy Streets, adjacent to the Harvard University Science Center, and is handicapped-accessible. Audience members may park free of charge in the Broadway Garage on Felton Street.

Ploss exhibits 'Crystalscapes'

"Crystalscapes" by Richard Sanford Ploss will be exhibited at the Winchester Art Association Gallery, 585A Main St., March 3 to 31.

An opening reception will be held March 4 from 3 to 5 p.m.

Crystalscapes is a photography exhibit featuring microscopic crystals. These color photographs are made with a polarizing microscope at magnifications up to 600 times, and have been selected for form and composition from thousands of possible exposures. They show the wide spectrum of vivid colors seen only through the use of polarized light.

The gallery is open Tuesday through Saturday from 12 to 4 p.m.

Albano holds district hours

State Senator Salvatore R. Albano (D-Somerville) will hold his monthly district hours in Winchester on Friday March 2 from 10 a.m. to noon in Winchester Town Hall.

Albano said, "I urge people who want to discuss a legislative issue of a personal matter with me to stop in and talk. These one-on-one encounters have proven extremely productive in the past. They are lively and informative sessions. If you can't make it at this time, feel free to schedule an appointment with me in my office."

For more information on district hours or any issue, please call the Senator's office at 722-1578 or visit State House, Room 423, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

March is Red Cross month

In 1943, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt declared March as Red Cross Month. Every year since then the President of the United States, Governors of States and local officials have signed proclamations in celebration of March as Red Cross Month.

During the month of March, the Red Cross focuses public attention on the humanitarian objectives of the organization and the services it provides. It is also a time to invite members of our communities to join and participate in programs and services of the Red Cross.

In celebration of Red Cross Month, Orientations to Red Cross will be held in both North Area locations. The first one will be held on Tuesday, March 6 at 10 a.m. at the Red Cross building, 786 Main Street, Melrose. This will be followed by two orientations to be held in Peabody on Thursday, March 15. They will take place at 2 p.m. and at 7 p.m. at 85 Lowell Street, Peabody. The program is designed for anyone who would like more information about the Red Cross and volunteer opportunities.

Reservations would be appreciated. Coffee and refreshments will be served. Please call the Red Cross office in Melrose at (617) 665-1351 or in Peabody at (508) 531-2280 to make your reservation.

LIBRARY LINES

During school vacation week a total of 91 Winchester children and 56 adults took advantage of three programs offered by the Winchester Public Library Children's Department. On Tuesday, Feb. 20, Mary Churchill and the Cranberry Puppets presented fairy tales for ages 3 and up. On Wednesday, Feb. 21, 6 to 10-year-olds heard a "Sky And Star Story Time" presented by Stephanie Wolflink and Cara Barlow. UFO expert Dave Downes presented a slide show and talk on UFO sightings in New England to ages 8 and up on Thursday, Feb. 22. These programs were sponsored by the Friends of the Winchester Public Library. The Children's Department is also grateful to Girl Scout Troop 1469 for helping out with these programs.

Children's Room

The Children's Room is now open on Tuesday evenings until 8 p.m. The Children's Department will be holding Family Story Times for ages 2 to 5 at 6:30 on March 13, March 27, and April 10. No registration is necessary. The Programs will last about 30 minutes.

Community Calendar

For those who plan community activities or those who attend them, the Winchester Public Library's Community Calendar is a valuable resource. The Community Calendar, located in the library foyer, lists coming events. Residents can check the calendar in order to find out what meetings or events are being planned in the community. Program planners can check the calendar in order to find out what other events have been scheduled, and select the best time for their activity. To have an event added to the Community Calendar, contact the Reference Desk at the library.

Coming Events

Coming in March: The Friends of the Winchester Public Library and the Winchester Community Music School will be cosponsoring a concert by the Scot Symphonic Band of the College of Wooster, Ohio, on March 9, 1990. The concert will be held at 8 p.m. in the McCall Junior High school Auditorium. Tickets will be available for a $5 donation at the Community Music School, Cradock Apothecary, Bookends, and Henderson Stationers. Watch for more information about this exciting event.

For information on anything mentioned in this column, please call the Winchester Public Library at 721-7171.

RECREATION

Globetrotters trip planned

Now's your chance to see the Harlem Globetrotters' hilarious brand of basketball. On Saturday, March 31 a bus will leave from behind McCall Jr. High at 6:30 p.m. for the 7:30 p.m. game at Boston Garden.

The fee is $21 and includes ticket and transportation. Children under 11 must be accompanied by an adult. For more information call the Recreation Department, 721-7125.

'Dear Ashley at the Movies'

Friday, March 2, at 7 p.m., "Bill and Ted's Excellent Adventure" will be shown at the First Congregational Church, Chidley Hall for Junior High students. Students are required to have a permission slip signed by a parent or guardian.

Admission is $2.

Comedy night set for March 3

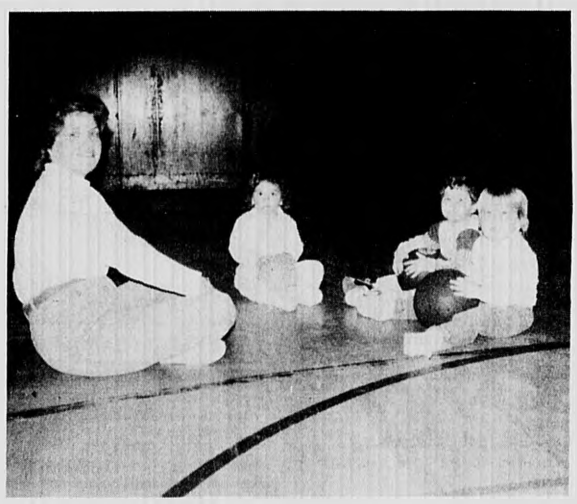
W.H.O.A. (Winchester High On Adventure) will be sponsoring the Second Annual Comedy Night on Saturday, March 3, 1990 for high school students. Come join us for a night of laughs with Bruce Teell and Geroge MacDonald from the Comedy Connection. This event is for high school students only and will take place in Chidley Hall at the First Congregational Church at 8 p.m. Doors will open at 7:30 p.m. Admission is $5 at the door. Come early for best seats. For more information call 721-7125.



Participants in the "Tiny Tot Drop In" program play together. The program meets Fridays from 10 to 11:30 a.m. The charge is $2 per person per session.

Hypnotist show planned March 16

For all Junior High Students. Guy Anthony, will thrill and captivate the aduience with his hypnotic abilities. He has been seen on local television as well as the Jerry Lewis Telethon. The show will be Friday, March 16 in McCall Jr. High Auditorium and begins at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $3 per person availabe at the door.

Recreation brochure soon to be released

The new Spring brochure listing the courses available through the Recreation and Community Services Department will be mailed to all residents during the week of March 12. Additional copies will be available at the Jenks Center, Public Library and Town Hall.

The summer brochure describing the camps will be included in the spring brochure. This year we will have the capability to accept children into our Day Camps who have Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder, Behavior Disorder and Learning Disabilities.

'April Fool' ornamental staff

No home or classroom should be without one! What do you think an April fool resembles? Create your own creature on a fine wooden staff. Sewing skills not necessary; imagination a bonus. Instructor, Nadine Shurbier, is well known for her Zugglesnooks and other imaginative creations.

Class is either Tuesday or Wednesday, March 13 or 14 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at Winchester High. Registration is $14. A materials fee of $18 is payable to the instructor. For more information call the Recreation Department, 721-7125.

Decorative panoramic Easter eggs for adults

Learn sugar molding and basic beginner's decorating techniques. Classes are held three Tuesdays, beginning March 20 from 7-9:30 p.m. in Winchester High School. Registration is $28. A $15 materials fee is payable to the instructor.

For more information, call the Recreation Department, 721-7125.

BUSINESS

Entreprenuers make debut

In September of 1988, Winchester High School graduates, (class of 1984), Anthony Piccione and Theodor Pappas were eating lunch at a Chinese restaurant in Allston. After the usual array of delightful Chinese cuisine, the waitress delivered two fortune cookies to the table.

They both laughed in anticipation of what their fortunes might be. Piccione held a fortune in his hand and then pressed it against the pocket of his oxford shirt. "Wouldn't it be great to have a fortune sewn right to your shirt!" he said.

From that moment on, life-long friends and residents of Winchester, Piccione and Pappas have dedicated their full-time efforts into creating the new and exciting work of "American Fortune" which was incorporated in May of 1989.

"American Fortune's" first selling season will take place this upcoming spring with their sport shirts available at the BU Bookstore Mall on Beacon Street and T. Michael's Men's Weekend Wear in Winchester Center.

Cambridgeport Bank celebrates 10 years in town

Birthday cake and the chance to win Boston Bruins hockey tickets will highlight the tenth anniversary celebration of the Winchester Branch of Cambridgeport Bank.

Julie Pintone serves a client at Salon Sei Bella

Sign-up for the hockey ticket raffle gets underway Feb. 26 at the Winchester Branch of Cambridgeport Bank, located at 522 Main St. Four sets of two tickets each will be given away.

On Thursday March 8, the Bank will hold its official Birthday Party, and invites customers, residents and the business community to drop by for birthday cake and coffee during business hours. Cambridgeport Bank President James B. Keegan will be on hand from 3 to 5 p.m. as "official host" of the party and to draw the names of the raffle winners.

Walter Hulbert, Assistant Vice President and Branch Manager, will also deliver birthday cakes to the Winchester Nursing Center, the Aberjona Nursing Center and the Jenks Senior Center.

"This is a great opportunity to say thank you to our depositors and to the entire community for making us feel at home in Winchester. We have had 10 great years here, and we look forward to many more," says Keegan.

Salon Sei Bella grand opening was great success

Joining the rejuvenation of downtown Winchester's shops and businesses is the newly opened Salon Sei Bella. Formerly known as Trendcutters, Salon Sei Bella opened Feb. 3 as a full-service beauty salon.

New proprietors John and Julie Pintone look forward to welcoming old and new clients to their 9 Thompson Street salon. With their senior stylists Maryann and Jeannie, the Salon Sei Bella team brings more than 26 years of experience to clients. Salon Sei Bella will carry the much-respected line of Peter Hantz products, which are 100 percent organic. In addition, clients can look forward to "Colorly", from Milan, Italy, the fastest-growing hair color line in Europe.

Salon Sei Bella will also carry Sunglintz, a gentle method of highlighting hair which is safer than bleach and leaves hair in excellent condition.

Winchester's own Jane Ward, who graduated top in her class at Catharine Hines School, will soon be joining Salon Sei Bella as their esthetician. Customers can appreciate the "private label" facial products which are also available exclusively at Salon Sei Bella.

Salon Sei Bella would like to thank all who attended their grand opening celebration, which was a great success. Special thanks to Peter and Sally Hantz whose appearance was a great honor.

In appreciation of the warm reception from the community, John and Julie announce that every Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Salon Sei Bella will offer a special promotional rate of $6 for styling children five and under. In addition, patrons can look forward to special promotions for senior citizens and students.

128 Service

CAR CARE CORNER
by Dan Hogan,
Service Manager

Here are a few tips toward creating and maintaining your emergency tool kit for auto repair. Always carry battery jumper cables and a flashlight. Keep your kit in a box or other suitable container. Don't allow your tools and supplies to be scattered throughout your trunk. Nothing compounds the frustration of being broken down more than having to rummage through your trunk in search of a much-needed tool or part. The simplest of tools are often the most valuable when your car breaks down. Screwdrivers, adjustable wrenches, flat-bladed and a Phillips head screwdriver can suitably repair most sudden car troubles — at least until you can get the car to a professional mechanic.

Your car will drive better when it is serviced at PETER FULLER OLDS. Open 8-5. Scrapes & dents will be removed in our own body shop. We are authorized to do all Oldsmobile factory warranty work. Tel. 924-8100 for an appt. at PETER FULLER OLDS, Watertown Sq. "Olds National Service Award Winner"

Cocaine lies.

After nearly a decade of being America's glamour drug, researchers are starting to uncover the truth about cocaine.

It's emerging as a very dangerous substance.

No one thinks the things described here will ever happen to them.

But you can never be certain. Whenever and however you use cocaine, you're playing Russian roulette.

You can't get addicted to cocaine.

Cocaine was once thought to be non-addictive, because users don't have the severe physical withdrawal symptoms commonly associated with heroin—delirium, muscle-cramps, and convulsions.

However, cocaine is intensely addicting psychologically.

In animal studies, monkeys with unlimited access to cocaine self-administer until they die. One monkey pressed a bar 12,800 times to obtain a single dose of cocaine. Rhesus monkeys won't smoke tobacco or marijuana, but 100% will smoke cocaine, preferring it to sex and to food—even when starving.

Like monkey, like man.

If you take cocaine, you run a 10% chance of addiction. The risk is higher the younger you are, and may be as high as 50% for those who smoke cocaine. (Some crack users say they felt addicted from the first time they smoked.)

When you're addicted, all you think about is getting and using cocaine. Family, friends, job, home, possessions, and health become unimportant.

Because cocaine is expensive, you end up doing what all addicts do. You steal, cheat, lie, deal, sell anything and everything, including yourself. All the while you risk imprisonment. Because, never forget, cocaine is illegal.

There's no way to tell who'll become addicted. But one thing is certain.

No one who is an addict, set out to become one.

Sex with coke is amazing.

Cocaine's powers as a sexual stimulant have never been proved or disproved. However, the evidence seems to suggest that the drug's reputation alone serves to heighten sexual feelings. (The same thing happens in Africa, where natives swear by powdered rhinoceros horn as an aphrodisiac.)

What is certain is that continued use of cocaine leads to impotence and finally complete loss of interest in sex.

C'mon, just once can't hurt you.

Cocaine hits your heart before it hits your head. Your pulse rate rockets and your blood pressure soars. Even if you're only 15, you become a prime candidate for a heart attack, a stroke, or an epileptic-type fit.

In the brain, cocaine mainly affects a primitive part where the emotions are seated. Unfortunately, this part of the brain also controls your heart and lungs.

A big hit or a cumulative overdose may interrupt the electrical signal to your heart and lungs. They simply stop. That's how basketball player Len Bias died.

If you're unlucky the first time you do coke, your body will lack a chemical that breaks down the drug. In which case, you'll be a first time O.D. Two lines will kill you.

It'll make you feel great.

Cocaine makes you feel like a new man, the joke goes. The only trouble is, the first thing the new man wants is more cocaine.

It's true. After the high wears off, you may feel a little anxious, irritable, or depressed. You've got the coke blues. But fortunately, they're easy to fix, with a few more lines or another hit on the pipe.

Of course, sooner or later you have to stop. Then—for days at a time—you may feel lethargic, depressed, even suicidal.

Says Dr. Arnold Washton, one of the country's leading cocaine experts: "It's impossible for the non-user to imagine the deep, vicious depression that a cocaine addict suffers from."

How much should a diamond engagement ring cost?

Today's engaged couples are older, better educated and have a higher combined income than ever before.

They are looking for quality and value when they make their diamond engagement ring purchase...especially since this is usually the first major diamond purchase the couple makes. When these couples walk into a jewelry store, 67 percent of all women and 50 percent of all men have no preconceived idea of what they are going to spend on a diamond engagement ring.

Jewelers of America (JA), the national organization dedicated to consumer education and information about fine jewelry, states that although 75 percent of all couples shop together, the man and woman perceive the purchase of the diamond engagement ring differently.

The man strongly believes in the tradition of the diamond engagement ring and the importance of the quality of the stone. It is the one aspect of the wedding process over which he has control!

For the woman, the ring is just one aspect of the wedding process. She is concerned with the size and shape of the stone as a function of style, but is also worried about their budget. The symbolism of the diamond engagement ring is implicit, but she tends to downplay the importance of size and price while he is ready to spend more for the best he can give her.

In view of these facts, to determine what you can best afford, a wise guideline to use is the two months' salary guideline. Research shows that this allows a couple to buy the best quality diamond they can afford without breaking their budget.

Diamonds are not inexpensive, but remember that while most purchases depreciate over the years, the diamond lasts long after the honeymoon and champagne are over. And, if you appreciate quality and look for it in everything you do, you'll want a diamond that is symbolic of the quality of your love.

Once you've decided on a budget of two months' salary, quality should be your first consideration. In order to understand quality in diamonds, you must understand the four C's: Cut, Color, Clarity and Carat-weight.

Cut: Diamonds are cut into a number of shapes, depending on the nature of the rough stone. A well-cut diamond is better able to handle light, creating more scintillation and sparkle.

Color: Diamonds are found with a range of colors; however, the best color for a diamond is no color. It is a totally colorless diamond that allows white light to pass through it and be dispersed as rainbows of color.

Clarity: Most diamonds contain very tiny natural birthmarks known as inclusions. However, the fewer and smaller the inclusions are, the less likely it is that they will interfere with the passage of light through the diamond, and the more beautiful the diamond will be.

Carat-weight: This is the weight of a diamond measured in carats. One carat is divided into 100 "points," so that a diamond of 75 points weighs .75 carats.

Jewelers of America suggests you ask your local jeweler to show you a selection of quality diamond engagement rings. You'll find a ring that's perfect for you and that fits your two months' salary budget. For more information about diamonds and other gemstones, write to JA for a free series of brochures: JA, 1271 Sixth Avenue, New York, NY 10020.

Use a different approach when buying a wedding gift

Now that wedding season is upon us and the list of gifts to buy is growing long, you are confronted or challenged with a decision: What will be a special and wonderful gift that the couple will cherish forever? Those guests who don't want to give the typical bridal registry selection of assorted place settings, china and crystal, should consider some of the suggestions offered by Ann Lawrence, renowned designer and purveyor of antique linens and laces.

Most people are comfortable with the familiar and tend to stick to the same gift over and over. It means so much more to the recipient when you select something a little different or unusual. "I feel that the quality and type of gift is a real reflection on the giver, so it is important to personally choose something," says Miss Lawrence. Create an individual type of gift—perhaps one centered around a particular theme. Some ideas to win their hearts—"Romantic Weekends," a set of colored Venetian cordial glasses and decanter; "White Nights," a basket filled with a white Brussels lace bed cover, sheets and pillowcases; "Tea for Two," a teapot and tea caddy; "My Favorite Things," a wicker hamper filled with an assortment of dishes, glasses, linens; and "Sweet Dreams," his and hers silk robes and dressing gowns.

If you know the couple well, then consider their lifestyle and select a gift accordingly. For the contemporary couple who loves to entertain, a selection of Majolica luncheon plates or serving pieces is best. Traditionalists might enjoy a cashmere paisley throw, a bamboo rocker or toile tray made into a small side table. Perhaps they like old fashioned things—items such as linen tablecloths, a pair of continental size linen pillow shams with lace trim or a set of six matching Irish linen damask handtowels are a few of Ann Lawrence's favorites. A garden settee or a wicker loveseat could capture the romantic and practical side of the outdoor enthusiast.

FEW THINGS COMPLEMENT a bride better on her wedding day than a lovely strand of cultured pearls. Wedding gown and headpiece by Priscilla of Boston.

Some things never change: Elegant brides prefer pearls

The more things change, the more they remain the same. Today's bride may be a little more sophisticated and savvy than in years past, but when it comes to wedding gems, her tastes are steeped in the classic American tradition of pearls.

Just as a diamond ring has become synonymous with engagements, cultured pearls, the queen of gems, have been an important part of the bridal ensemble for generations. Perhaps it is the natural beauty and purity of a pearl that has earned it a place in every bride's heart over the years.

Just as no two brides are ever alike, cultured pearls are as different as the individual who wears them. It is therefore important to match the right pearl jewelry for the right woman.

The main considerations for choosing the proper strand of pearls should be the style of gown to be worn and the complexion of the wearer. For gowns with scoop or boat necklines, 16 to 20 inch choker or princess length necklaces are best suited to delicately accent the neck and shoulder areas. High collar and V-neck styles call for long strands of pearls either in 24 to 32 inch matinee or opera lengths.

Women with fair skin and light colored hair are best flattered by pearls with slightly pink or rose overtones. Creamy white or slightly golden pearls look best on women with dark skin and hair.

Since cultured pearls are products of nature, they are seldom, if ever, perfect. Every pearl grown by an oyster has its own individual identity. However, when choosing a strand of cultured pearls, it is important to keep several quality points in mind.

Probably the most important aspect as far as quality is concerned, is the lustre of the pearl. Lustre is the clear shine on the surface of the pearl. It should be clear enough to reflect the images of objects near the pearl.

Another important factor is the surface of the pearl. It should be relatively free of damaging blemishes that appear as cracks, bumps or pits.

Is communication a marriage killer?

By CYNTHIA S. SMITH

Every marriage manual and self-help book on marriage stresses the vital need for "communication" between husband and wife: Don't seethe, don't build resentments—speak up, let each other know what's bugging you. But those books were written before the current era of the communication explosion.

Nobody keeps anything to himself any more; it's simply not fashionable. Remember the good old days when you asked someone "how are you?" and could expect an answer concerning the state of his or her health? Today you get the condition of his or her psyche in full, painfully personal and usually boring detail. Everyone's an armchair psychiatrist, and introspection, psyche-searching and talking about it are the style.

In a marriage, this can be death. You are together a lot—days, hours, months, years. If you develop the habit of evaluating your emotional reaction to every move the other person makes, if you indulge yourself in the habit of discussing each other's annoying traits, you'll drive yourselves crazy and create a wedge that could become immovable.

This is a case of "less is more." What starts out as "communication" becomes confrontation, and relationships cannot survive too many of those. I am not suggesting that you act like the couple in the Dorothy Parker story whose divorce shocked their friends because they seemed like such a happy couple who never fought. What actually happened was that their lack of conversation resulted in boring each other to death. But, the current tendency to tell each other how you feel about everything puts a heavy burden on a marriage.

Of course, certain things your mate does will be irksome. Before you register your complaint, evaluate the importance of the issue—to your spouse and to you. Is this behavior pattern or habit something that is really important to him or her? And how seriously are you hurt by it? If it is something that wounds you so deeply that continuation could have a corrosive effect on your relationship, then by all means discuss it. But, if it is just annoying, creating borderline bother, don't mention it...let it go.

Some people come to a marriage with the idea that they must strip their spouses down and expose every aspect of heart, soul and psyche in order to achieve full intimacy. But must you really know exactly how a machine works before you enjoy working with it? Every person needs a little privacy of spirit, some more than others. Respect that need and your marriage will be the richer for it.

A successful marriage is no accident: New book features practical advice to help yours last

Of the three million young women who will walk the aisle this year, more than half of them will do so with little or no preparation.

"A successful marriage is not an accident," declares Dorothy Freeman, author of the just-released bride's guide, Making It Last: Love And Marriage.

"Boundless love for each other is not enough to sustain it. It is necessary for the bride to learn all she can about what will be required to develop and maintain a happy, long-lasting marriage relationship; then, after she has learned how to do it, she must apply what she has learned."

Making It Last: Love And Marriage is a comprehensive guide that will benefit all wives and about-to-be-wives, from courtship to retirement.

Especially useful to the new bride, this book covers virtually every aspect of marriage, including insights on managing money, the house or apartment, buying food and housewares, advice on how best to keep house, how to go about selecting a place to live, and straight talk on how to turn bedroom experiences into happy, lifetime memories.

To order Making It Last: Love And Marriage, send a check or money order for $12.50 (cost of shipping included) to UCS Press, 3531 W. Glendale Ave., Suite 202, Phoenix, AZ 85051. BR904919

Sun, sand and sports in today's honeymoons

Time was when a honeymoon focused just on champagne, breakfast in bed and a souvenir photo album for the newlyweds.

However, today's just-marrieds prefer a mix of sports and dining adventure on a honeymoon.

Here's a look at three Caribbean resorts which fit these modern tastes.

Club Paradise Honeymoon

In the Bahamas, Merv Griffin's three Paradise Island resorts have a choice of honeymoon plans. For example, look at what the Paradise Island Resort & Casino offers in its all-inclusive "Club Paradise Honeymoon."

In addition to overnight accommodations, guests can play and get lessons on 12 plexi-paved tennis courts, day or night. The package includes greens fees at the picturesque championship 6,572 yard, par-72 Paradise Island Golf Course that runs along the Atlantic Ocean. And it includes unlimited water sports: A scuba lesson, snorkeling, waterskiing, sunfish sailing and pedalboats. Meals, included in the package, are enjoyed at a choice of 12 restaurants.

The 1990 winter season rates (through April 28) per couple, start at $1,420 for three/four nights, $2,804 for seven nights. For honeymoon and other package information call Resorts International (Bahamas) Ltd., 1-800-321-3000.

Adventure Package

Down in the British West Indies, the Hyatt Regency Grand Cayman at Britannia has an "Adventure Package" which starts at $1,098 per couple for three nights or $2,050 for seven nights through April 14, 1990. Included are luxurious accommodations, unlimited tennis, a complimentary round of golf, and, for first-time-ever divers, a one-day resort course at Red Sail Sports, Hyatt's own dive and water sports operation on Seven Mile Beach. For already-certified divers, one daytime wall dive and one night dive are featured.

In addition, the package includes a snorkeling trip to "Stingray City" and a one-hour dive on the famed "Atlantis" submarine.

Water logged? There's also a one-day jeep rental and a safari map for local excursions. For additional package information, call Hyatt Worldwide Reservations at 800-233-1234.

Golfer's Challenge

At Hyatt Resorts Puerto Rico, just marrieds can swing clubs with a "Golfer's Challenge" package at Hyatt Regency Cerromar Beach that starts at $629 per person (double) for three nights and $1,360 for seven nights through April 21, 1990. Hyatt Dorado Beach's "Legendary Golf" package is $649 for three nights and $1,415 for seven nights through April 14, 1990. There are package price reductions for non-golfing spouses.

Golfers have a choice of four Robert Trent Jones golf courses on the 72-hole complex spread over the 1,000 acre resort. Both packages include daily greens fees, use of carts, a bucket of balls daily on the driving range, complimentary use of practice putting greens, club storage and cleaning, golf clinics twice weekly and assorted golf amenities—a towel, duffle bag, visor and sleeve of balls. For package information, call Hyatt Worldwide Reservations at 1-800-233-1234.

IT'S HARD TO IMAGINE a more idyllic setting for a honeymoon than a sun-drenched resort in the Caribbean or Bahamas. The clear, turquoise water and the luxurious white beaches tempt newlyweds to frolic in the waves, enjoy water sports or just lie under cool palm leaves and relax. BR904935

What kind of bride are you? A little fantasizing helps you discover your bridal personality

Wedding bells are in the air...Congratulations! You're getting married! If you're like most prospective brides, you're already dreaming of a magnificent wedding, a breathtaking gown and an unforgettable honeymoon with the most luxurious lingerie.

To help, most bridal magazines offer monthly countdowns that organize all those pesky details and keep plans running smoothly. But the big question remains: How do you make your wedding uniquely your own? Brides-to-be should consider the type of gown, location of the ceremony, even honeymoon lingerie that truly reflects their own style.

According to Modern Bride's Fashion Editor, Linda Weichenrieder, "When choosing lingerie, you'll want to select something that reflects your own tastes. Traditional and conservative women may feel very uncomfortable wearing a sheer or revealing gown the night of their honeymoon."

She adds, "It's important to follow your instincts when making wedding arrangements so the day of the event you're comfortable and relaxed with the choices you've made." Here are five fantasy examples to spark your imagination.

Traditional

The traditional bride selects a long-sleeved, silk Empire gown, overlaid with Alencon or Chantilly lace and encrusted with tiny pearls. The length of her train hinges somewhat on the size of the room; a six-foot train looks silly in a private chapel. Her morning wedding takes place in a Gothic-style church or cathedral, or in a dramatic synagogue.

After the ceremony, stretch limousines convey the wedding party to the reception. The setting: A rambling, Tara-like country club, perfect for dancing on the terrace to a local ensemble. Here, lunch and champagne are followed by an all-white, tiered cake covered in white sugar flowers.

For her honeymoon, she looks to sun, sea and sand in Hawaii, Paradise Island or Cancun, destined for a memorable two weeks. A long stretch of beach decorated with palm trees gleaming in the sunset is her fantasy backdrop as she makes her entrance in a traditional peignoir set from Val Mode Lingerie. It is a delicate spaghetti strap gown with a jacquard bodice, and a jacquard coat featuring decorative lace trim on the coat sleeves. From the waist down the coat is sheer and tied with a ribbon belt, a honeymoon ensemble perfect for every traditional bride.

Sexy

How daring are you? Daring enough to hold your wedding and reception under an Arabian tent on a New York rooftop? If so, a hot and sexy style may be right for you.

Things begin to warm up around 10:00 p.m., with the bride making her entrance in a body-hugging strapless sheath. The reception features the music of Anita Baker for slow dancing, and an enticing menu that includes oysters, creamy pates, grapes and figs followed by a dense, semi-sweet chocolate cake, with mounds of fudge frosting.

For her honeymoon in Monte Carlo, the bride packs a sheer black lace teddy with a chiffon flounce and embroidered red roses.

Romantic

The romantic bride chooses an updated fairy tale wedding held on a yacht at sunset. Her gown recalls the bows and puffs of Lady Diana's white confection. Delicate pearls capture the glow of a thousand candles lighting the reception in the great room of the yacht.

Champagne flows throughout dinner, and dessert is a lacy, tiered white cake flavored with a hint of orange. After dancing until dawn to the music of Michael Feinstein, our heroine and her husband depart for Portugal, where they honeymoon in a 19th-century palace with a view of gently rolling hills leading down to the ocean. Her trousseau includes an ivory charmeuse gown covered with a flowing chiffon wrap detailed with sequins and pearls.

PERFECT for the sophisticated bride, the Jessica Lynn Collection features elegant lingerie fashions for women with champagné tastes.

Sophisticated

Whether on Chestnut Street in Boston, or on Nob Hill in San Francisco, the sophisticated bride chooses a gracious townhouse for the setting of her wedding. Mixing the old and new, she wears a crystal-pleated Mary McFadden evening gown in spun silver or soft gold, offset by antique diamond teardrop earrings.

Her reception features dancing to the music of Peter Duchin, the finest champagne, and an impressive menu including caviar in new potatoes, smoked salmon, tiny lamb chops, and vegetables stuffed with herbed cheese. Dessert is a hazelnut Genoise covered in rum icing.

For a sophisticated honeymoon, she and her husband have planned a theater week at the Savoy in London. Dining on the balcony with the Thames in the background creates the perfect setting for a romantic dinner in luxurious lingerie. The bride wears a dramatic black scroll patterned charmeuse gown featuring built up straps for a look of sophistication from the Jessica Lynn Collection. The matching full-length kimono robe with a rope tie is optional to cover the slit of the gown.

Playful

The playful bride is nothing if not spontaneous. She and her fiance invite friends and family to a country party at a winery. When the guests arrive, they find the tasting room draped in white parachute silk. When they see the bride wearing a short, slinky white dress with layers and layers of ruffles, they suspect something is afoot.

After the brief surprise ceremony, everyone celebrates to Kentucky bluegrass music. The menu is down-home: southern fried chicken wings, cornbread, mini-tacos, sliced catfish on homemade biscuits, and the winery's finest wines and champagnes.

Do you find your single friends sulking? How getting married affects friendships

You may be doing something unforgivable in the eyes of your single friends: Getting married. By being sensitive to those close to you who may be envious or fearful of losing you, you can dispel guilt feelings for your own happiness and work to strengthen your friendships. Here are some suggestions from Bride's Magazine about how you can stabilize the many types of "friendshifts" that occur when you marry.

Extra attention

The neglected friend. With two career schedules to juggle and limited time to spend together, most newlyweds find it difficult to justify going out with single friends alone. Even staunch allies may feel deserted or relegated to the sidelines. "If two friends are single and one marries, the single person often takes stock of her situation and feels left behind, even though she's happy her friend is moving on," says Cynthia Mitchell, Ph.D., a clinical psychologist in Cambridge, Mass.

What's important to the continuity of the friendship is for both of you to explain the pulls that you are experiencing. Even a 10-minute phone call or short note can appease hurt feelings. Then, when your newlywed life is settled, be sure your friend knows how much his or her patience was appreciated.

The jealous friend. The "man shortage" has created its share of acute spinsterphobia among single women. Your plans may make them feel jealous, even hostile, from the moment you announce your engagement. But recognizing the reasons behind those feelings can help keep them to a minimum. Hauling out your gifts may have brought shouts of glee at your 14th birthday party, but your friend might now interpret a display of wedding gifts as showy or bragging. Instead of dwelling on your glorious future with the man of your dreams, focus on your friend's ideas, new job, or mutual hobbies. Renew the interests that brought you together as friends originally.

Seeking space

The valuable new friend. In time, the protective shell that newlywed couples usually build around each other falls away, and they become more objective about marriage, and their spouses. The husband and wife realize that they can't fulfill each other's every need, so they begin to seek out other people to enjoy interests and hobbies that their spouse doesn't share—a passion for ballet, or a penchant for flea markets. Your outings can enrich your marriage, and you'll return home full of energy, enthusiasm and new experiences to relate.

The venerable old friend. Reviving an old friendship can also fill a need for continuity in your life. Friends often share a history that predates the couple's relationship: Good times you had in the "old neighborhood," or memories of one of your parents who's no longer alive. Reminiscing over old photographs and stories with your husband won't be quite the same, because he wasn't there. Your friend was.

Accepting change

The "nothing in common" denominator. It's important to understand that while friendships are valuable, drifting apart is also a part of life's process. Interests and needs are constantly being honed, and turning points such as marriage lead you to pay more attention to relationships that enrich you.

If, despite differences in your lives, you still want to hold on to a good friend, make a concentrated effort to appreciate each other's life choices, needs and interests. It doesn't hurt to admit that while you love your spouse, you envy your friend's plans to tour Japan, begin a new career in a distant city, or devote time to a political group.

Taking vows among blue island waters

Envision a wedding a few steps from the translucent waters of the Caribbean on a tiny finger of land. The sea, now a brilliant gold at sunset, forms a crescent around the couple as the bride's white gown turns to rose, then lilac. She carries a bouquet of wild orchids and fragrant frangipani. Soon the couple leaves the sandy shore behind to exchange toasts on the bow of a graceful sailboat.

Such a romantic wedding is no longer the stuff of dreams. "Today, as couples marry later and seek to unite families spread out across the country, more people are choosing to realize the wedding of their wildest fantasies in the Caribbean," says Pamela McEntee, Director of Sales for Sapphire Beach Resort & Marina.

"This spring, just by word of mouth, we had three dozen couples who came with a small entourage of friends and family to be married at our resort."

Sapphire Beach Resort & Marina enjoys the perfect setting for dream-come-true weddings. It lies along the most beautiful stretch of beach on St. Thomas with a breathtaking panorama of the surrounding Virgin Islands.

This new resort offers handsome beachfront suites and bilevel villas, each with their own fully equipped kitchens and balconies. A dramatic fresh water pool overlooks the water's edge and just beyond you can make out the masts of sailing yachts docked at the 67 slip marina.

Sapphire wedding experts are prepared to take care of every detail, from obtaining marriage licences to arranging for a member of the clergy, a rabbi or a justice of the peace to perform the ceremony. "We're involved in every facet right up to the wedding cake, whether it's the classic tiered butter cream extravaganza or an exotic tropical pina colada cake," affirms Pamela McEntee.

Robert Shuttlesworth and his new bride Patty from Reading, Pennsylvania heard of Sapphire Beach through their travel agent. The couple described their wedding in glowing terms: "It was a totally different experience—being out there listening to the waves on Pretty Klip Point while we took our vows. For us, it was very personal and spectacularly beautiful."

According to Anna Della Penna of Flagship Travel, "Exotic weddings that combine the marriage ceremony and honeymoon all-in-one are definitely becoming a hot trend."

Over 1,000 stateside couples applied for marriage licences to be wed in St. Thomas last year, according to the Territorial Courts. The figure is anticipated to double this year.

McEntee explains that you don't have to be a millionaire to get married in the Caribbean. Sapphire Beach Resort & Marina offers the "Silver Wedding" Package with suite accommodations for 4 days/3 nights at $1100, and for 8 days/7 nights at $1740 from April 17-December 19. The "Diamond Package" includes a villa for 4 days/3 nights at $1995 and 8 days/7 nights at $2855.

GETTING MARRIED IN PARADISE can be as easy as saying "I do." Robert and Patty Shuttlesworth of Reading, Pennsylvania celebrate their wedding on the beach at the beautiful, new Sapphire Beach Resort & Marina on St. Thomas in the U.S. Virgin Islands. They are one of 2000 couples who are wed each year in the U.S.V.I.

Cordless iron offers ease and convenience for the busy bride

One thing a busy bride will appreciate is the convenience and freedom of movement that comes with a cordless appliance.

One popular gift she will be pleased with is a rechargeable, cordless iron that makes ironing fast and easy. The new Freeline 50 iron from Tefal is the perfect answer to your shower gift list. It retains heat for a long time, reheats very rapidly and produces powerful bursts of steam. It also features hidden cord storage on a reel in the recharging base.

And, this iron provides effortless ironing thanks to the patented, guaranteed-for-10-years Ultraglide soleplate.

Other features include a burst of steam button, self-cleaning system, visible water level (it uses tap water), and advanced temperature control. There's also a safety thermal cut-off, and automatic safety shut-off.

The iron weighs only 2.4 pounds. It has a suggested retail price of $89.00. Tefal's cordless iron is available at leading department stores throughout the country.

A WELCOME GIFT FOR THE BRIDE, Tefal's new rechargeable cordless iron allows freedom of movement. BR904770

BY ADHERING FAITHFULLY to a skin care regimen including natural products such as Dickinson's® Witch Hazel Pads, any bride can have a beautiful, radiant complexion, no matter how hard she's worked beforehand to make her wedding as perfect as can be.

Take time from planning your wedding to take care of yourself

Many young women, fantasizing about their upcoming wedding day, imagine that it will be entirely blissful, a time when everything will go smoothly without any problems.

Unfortunately, this may not be the case. The bride is often shocked to learn that planning a wedding can take as long as six to eight months, sometimes even longer. Setting a budget, choosing the wedding and reception sites, selecting a gown, flowers, food and music, and attending to all the other details that make up a wedding, can be as much a source of stress as of pleasure.

An overwrought bride

And, it's not unusual for a bride to become so caught up in planning her wedding that she neglects herself in the process.

It's important at this time for the bride to keep everything in perspective. Above all, she should remember that it is her day, and she should look and feel her best for the occasion. Realistically, if she is going to devote six months to planning her wedding, she should also plan time to take care of herself. After all, what's the point of having a beautiful wedding if the bride is too exhausted to be beautiful herself?

Natural products are best

One way for a woman to be sure she'll look her best on her wedding day (no matter how hard she's worked beforehand) is to begin a regular skin care program.

"A healthy, smooth complexion can do wonders in offsetting the effects of stress and strain," advise the skin care experts at the E.E. Dickinson Witch Hazel Company. "And the time to start is as soon as possible!"

"For a fresh, glowing complexion, it's best to use natural products based on botanical ingredients," the skin care experts state. "As we learn more about the skin, we realize that our ancestors who relied on nature's own plants and herbs to care for the skin were right. Natural is best. So, when anyone asks us how to obtain clear, healthy-looking skin, here's what we tell them:"

Use this bar instead of soap to cleanse thoroughly without stripping the skin of its own natural lubricants.

Tone your skin after cleansing with a non-drying astringent such as Dickinson's® Witch Hazel Pads. These handy, economical pads are saturated with pure Dickinson's® Witch Hazel, a natural botanical astringent that refreshes the skin without irritation.

Moisturize: For daytime, use a light facial moisturizer, an oil-free type unless your skin is very dry. Before going to bed, use a richer variety.

Don't forget the body

After your bath or shower, smooth an extra-rich moisturizer over your entire body, allowing the steam from the warm water to help the lotion to penetrate. (It's important to keep body skin looking great too, since many wedding gowns tend to reveal lots of shoulder and neck!)

2. Shun the sun: Try to stay out of the sun as much as possible. We know that even occasional exposure to the sun can cause skin damage. If you must sunbathe, remember to apply a sunblock with a SPF of at least 15.

3. Once-a-week care: Use an exfoliant such as a loofah or natural cleansing grains to remove deep-down dirt. Follow with Dickinson's® Witch Hazel Astringent to remove all traces of the exfoliant and to tone and protect the skin.

The payoff

By adhering faithfully to this skin care regimen, any bride can have a radiant, glowing complexion on her wedding day. Even when her wedding plans don't unfold as smoothly as she expected, she'll look as beautiful as though they had.

A WEDDING TO REMEMBER

Who could remember every detail? Smart brides consult with professionals

It's a simple scenario. You're getting married. It's the most important day of your life.

All you have to do is coordinate the activities of about 20 participants in your ceremony, color-coordinate and select clothes for them, find and deal with at least a half dozen vendors, throw a simple family party for about 200 people and plan a vacation—all at the same time.

Oh, and by the way, have fun, too! After all, it is your wedding.

Brides are finding that, for many reasons, they can't handle all the details. So they're turning to the professionals in the field—the wedding consultants.

"You use a professional to prepare your taxes, maintain your car or fix your plumbing," says Gerard J. Monaghan, Association of Bridal Consultants president. "Why not let a professional help you plan this important day?"

A bridal consultant, Monaghan says, will help with the little details and will work for the bride—who still makes the final decisions. As a professional, the consultant has arranged weddings before and knows what to do, what to avoid—and who offers the best deals.

Plus, Monaghan says, consultants who belong to the Association uphold a code of ethics and standards of membership that help ensure quality service.

It is the most important day of your life. Relax, enjoy and let a professional do the work—and the worrying.

For a brochure on wedding consulting and the names of professionals near you, send a self-addressed, stamped legal size envelope to the Association of Bridal Consultants, Dept. M, 200 Chestnutland Road, New Milford, CT 06776-2521. Please include your wedding date, phone number and wedding location if different from your home town. BR904900

Lasting marriage in an age of divorce

The baby boom generation, unique in many ways, also claims this distinction: It is the first to have come of age at a time when one out of two marriages in this country ended in divorce—an all-time high. Today, the children of the "Age of Divorce" are themselves of marrying age. Surprisingly, they are traditional, optimistic, and marrying in record numbers, according to Bride's magazine.

It's no longer chic to bad-mouth marriage. Today, people speak approvingly about commitment and fidelity.

Characteristic of many of the couples marrying today is their renewed sense of commitment and determination to make their marriages work because the memory and possibility of divorce is never far away. Children of divorce are more aware of the problems of marriage, and they often try harder to avoid these problems.

Of course, some scars remain. "Divorce has colored our attitude toward marriage," says Art Carey, author of the Bride's article. "Some of us have embraced marriage too impetuously, hoping to escape our pasts by creating the kind of 'perfect' relationship our parents never had. Others, frightened by the fragility of marriage, and skeptical about the possibility of a lasting, happy marriage, have avoided marriage, and anything approaching it."

From the very unique to the very traditional...

Let us help you create exquisite Bridal Bouquets & coordinating arrangements.

Shower the couple with unusual gifts

There are still many solutions to the bridal shower gift dilemma, even for the independent bride. With a little creativity, you can give the bride-to-be a one-of-a-kind gift. Here are some suggestions from Singer Sewing Company for starting the happy couple on their way:

• Season tickets to a local concert series brings music into a couple's life. Or, for sports enthusiasts, a season of watching the home team is a memorable present.

• An emergency mending kit is something neither the bride nor groom is likely to have. Include an assortment of needles, thread, buttons, a pair of quality scissors and a pin cushion. The Mini Mender from Singer is a pocket sized appliance perfect for most clothing or household mending jobs.

• Mason jars filled with exotic flavored coffee beans (chocolate, almond, cinnamon) are all available in decaffeinated or regular. Label each jar with hand-decorated labels and complete the gift with personalized coffee mugs.

• Travel accessories are perfect for the couple on the go. Ideas include a clock with time zones around the world, a durable carry-on bag or a travel iron such as the small but sturdy appliance from Singer.

• A smoke alarm, emergency flashlight or kitchen fire extinguisher are safety appliances for the home that will keep the couple healthy and secure and are especially thoughtful items.

• The Compact and Lightweight sewing machine by Singer. This inexpensive sewing machine weighs under 10 pounds, yet can take care of most any sewing job. It's certain to be a gift used for years to come.

GIVE ONE-OF-A-KIND GIFTS to the bride-to-be. An emergency mending kit from Singer is certain be appreciated for many years. BR904849

Tips for looking your best on your wedding day

There are more weddings than ever before, according to the Association of Bridal Consultants. Approximately 2.5 million couples were married in 1988.

Preparing for your wedding day takes months of planning—from the ceremony and reception to the long-awaited honeymoon. This also holds true for looking your best on your wedding day.

"If brides want to look their best on this special day, they will need to plan ahead, from taking care of their skin to testing their makeup," explains Linda Harris, vice president of product development for L'Oreal Cosmetics.

The experts at L'Oreal offer the following skincare regimen and makeup tips to ensure that every bride will look her best on her wedding day.

The first step to looking your best begins with radiant, healthy skin, which does not happen overnight. The months leading up to your wedding day are a good time to start taking care of your skin for the big day and for the rest of your life.

Skincare regimen

When you wake up in the morning, cleanse your skin thoroughly with a gentle, but effective cleanser to remove any dirt particles that have accumulated during the night.

If you have oily skin, use a cleansing gel; for dry skin, use a cleansing cream. Brides with normal skin can use either. Bar soaps, Harris explains, can be harsh and strip the skin of its natural oils, leaving the skin very dry.

Then, apply a good moisturizer under your foundation. For winter, use a heavier, more emollient moisturizer to combat dryness. In the spring and summer months, you may prefer a lighter or oil-free moisturizer.

If your honeymoon plans call for a warm climate, be sure to use a lighter moisturizer with sunscreens. You'll also want to take moisturizer on the plane with you to replenish your skin.

Harris suggests using the high performance and affordably-priced Plenitude line of cleansing, moisturizing and special care products, available in tubes, which are great for honeymoon travel, and jars, for at-home use.

France's number one skincare collection, Plenitude, was recently introduced into the U.S. at drugstores nationwide, conveniently located for the bride to be.

Makeup tips

Now that the skin is cleansed and moisturized, your face is properly prepared for makeup application. L'Oreal suggests practice makeup sessions months before the wedding day and experimentation with different makeup colors depending on the season of your wedding.

One easy and cost-free way is by using the "testers" at your local drugstore. This will guarantee that on your special day, and for the cherished and everlasting wedding photographs and/or video, your makeup will look perfect.

First, apply a foundation under your makeup that is the same shade as your natural skin tone. L'Oreal's Mattique Illuminating Matte Makeup offers a less "made up" look while allowing the natural glow of your skin to show through.

To help your makeup appear fresh all day and stay on longer, apply a light dusting of loose powder to your face. Then, apply a blush to your cheekbones in an upward, sweeping motion, and to your forehead, chin and to the tip of your nose.

For those emotional, teary-eyed moments, waterproof mascara will come in handy. For eye shadow, select colors that will define your eyes, but will appear soft-looking in photographs. Apply a soft, smudgeable, and easy-to-use eyeliner pencil. Then, blend the eye shadow and pencil together with your finger for a subtle look.

Finally, the lips. Apply a light powder under your lipstick to prevent cracking and to ensure the lipstick lasts longer. Then apply your lipstick. For an extra shine, add a light coat of gloss to your lips.

Beautiful nails

For the bride to have strong, beautiful nails, she will have to plan ahead. One product, Grow Strong!

As the times change, so do the styles for the brides of the '90s

The brides of the '90s are not as traditional as those of the past. Because more women are getting married after they have established careers and independence, their ideas about their weddings are very different from those of brides of past decades.

Today's bride and groom are more apt to pay for their own wedding than before. The days of the mother of the bride making all the arrangements, the father of the bride paying all the bills, and the groom representing only the figure on top of the wedding cake, are long gone.

Elegant flirtation

IMPECCABLY DESIGNED DETAILS, such as the rose petal sleeves on the removable hand-beaded lace jacket, artfully enhance this shantung-weave gown from the After Six Bridal Collection. The handsome groom is wearing the Avanti by Henry Grethel for After Six Formals. European styling incorporates a broad-shouldered silhouette, satin shawl lapels and a double-breasted closure. It's worn here with pleated trousers, a laydown collar shirt, black bow tie and a silk pocket square. All accessories by After Six Accessories. BR905171

A personal touch

Another difference between the brides of yesterday and those of today is in their choices of ceremony. Fewer brides choose the traditional ceremony; instead, they opt for a more personal touch. Many brides and grooms write their own vows or choose a different type of ceremony, such as the candle lighting ceremony which represents the union of the two families.

The modern wedding may also differ in its music. The traditional choice of "Here Comes the Bride" is no longer the popular favorite; many brides have chosen softer melodies from current music or Broadway themes for use as their entrance song. The use of a singer before the start of the ceremony has also become very popular, adding a more personal touch to the joyous event.

Colorful difference

The styles and colors that today's brides choose reflect the most obvious change from previous years. Gone are the pastel and earthy tones and flowing styles that were the craze during the '80s—the '90s bring form-fitting gowns with more vibrant colors onto the scene and into today's wedding party.

More shades of iridescent blue, red and purple can be seen in the current collections by the designers. One recent addition to the color of bridesmaid's gowns is black. Black-and-white weddings, as well as all white (or "snowball") weddings, have become very popular in the past year.

The look of accessories is also changing as we head into the '90s. Glamour and detail have taken over where dainty and delicate left off. The modern bride can look forward to plenty of lace and pearls adorning her stockings and veil as well as sequins and rhinestones in her jewelry.

The new designs in wedding bands hold more gems and detail than the unadorned traditional solid band that has been worn in the past. The latest trend in wedding bands for women is the ring guard that wraps around the engagement ring and usually holds clusters of diamonds or other precious gems. This new style is becoming increasingly popular with the modern bride and is even being purchased as a wedding gift from the groom to the bride.

Grooms get involved

More grooms are becoming involved in all aspects of wedding planning, including the selection of the bride's gown. Many brides are now asking their fiances to accompany them when they go to choose their gown—the age-old superstition of bad luck coming upon a bride who has been seen in her gown by her groom is no longer a worry for the bride of the '90s.

Make-up tips for the bride

Being a beautiful bride is easier than you think. Your inner glow is reflected in your eyes and your skin looks fresher and healthier than ever. It's happiness—combined with a few artful touches of make-up to give you that incomparable once-in-a-lifetime look, and the experts at Cover Girl have a few tips to help you on your way!

Start things off with a foundation that is both flattering and compatible with your skin. A light, moisture-enriched formulation like Cover Girl MoistureWear Make-Up is a good choice because it gives you a truly natural look that lasts. Do match your foundation shade to your face and neck; skin on your hand or arm is a different color and texture.

To apply foundation, blend with long, even, downward strokes using a slightly dampened sponge wedge for flawlessly perfect skin. Top off with a gentle dusting of loose face powder for the matte look that's best for the photographs you'll be showing your grandchildren some day. If your neckline bares shoulders and decollete, dust these with powder too, for an even skin tone.

When he turns to you to say "I do," you'll want your eyes to look more beautiful than ever. Choose shadows that compliment your coloring and apply with a brush or sponge-tip applicator. To easily find the colors that best suit you, look for Cover Girl Professional ColorMatch Shadows. These shadows have a back-of-package grid that indicates which skin and hair tones are warm, cool or neutral—at a glance. Each Professional ColorMatch kit is then coded with a warm, cool or neutral symbol so you know you're buying shadows that will help you look your best. The finishing touch for eyes—mascara! On this special day you'll probably want to use a waterproof or water resistant formulation so that you'll still look fresh even when your emotions are overflowing.

Everyone talks about the "blushing" bride and there's a good reason. A rosy complexion is one sure sign of bliss. To keep that look throughout the day and evening, try a long-wearing blush—but apply with a light hand.

Bridal registries are proving popular with wedding guests

As more and more couples decide to marry each year, wedding guests are looking to bridal registries for help in choosing the right wedding and shower gifts for them.

Many brides-to-be are reluctant to register at their local department store or specialty shop. They feel that they will give their guests the "wrong impression," the impression that gifts are the only thing that they are concerned about.

Not so, says Oster's Bridal Registry Coordinator, Elizabeth Kathan. She believes that many wedding guests prefer to look at the couple's bridal registry list to look for ideas for that perfect gift. "Most guests want to purchase a gift that the couple really wants," Kathan says. "A bridal registry print-out is the easiest way for them to be comfortable with their decision."

Kathan suggests listing a wide variety of items on the registry. She suggests registering for some small, inexpensive items such as kitchen utensils, decorative coffee mugs, or dish towels/pot holders for shower gifts. The majority of the items on the registry should be in a medium price range ($25-$75). This category could include many typical wedding gifts: Sheets, towels, casual dinnerware, silverware and bar ware, small electric appliances, cutlery and decorative pieces like vases and floral arrangements.

Couples should be willing to let their imaginations take hold when they register. An item that they might never purchase for themselves, but would love to have, is the perfect item to place on the bridal registry. A certain piece of art, an espresso/cappuccino maker, a handy egg cooker or an elegant set of champagne flutes would fit the bill.

A BRIDE'S GUIDE TO BEDDING SHOPPING

You and your spouse will spend one-third of your lives together on your mattress and foundation. Here are some bed-buying tips from the Better Sleep Council:

- Shop for bedding when you're rested and unhurried, so you can concentrate on finding what feels right.
- Take your partner. When buying for two, both of you should make the decision.
- Wear comfortable clothes and shoes you can remove easily for lying down.
- Lie down and stay there. You can't judge support and comfort by sitting on an edge or lying down for a few seconds. Don't be shy. Get on the bed with your partner, roll around, lie on your side—are your hips and shoulders comfortable?
- Get the whole story. Request literature, study the information on display, read the labeling and insist that the salesman tell you about product features.
- Shop for the best value, not the lowest price. You can always find "bargain bedding" at rock-bottom prices, but it's no bargain when it comes to getting a good night's sleep.

Board seeks water banks protection

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Conservation commissioners are looking for Town Meeting support in protecting the town's water banks.

Conservation Commissioner Jerome Cura presented to selectmen three warrant articles, including a change to the town by-laws, which would institute a 25-foot buffer along all waterways for future developments. The commission also hopes to acquire two parcels for conservation land — the Johnson property and Mount Pisgah.

According to the wording of the amendment to the town's by-law, "The commission may require, as a condition of a permit, that the applicant preserve a bordering zone of natural vegetation abutting the wetland or the bank of any stream or pond ... "

The zone would be provided "to retain silt, soil, fertilizer in solution, organic chemicals, herbicides, oils or petroleum products, and other substances which may be carried by surface run-off, in order to prevent such substances from reaching the wetland and to prevent erosion or destabilization of the wetland border or bank."

Cura and Commissioner Joshua Alpers spoke on behalf of the recommended 25-foot buffer, which would be required to obtain a permit. "It is a moderate solution," said Cura. "The 50-foot border we think would be restrictive. The commission would like to have the option (of requiring a 25-foot buffer zone)."

Alpers noted the current by-law is not clear enough in allowing for such a condition on a permit. He pointed out that the border would be applied "in most conditions ... to preserve the integrity of the bank from erosion."

But selectmen were concerned about potential loss to present property owners who plan to develop their land.

"Is this going to hamper the future growth of any business?" asked Selectman William O'Leary. O'Leary agreed there is a "price for protection," but asked commissioners to determine the economic impact of such a by-law.

Selectman Robert Deering said he

Ad hoc group to review revenue options

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Recent discussions surrounding the town's budget have resulted in efforts to form a citizens' committee to look at revenue options in the town.

Selectmen have drawn up a draft of a proposal and are seeking applicants for a revenue review committee. The committee would serve as an advisory board to selectmen.

The board has tentatively set the makeup of the committee at seven members who hold no other elected public office, except as a Town Meeting member. Members would serve until a final report was delivered and the committee was dissolved by selectmen.

The charge of the committee would include comparing Winchester's tax income profile to other towns and to examine opportunities to expand the tax base. Committee members would be involved in reviewing town revenue sources, including taxes, fees, fines, state and federal assistance; as well as the use of various funds in the town, including free cash, stabilization and sale of land account, among others.

Selectmen Chairman Thomas Schmitt, who drew up the draft, said it was a "laundry list" of ideas that selectmen could whittle down or add to.

The committee would report to selectmen at least once every three months. According to the proposal, the committee would submit a written report of its findings to selectmen by Oct. 1, 1990. The report would also include recommendations for consideration by selectmen.

"It's an effort worth taking on," said Selectman William O'Leary. "I know we could all use the help. This board is always open to new ideas."

Selectmen opted to forego a requirement that all members be

COA proposes new emergency fund for seniors

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

As the deadline nears for filing warrant articles, selectmen are stacking up proposal after proposal for consideration at Spring Town Meeting.

Council on Aging (COA) Chairman Robert Ericson presented a proposal to selectmen at the board's Monday night meeting to initiate a COA revolving account. The plan requires Town Meeting approval.

The deadline for filing warrant articles is March 9, and selectmen plan to close the warrant at their March 12 meeting.

According to Ericson, "the need for a revolving account arises because on several occasions individuals have sent donations to the COA specifically designated for providing emergency social services to needy elders. The Council has concluded that a Social Services Fund is consistent with its objectives. The Council developed a definition of the adminstration of such a fund to insure it functions properly."

Ericson said emergency situations arise from time to time, such as one case in which a senior needed home care, but had dwindling personal funds. Many of the situations are brought to the attention of the COA through a social worker.

Ericson noted that the COA has in the past "parked" funds with the Winchester Seniors' Association and been able to access them through that group. However, he said members of COA feel the fund belongs under the direction of the COA administrator to ensure confidentiality for recipients.

Vinson Owen

The Vinson Owen Coalition kept its promise to deliver to selectmen this week a citizens' petition to prevent the closing of that school.

Coalition Chairman William Galatis presented selectmen with a petition containing 100 signatures. "Our goal is to present the motion with specific cost measures at Town Meeting," said Galatis.

The motion seeks to appropriate or make available the funds necessary to maintain the Vinson Owen School.

Library

Selectmen unanimously approved a request from Library Trustee Chairman Anne Nevins to fill the position of head of information services.

According to Nevins, the position will be vacated in late April. In a memo to selectmen, Nevins said, "For us to comply with the State standards for minimum service as promulgated by the Board of Library Commissioners, the Library is required to be open a minimum of 50 hours per week. As it stands presently, even with a full complement of staffing, we are struggling to remain open the required 50 hours."

Quality health care is priority, says Loubier

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Health-care rationing may be all too familiar in the future, but Winchester Hospital President Eugene Loubier says health officials across the Commonwealth are dedicated to providing quality care.

Loubier, Massachusetts representative to the American College of Healthcare Executives (ACHE) recently returned from a convention in Chicago at which the results of a survey of health-care executives were released.

The overall consensus resulting from the survey was that health-care officials across the country believe the outcome or effectiveness of medical care rather than the personal characteristics, such as age, employment potential or income, should be the determination for rationing health care.

"Health care is really being challenged to try to meet all of the resources being demanded," said Loubier. But with growing financial constraints hitting the health-care industry, Loubier said many facilities and states may have to examine the manner in which services are provided.

"The key factor, certainly in our hospital, is not rationing based on some numerical criteria, but expending resources based on the expected outcome and quality of life," said Loubier.

"It's no longer possible to provide everyone to everything," he added.

But Loubier said he, like most health-care professionals across the state, see "basic" health care as "a right ... It's not a numerical system," he said. "Basic health care ought to be available to all Americans. I honestly believe the providers of care have continued to meet the needs of the people." While 62 percent of health-care officials surveyed agreed, like Loubier, that health care should be available to all persons, the majority said standards must be set to define the term "basic".

Loubier said he believes the root of the causes of poor health, including poverty, drug abuse, inadequate housing and poor schools, must be addressed. According to the ACHE survey, most executives agree. "If we could begin to cure some of that, we would need a lot less health care," said Loubier. He cited early intervention and prevention as key to addressing the need for services, particularly for the poor.

"HMO's (health maintenance organizations) have done that better than anyone in the country, and continue to do a pretty good job," said Loubier.

Loubier cited Oregon as one state which is making efforts to formally ration health care. A bill aimed at the Medicaid population identifies "basic" services, with an emphasis on the young and those who would most benefit from medical technology. Resources will be spent on those with the potential of longer, more productive lives. "(Oregeon has) gone a long way, but they haven't put a price tag on it yet," he said. "It's the first attempt at what one would call 'health-care rationing.' "

"If you're going to provide the service at any level, it should be the best you can provide. That should never be compromised," said Loubier.

Loubier said attitudes in the United States must be changed as well. "We are almost reckless with our health-care practices," said Loubier, citing as examples smoking, drinking, and fast driving. "As a society, we wait for doctors to come up with a cure," he noted. By putting incentives on health insurance, such as reductions for non-smokers or regular exercisers, Loubier said some of the basic problems might be addressed through promoting good health.

Education is the key to increased awareness, said Loubier. "In the last 10 years, there has been a significant improvement in people's habits," he noted.

New Thai restaurant will open ahead of schedule

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Winchester's newest restaurant will open two weeks ahead of schedule.

According to Somchai Wiyarand, owner of Narai Thai Inc., plans for the restaurant — Narai Siam — are moving ahead and the establishment will open for both lunch and dinner on March 16.

Wiyarand appeared before the Board of Selectmen recently to update the board on progress on his restaurant. Wiyarand and his wife, Kate Poolsirikul, are the principal owners.

At the board's Dec. 18 meeting, selectmen approved the transfer of one of the town's three liquor licenses to Narai Siam provided the following conditions were met: final sale of the assets, termination of Le Neuchatel's liquor license, beginning of construction within 45 days and completion within four months, a report by Narai Siam owners to

2:47 p.m.

Officer Steven Fields stopped a motor vehicle on Main Street and Salem Street for having an expired registration sticker dated 12/89.

After gaining the driver's information, a computer check was conducted, which showed the driver's registration was expired, said police reports. The driver, a 32-year-old Belmont woman, was cited for operating with an expired registration and her car was towed from the scene.

1:32 p.m.

Officer Steven Fields responded to Cross Street at the Mass. Water Resource building for a report of a past breaking and entering. The officer spoke with a worker at the facility, who told police that on Feb. 27 he noticed several items missing from the garage. The man first suspected that the items might have been borrowed, said police reports.

After a few days however, when the items did not reappear, he contacted police.

According to police reports, the items missing from the garage are an electric generator, a floor jack and a hand-held grinder.

The man told police that the garage is locked each night by either him or his assistant. Also, a 10 ft. fence, which surrounds the property, is locked each night as well, said reports.

Lieutentant James Pierce and Inspector Paul Deluca are conducting an investigation.

9:14 a.m.

Officer Douglas Wilkinson was called to the scene of a motor vehicle accident on Johnson Road and Ridge Street.

The driver of the second car, a 17-year-old Stratford Road woman, was proceeding forward on Ridge Street after stopping at a stop sign when, according to police reports, she failed to grant the right of way to the first vehicle, driven by a 42-year-old Brookside Avenue man.

The first car sustained damage to the front centerline and radiator and the second car had damage to the left front corner.

10:18 a.m.

Officer James Cogan was on patrol on Main Street when he observed a suspect opening the door of a car, quickly closing it and then entering his own vehicle. The officer radioed to Officer Philip Coss for assistance.

The suspect was identified as a 16-year-old Winthrop youth. The suspect told police he had intended to take the change off the console of the car when he spotted police and attempted to leave the area.

The owner of the car, a Watertown woman, was notified and told police that nothing was missing from her vehicle, reports said. The woman also informed police she did not plan to press charges.

2:15 a.m.

Officer Kurt Ellis was traveling southbound on Cambridge Street when he observed a motor vehicle turn from High Street onto Cambridge Street in the southbound direction. As the vehicle made the turn, the driver accelerated causing the vehicle to veer into the northbound lane of Cambridge Street.

According to police reports, the vehicle continued at a high rate of speed, estimated by police to be approximtately 55 to 65 mph.

When the car entered a slight curve in the road, police say, the vehicle again entered the northbound lane.

Because of the driver's excessive speed and erratic operation, police activated the blue lights to pull the car over, reports said. The vehicle did not stop for approximately an eighth of a mile and then stopped abruptly approximately three to four feet from the curb, said police reports.

Police detected a strong odor of alcohol from the driver's breath, and noted that the man had bloodshot and glassy eyes. According to police, the man told police he had consumed three beers during the evening. When asked to produce his license and registration, the man gave police his registration, but had to walk to the trunk of his car to get his license, said reports. After several field sobriety tests were administered, and the driver failed, police placed him under arrest for operating under the influence, police reports said. He was also cited for speeding and failure to keep to the right. Officer Gary Rogers assisted with the arrest.

Youth files charges after being struck with tire iron

A Winchester youth is filing assault and battery charges against another Winthrop youth stemming from an incident that occurred March 2.

A 16-year-old male entered the Winchester police station at approximately 11:20 p.m. that night, relating that he had been the victim of an assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

The youth was accompanied by a friend who had witnessed the incident, another 16-year-old male.

The two youths told police that at 11 p.m. that evening, while driving on Swanton Street, they observed a vehicle behind them flashing its highbeams and tailgating their vehicle.

Both youths told police that someone from that vehicle tossed an egg at their vehicle, which struck the back windshield.

The boy also told police he pulled over on Florence Street to check his car for damage. At this time, he observed the other vehicle with the driver he identified as a 16-year-old Winthrop boy.

According to police, the two vehicles met up again later that evening in the area of Bacon Street and Mystic Valley Parkway. At this time, the Winchester boy asked the Winthrop youth why he threw the egg.

The two who reported to the station told police they did not exit the car at this time, police reports said.

The Winthrop boy exited his car however, brandishing a tire iron, the other youths told police. The Winthrop youth then struck the Winchester resident in the right knee area, according to police reports.

The Winchester youth opted to press charges on Monday, and according to Lieutentant James Pierce a hearing date has been set for March 21 at 9:30 a.m. before the Clerk Magistrate. Pierce added that if the clerk decides there is enough evidence to prove probable cause, the suspect will be arraigned on the charges.

Carreiro arraigned on rape, assault charges

Joao Carreiro, 30, of Somerville has been arraigned in Superior Court on charges of aggravated rape and assault and battery stemming from an incident at Sandy Beach in Winchester on Oct. 30, 1989.

Carreiro was arraigned before Judge J. Harold Flannery and a pre-trial conference date was set for April 5. Carreiro posted $500 bail and was released, according to Marsha Cohen, spokesperson for the Middlesex County District Attorney's office.

The victim, whose name cannot be released, did not know her assailant previous to the attack, according to Assistant District Attorney Martha Coakley. The victim had reportedly met Carreiro that evening and had accepted a ride home from him, said Coakely.

The defendant was armed with a knife, thus constituting aggravated rape, said Coakley. Carreiro also allegedly beat the victim, added Coakley.

Safe driving in Winchester doesn't come by accident

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Whether they are heading out to work, or just running some errands, most Winchester residents find themselves driving or walking through the downtown area on an average day. For some, that tour through Winchester can be a pleasant trip, for others, it can mean a veritable obstacle course of pedestrians, parked cars, crosswalks and speeding vehicles.

A few rules of the road offered by Winchester Police can make that experience a safer one.

According to Lieutenant Kenneth Albertelli, the downtown area poses a unique problem in that four main roads converge on the center rotary. Often, motorists driving from Main, Mt. Vernon or Church streets, are unaware they are approaching a rotary, said Albertelli.

Without exception however, a vehicle in the rotary has the right of way, added Albertelli.

Pedestrians in the crosswalk also have the right of way. A vehicle however, must stop only when the pedestrian is in the driver's lane of traffic.

Albertelli noted that drivers often have a difficult time predicting if a pedestrian on the sidewalk is planning to cross the street. But Albertelli adds, if the pedestrian is making "a significant move" to cross the street, vehicles must yield the right of way.

Also, maneuvering through the often congested streets, lined with parked cars, can be tough going. Albertelli reminds motorists that the speed limit for a thickly settled area is 30 mph unless otherwise posted.

ANALYSIS

elementary school. The Parkhurst, Noonan and Washington schools had been closed — a move that was driven primarily by enrollment figures.

With the passage of Prop. 2½ in November, further cuts had to be made with the reduction in the automobile excise tax.

The fiscal year 1982 (FY82) school budget suffered major reductions to support services and personnel. Speech therapists, clerk aides, textbook purchases, elementary intramurals, elementary guidance counselors, multi-cultural specialists, hot lunches in the junior and senior high, some English classes, a second track, ninth-grade French class and building maintenance were cut. Staggered busing was inititated.

By the mid 1980s, dollars had been saved with the closing of Mystic School. Teachers were laid off in the elementary and high school levels due to further declines in enrollment. Grants were sought from the state and federal government. In addition, state aid was increasing.

As a result, the real impact of Prop. 2½ was slowed. There was compensating money from the state and other sources to counterbalance the restraints of Prop. 2½. Building maintenance had been postponed and with enrollment declining, the town and the schools barely felt the pinch.

Beginning in 1984 when state aid was on the rise, additions were made to the school system. In 1984, a full-time library/coordinator in the elementary schools was added. In 1985, the extended day kindergarten was tried and instructional specialists were brought on.

Two years later a ninth grade health program was initiated. In 1988, the FLEX-foreign language program and the elementary health program were begun. This was the same year that class sizes were reduced and splits eliminated. However, the full day kindergarten had to be eliminated due to cost constraints.

By 1989, with some of the fizzle out of the Massachusetts miracle, grant money harder to come by, building maintenance in much greater need — the town and the schools were beginning to face the real restrictions of Prop. 2½ percent growth, in an over six percent inflationary environment.

Cuts included the special needs counselor, the school adjustment counselor, instructional aides to the computer lab and audio-visual, a special educational teacher, half a position of a learning-to-learning teacher, equipment reduction, elimination of sabbatical leave and elimination of the contingency account. Class sizes were increased and there was a return to split classes, along with the institution of athletic fees.

Consolidations, layoffs and reconfigurations are not new to Winchester. However, Winchester has had the good fortune of facing Prop. 2½ at a time when its enrollment was declining and schools could be closed and teachers let go. What did suffer was the concept of the neigh borhood school. But for the most part, up until 1989, the integrity of the instructional program was left unscathed.

Impact of inflation

In 1981 the schools were operating with a budget of slightly more than $9 million, in comparison to a FY90 budget of $13,464,000. However, if these numbers are deflated by the Boston area consumer price index (CPI) (using the relatively stable period of 1982 to 1984 as a base), these numbers show a decrease in the school budget during the decade. In constant dollars, the schools have half a million less than they did 10 years ago.

The 1981 school budget was able to purchase more goods and services than the 1990 budget. From 1981, the average increase in the CPI was 6.01 percent. With negotiatied contract agreements averaging 6.32 percent, it is increasing state aid, the declining enrollment and related budget reductions that are to thank for the relatively level budgets of the 1980s.

Today, there are fewer students, more than 1,200 fewer. Therefore, the dollar expenditure per student, or the PPE, in constant (deflated)

Feathered friends — or foes?

Four-year-old Paul Viera drew plenty of attention from the geese — but luckily not from Conservation Commissioners or Board of Health members — as he distributed crumbs to hungry Canada geese recently. Town officials have discouraged feeding the geese, whose numbers have skyrocketed in recent years.

Beautification Comm. reminded of role

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Selectmen want the Beautification Design Review Committee to know it is only an advisory board — not a decision-making body.

The Beautification Design Review Committee (BDRC) was originally asked to come before selectmen at the board's March 5 meeting to explain a proposal to increase its membership from five to seven. However, selectmen turned the discussion to the role of the BDRC in relation to their board.

Meister said the committee's efforts recently have been aimed at fundraising efforts. "Money for beautification efforts has been decreased to nothing," said Meister.

"We find we're all working very hard and feel with seven members, we could all share the labor better," said Meister. "(Fundraisign) doesn't cost anything. It only generates revenue."

Selectmen had few questions about the warrant article, but some said they were concerned about the BDRC's role, particularly in relation to a letter written by BDRC Chairman Charles Tseckares to Purity Supreme officials. In that letter, Tseckares asked Purity officials to contact his board regarding landscaping plans.

Selectman Robert Deering reminded Meister that the committee is "not authorized to do anything without (the Board of Selectmen's) permission."

Meister noted that the warrant article which set up the BDRC provided that four members be appointed by the Planning Board, and three by selectmen. She added that the BDRC is intended to work with the Department of Public Works as well.

Deering said there is "a chain of command" for working with the DPW. "Yes, you do answer to the Planning Board but you don't have any authority to act on your own."

Selectman Steve Powers said he was concerned about the letter in particular. "We continue to be in somewhat of an adversary position where we should be helping each other, and the letters don't help ... I don't want people to feel they have to answer to your committee in a final decision. You're there to help us to make good decisions."

Selectmen William O'Leary suggested the chain of command should be clarified to improve communication between the BDRC and selectmen.

Selectmen requested that Wiyarand's attorney, Laurence Moss, be present at their March 12 meeting to update them on the status of the conditions.

The liquor license is currently being held by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission (ABCC) until those conditions are met.

Selectmen approved 5-0 an overnight parking permit for Wiyarand for an overseas container. Wiyarand recently made a trip to Thailand to purchase decorations for the restaurant, and delivery is expected this week, he said.

Browning: experience is vital to trustees's task

"I am Ellen B. Browning and I am a candidate for re-election as a trustee of the Winchester Public Library.

I'd like to open by quoting a letter in the Winchester Star on Feb. 15, 1990 from a student at Winchester High School.

'To the Editor:

No wonder the education system in the country is failing. The public library is hardly open five days a week.

Winchester residents deserve better.'

"As a resident of Winchester for 17 years, I have been active in town schools, in the Community School Association and am serving my seventh year as a Town Meeting member.

"I have always been an avid supporter and user of our town's public library. When my children were small, they received a wonderful introduction to books through the Junior Library and its staff.

"Four years ago I was chosen to complete the term of a library trustee who had resigned, and I was re-elected in 1987. I am now the most experienced member of the board at a time when experience is essential.

"The challenges that the library faces today are serious. Our top priority is maintaining our library's state accreditation in order to continue to qualify for state grants, which last year totaled over $15,000. In addition, accreditation allows our library to share books and materials with other town libraries, a service which benefits library patrons of all ages.

"Our library accreditation is at risk unless we can maintain minimum standards of operation. A town our size is required to open 50 hours per week during the school year. Fifteen percent of the total operating budget must be expanded yearly on new books and materials. Given our declining appropriation from the town budget over the last few years, the only way our library can, this year, meet this requirement and maintain state standards, is to appropriate all the income from our trust funds that we have accumulated over the past years.

Ellen Browning

"Once these funds are expended, we are left with a zero balance for any extraordinary contingencies which may occur. The yearly income from trust funds, some of which is restricted as to use, does not come close to funding the deficit on an annual basis.

"I bring experience as a board member and demonstrated commitment to meeting the library's future challenges".

(Submitted by Ellen B. Browning, candidate for library trustee).

Pavelle wants to be link between public, library

"My name is Anne Deborah Pavelle, and I wish to become your elected member of the Board of Trustees of the Winchester Library. A trustee is a volunteer to whom the governing of a public library is entrusted. A trustee is the vital link between the library and the public. I wish to be your link.

"I want our library to be the public's library, not just a public library. I propose to work to implement several changes. I want to make the library more user friendly by:

- Moving the children's circulation desk downstairs.
- Developing a volunteer group through the Friend's to handle renewals over the telephone during specific hours.
- Installing a pay telephone within the library.
- Reviewing the cost effectiveness of fines on books and videos.
- Conducting a survey to determine preferred library opening hours and days.

"I will keep the public better informed by:

- Determining whether the trustee's meetings can be included in cable TV's monthly program listing.
- Placing closed suggestion boxes in every room.
- Writing newspaper articles following the trustee meetings.
- Placing the agenda of the meetings in the newspaper.

"Finally I propose to set up a fundraising group through the Friends. This group would have specific goals to improve our library. Funds would be raised with this particular purpose in mind.

"I am a Winchester resident of 12 years, married with two children in high school and one in elementary school. I received my B.A. from Douglass College (Rutgers University) and my M.A. from Case-Western Reserve University. I am a practicing Speech Language Pathologist, professional storyteller, Brownie leader and a very active user of the library. I have an open mind, a deep interest in our Library's welfare and a willingness to serve our town."

(Submitted by the candidate).

Papas brings 15 years of service to trustees bid

For the past 15 years Connie Papas has been active in town government, serving for nine years as a member and for three of those years as chairman of the Winchester School Committee. In addition, she has served as a Town Meeting member since 1975 representing Precinct 6.

Papas has also served on a number of town committees, including the Cable TV Advisory Committee, the Human Resources Committee and the Equal Opportunity Committee. During her tenure on the School Committee, she represented management in labor negotiations with all five of the school labor groups. She has been a member of the Library Board of Trustees since 1987, serving currently as vice-chairman.

"The library is an important resource for the Town of Winchester. It serves the needs of young and old alike; a place for students to learn as well as a place for the inquiring mind to explore at leisure. We have always been proud of our library and it deserves the continued support of the community.

"For the past three years, I have endeavored to prioritize the needs of library and to concentrate its resources in services to the public. Strong leadership is a must, particularly in these difficult times of fiscal crisis. My previous experience has demonstrated that I am able to make hard decisions that are based on what is in the best interests of the whole town. I would appreciate your support on March 27."

Papas has been a resident of Winchester since 1970 and currently lives at 18 Amberwood Drive. Her daughters are graduates of the Winchester public schools and her son is currently a junior at Winchester High School. Papas holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Northeastern University and is purchasing manager at Adapative Optics / United Technologies Corporation in Cambridge.

Lombardi calls for school reforms

"The incumbent School Committee candidate for re-election has stated that we can expect, 'the end of public education as we know it' if more money isn't injected into the education budget. When I first heard this statement, I immediately looked upward to see if, in fact, the sky was falling. But the more I hear this statement, the more I realize that this may be just what we need.

"Consider a number of facts concerning how the School Committee is running our educational system.

1) "Promoting from without: Over the past few years there have been seven vacancies at the principal level that have been filled from outside our school system. Although we continually hear praises from our School Committee about what extraordinary teachers and principals we have, when it's time for promotions they're not quite good enough. Although I support hiring the best person for the job, I believe we have always had the best and should use their skill and experience our tax dollars have paid to develop. Consistently hiring from without sends a poor message to our educators and caused some to leave the system.

2) "The Neighborhood Concept: Previous administrations, task forces and study committees have consistently emphasized the importance of retaining five elementary schools. But this year, in the 11th hour, with no opportunity for community input, the administration proposed a budget that closed an elementary school. Although they have been aware of this possibility for over a year, there was no process, no studies and no opportunity for debate before this radical decision was made. I believe the neighborhood school concept is at the heart of our educational system and therefore cannot support closing an elementary school.

3) "A Five Year Contract: The School Committee signed a five year contract with the superintendent. Public discussion was held only at the School Committee meeting when the contract was voted on. I believe the length of the contract is excessive and the process not considerate of public opinion. I question the presumptuousness apparent when School Committee members vote a contract that outlasts any of their terms.

4) "Crisis Management: We have reached the day when our education system cannot be all things to all people. We knew this day was coming. That's why I'm so dismayed at how ill-prepared the School Committee was to react to fiscal constraints. There are no long-range financial plans and no priority lists that should have been prepared to allow the thoughtful examination of our options. Instead we are only presented with the short-sighted solutions to close an elementary school and move the sixth graders to McCall.

"The end of public education as we know it? Maybe that's what we need, that is a change in the philosophy of how we guide our public education system through fiscally tough times. I believe my first hand knowledge of our education system and education budget, and my MBA and business background, give me the knowledge, skill and experience necessary to intelligently guide our school system through the difficult times ahead.

(Submitted by Mark Lombardi, candidate for School Committee).

Informational coffees to focus on override need

According to the Town Manager in the Feb. 15, 1990 proposed budget report, the FY91 Town Budget reflects a reduction in service and personnel below the FY90 level. This reduction was necessary due to an identified $2.2 million revenue shortfall.

In order to reduce the impact of this shortfall on town services, the Board of Selectmen voted unanimously to place an override question on the March 27 ballot in the amount of $1,391,400. With or without the question, nearly $800,000 worth of services and personnel will be cut in FY91.

The town manager has prepared two alternative FY91 budget presentations — the first proposing a budget if the override question passes and the second a budget if the override question fails. The final degree of the reduction in services will depend on the outcome of the override question at the annual election.

The Override YES Committee has been formed to aid in providing information regarding the impact of a $1,391,400 debt service exclusion override. The committee has information regarding the town services that will be maintained if the question passes, the cost to the individual taxpayer if the override passes and information regarding the services that will not be maintained with or without the override.

The committee is holding informational coffees for the purpose of answering questions and providing information to concerned citizens. The committee has asked individuals with experience in both the municipal and the educational components of town services to speak at the various coffees. The speakers are: Tom Schmitt, Ed O'Connell, Wendy Sutton, Chet Haskell, Bill Jervey, John Montgomery, Alice McCarter, Bob Deering, Judie Muggia, Frank Golden, Larry Smith, Bob Fitzgerald, Peter Van Aken, Gerry Sobkowicz and Donna Brandt Landry.

Informational Coffees will be held on Sunday, March 11 from 2 to 4 p.m. and on Sunday, March 18 from 4 to 6 p.m. at several locations. For locations and additional information call Kris Montgomery, at 729-6259, or Lori Lerman, at 729-4803, co-chairmen of The Override YES Committee. The Override YES Committee invites interested voters to attend a coffee, ask questions and discuss the implications of the ballot question.

McCall-Taylor seeking return to Planning Board

Maryann McCall-Taylor has announced that she is seeking re-election to the Planning Board. She has served on the board for the last six years, including as chairman, secretary and vice chairman.

She serves as Planning Board representative to the Housing Partnership Board and the Fair Housing Committee and has served on the Woburn Loop Committee and the Long Range Housing Plan Committee. She has also been a Town Meeting member for the last six years. She notes that these activities reflect a long term interest in the areas of land use, zoning and housing, issues which are the focus of much of the Planning Board's activity.

"The most urgent problem facing the town is the fiscal crisis but we should not lose sight of other long range issues which must be addressed. The lack of funds will make meeting these challenges more difficult but no less important.

"An issue the Planning Board will address in the coming year is the future of Main Street north of the center. Spring Town Meeting will be presented with a proposal to adjust the 150-foot strip of general business district so that the zoning line will conform to lot lines and limit the business district to Main Street properties where it belongs, rather than spilling over into the densely populated residential neighborhood.

"The next step will be to examine the requirements of the general business district, especially the elements which govern parking, set back, height and buffering. These actions will foster the growth of an attractive and viable business area.

"The issue of affordable housing must continue to be addressed. State and federal funds have dried up but the need is still there. The town must develop housing policies which will promote the creation of affordable housing within the current economic constraints.

"While the Planning Board looks to the Housing Partnership Board to investigate options the Planning Board will continue to propose zoning changes that can encourage not only affordable housing but a broader variety of housing types. In the time that I have served on the Planning Board the Board has established inclusionary zoning requirements and an independent elderly housing district.

"I would like to work with the board to create a mixed use district which would allow the carefully controlled development of low density housing and commercial uses. This is a current option only within the central business district and there at fairly dense levels," said McCall-Taylor

In addition to her town government activities McCall-Taylor is a member of the League of Women Voters, a volunteer at the Lincoln elementary school and active in her church. McCall-Taylor received a master's degree in city planning from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a BA from Wellesley College. Her professional experience in planning includes consultant work with Arthur D. Little, Inc., the State of Massachusetts and the American Bar Association.

McCall-Taylor lives at 8 Sanborn Street with her husband, Doug Taylor and her two children, Anna and John.

Matarese seeks an end to selectmen's 'fiscal folly'

"Campaigning for the Board of Selectman has been one of the most educational and exhilarating experiences of my life. The support I have received from the many coffees I have attended has been gratifying and encouraging. The most often asked question during this campaign has been two-fold: How do you stand on the override and what are the differences between you and your opponent. Let me answer the latter question first.

"My opponent is a liberal and I am a conservative. My opponent supported a $2 million general override of Proposition 2½ and I do not. My opponent supports the $1.391 million limited override of Proposition 2½ and I do not. My opponent supported the lavish and excessive restoration of the Town Hall and I did not. My opponent supported last year's override attempt and I did not. My opponent supported the 1988 library override question and I did not. My opponent supported the $50 dump fee, and I do not.

"My opponent and I have some basic philosophical differences. Several months ago, I wrote to the comptroller requesting a detailed breakdown of the salary increases of the adminstrative staff not restricted by the collective bargaining process. I was appalled to learn two employees received raises of 5.5 percent and all the other administrative staff received raises of 6.0 to 13.8 percent.

"As chairman of the Board of Selectman, my opponent, in my opinion, should have instructed the town manager and the Personnel Board to go back to the bargaining table and adjust the administrative salaries increases to a level consistent with the fiscal constraints of Proposition 2½. He chose not to do this. This 'public-be-damned' attitude is not a philosophy I could ever support.

"Finally, the voters of Winchester are once again being subjected to the same hysteria we heard during last year's override attempt. If you recall, last year we were subjected to the threat of our streets wouldn't be plowed, our police wouldn't patrol and our children wouldn't be educated. This year we are being told the same drivel with the exception that our School Committee has told the parents of the Vinson Owen School community that if they support the override, their school will be kept open.

"Some people refer to this as a quid pro quo arrangement, I call it blackmail! Our children deserve better treatment than this.

"I have said it before and I shall continue to say, it is morally wrong to tax people out of their homes. We must prioritize our needs, cap our spending, evaluate our personnel and provide our citizens with a well run community that is sensitive to the economic means of all our citizens. Proposition 2½ is, quite simply, the only mechanism the public has that allows us to control our fiscal destiny. Now is not the time to override Proposition 2½, now is the time to implement it! If you agree, I hope you will vote for Ann Matarese for Selectman on Tuesday, March 27. It's your choice!

Roll eyes seat on Planning Board

Margaret Roll

Margaret Roll of Central Street has announced her candidacy for one of two available three-year terms on the Planning board.

"Having served on (the) Planning Board for the past three years, I feel that I have contributed to the organization, input and advance planning that is needed to help this board operate effectively. Many issues involving new developments, changes in zoning by-laws, affordable housing and parking have been dealt with over these three years. I have worked to make decisions that will be in the best interests of the town as a whole, to preserve the good aspects of existing zoning, and to amend and improve zoning where the need exists.

"My contributions include serving as both secretary and chairman, and representing (the) Planning Board for two years on the Capital Planning Committee and on the Economic Development Committee. I feel that the experience that I have gained will enable me to be an asset to the board for the next three years."

Jervey cites school goals, results

"During my six years on the School Committee, our foremost goal has been to provide the best possible education for both the students and the texpayers of Winchester. When we compare ourselves to other communities, we can be proud of our results. Based upon cost figures from the state Department of Education, and our student scores on the College Boards and the state assessment tests, we can support the claim that no other town in Eastern Massachusetts receives better value for its educational tax dollars than Winchester does.

"To achieve these results, we have paid careful attention to five objectives which I have discussed often in the past. I believe we should continue to promote these objectives if we wish to maintain our success. If I am re-elected on March 27, you can count on me to help:

1. Maintain a low pupil-teacher ratio in order to provide each child sufficient time for individual instruction and attention.

2. Avoid split-grade classrooms (such as a combined fourth and fifth grade in a single class), because these splits are disruptive of the planned curriculum progression, and they create situations where children at significantly different levels of development are placed in the same class.

3. Provide maximum support in the early primary grades, as well as in early childhood programs. Children who get off to a good start educationally are less likely to require special services in later years.

4. Maintain a diverse curriculum at Winchester High School, because that is one of the key features that sets our program apart from others, and because it is a major reason why we lose relatively few of our students to private schools. We want to continue to serve all students, whether they plan to enter MIT, or art school, or the workplace.

5. Be good employers. Education is a partnership, and partnerships must be equitable if they are to be successful. We should pay a fair market wage and provide a professional environment for our faculty and staff. Otherwise we will not continue to attract and retain high quality educators.

"The success of our schools is not accidental. It is the result of careful planning and attention to goals and objectives. Many other school systems have slipped in recent years because they lost control of their special education budgets, or tried to cut corners in early primary programs, or abandoned important services in their high schools. In Winchester, we have done better than holding our own, we have actually improved our programs. Student achievement is higher than ever, and our costs relative to other communities are actually lower than they were seven and eight years ago.

I would like to devote three more years to maintaining and improving this record. Please consider Jervey when you vote on March 27. Thank you for your past support and your future consideration."

(Submitted by Bill Jervey, candidate for School Committee).

Schmitt boasts record of results

"Over the past several weeks I have met and talked with many of you about Winchester's management. People want to know how selectmen set policy and how we assure interests of the entire population are considered.

"During my three-year term I have been guided by three principles. First, respectfully hearing everyone's view. Second, improving town management through analysis of available information. And third, working toward consensus whenever possible. Let me give some examples.

"Selectmen commonly hear from people with concerns about a specific issue. Last spring business people were alarmed about closing the Main Street bridge for repairs. Yet options for keeping the bridge open were costly. As chairman of the board, I called a hearing of all those concerned. We agreed on a plan that provided continuous pedestrian access and called for intense management of the project. The bridge was completed on time and within budget.

"Last fall, as reductions in state local aid complicated our options for balancing next year's budget, I felt selectmen should hear from many citizens before offering financial options to the voters. I scheduled two public hearings and, as chairman, accepted commentary at other times as well. I recognized everyone who would offer a viewpoint, did so as evenhandedly as possible, and listened to each comment. Hearing from everyone may be a selectman's most important duty; it is certainly one I take most seriously.

"Unless an operation can be measured and evaluated, it cannot be managed effectively. That's why I made improving town analysis techniques one of my highest priorities. As a result, the town manager has completed an in-depth staffing review that is being used as a model in neighboring towns; the selectmen will soon consider a recommendation to overhaul the town's computer software; models used to analyze next year's budget options include long-term income and expense projections; and within a few weeks we will establish a link with the Department of Revenue's municipal data bank.

"We still have a long way to go. But Winchester is already benefiting from those new systems. The board's recommendation on next year's staffing and its unanimous conclusion on options for balancing next year's budget were based in large part on data made available through improved analysis.

"Governing effectively requires taking differing points of view into serious consideration. Throughout my term I have tried hard to reach consensus on important issues. Working with former Selectman Frank Sopper to develop the Winchester Housing Fund is a good example. Another is my collaboration with former Selectman Mark Lombardi to develop our water sys-

Carlson stresses experience in housing industry

Werner A. Carlson

Werner A. Carlson has announced his candidacy for Housing Authority. Mr. Carlson has served the town as a Town Meeting member for four years; Board of Appeal for four years; and the Board of Assessors for six years.

Prior to moving back to Winchester 20 years ago, he served as a Town Meeting member in Arlington for eight years; and also as chairman of the Permanent Building Committee. During that time period he worked with programs integrating educable students into the junior high school environment.

Mr. Carlson has built hundreds of housing units, from single family homes to small apartment buildings. He presently owns a private building inspection company employing four inspectors; a property management company and is an expert court witness in building construction. Recognized as a leader in his field by his peers, he was elected national president of the American Society of Home Inspectors and received an appointment to the Small Business Administration, Advisory Council, Region I.

As a member of the Rental Housing Association for 20 years he is very familiar with the housing needs and as stated, "I firmly believe we should not take any town-owned land to build housing units. Programs such as Section 8 with Section 722 will satisfy Winchester's housing needs. We should work closely with our property owners, informing them of the available programs.

"I want the Housing Authority to get out of the building business. The three single units built by the Authority are out of character with the neighborhoods; the style requires additional maintenance and the occupants will always be adversely identified as low income tenants.

"It seems the state Legislature mandates changes and requirements with each new session. It is, therefore, very important that the Housing Authority has members of experience and maturity to deal with these changes. I would appreciate your consideration and vote for this position.

I will do my best to represent the needs of the elderly and low income without adversely affecting Winchester's amenities."

tem improvement program.

"Chairing a Board of Selectmen that voted unanimously on a Proposition 2½ debt service override is a third. Having an opinion and expressing it are important. But reaching a common goal while working with those who represent diverse views requires greater skill.

"I am proud of those accomplishments and of the way I have served Winchester. With your support on March 27, I shall be priviledged to do so for another three years.

(Submitted by Thomas Schmitt, candidate for the Board of Selectmen).

League hosts candidates' forum

On Sunday, March 18 the Winchester League of Women Voters will host its annual "Day at the Races." All candidates for town-wide office have been invited to present their views and to answer qustions from the audience. Town Moderator John Sullivan will officiate.

This forum, which will be held at Town Hall from 2 to 4 p.m., is open to the public. The League, as a nonpartisan organization dedicated to active and informed participation of citizens in government, never supports candidates or parties.

citizens of the town. Selectman Robert Deering suggested that there might be an individual "who could bring some expertise" to the board but who was not a resident.

Selectman Steve Powers said, "I think this is the effort a lot of citizens have looked for and we would welcome their input."

O'Leary said he thought the charge of the committee should be more narrowly defined. "I'm not interested in giving up what is our responsibility to another board," said O'Leary.

Those interested in applying to serve on the ad hoc committee should contact the town manager's office.

Warrant asks water banks action

found it "difficult to believe" the proposal for this by-law "has come up as a result of a hypothetical property."

"It's the result of a number of incidents," said Cura. "It's the result of our own experience in town."

Selectman Steve Powers said the amendment presented "somewhat of a risk from the town's side."

However, Alpers pointed out that the language of the proposal is conditional. "It's intended to provide an objective measure," said Alpers, and added that it would be negotiable on a case-by-case basis.

Acquistions

The first piece of land the Conservation Commission hopes to acquire, known as the Johnson property, borders Sachem Swamp near Coolidge Road. According to Cura, the land has been offered to the town as conservation land. "It is consistent with the open space and recreation plan," said Cura.

Cura said he was not aware whether or not there were back taxes to be paid on the land. However, selectmen urged the commission to determine if that was the case before Town Meeting.

"That's the first question that's going to hit the floor (of Town Meeting)," said Selectman Steve Powers.

Mount Pisgah is the site of an abandoned water tower and is one of the highest points in town.

Cura noted that the Winchester Trails guide includes a trail map of the area, which is mostly used as a conservation land.

Selectmen Chairman Thomas Schmitt asked whether, once made conservation land, the town would have access to using the water tower.

Both Cura and Alpers agreed that use would not be inconsistent with conservation land.

"I am concerned about issues like that," said Schmitt. "Some day in the future we may want to go to wells."

"I don't believe even an expansion of a passive use like that would be inconsistent (with the conservation land)," said Alpers.

Selectman Steve Powers asked what would be gained by tagging a parcel as conservation land that is for the most part used in that manner. "If it isn't broken, I sometimes wonder why we're trying to fix something," said Powers.

"It's a matter of protection," said Cura. He noted that the Conservation Commission wants to preserve land for future generations. "Now this piece of land will always have a voice in the councils of the town," he said.

All three measures require Town Meeting approval.

Health care priorities

And according to health officials across the country, those who are currently in need of basic health care are, from greatest to least: high-risk infants, children and youth (racial minorities, poor, candidates for abuse, addition and violence); frail elderly; high-risk obstetric patients; minority populations whose access to care is limited by language and/or cultural barriers; and minority AIDS patients.

As for the future of health rationing and providing basic health care, Loubier said, "Society's got to define what's basic. There are people out there who ... can do that."

Loubier said cost containment is important in any hospital today. "We don't try to be everything to everyone all the time," he said. Winchester Hospital has been one of the lowest-cost hospitals in the Commonwealth over the last several years, noted Loubier. "I think we've still been able to provide a high level of care ... We have a commitment to good employees, to good physicians.

"As we look to health rationing in the future, I hope the community will be involved in decisions," said Loubier of the industry as a whole.

Override

dollars has risen from approximately $2,765 to $3,680 during the last decade.

A partial explanation for the increase is that the fixed costs of operating a high school with a full array of courses is being spread over fewer students. Consequently, even though the schools are employing fewer teachers, aides and counsellors than they did 10 years ago — they still have to staff a fully accredited high school that serves the needs of all students.

It is clear that teacher salaries account for the lion's share of the increases to the school budget — though at an average of 6.32 percent, they are only slightly above the average CPI of 6.01 percent for the period.

The WINCHESTER BOARD OF APPEAL will hold a PUBLIC HEARING on TUESDAY, MARCH 20, 1990 at 7:00 P.M. in the WATERFIELD ROOM, TOWN HALL, 71 MOUNT VERNON STREET, WINCHESTER, MA on the following matter:

Petition No. 2927 - That of EMANUEL and BARBARA MILIARIS by MARGARET C. MAHONEY, ESQ. concerning the property at 12-14 MOUNT PLEASANT STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioners are seeking an appeal under Section 8.8 of the Town of Winchester Zoning By-Law in accordance with Chapter 40A, Sections 8 and 15 of the Massachusetts General Laws from the determination of the Building Commissioner/Zoning Enforcement Officer that alterations to a non conforming accessory building requires a Special Permit and that the proposed use of the accessory building is not a permitted accessory use allowed by the Winchester Zoning By-Law.

Alternatively, the petitioners are seeking a Special Permit, Variance or any other necessary relief in order to make alterations to the nonconforming accessory building and to establish a residential and educational use therein in accordance with Chapter 40A, Sections 9 and 10 of the Massachusetts General Laws.

The property is located in the RDB (Single Residence) zoning district, contains 18,503 square feet and is a non-conforming two-family dwelling.

O'Connells made big contributions

By DAN CHANE
Special to The Star

Last week, as Winchester took note of Danny O'Connell and Mae Serieka presenting a check to Chief Joseph Perritano of the Winchester Police Department, memories of a large family making significant contributions to Winchester over the years became highly focused.

In the late 1880's, Edward "Ned" O'Connell and his wife Catherine settled in the ancient house at the head of Middlesex Street — in the area now affectionately remembered as "The Bowery" — and, over the years, raised their large and locally prominent family there.

Of their sons who became policemen, Ed and Archie were well known members of the Winchester Police Department — with Eddie being one of the first motorcycle patrolmen, when those vehicles were added in 1924.

Of their daughters, Helen Lucey and Mae Serieka are still active and much loved members of the local scene.

Mae was the mover in the recent idea of a family gift to the Winchester Police New Equipment Fund, and all of Lt. O'Connell's children — Elizabeth, Mary, Dorothy, Ruth, Edward Jr., and Danny were fascinated with the idea.

Their gift — a new semi-automatic handgun of the type Chief Perritano hopes to soon provide all his officers — will be used by Officer Kevin Mawn in memory of Lt. Eddie O'Connell, who gave more than 40 years service to Winchester.

Eddie was envied locally as an avid year-round fisherman, his frequent junkets to New Hampshire with George Nowell, Mike Saraco and Charlie Moran providing real verbal grist for local wags in the square. Endless fish stories made the rounds, probably starting out over morning coffee at Randall's.

As for Ed's son Danny — "Oakie" from our own school days — aside from presiding over children Ed, John, Mary, Diane, Dan Jr., and Elizabeth with wife Anne, he has been the popular owner of Winchester Gulf Service since 1967 — after serving five years in the Navy.

As we sat together at the station last Friday, Danny lamented the fact that Winchester has so few programs for its youth these days. "When we were kids, each playground was fully staffed, there were intramural sports, and generally there was something going on throughout the season for all kids. We also had the movie theater, two bowling alleys, a rifle club under the Star Building and the police organized P.A.L. basketball league," he said.

The local observer also recalls the infamous pool table in the upper reaches of the police station which helped greatly in keeping local youth off the streets and out of trouble!

Though much has changed about Our Town since Eddie O'Connell joined our Police Department in 1921 — under Chief William R. McIntosh — what has remained is his great legacy of family loyalty to the town — coming down to us through the years — enriching many aspects of life in Winchester, and showing us the way!

ELECTION POLICY

The Winchester Star has an editorial policy on the number of press releases that will be accepted from candidates for major townwide offices. This policy is implemented in an effort to be fair to all candidates.

By the newspaper setting the limit, a candidate with greater staff or financial help does not automatically have access to more coverage simply because the candidate is able to do more public relations.

All candidates for major townwide office will be allowed free space for an announcement of candidacy including a head-and-shoulder photograph, and two other press releases. These may include a picture and caption, such as one taken at a fundraising event, or a letter to the editor from the candidate. Letters of endorsement of candidacies by others will not be accepted.

All press releases must be limited to 500 words, and releases should be typed double space.

No release will be accepted for the March 22 issue which immediately precedes the election.

Deadline for press releases is Monday at 4 p.m. However, releases submitted on Friday are appreciated. The Star will make every effort to print the releases the week submitted.

The Star will publish staff-generated and other coverage of the election, such as interviews, candidates' forums, and the League of Women Voters questionaire. Legitimate "news" about a candidate will also be published at the editor's discretion.

Get in touch with reality

By TERRY MAROTTA
Special to The Star

As any philosopher will tell you, there is maybe perhaps they're-not-sure-but probably, NO SUCH THING as reality. Realities change. Truths shift. The world is made up of illusion, that which the Hindus call maya, (no not mayo, dummy, though mayo does a pretty good job holding all the rest together); and whoever thought the world was a stable place probably also has an unpublished copy of Ron Reagan's Speeches to The Aliens all set for serialization to the check-out counter tabloids.

Nay, the planet spins. Shadows change shape. And even received truth undergoes alteration.

They say the Eskimos have almost a hundred different words for snow, a fact which I read somewhere is backed up not at all by the world's Eskimolian linguists. (They probably have the same words we have for it, in fact: "Sleet", "slush", and "I'm going back to bed.") Perhaps too, then, there are that many words for truth. In short, there are several categories of truth: the kind we hold to be self-evident (your socks are falling down); the kind that are slowly chaning into something other than truth, the way zucchinis change into things other than zucchinis if left too long alone and unappreciated; the kind that never were true in the first place; and last but not least a small lonely band of things that always were and always will be true, all dressed up in Scouting uniforms and standing around shyly scratching their arms and hoping to be asked to dance.

Now pay attention while I elucidate. This is complicated stuff:

First we have the things that maybe used to be true but are No More Alas. Whether or not you once could, you can no longer see a little girl's underpants in the reflection of her patent leather shoes. Nuns don't shave their heads under the starched white dinner napkins they wear beneath their veils. You can't get drunk on aspirin and Coke anymore, though you can get pretty obnoxious with all that sugar zizzing through your bloodstream, and the white powder that cakes your lips from the asprin will make you look like a lunatic.

> There are lots of things posing as truths that are and always have been outright lies.

In a similar general category are things often believed to be true that are now getting a second look. Like the notion that oat bran will lower your blood cholesterol level; flossing will give you teeth like Vanna White; and Communists are bent on worldwide domination and the disfigurement of all the St. Christopher statues riding around on people's dashboards.

There are lots of things posing as truths that are and always have been outright lies. Like the idea that mousetraps don't hurt; that mice like them and drag them into their apartments to use as Murphy beds. Other examples of such whoppers: The idea that lobsters don't feel it when you boil them to death. Computers can generate rooms full of architecture so real you can walk into them and peek inside the drawers and medicine cabinets. An apple a day keeps the doctor away (I mean, who are they kidding? The doctor doesn't come anymore anyway. It's got nothing to do with apples.)

Restaurant menus tap into this brand of untruths a lot. Did you know that buffalos don't really have wings? Chickens don't have fingers either. The food industry deals in untruths more than Joe Isuzu himself. Cheez Whiz is making a big comeback since microwave ovens, I read recently, and the kind you can extrude onto crackers out of a little caulking gun. Try reading one of THOSE labels: Processed Cheese Food, they usually say. Processed Non Cheese Non Food, some think thy ought to say.

And finally there are those sweet lonely things in their Scouting uniforms that are still true and always will be no matter what. Nobody likes creamed chip beef. All crabmeat smells like the devil when you first open the can. Stick around long enough and you'll end up loving your worst enemy, even if you're married to him, just because you've been through so much together.

You get the idea? Now try extrapolating. What will be the new truths of the future? Isaac Newton Found In Error; Gravity Repealed? Smoking Discovered Good For You? Mikhail Gorbachev Get Call From Another Baldy; Becomes Not Just Another Satisfied Customer But Hair Club President?!

Truth is subtle, and sinuous, and slippery as a palm full of mercury. You have any problems with it, just come ask one of us philosophers.

LETTERS

Fire Fighters write open letter

TO THE EDITOR:

The following is an open letter to the taxpayers and voters of Winchester.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Just about a year has come and gone since the last big "battle" for an override of Proposition 2½. Now we have another "override question" facing us on March 27. Last year the Fire Fighters were out on the picket line for a contract settlement and to support the override question. But it lost. The people weren't convinced that the override was needed. So the town cut emergency services, fire and police, along with other town services. And things seemed to go along pretty well without anyone really getting hurt or dying.

And so it was for several months. Or was it? Management will probably tell you that we did alright until December 1989 when we started a string of major fires. And as the "Luck of Winchester" would have it the fires "waited" until a shift change to happen when we are at our maximum strength, with one crew on and another coming in. It happened not once but three times within a few weeks of each other. Lucky! What do you think the odds are of that happening every time we have a big fire?

Is it possible that the "Luck of Winchester" is running out? The Bacon Street fire didn't happen at a shift change but in the middle of the day. A three-alarm fire with no Winchester Ladder truck. It was out for repairs. Because it couldn't pass, safely, a standard safety test. It was being repaired before we had an accident.

You know, the Winchester taxpayer spends a good deal of money to send its firefighters to a State Fire Fighting Academy to learn the proper and safe way to do things and the right equipment to use. But lately, I wonder just what we are doing cutting corners on the way we were trained to do things safely and with the proper equipment.

Our equipment is old or inadequate for the ever-changing environment the firefighter is called to enter to protect the public. Most of our SCBA equipment is a decade or more old. How many times can you repair it before it's unreliable? Firefighting operations that require two (2) or more firefighters are done by a single firefighter, to the best of their ability. But at a fire scene you don't have time to look for help that just is not there.

If you were to do a survey of injuries suffered in the line of duty in recent months the numbers would show a growth. That is time lost and a cost to the town. We still have firefighters out from fire injuries from weeks ago. How much do you think it will cost of a line of duty retirement disability? How much do you really save when you cut corners on public safety?

And, oh yes, those quiet months from July to December when we did all right in the eyes of some. Several times, especially at night, you had only four firefighters manning one pump and a ladder and no ambulance. They were out on emergency runs out of town. You were O.K. as long as it was a minor auto accident or brush fire — anything else and you were in trouble.

If this is happening to your fire protection what is it doing to your police protection?

The answer is not a simple one. By voting for the limited override, you remove the burden of debt from the town's operating budget. But you, through your Town Meeting members must set your priorities for services. The destiny of Winchester is in the hands of the people. Don't let go! Vote for the limited override of Proposition 2½!

Get the facts, says resident

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to respond to a letter that appeared in a recent edition of The Star that raised questions around the amount of money being spent in particular areas of the special education budget.

I had concerns about the large figures being discussed in the letter which were taken outside of their context without clarifying background information. Unfortunately, rather than providing useful public information, this type of letter

30 years ago: 1960

Winchester was digging out from under its worst snowstorm since the blizzard of 1940. The official tally of snow was 17.3 inches, but the wind whipped the snow into drifts from four to five feet high, while in some places the snowfall was reported at 23 to 26 inches.

Neno's Market on Swanton Street offered forequarter lamb at a low price of 33 cents a pound, Armour's short shank, sugar-cured smoked shoulders at 33 cents a pound, large grapefruits, three for 25 cents and lettuce for only 15 cents a head.

The Winchester High School planned to present, "Darkness Falls on Laughter" for the Massachusetts High School Drama Festival. Six schools, including Winchester, met at the King Philip Regional High School in Wrentham for the first round in the dramatic contest.

That Friday, Winchester music enthusiasts were treated to an evening of song with "The Two by Fours," Winchester's popular male octet and the Winchester High School's "Plaids," a five-piece Dixie group. The event was sponsored by the Winchester High School Parent-Faculty Association.

20 years ago: 1970

James J. Cogan of the Winchester Police Department received congratulations from the Board of Selectmen at its regular meeting in the Town Hall that week on his appointment to lieutenant. The board had voted the appointment at a special meeting earlier in the week. A member of the department since April, 1956, Lt. Cogan was appointed the first juvenile officer in 1960 and served in that capacity until 1962. In 1964, he became a sergeant and in 1966 advanced to the rank of Sergeant-Inspector.

The Winchester School Committee voted to renew the contract for one year of Dr. Donald A. Klemer as Superintendent of Schools, overthrowing the decision of the previous committee as announced on Jan. 5 that year.

Correction

Due to a typesetting error, a number of Advanced Placement (AP) courses offered at Winchester High School were omitted in a letter from Robert Dewald in the March 1 issue of The Star.

Those AP courses that are available include: chemistry, physics, biology, U.S. history, calculus, English, Latin, French, Spanish, art, computer science and German.

The Star regrets the error.

LETTERS

appears to perpetuate more misinformation and fuels suspicion about the mismanagement by the school department.

In an attempt to clarify some of the questions that were raised in this article for myself, I contacted Frank Bianco, Special Education Director, who by the way, was readily accessible and very responsive.

The Special Education Budget services approximately 500 Winchester students between the ages of 3 through 21. The mandate of the program is to service any child in this age group who has a developmental, physical or emotional need that cannot be adequately addressed through a regular education program and or without specialized services so that each of these students has the optimal opportunity to reach their maximum potential. These special needs can range from a mild speech defect to severe and multiple handicaps. As well, issues of child and adolescent alcohol and drug programs and depression with it's associated risk of suicide come under the authority of this program.

Under Chapter 766, a law that was implemented in Massachusetts in 1974, it is Winchester's legal responsibility to provide specialized education to these students as outlined in their individual educational plans. The intent of the law is to protect the needs of children which were clearly not being protected prior to it's implementation. For philosophical as well as fiscal reasons, special education directors prefer to provide indistricting programming whenever possible. This however is not always possible.

The aforementioned article raised questions around two specific budget items: $175,000 for transportation and $350,000 for out of district programming. Fifteen students are presently being serviced by this particular piece of the budget. On the surface, this may sound like a small number of students for this amount of dollars. However, these are some of our students who have the most specialized needs that are not able to be adequately addressed in existing town programs. For example, some of these students are non-ambulatory along with having vision, hearing and behavioral problems. The cost of transporting one non ambulatory student can be $130 a day. The cost of an out of district day program can be $30,000 a year.

The State has historically reimbursed 60 percent of these monies back to the town. Again, if you only look at the surface you may feel that large sums of money are being spent on individual students. However, I'm not sure how you can attach a dollar figure to the fact that a child and family's present and future quality of life may be improved by a specialized program. I'm not sure how you can attach a dollar figure to the fact that specialized programs are making it possible for multiple handicapped children to remain out of institutions and in the community with their families.

It becomes unclear what is being asked of voters when it is suggested that budgets like the special education budget be scrutinized. If you are asking that a cost conscious but less desirable program be implemented for a multiple handicapped student largely because it would be more cost effective, don't ask me to do that, I won't. If you are asking me to decrease a students speech therapy by a day, I'm unable to do that because I think the extra services are necessary to achieve a positive outcome and it's money well spent. If your asking me to defeat an override which in all probability will result in increased class size for special needs students — students who have the more limited resources and therefore are in most need of them, don't ask me to do that, I won't. If you are asking me to defeat an override which will result in the loss of a high school counselor — a person who could be vital in the prevention and early detection of alcohol, drug and emotional problems, don't ask me to do that, I won't.

I'm going to add my voice to those who have come before me. If you're unsure about the issues that face the town, get more information and facts. The selectmen, school committee, school personnel and employees of any town office will be happy to address your questions and concerns. In the end you may not agree with their final analysis, but you will walk about with more than innuendo.

It's important to make informed and responsible decisions because on March 27 your vote will have a real impact on real individuals, real children and real families.

Kazazian family says 'thank you'

TO THE EDITOR:

This letter is written to give thanks to all those who provided help and support.

Rena Kazazian was stricken on the 18th of January, and the response by the Winchester Fire Department was outstanding; they must be sited, as during these times of financial crisis the basic service and dedication of this department remains at the highest level.

The outpouring of help and support provided to our family during Rena's illness was of great help. Upon her death, the help and support did not cease, but increased. This helped all of us to adjust to this great loss, not only to her family, but to her friends and all who knew her.

Rena's death will leave a void as her love and dedication included not only her family, but all those who needed help and understanding.

God bless you all.

The Family of Rena Kazazian

Character was unfairly maligned

TO THE EDITOR:

Despite the fact that we found the recent hype over the Task Force on School Closing and the allegations that were made to be silly, petty, non-productive and self-serving, we do feel a sense of responsibility to comment on the character of Linda Pickering, which we feel has been unfairly and thoughtlessly maligned. As a result of this mindless pettiness, those people who don't know Linda have certainly gotten the wrong impression of her. On the other hand, those of us who do know her realize that the allegations are laughable.

Linda is a thoughtful, helpful, caring and involved person, a person very easily willing to go that "extra mile" for family and friends. But more impressively she willingly exhibits these same traits to everyone she meets. Our family is still somewhat "new to town" having lived here for just under three years. We couldn't be happier with our move having found the residents of Winchester to be friendly and easy to meet. Linda Pickering epitomizes our view of Winchester. Most of us know that uncomfortable feeling of being the new kid on the block and the apprehension associated with that. Linda was a friend from the first day we met her, going out of her way to make us feel welcome and comfortable. She has been that way ever since. Throughout any of the minor problems like those that any family encounters, Linda has been there to offer help.

Linda is certainly no shrinking violet. She is passionate about her beliefs and ideals and willing to express those feelings. That is also what makes her so likeable. You always know where she stands, yet she doesn't take herself too seriously. Linda certainly doesn't need us to come to her defense over such laughable allegations, but those of us who know Linda find it difficult not to support her. After all, she would do the same for us.

Mike and Kathy Martino

Town changed since last override attempt

TO THE EDITOR:

Opponents of the override like to point out that despite defeat of two previous override attempts, the town has managed to survive. But consider three key differences since those votes.

First, state aid has been cut drastically — $774,000 already this year, perhaps a cut of nearly $500,000 in June, and an expected cut of more than $500,000 next year. The $1.39 million override won't even cover these losses.

Second, the town has managed to "get through another year" by spending down its savings this year alone by about $1.6 million — note again, by an amount greater than the $1.39 million override. There's now little left in cash reserves to continue to do this — and once savings are spent, they're gone.

Third, for the first time in a number of years, the number of elementary students was more than the year before. Yet, despite this increasing enrollment, without additional revenue an elementary will likely be closed — a move reluctantly endorsed by a majority of the task force which took a thorough examination of the school budget. Is there "fat" in the education budget? We may not all agree on certain expenditures, but already Winchester spends less per pupil than neighboring Woburn, Medford, Lexington and Arlington — and spends the least of all eight K-12 towns in the Lincoln-Sudbury consortium. How are we possibly going to maintain quality by spending even less?

It might be nice if Winchester had a greater industrial base to take some of the burden off the residential property tax — or would it be nice? Isn't the residential character of the town one of its attractions? Aren't we willing — especially in view of the state shirking its responsibility — to shoulder the responsibility for ourselves and pay for the kind of town we want?

Ralph Buglass

Citizen of year nominees sought

TO THE EDITOR:

The Outstanding Citizen of the Year Award is given each year by the Winchester Chamber of Commerce to someone who has made a significant contribution to the improvement of the business community or to the overall quality of life in Winchester. There are many people who are most deserving of this type of recognition. We need you to take a moment to write a letter of nomination and submit their name to the Board of Directors of the Chamber.

If you have worked with an individual whom you think should be recognized for their contribution to the town, please take the time now to submit their name. The recipient's name will be announced at the Annual Meeting in April.

All citizens 'have a voice'

TO THE EDITOR:

I have lived in Winchester for 36 years, graduated from the High School 28 years ago, and am now the parent of a fifth grader at Muraco School. After having watched, listened, and read about the proposed V-O School closing, transfer of sixth grade to McCall Jr. High, and the resulting pro and anti-override discussions, I am writing to state my wholehearted support for the efforts of the V-O Coalition to keep all five elementary schools open and to educate the whole town on the benefits of doing so.

Recent Letters-to-the-Editor from concerned citizens have delineated concrete budget alternatives that would be preferable to closing a school (see Daily Times editions of 1/22/90 and 2/22/90 signed by Helen Phillou). Also, the minority report from four members of the Task Force on School Closing came up with school budget cuts totalling enough money to keep V-O open.

These suggestions have merit and deserve serious consideration, but I am concerned that the "education establishment" will brush them

RECYCLING NEWS

Ask Michael Recycle

What is the Recycling Initiative?

What is the purpose and content of the Recycling Initiative presently under consideration by the Commonwealth's House of Representatives?

The primary purpose of the Recycling Intiative, which is supported by numerous environmental organizations and legislators in Massachusetts, is to develop markets for recyclable materials. Successful recycling programs require systems for collecting recyclable materials, markets for selling recyclable materials, and products manufactured from recycled materials. Presently, markets for selling materials are underdeveloped and thus can not accomodate the quantity of recyclable materials available from recycling collection systems operated by numerous cities and towns throughout the state.

The Recycling Initiative addresses this issue by requiring that as of 1996, product packaging used in Massachusetts must be environmentally acceptable in that the packaging in made from materials that are reusable, recycled, or recyclable. Exempted from the Initiative is packaging for certain products such as medical supplies and medications. For non-exempt packaging, the Initiative defines minimum standards which mandate that packaging must be reusable at least five times, made from 50 percent recycled materials, or made from materials being recycled at a 35 percent rate.

aside without much discussion. Why?

To V-O parents, other parents, and concerned citizens: you have a voice in the voting booth on March 28. Become informed and change the make up of the School Committee by supporting the candidate who offers creative solutions without raising taxes this year.

Livingston letter receives response

TO THE EDITOR:

This is in response to Mary Livingston's letter of March 1.

Dear Ms. Livingston:

If you had followed the task force as closely as you say then you should have known that in the beginning of our discussions in December a vote was taken by us not to take a stand, or even discuss, the override issue. Your letter infers to me that because ones spouse takes a stand on an issue the other spouse must profess the same belief.

My husband held public office in this town for six years. Does this make me a poor choice to sit with the task force? In the 18 years we have been married we have disagreed on many issues, but our views on our children's education have always remained united. We want our three children to receive the best education possible in this town.

I cannot believe you think that because a person holds a PhD, is in an executive position or does not take a public position on the town's financial situation that this could make them a better choice for task force membership. I sat on that board from its inception and I believe that we all tried to do the best job possible for the sake of our children. I agree with the School Committee's choice.

Duffy offers his assistance

The following letter has been submitted to the Star for publication.

Dear Mr. Chairman:

I have read in the "Daily Times Chronicle" that Selectman William O'Leary was somewhat upset that he was unable to attend a luncheon and briefing session in Washington D.C. I believe his comment was "We can't afford to go to Washington to get answers."

We realize that the Town is "very tight" with money right now, like the labor Unions, but I do plan to be in Washington D.C. on the 13th of March, on Union business, and I will be happy to bring your questions and get your answers for you. Since I have a tentative meeting with Senator Kerry and others of the Massachusetts delegation and I am sure that he (Senator Kerry) as well as most all our elected officials in Washington D.C. will be very willing to help in what ever way possible to get your answers.

Sir, we in the Unions agree with you and your colleagues. It is important to get answers to your questions. But we believe that when information is needed and questions need answers "we can not afford not to go to Washington D.C. or Boston!

Please let me know if I or my Union can be of assistance to you in your "dilemma" in getting your answers.

Kenneth P. Duffy
President

EDITOR'S NOTE: According to Ken Duffy, Sen. Kerry will be in the Mass. area keeping up with his constituency during a Senate break.

Dowd makes observations

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to make some personal observations regarding the School Committee meeting held Feb. 27, 1990.

The Task Force has completed its onerous duty. They worked long, hard hours during meetings and doing research in their various subcommittees. Dr. Mitsakos recognized the Chair of the Task Force and thanked her for serving. Mr. Jervey acknowledged that there were eleven other members who were as dedicated and hard working as Dr. Richter. All 12 members deserve our thanks, and I publicly thank each and every one of them.

After Dr. Claudia Richter presented the Task Force Report, a Minority Opinion was presented by Dr. David Moriarty. Upon completion of Dr. Moriarty's presentation, Dr. Mitsakos immediately stated there were inaccuracies in the report. I feel Dr. Mitsakos committed a grave disservice by making such a comment without first reviewing both reports. His remark could be perceived as being biased against the Minority Opinion.

Dr. Mitsakos said over the past several months the conduct of Winchester residents has been embarrassing. He said some members of the Task Force had received threatening phone calls, and he spoke to the Chief of Police regarding this. However, Dr. Mitsakos did not allude to the member of the Task Force who was maligned on the front page of another local newspaper. Those people responsible for the article should not only be embarrassed but have every reason to be ashamed of their conduct.

Mr. O'Connell brought the meeting back to a more positive atmosphere. Over the last few months when things have become strained or threatened to get out of hand, Mr. O'Connell has shown his leadership ability. He is to be commended for his calm, unbiased manner. He has given equal opportunity to all to speak and has extended the time for public discussion more than once to allow more people to be heard. He deserves our thanks for his objectivity and his use of humor to defuse potentially heated situations.

Later while Bill Galatis was speaking about keeping all five schools open, Dr. Mitsakos interrupted to say, "They get behind the override". I do not feel he should have voiced his opinion because he is not a Winchester resident. If he lived here, paid taxes to our town and paid $50 to haul his trash to the Transfer Station, rather than have it picked up, as it is in his town, his statement would have more credence. It came across as a veiled threat: If you want five schools open, vote for the override. Threats turn people off and will do more to hurt his cause than help it.

My last observation is that Bill Jervey stated in his report that if a school closes one will have to reopen in three to five years. Dr. Mitsakos was recently given a five year contract. He could conceivably close a school in 1990 and reopen one in 1993 to 1995. Where is the credibility in this action? How much will it cost to reopen a school? Which school will be reopened? Will we need to pass another override to cover the expense of reopening a school? How will Winchester residents benefit from closing a school for approximately three years? These are questions which need to be addressed publicly.

It is my hope Dr. Mitsakos and the School Committee will read the Task Force Report and the Minority Opinion with equal diligence and care and do everything possible to keep all five schools open. This action will go a long way in repairing the damage which has been done to their credibility and in helping to heal the community.

Cambridgeport bank celebrates 10th anniversary

TO THE EDITOR

Has it been 10 years?

Yes, one decade has passed since Cambridgeport Bank opened its branch office in Winchester.

Outwardly, not much has changed. The building at 522 Main Street looks much the way it did when it opened in 1980. However, the services the community bank provides have certainly changed. ATM machines, direct deposit, IRAs, home mortgages, loan services, and CDs. Yes, the community bank has come a long way since the revolutionary NOW accounts. Today's depositors depend on these modern offerings, and today's community bankers have a responsibility to provide quality services to the people.

That's why, as we celebrate 10 years in Winchester, we invite you to join us on March 8 at our branch office for a tribute to your community and the way we've grown together over the last decade.

It will be an opportunity to reminisce together and renew our commitment to the community projects Cambridgeport Bank has helped support over the years. We are proud of our participation in the annual Winchester Junior Tennis Tournament, and the Winchester Scholarship Foundation Telethon. Our employees, many of whom are long-time residents of Winchester, have also risen to the challenge of community sevice by their involvement with such worthy causes as the Historical Society, The League of Women Voters and Friends of the Hospital.

During these past 10 years we hope we have become an integral part of life in Winchester. We're calling our upcoming anniversary a celebration, but it's reeally more of a tribute, our way of saying thank you to the people of Winchester for welcoming us into your community and being a part of 10 of the best years in Cambridgeport history.

Borggaard 'sets record straight'

TO THE EDITOR:

In my letter regarding the so-called Sharon-Conner House on Main Street, my main concern was with the peculiar hockey-stick bend in the northern wall of the house, rather than with the house itself, however interesting that structure may be.

I noted that the bend in the wall corresponded exactly to the line of a fragment of old stone wall that continues on up the hill at an oblique angle to Main Street for a distance of 100 feet or more toward Highland Aveneue. (This may be all that is left today of a wall that might have been much longer many years ago.)

A study of any modern map of Winchester will show that almost all of the modern streets in that area of Winchester run more or less parallel to the line of that wall. Mt. Pleasant Street is a good example on the north, and Prospect, Herrick, Lawson, Chestnut and Madison on the south. Hillside and Summit avenues are terminated by the presence of that wall, or line of the wall, and at least 12 of the houselots in the Black Horse Tavern area have one of their ends or sides cut off at an angle to conform to the presence of that wall.

I said that, in my opinion, the line of the wall marked the northern boundary of the King's Grant to the Rev. Zachariah Symmes who was then the Congregational minister of Charlestown.

I note, from another map in my possession (1854) that this line seems also to have the line of delinination between what was then called the Mystic Division and the Central Division. (I believe that much, if not most, of the Mystic Division was, at one time or another, the property of the Symmes family.)

In a sort of post-script to my letter, I suggested that the Winchester Historical Society might like to comment on my letter. To my surprise and pleasure, my suggestion was taken up by a representative of the Society, Ms. Ellen Knight. She gave a very good picture of the recorded history of the house itself, and it surroundings, but to my chagrin, she brushed off my hypothesis about the wall and its relation to the Symmes Grant as of little concern and, as far as she was concerned at any rate, impossible to determine anyway, at this late date.

To quote from her column, "the reason for the Tavern lot line lying obliquely to the street is not known but it may be seen from the 1875 map that several property lines in Winchester were oblique or bent, and many lots variously shaped," etc., and more about natural features, trees, streams, breaking up of large properties, etc.

What she says here is all true, but in this case it does not go far enough. The fact is that there must have been a pre-existing line which had to be complied with when all these streets, roads and property lot lines, were first laid out. Obviously the wall was not built to conform with the shapes of the lots — it was the other way around — the lots were laid out to conform to the wall.

This was the way I reasoned when I wrote the letter. Being challenged, I reacted by contacting the Massachusetts Archive Center for the earliest possible map showing the Symmes Grant. They sent me a tiny map of the Winchester area dated 1638 which clearly shows the lines of the original grant to "M. SIMMES" with the bent line at its northery boundary clearly deliniated. Mr. Edward Converse's land is also shown but it seems to lie all across the Aberjona River between the river and Wedge Pond (the whole center of town as it exists today).

The abuttor to "Mr. Simmes" on the eastern side of the river is given, but, on my small map, is illegible, but certainly is not Mr. Ed Converse. If Converse ever sold the land to the builder of the Tavern he must have bought the land at some later date.

Clarence Borggaard

P.S. I will gladly lend my tiny map for reproduction by the Historical Society in the event that they are interested enough to "set the record straight."

Manufacturing class seeks field trip site

TO THE EDITOR:

The manufacturing class at Winchester High School is seeking several local manufacturers (25 mile radius) willing to allow a dozen students to visit for a school-sponsored field trip. The class would like to visit either a high tech or a more conventional manufacturer in March or April.

The duration of the tour is flexible: from one half-hour to two hours. Students need to see "real life" experiences. If you are able to help, please call Ron D'Addario, technology teacher, at Winchester High School, at 721-7020, ext. 137.

'What do I get for my taxes?' asks resident

TO THE EDITOR:

What do I get for my taxes?...this conservative, anti tax, pro Proposition 2½ writer asks. Why should I vote to spend more of my "cash" on town services that I don't use or care about? What's in it for me? ... Does this sound selfish? ... Maybe. It all depends on your "perspective." I cannot answer the question for everyone but I can answer it for myself.

What do I get for my taxes?...

I get to live in a town where "dog bites man" makes the news. Where the police log column is "boring." I get to see my property value increase 300 percent in 8 years while my property taxes rises 40 percent. I get to live in a "good" town. A town where people want to "move to" instead of "get out of." I get a town where one of my neighbors mows part of my front yard just to be neighborly, where the school system actually publishes a philosophy of education ... and follows it. I get to have my son exposed to special needs children and teachers so that he will not grow up with the biases that I had. I get a rescue squad that responded within two minutes the day my son had a seizure and the babysitter didn't know what to do.

I get a "Town Day" with old fashion clam bakes, cake sales,

NEED A SECOND OPINION?

There is probably no more enlightening experience to the orthodontic consumer-patient than the second (or third) opinion. Having diagnostic records taken does not commit the patient to that office. Once the records are paid for, the patient is free to take them to another office for another opinion. Just as no two patients are alike, no two dentists always agree. One might recommend starting at age nine, while another would wait until age twelve. One might propose extractions, while another would use a "functional appliance" to try and avoid extractions. These decisions all may have a bearing on the length, cost and outcome of the treatment.

The best resource to help judge the potential choices is often the family dentist who constantly sees the results of various orthodontists. And don't underestimate the comments of friends and neighbors about whether their child received tender, loving care by a concerned orthodontist and a well managed, courteous staff.

Orthodontics is a one-time, life-time investment. It should be done right the first time because it will most likely never be redone. Thus the wise consumer must investigate all options carefully and have the utmost confidence in the final choice of an orthodontic specialist.

Scots Symphonic band to perform

A very special musical treat is coming to Winchester with the Scots Symphonic Band from the College of Wooster. Co-sponsored by Friends of the Winchester Public Library and the Winchester Community Music School, the band will play a variety of selections, from lively to mellow, at McCall Jr. High School on March 9 at 7:30 p.m.

The Band is comprised of talented young musicians from the College of Wooster, Ohio who tour the country each year in a series of concerts. This colorful and popular group, dressed in the Kilt, provides an evening of delightful entertainment, including pipe band and dances, for the whole family. Tickets are on sale for $5 at the Winchester Library, Bookends and Hendersons.

Ileitis, colitis support group

The National Foundation for Ileitis & Colitis Winchester Group will have a meeting March 22 at 7:30 p.m. at Winchester Hospital, 41 Highland Ave., (Kingsbury Seminar Rm.). Admission is free; for more information call (617)449-0324.

One out of every 100 Americans has either ileitis (also known as Crohn's disease) or ulcerative colitis; 200,000 of them are children or adolescents. These digestive diseases are chronic, incurable and life-threatening. Meetings provide people with new informaiton concerning treatment. Patients and families can share problems and receive emotional support.

Lenten concerts are planned

In observance of Lent, the Masterworks Chorale & Orchestra will present music of Bach and Dvorak in a pair of related concerts centered upon the drama of "Death on a Cross — A Mother's Grief." Performances will take place in Sanders Theatre, Cambridge, on March 11 and April 1, at 4 p.m. Artistic director Allen Lannom will conduct.

Appearing in these concerts will be Winchester residents Terry Seferian, Richard Pharo and Constance Rosenberger.

Tickets to each concert are priced at $19, $14, and $9 (students and seniors $6). Substantial discounts are available for parties of ten or more. Reservations should be made as early as possible by calling (617) 924-8073.

Sanders Theatre is conveniently located at the corner of Kirkland and Quincy Streets, adjacent to the Harvard University Science Center, and is handicapped-accessible. Audience members may park free of charge in the Broadway Garage on Felton Street.

Scot Symphonic band performs benefit concert

Mark your calendars for a special benefit concert sponsored jointly by the Friends of the Winchester Public Library and the Winchester Community Music School. The concert will feature the Scot Symphonic Band of The College of Wooster, Wooster, Ohio and will occur on Friday night, March 9 at 8 p.m. at McCall Junior High School.

Two local Winchester students are members of this band. They are: Katherine Mortensen (former President of the Winchester High School Band; a senior music major at Wooster: pianist and percussionist); and Jason Boone (former Drum Major of the Winchester High School Band, and now a junior at Wooster; saxophonist). Boone also has been selected this year as the Drum Major of the band, and leads it in complete Scottish regalia during the fall marching season.

The members of the band will be housed and fed on the night of the concert in Winchester by local friends of music and supporters of the Library.

A free-will offering of $5 is invited for the benefit of the sponsoring organizations (checks to Winchester Community Music School). Tickets (free-will offerings) for admission to this benefit concert are available at Henderson's Stationary, the Winchester Public Library, BookEnds (at the rotary), Cradock Apothecary, and at Winchester Community Music School (at McCall, during late afternoons). Otherwise, call and leave a message at the Library to reserve tickets.

Genealogy group meets March 13

The Genealogy group of the Winchester Historical Society meets next Tuesday, March 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Mystic Valley Room of the Town Hall. The program this month, "Is the Salt Lake City Family History Library for You?" will be given by Randy Bairnsfather.

Bairnsfather recently returned from a week-long trip to Salt Lake City and will give advice on planning for research there, what hte latest computerized access is, and what to do when you're tired of looking at 50 microfilm rolls.

Ploss exhibits 'Crystalscapes'

"Crystalscapes" by Richard Sanford Ploss will be exhibited at the Winchester Art Association Gallery, 585A Main St., through March 31.

Crystalscapes is a photography exhibit featuring microscopic crystals. These color photographs are made with a polarizing microscope at magnifications up to 600 times, and have been selected for form and composition from thousands of possible exposures. They show the wide spectrum of vivid colors seen only through the use of polarized light.

The gallery is open Tuesday through Saturday from 12 to 4 p.m.

parades and fireworks that will be a part of my son's fond memories of youth as it was mine. I get concerts on the Common in the summer with kids playing "catch me/chase me" while the parents and grandparents listen to jazz, classical and rock and roll followed by an encore of quack ... quack ... honk ... honk from the duck pond.

I get a library where the staff really tries to find that periodical, even to call other local libraries when the stacks are wanting. I get my street plowed (better than the town I came from), my water lines flushed, a town reservoir scrupulously guarded (some say too scrupulously), cross country ski and hiking trails in the Fells. I get town officials whose names don't appear in the same sentence with indictment, I get School Committee members that return my calls even though they don't know who I am. I get a building inspector who makes me and my contractors toe the line, when it comes to doing a "quality job" in construction.

I get a health department that encourages me to recycle my garbage by providing the proper receptacles for paper, leaves, bottles, etc. at the transfer station. Oh yes ... I get to take it there too. I get to live in a "country town" only 10 miles away from a major cultural and educational center. I get Clarence Borggaard, who I mostly disagree with but appreciate for his broader perspective in town politics; and especially for his gardening bulletins (Japanese beetle alert).

Now some will surely say that they don't care about these things. They are unimportant. And perhaps they are right. For each of us has our own value system. What is important and unimportant is an individual judgement. All I can say is to consider why you came to Winchester or why you continue to stay here. Is the quality of life here good? Is the community spirit important? Is it better than the last place you lived? And would you like it to maintain its character ... a "good town?" The choice is yours.

Some will say that they truly cannot afford more taxes. For those that are on fixed income, I could suggest that they apply for an abatement on their taxes. There are provisions (according to selectman Muggia) for granting reductions in assessments on a case by case basis for those special circumstances. No one wants to put people "out on the street."

Winchester truly is "a good town" a good place to live. A good community. We have something special here. Lets not allow it to be torn down stick by stick, teacher by teacher, dollar by dollar.

"There is no free lunch." Proposition 2½ was successful, it did change our name from "Taxachusetts." It did cut the fat out of the budget. But remember that "as fat is waste," "meat is nourishment." Let us not be over zealous with the "knife." Massachusetts now ranks 44nd in state and local taxes (Globe, 2/25/90).

As much as I hate taxes, ... I dislike ignorance more. Our children need the best education system that we can provide in order to have the "tools" to compete in the world marketplace. As much as I disapproved of spending $6 million to "restore" Town Hall ... I disapprove more the cutting of essential services to pay for it. As conservative and anti tax as I am ... I'm voting for the limited override of Proposition 2½.

Robert V. Suslavich

Pronski lashes out at Mitsakos

TO THE EDITOR:

Although I was amazed that the person covering the Feb. 27 meeting of the School Committee for the Star omitted statements of all time from our Superintendent, I feel I must comment on them. In his opening remarks, Dr. Mitsakos said, "I am sorry to be back, and if I could have taken the early plane back to Antigua, I would have." He also said later on, "I am embarrassed to be Superintendent of this community." Well, Mr. Superintendent, some of us are embarassed that you are! Why don't you submit your resignation and allow us to appoint another who is deserving of the honor.

Our School Committee members should take their heads out of the sand and recognize that it is not only the five-year contract we are upset with — Who is receiving it is the main issue. Dr. Mitsakos has mishandled so many issues that it is he who should be driven out of town via the nearest railroad. Some of the biggest issues mishandled in the recent past are, in my judgment:

• Not recommending a canditate for the position of High School Principal from within the system (two excellent candidates applied).

• The process he is using to close the V.O. School. First identifying the school, then constructing a budget around the closing of that school, and last appointing a Task Force. The end result was understandably chaos.

• Using the above to try to force the override of Proposition 2½ down voters throats.

You had the audacity to ask the public why there was such division in our town, and what to do to prevent it from happening again; my suggestion to you Mr. Superintendent, is to resign, and our major problems with the School Department will be resolved. If you lived in our town, Dr. Mistakos, you might have a better understanding of how the residents really feel.

Many of us are not proud of your performance, and I for one am asking for your resignation. If you are truly sincere about the education of the children of Winchester, you will do so. As long as you are Superintendent nothing productive will happen, because we have lost confidence in you as the Chief Executive of the Winchester Public School system.

Mary G. Pronski

Library services at critical point

TO THE EDITOR:

As a longtime resident of Wincester, I am dismayed by the gradual curtailment of library services in our town.

In 1979 the library had the equivalent of 29 full-time staff members. In 1989 that number is 19. During the past two years alone, we have lost the equivalent of 3.5 full-time staff.

The schedule of library hours has now been reduced to 50 hours per week, the minimum number of hours allowed by the State for libraries in towns of our size. Winchester risks loss of accreditation if further cuts are imposed and that, in turn, would curtail our access to other libraries in adjoining towns. More importantly, with any further reduction in funding we shall lose our share of State aid for public libraries.

This is a critical point in our library's history. Further deterioration can seriously affect the cultural life of the town.

The solution? Vote for the override of Proposition 2½.

Richard M. Alt

Simson's support override question

TO THE EDITOR:

The override amount of $1.39 million which the Selectmen have placed on the ballot represents only a portion of the $2.2 million budgetary shortfall for the Town of Winchester. It replaces only the amount lost due to state aid cuts, leaving the town to face additional reductions of at least $800,000. We feel that this override and the accompanying required cuts represent sound fiscal management of our limited resources in these financially difficult times without dismantling the services, education and lifestyle which we have come to expect and which ensure Winchester's future.

By passing the override we will allow Winchester to live within, not below, its means. In recent years we have dug more deeply to reprioritize and/or conserve monies, but, at some point, the money just isn't there. We believe that we are at that point. Voting for the override is not an endorsement of profligate spending. It is a responsible action taken to cover reasonable increases in spending during difficult financial times. We strongly support the override.

Brooks comments on cocaine ad

TO THE EDITOR:

Congratulations for printing the public service message "Cocaine Lies" — copy furnished by the Partnership for a Drug Free America. This is the type of no-nonsense information that should be publicized for everybody's good. There wouldn't have been a need for a newspaper to print a message such as this 30 or 40 years ago stating the effects of drugs on the mind; obviously, there is a need today.

There have been numerous letters to the editor of the "Winchester Star" regarding our town budget, the school appropriation and what course of action should be taken. Question: How prevalent has the use of drugs and alcohol been in our school system? Is this having any effect on the grade of the students thus making it more difficult for our present teachers to do their job? This is not a subject for the town budget, it is a matter of parental responsibility.

It has been stated in the "Winchester Star" as well as the "Boston Globe" that the Japanese are being more aggressive in their educational system and teaching skills. Motivation is still one of the primary essentials of learning. You can push all you want pumping gas and money into a car's engine, but until you get it out of neutral and into gear it won't take you anywhere.

HEALTH

Accreditation is renewed for hospital lab

Winchester Hospital has been granted renewal of accreditation by the American Association of Blood Banks (AABB).

Accreditation follows an intensive on-site inspection by specially trained representatives of the Association and establishes that the level of medical, technical and administrative performance within the facility meets or exceeds the rigorous standards set by the AABB. By successfully meeting those requirements, Winchester Hospital can join more than 2,200 similar facilities across the United States and abroad that have earned the Accreditation rating and recognition.

Jim Kieran, administrative director of the laboratory, explained, "The AABB's inspection and accreditation procedures are voluntary. It is not legally necessary for a blood bank or transfusion service to be accredited, but like many others, our facility has sought accreditation because it represents a level of professional and medical expertise that meets and exceeds government regulations. The primary goal of the program is to assist facilities like ours to achieve excellence, and thus provide higher quality blood, blood components and other services to patients."

The Standards for Blood Banks and Transfusion Services are written by a distinguished panel of experts in the field, composing the AABB Committee on Standards. The AABB National Committee on Inspection and Accreditation assures compliance before granting accreditation.

Janet Miller

Miller named VP of nursing

Janet Miller recently became Winchester Hospital's newest vice president of Nursing. Her management and executive functions will entail overseeing the human and financial resources of the nursing organization, taking responsibility for the quality of patient care, and helping to meet the educational and professional needs of the nursing organization.

Miller worked at Lawrence General Hospital in Lawrence for 10 years prior to coming to Winchester Hospital. For the last one and a half years at Lawrence General she served as vice president of Nursing Services.

According to Miller, her first few weeks have been busy meeting people and becoming acquainted with the organization.

One of Miller's first impressions was the realization that she was dealing with a high quality hospital.

"The nursing organization clearly has professional clinical expertise, significant goals, and provides excellent care for the patients," said miller. "The morale is high. I have a sense of people feeling they are working for a winning organization."

Winchester Hospital Junior Volunteers Karen Munini and Liz Eliot, of Winchester, receive assignments from Nancy McKersie, Junior Volunteer Coordinator.

She is an active member of the American Organization of Nurse Executives (AONE), Massachusetts Organization of Nurse Executives (MONE), Sigma Theta Tau (the nursing honor society), and the Northeast Council of Nurse executives (regional branch of the MONE).

Miller graduated from St. Barnabas Hospital School of Nursing in Minneapolis in 1963. She received her Bachelor of Science in Nursing in 1981 and her Masters in Nursing Administration in 1987, both from Salem State College.

Although Miller's job is especially busy, she finds time to enjoy leisure-time activities. She and her husband, Denny, reside in Boxford. They run an average of 15 miles a week. To slow down her pace, Miller relishes taking a relaxing walk. In addition, she has a strong interest in photography and reading contemporary literature.

Miller has two children, Susan, who is a wild life biologist, and Michael, who is attending college. She enjoys spending time with her "loveable" pets: a Golden retriever; two cats; and a new Himalayan kitten she received for Christmas.

Digestive system is topic of talk

Do you ever have an upset stomach for more than three days? Do you experience constant stomach pain or nausea? Does food ever stick in your throat when you are eating?

If you would like to know the answer to these questions and many others concerning your digestive system join Dr. Albert Muggia on March 16 at 10:30 a.m. in the Jenks Senior Center in Winchester.

Dr. Muggia will present the prevention, treatment and care for changes in the digestive system. You will learn when you should contact your physician as well as what signs and symptoms should concern you.

For more information contact Susan Powers, RN, health educator at Winchester Hospital at 756-2227.

Candlelighters meet March 28

The North Shore Candlelighters, a support group for parents of children with cancer, will meet Wednesday, March 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the Social Service Department Conference Room at Winchester Hospital.

The meeting serves as an informal forum where parents can feel comfortable sharing their feelings, experiences and exchange information on family life with a child with cancer.

Pre-registration is requested. To register or for more information call Jeanne Dube, Social Services, at 756-2633.

CPR class at hospital

Community members interested in learning CPR are invited to attend one of several classes offered by Winchester Hospital's Education Department.

A full CPR course will be offered March 20 and 27 from 6 to 10 p.m. at Billerica Regional Medical Center and March 26 and 28 from 6 to 10 p.m. at Winchester Hospital. The fee is $40.

Upon successful completion of the program, participants will receive a one-year certificate from the American Heart Association.

Included in the course will be a film, slide presentation, demonstration of cardiopulmonary resuscitation and foreign body airway obstruction management, and mannequin practice.

CPR — A, one-man adult CPR and chokesaving, will be offered March 20 and 22 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Winchester Hospital. The course fee is $35.

For more information and registration call 756-2227.

Casemanagement at home program is introduced

Last week, in conjunction with Massachusetts Visiting Nurse Association Week, visiting Nurse and Health Care, Inc. (a partnership of Winchester Hospital and Visiting Nurse, Inc.) announced the beginning of a new program to provide help to families struggling with understanding what services are available to loved ones requiring home health care.

The "Casemanagement at Home" program offers a home assessment by a team of experienced staff knowledgeable in community resources. The nurse and medical social worker will meet with the patient and family members and then consult with the physician. A plan will be developed to put appropriate services in place that will foster independence at home. Coordination and follow up will also be provided.

Visiting Nurse and Health Care provides nurses, therapists, home health aides, social workers, homemakers and private duty staff through its affiliates. For further information about these services or "Casemanagement at Home" anyone can call Visiting Nurse and Health Care, Inc. at 729-7600 or come into the office at 10 Converse Place, Winchester Center.

OBITUARIES

Shirley Peck

Shirley "Lee" Peck, 77, husband of Evelyn (Osborne) Peck, died recently at Brockton Hosptial following a long illness. Born in Avon, he lived in Abington for 38 years.

Mr. Peck was a most extraordinary man; a well-read historian, known best by family and friends for his intellect and wit.

His pleasures, interests and joys were known to all who knew and loved him. He is best remembered for the beauty he found in nature. A self-taught meteorologist, he reported Abington weather conditions for many years to meteorologist Bob Copeland. He enthusiastically entertained children and grandchildren on nature walks on his private property and surrounding woodlands.

Mr. Peck's private property contains a bounty of birdfeeders to which hundreds of birds have flocked over the years; he provided all with constant commentary and teaching on his beloved treasure of birds and animals.

Most importantly, his greatest joy lay in the achievements of his wife, children and many grandchildren. He will be greatly missed by his loving family and friends.

In addition to his wife, Evelyn, he leaves three daughters, Sheila Wright of Winchester, Karen Marshall of Whitman and Mary Ann Wright of Reading; three sons, Douglas J. Peck of North Andover, Gerald F. Peck of Hudson and Gordon T. Peck of Abington, and 14 grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated at Saint Bridget's Church in Abington. Burial was at Saint Patricks's Cemetery, Rockland.

Donations may be made to Old Colony Hospice, 489 Page Street, Stoughton, MA 02072.

Philippa Young

Mrs. Bruce W. Young (Philippa Kelley Young) died Feb. 23, at the Richmond Stewert Circle Hospital, Richmond, VA.

Phillipa Kelley Young was the daughter of Frank B. Kelley, Sr. and Leola Coombs Kelley of Bath and Bangor Maine, respectively. She was brought up in Winchester and Boothbay Harbor, Maine. She married Bruce Wesco Young of Belmont, and was active in several organizations in Winchester, incuding the Winton Club and the Daughters of the American Revolution. She attended and was graduated from Colby Junior College. She was the mother of three sons: Bruce W. Young, Philip B. Young and Richard Wesco Young, and the grandmother of nine grandchildren.

A memorial service was held at the Manakin Episcopal Church, near Richmond, on Feb. 28. Mrs. Young made her home in Richmond at the time of her death. A memorial service will also be scheduled in early July, 1990, and if possible, the service will be held at the All Saints by the Sea Church in Boothbay Harbor, Maine, provided details can be arranged.

It was Phillipa Young's wish that donations be made in her and her husband's name, Bruce Wesco Young, to either the American Cancer Society or their other active charity — The Ronald McDonald House at 835 7th Street, South, St. Petersburg, FL. 33701.

Gloria Sheffe

Gloria E. Sheffe of Stoneham died March 3 at New England Memorial Hospital. She was 81.

Mrs. Sheffe was born in Brooklyn, N.Y. She was a volunteer for the American Red Cross and was employeed by the Amraham and Strauss Department store in New York in sales.

She leaves a daughter, Ruth D. Sheffe of Stoneham; four grandchildren, Pamela J. Ivany of Reading, Paul D. Morgan of Lyons, N.Y., Holly E. Nahabedian of Winthrop and Evan L. Morgan of Killingly, Conn.; seven great-grandchildren and one great, great-grandchild.

A funeral was held from the Lane Funeral Home March 5. Services were concluded with burial at Mount Hope Cemetery in Hasting-On-Hudson, N.Y.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, Mass. Division Inc., 247 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Mass. 02113.

Elizabeth Harding

Elizabeth M. Harding of Ridge Street died March 3 at Winchester Hospital. She was 89.

Born May 1, 1900 in Arlington, Mrs. Harding was a resident of Winchester for 60 years. She was a member of the First Congregational Church of Winchester and a member of the Ladies Auxilliary of the American Legion in Melrose.

Mrs. Harding was employed as a clerk for Hood Rubber-Revere Sugar.

She leaves a brother, Charles E. Irwin of Winchester; a sister, Marion Cook of Whitingham; and several neices and nephews.

A funeral was held March 6 at the First Congregational Church, followed by burial at Mount Pleasant Cemetery in Arlington. Arrangements were handled by the Lane Funeral Home.

Donations in her memory may be made to the charity of choice.

Amy Bugbee

Amy (Budgell) Bugbee of Winchester died at the Aberjona Nursing Home March 1 after a long illness. She was 90.

Mrs. Bugbee was born in Danvers and was a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music. She resided in Winchester for more than 58 years.

She was the wife of Harold Bugbee. She also leaves a son, Holbrook Bugbee of Westport, Conn.; a daughter, Barbara Foley of Coronado, Calif.; a sister, Beatrice Budgell of Danvers; five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

A funeral service was held at Ripley Chapel of the First Congregational Church of Winchester March 5, Rev. Luther P. Durgin officiating. Burial took place in Wildwood Cemetery.

Arrangements were handled by the Robert J. Costello Funeral Home, Winchester.

Donations in her memory may be made to the American Red Cross, 786 Main St., Melrose, Mass. 02176.

Woodford Wilcox

Woodford L. "Dick" Wilcox of Calumet Road died March 2 at home. He was 87.

Mr. Wilcox was born in 1902 on a farm in Maine. He attended Coburn Classical Institute and Boston University Business College and Boston University Law School. He was a member of Chi Sigma Chi and Delta Theta Phi law fraternities. Mr. Wilcox also worked as a trust officer with Atlantic National Bank and Union Trust in Providence and later was with Nutter, McClennen and Fish as an investment manager for 30 years.

Mr. Wilcox was affiliated with Providence Financial Analysts and Boston Financial Analysts. He was also with the Coast Guard Auxiliary patrolling Boston Harbor during World War II.

Mr. Wilcox had been a resident of Winchester for 60 years and had been actively involved with the Elm Hill Shakespearean Club and in amateur theatricals with the Belmont, Arlington and Winchester players.

He served as an honorary mayor of Winchester at the centennial rededication celebration of Town Hall.

Mr. Wilcox is survived by his wife Lesley C. Brown Wilcox; a son, Jackson of Clear Lake, Iowa; a daughter, Lesley Anderson of New Jersey; five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Memorial donations in his name may be sent to the Winchester Players, 478 Main Street, Winchester, Mass. 01890.

A memorial service will be held at the Winchester Unitarian Church on Main Street on Saturday, March 17 at 4 p.m.

Helen Hardy

Helen (Bucci) Hardy, a native of Winchester, died on March 1 at the age of 69.

Mrs. Hardy was raised in Winchester and attended Winchester schools. She later moved to Tewksbury where she lived at the time of her death.

Mrs. Hardy was the wife of Frank "Ben" Hardy and the mother of Donna Carlow of Westfield, N.J. She was also the sister of Bibe Guarino of Winchester and Mary Rooney of Woburn. Mrs. Hardy leaves four grandchildren.

LETTERS

Letters provide 'window' to citizens' feelings

TO THE EDITOR:

The debate on the override as seen in the letters in the Winchester Star provides an amazing window on people's feelings. It can be depressing, however, to see the number of people who will not even assess the issues, before taking a stance.

Some letters, such as the Feb. 22 piece "This is still a democracy," make no attempt to even address the issues. They simply say enough is enough. These letters ignore the facts that the town has lost millions in state and federal aid, has spent almost all its savings, has cut services and personnel, and is still falling behind in revenues annually. No one wants to pay more taxes; the question is whether we need taxes to maintain our services. This year is different. The town has lost almost $2 million in state aid.

Some letters are single issue. The Vinson Owen Coalition, as an example, seems to be ignoring the facts that they are a minority, although rather active, and that no neighborhood has ever wanted its local school closed. Their position is not new or unique. However, they oppose both the override and the action plan in the event an override fails. An override provides them with what they seek (keeping the school open), but asks them to help pay for it. Their approach seems somewhat self-serving and would seem to force a degradation system-wide.

A third letter in the March 1 issue of the Star by the WTA did not even attempt to address any of the issues, but instead focused only on slogans. It talked of "unrestricted spending" without once mentioning the huge state funding cuts facing the Town. This borders on outright deception from an association that knows the facts. One comment was that the citizens have a lack of confidence in our elected officials to handle the budget. From literature I have seen, almost without fail, all of our elected officials are behind the override. I found this letter very confusing.

My only wish is that the voters make a well informed decision. It is true that we have had enormous tax relief over the past several years while Town revenues have lagged behind. Even social security benefits have increased faster. But this, of itself, is not a reason to vote for an override and raise taxes. However, if almost all of our town government says we have a serious problem, we owe it to them and ourselves to learn the facts. We should read the letters, the fliers, and the verbal claims and reach our own decisions. That, rather than decision based on a "no-tax" reflex reaction, is really what a democracy is all about.

'Good fiscal practices' will keep schools open

TO THE EDITOR:

It is distressing to realize that Winchester is experiencing a fiscal crisis and some members of the School Committee have chosen to "override" the problem by giving the Superintendent a five-year contract, at a salary that presently exceeds that of the Governor, (for only seven schools with a population of approximately 2800 students). It is difficult to comprehend this at a time when we are overburdened with a recent 15 percent increase in real estate taxes (my property and many others), increasingly higher water rates, a 2500 percent rise in transfer station fees in 366 days (plus a proposal to charge for rubbish bags), and more.

If we taxpayers must tighten our belts to accommodate additional school costs, administrators also can make adjustments in spending without sacrificing the quality of education.

The proposal to close another school is educationally and fiscally unsound and unnecessary. In the recent past a school closing did not reduce spending. It only served to overpopulate one school (Lincoln) and has created increased expenditures for additional aides, tutors, services and staff.

In-service professional development workshops for teachers, requiring substantial fees for consultants and lecturers, as well as summer curriculum writing workshops, could be eliminated without adverse effect on students.

The special needs program is experiencing an explosion of staff at all levels. Effective tutorial and remedial programs should not perpetuate their existence and growth. We have a pre-school screening program, pre-school intervention education, a transition class and an extensive tutorial and remedial program throughout the grades. Surely the number of learning disabled children, requiring special services, should not be 17 - 20 percent of the school population.

Winchester has already had one successful experience with one principal directing two schools, not ideal but workable. Similar cost-cutting efforts may be worthy of consideration.

Additional funding will not keep a school open for more than one year. Good fiscal practices will! Money will not improve instruction or teacher interaction with children, which are presently laboring under the layers of bureaucracy of tutors, aides, specialists and other interferences separating student and teacher.

The time has come to review all of the above and more to achieve savings combined with good education. The threat that cuts will result in lower quality education is not based on good management.

The Superintendent appears unwilling or unable to apply sound fiscal judgement to the financial crisis facing the school department (and therefore the Town). All the reasons for the enactment of Proposition 2½ are now stronger than ever for its preservation.

ABOUT TOWN

Moms needed for program

The Parent Aide Program of the Council of Social Concern needs you and your "mothering" skills.

"There are many women in this area, currently on our waiting list, who need to learn the nurturing skills that so many women have but take for granted," said Jane Canty, Parent Aide Coordinator. "The stressed parents in this program need a role model of what good mothering is all about."

The program matches stressed parents with volunteers for one-on-one friendship that is designed to overcome loneliness and isolation, offer a connection to community resources, and reduce the possibility of child abuse and neglect.

The Council's Parent Aide Program this year is funded by the Jenks Fund of the First Congregational Church of Winchester.

"All of the parents referred to the program need at least one person in their lives who will care about them and help them to care positively about themselves," Canty noted. "For most of these women, the Parent Aide is that one — and only — person."

She said that some parents need help with specific parenting and personal survival skills, while other moms need encouragement to take control over their lives during a particularly stressful time.

The Parent Aide volunteer meets with the parent once a week, for about two hours, at a mutually convenient time and place. Volunteers should have friendship and listening skills, acceptance of people with different lifestyles, and a willingness to commit to the program for at least one year.

An orientation to the program for those who would like to explore this volunteer option will be held on Thursday, March 15, from 7-9 p.m. at Social Concern offices, 19 Campbell St. in Woburn.

"The orientation and training program is a free, 'no- obligation' way to learn more about how Parent Aides are helping mothers to rebuild their strength and hope," Canty said. To reserve a place at the orientation or for more information, call Jane Canty at (617) 935-6495.

'Reaction' cites recycling ideas

March is recycle month in Winchester. The enviromental group at Winchester High School called "Reaction" wants you to know that you can make a difference — and it's not even that difficult. Here are a couple of easy things that you can do to help out and save our planet.

• By simply writing to Mail Preference Service, D.M.A., 6 East 43rd St., New York, N.Y. 10017, your name will not be sent to most large mailing list companies, thereby cutting down the amount of junk mail you will receive by 75 percent. You individually will be saving about 1.5 trees annually. We need those forests living!

• Bring all of your paper refuse to the Winchester dump, where there is a designated receptacle, to be recycled. Each American consumes about 120 pounds of newspaper each year. If we all recycled our Sunday papers, we could save over 500,000 trees per week! That would be one big forest! The Winchester dump accepts glass and aluminum for recycling, too.

• Ask for paper bags instead of plastic when shopping, or, better yet, bring along your own canvas bag to carry your goods. Plastic is not biodegradable and the paper just adds bulk to our garbage.

Spread the word to your neighbors. Our planet is in dire need and every little thing you can do will help. For more tips on conservation and recycling, call Stacy Smith, 729-8232, Jonathan Racek, 729-2646 or Chris Jervey, 721-1084.

Saez, Thilly take 3rd, 4th in championship

By NOAM di MATTE
Special to the Star

Rob Saez has taken third at 145 lbs. and Will Thilly was fourth at 125 lbs. in the New England Wrestling Championships held in Essex Junction, Vt. Competition was stiff in every match of every weight division.

To qualify, each wrestler had to finish third or higher in his own state tournament. A typical season record for competitors was 35-5. Only five or six of the 247 competitors, however, came undefeated — reflecting the increasing overall strength of New England high school wrestling ability.

Rob Saez was 30-0 as he took on Kevin Hargis of Agawan, a third-place finisher in the Massachusetts Div. 1, who had just defeated the Vermont third-place finisher in a preliminary or "pig tail" round. Rob was in quickly with a single leg lift, swiftly converted for the takedown. A problem arose as Saez received a bad cut on his tongue, filling his mouth with blood.

Returning to the mat, he pushed Hargis away for an intentional escape and went after him for a second takedown, which came on a single leg countered by the whizzer, which in turn was countered by a full lift and dump. Hargis escaped on a stand up and Saez led 4-2.

In the second period, Rob was not aggressive and planted his right foot waiting for Hargis' move. Hargis shot at the movile leg lift, but on the way in, adroitly switched to the right and tied the score with a takedown. On top in the third, Rob gave up the escape and started after the takedown for the win.

With one minute to go, he shot in from a little too far away. Hargis responded and spun, getting the lead and a good two-on-one arm ride that Saez couldn't break in the final 50 seconds. It was that kind of competition; no mistakes would be forgiven. Fortunately, Hargis continued to win in the next round, opening up a position for Saez in the repecharge rounds.

Now, the Rob Saez that we have watched all season woke up. He caught Botelho of Danbury, third in Connecticut, when the latter attempted to trip him in an upper body lock and scored the fall at 3:03 while leading on points.

Against Justin Dimick, the Vermont champion, Rob went scoreless in the first period but scored a three-point near fall with a two-on-one arm tilt early in the second period. Dimick countererd another tilt attempt with a step over reverse near the period's end.

In the third, Dimick countered Saez' single leg lift with a shizzer, but Rob brought him to the mat for the takedown. Dimick escaped to narrow the difference to two points but when he tried a desperate move near the buzzer, Rob countered, got a final takedown and won 7-3.

In his last match, Rob easily outpointed Kirk Brown, fourth in Connecticut, with several single leg takedowns and a tight ride following Brown's frequent set outs.

In the 145 finals, Tom Brown, who was the Conneticut third-place finisher, defeated Mike Spadaccinci, who had won the Connecticut state championship. In this writer's opinion, Saez can beat either of them and probably would have but for his momentary let down against Hargis who eventually finished fifth.

Will Thilly at 125 opened with a quick pin (1:03) of the second place Connecticut wrestler, Jason Figuerio of Valley Regional. In the quarterfinals, Thilly faced tournament favorite Joel Richardson of Exeter, the undefeated New Hampshire champion.

The first period began with Thilly staying low on his single leg shot and getting the take down. Richardson took a reverse to tie the match but Will escaped to lead by one. In the second, Thilly was in again on the single leg and turned Richardson to his back with a scarf hold when Richardson attempted an inside switch, scoring a three-point near fall.

Ahead 8-2 in the third, Thilly suddenly looked slow and tentative, a problem which cost him the state championship last week in Wayland. Richardson jerked him down from an underhook and spun behind for the takedown. Pushing Will away for the escape, he repeated the move and brought the score to 9-6.

Thilly looked dead on his feet when Richardson pushed away again to make it 10-6 and grabbed both of Will's arms to try a duck under and dump which, if it had worked, would have meant a take down and possible back points. It didn't work. Thilly was alert enough to trap Richardson on his back for takedown and nearfall at the buzzer and a 15-6 win.

Thilly's third-period energy loss has occurred three weeks in a row — ahead or behind — and has Will, coaches and fans baffled. Wrestling tournaments do not stop for diagnoses, however, and in the semi-finals Will was doing well against Vermont champion Jay Wheatley of Essex Junction.

He was leading 4-2 in the third when the grim whoozies struck again, and a poorly considered headlock shot gave Wheatley the necessary points for a 4-4 tie. In the three minute overtime, Thilly was pathetic, being taken down twice and even being caught in a cradle for a near-fall. Wheatley went on to lose a 9-5 decision to Paul Davis of Franklin in the finals. Davis finished his season at 44-2, both losses to Thilly.

Will was now in a bad position, having to beat Todd Ash of New Hampshire or settle for sixth place. Ash, who looks 97 percent muscle, had tossed Davis around the previous evening before losing closely on points. Will looked like a laundry pile but pushed Ash away and the first period went scoreless. Will escaped in the second for a one-point lead and shot twice for double legs but was blocked, once for a stalemate.

On top in the third, Thilly gave up the escape under coach's orders. In he went and was flattened but rose to avoid the spinning Ash. In again, he sank the single leg and, pushing his shoulder into the knee, hit a trip for the takedown. Ash moved within a point and tied up looking for an upper body move.

Suddenly Ash, who had not shot a single takedown in 5:45 was awarded a point for stalling and the match was tied. Thilly, already in oxygen debt, now faced his second overtime match in two hours. The first minute standing was scoreless. In the second, Ash snapped in a cradle but Thilly broke the move and caught the rolling Ash with a step over reverse and used the Navy ride to finish the period.

In the third, Thilly continued the shoulder roll and a strong attempt at stepping over. At 0:14, Ash burst out for the escape but Will parried his upper body attack to win, 5-4, but he had been beaten up and knew it.

In the attempt to fight one more bout to finish third, Will just didn't have anything left. He faced Joel Richardson again. The first period was fast but scoreless. In the second, Will was barrel rolled for takedown and nearfall and was forced to play tummy down losing a major decision before finally being able to call it quits for the season.

The pressure on Saez and Thilly has been intense all season. Thirteen weeks of hard training and constant weight loss have been rewarded with an elbow in the snout and an invisible spot under the long dark shadow of the champion. Fortunately, both men are strong enough and good enough to learn from every setback and will go on to win again. The higher the skill and the more shining the prospects, however, the greater the disappointment in the lack of success.

Boys fall for Salem spell

By MARK NADEAU

In a game that conjured up memories of Super Bowl XX, the Winchester High boys basketball team fell under the spell of second-seeded Salem, 88-69, last Friday night in first round play in the EMass Div. 2 North sectional tourney. Earlier last week, the Sachems, charged by the return to the lineup of starters Jim McGeehan and Mike Morrison, eliminated Tewksbury in a preliminary first round game at Winchester High, 65-56.

In their tourney opener against the 8-12 Redmen, the host Sachems were cast into a no-win situation. They were expected to win because of their far superior record. Yet if they lost, they would have seen it in glaring headlines in the next day's papers. Tewksbury had nothing to lose and played very well in the first half, taking a 30-29 lead into the lockerroom at halftime.

But Winchester began to find its groove in the third quarter as they went up by eight points on baskets by McGeehan and Adam Piandes. The Redmen cut it to three (43-40) with 10 seconds left in the quarter before Morrison hit the key hoop of the game, a buzzer-beating three-pointer, to give the Sachems the momentum heading into the final stanza.

Piandes helped balloon the lead to double figures in the early stages of the fourth and Tewksbury never got closer than six the rest of the way. Morrison led all scorers with 18 points, Piandes had 14, McGeehan tallied 13 and Jason Capodanno chipped in seven for the victors.

While Tuesday night's triumph was hardly vintage Winchester basketball, the Sachems were primed to give it their best when they ventured into Salem High's beautiful new sports complex, Veterans Memorial Field House, on Friday night. Last year, the Witches were undefeated until they lost to Bill Curley and Duxbury in the Boston Garden. They were supposedly a bit down this year after losing four starters, but one would never had guessed it after watching the second and third quarters of Friday night's affair.

Winchester stayed with Salem in the first quarter behind the long-range sharp shooting of Mike Morrison, who canned three trifectas to help give the Sachems a 14-12 lead with about two minutes left. But the telltale signs of impending doom began to surface late in the quarter as Winchester, playing extremely alert defense, failed to convert on a pair fastbreak opportunities. The Witches gave themselves a

Squirt A squad heads for state tourney Mar. 16

The Squirt A team is currently playing their best hockey of the season and the timing could not have been better, for on March 16, the team heads for Springfield for the State Tournament.

Over the past week, the team played three very talented opponents. They came out of it with a very respectable 1-1-1 record.

On Feb. 25, the Squirts took on a very good Burlington team. Due to school vacation, Winchester played with only 10 skaters. In fact, because of a last minute no show, Mike Notartomaso (a Mite) was forced into action. Mike proceeded to put on a show, scoring three goals as he led Winchester to a 4-4 tie.

Winchester jumped out to an early 2-0 lead on Mike's first score and a goal by Kevin Shanahan. Danny Plamondon and Scott Brooks picked up the assists. The second period was all Burlington, as they came storming back with four unanswered goals. Down 4-2, this never-say-die group of skaters scored two goals in the final six minutes to gain the tie. Both were scored by Mike Notartomaso to complete his hat trick.

This past Sunday, the team was forced to play two games on the same day due to a previous postponement. In the first game, they played Lexington. This was, without a doubt, the best game of the year. The team came out sky high and never let down for the entire contest. After a fast and furious first period, the game remained scoreless.

The teams continued the fast pace in the second period. The score stayed 0-0 until Lexington finally scored with 1:13 left in the period. Once again, Winchester refused to quit. Just 25 seconds after Lexington's goal, Mason Gillespie rifled a low shot past the Lexington goalie to tie it at 1-1. The goal was assisted by Jeff Perkins.

The winning goal was scored by Winchester's Jamie Cafelle just one minute into the third period. The assists went to Scott Brooks and Kevin Shanahan. For the next 11 minutes, the entire team played great two-way hockey. Special mention should go to the defense corps of Brian Petrucci, Jamie Cafelle, Anthony Russo and Adam Minihane.

Goallender Danny Notartomaso played the game of his life. He made several spectacular, game-saving stops in the final minutes. Winchester even had to kill off a penalty in the final 25 seconds to preserve the 2-1 win.

After the game, the team immediately traveled to the Burlington Ice Palace to play Arlington. Winchester played a strong first period but trailed 1-0. In the second period, the fatigue factor set in and Arlington began to dominate.

Arlington led, 4-0, going into the final period and they wound up winning the game, 5-0. But even though they had to play back-to-back games within an hour, these kids refused to give up.

If the team continues to play the way they have been playing, they could return from Springfield as state champions.

Girls track team fields three all-stars

Three members of the Winchester High girls indoor track team — Shalagh Murdock, Megan O'Neill and Elizabeth Kelly — have been selected as members of the Middlesex League All-Star Team for the 1989-90 season.

Murdock, a senior, was recognized for her fine middle-distance running. In nine dual meets, she won the 600 yd. run three times and picked up two wins in the 1,000, an event she had not run until this past season.

O'Neill, a sophomore, was chosen for her performance in the 1,000, an event she won four times.

Murdock and O'Neill were impressive also in the high jump — each clearing 5'0" and establishing a new school record with that mark.

Kelley, a freshman, was chosen as an All-Star in the 45 yd. dash, though she proved herself capable of handling most of the nine individuals events. In dual meet competition, she placed first eight times — twice in the dash, 300 and 1,000; and once in the 600 and the mile.

The girls team as a whole finished the season with a 5-4 record.

Salem casts spell on Sachems

depth charge with a three-pointer at the buzzer for an 18-15 lead.

Against an offensively potent team like Salem, the Sachems needed a near-perfect performance to stay competitive. Winchester continued to play tough defensively, but they weren't hitting their shots when they were open down the other end. Slowly but surely, the Witches lead began to swell. It was 25-15 before Jim McGeehan hit a jumper for the Sachem's first points of the quarter.

With each trip down the floor, the Salem defense got tougher and tougher. The Witches attacked the ball relentlessly, forcing Winchester to take shots outside their normal range and completely shutting down their inside game. Offensively, Salem began to get their fastbreak going and before long, it was 33-17. After Morrison canned another three-pointer, the Witches scored the final six points of the half for a 39-20 halftime lead.

Despite what was unfolding before their eyes, the Winchester faithful, having seen their team comeback from double-digit deficits several times this year, still had a glimmer of hope in the second half. But Salem wasted little time dispelling those notions.

Led by Pedro Jiminez, Mike Giardi, and the wickedest Witch of them all, Eric Brunson, the Witches went on a 17-3 run in the first three minutes of the third quarter. With the score now 56-23 after being outscored 42-9 in the game's previous 13 minutes, the Sachem's quarterfinal dreams were dashed for good.

Although the outcome was no longer in doubt, Coach Mike Boyages' players refused to give up the fight. Seniors Jim Dever, Matt Pacione, Jim McGeehan and captain Adam Howell got in their last licks of their high school careers, while the younger Sachems gained some invaluable tournament experience.

With Mike Morrison (30 pts.) leading the team next season, and a bumper crop of sophomores moving up a year, Winchester can look forward to more tournament experiences in the not-so-distant future.

SPORTS SHORTS

Neely to sign autographs March 13

Boston Bruins forward, and soon-to-be Winchester resident, Cam Neely will be signing autotographs this Tuesday, Mar. 13, at Sports Etc. in Arlington.

Neely will be at the sports shop from 5-7 p.m. Sports Etc. is located at 1303 Mass. Ave. in Arlington.

Alex McNamee leads league in scoring

Alex McNamee of Winchester is the leading scorer in Eastern League high school basketball, according to statistics published in the Boston Globe. A senior at The Cambridge School in Weston, McNamee's scoring average for 12 games is 28.5 points a game.

The 6'6" center was the league's top scorer during the 1988—89 basketball season with an overall average of 20.9 points. Alex is the son of Donald E. McNamee of Winchester and Karen Whittlesey-First of Dorchester.

Katie Fuller competes in Winter Classic

Katie Fuller, a junior at Winchester High School, recently competed in the Port Washington Winter Classic, a national tennis tournament which was held Feb. 16-21 in Port Washington, New York.

Playing her first year in the girls' 18 division, Fuller lost in the main draw, but advanced to the quarterfinals of the consolation round.

Clarification

In last week's edition of the Star, it was inaccurately stated that "Dennis Clarke became the first student from Harvard University in 41 years to compete in the Golden Gloves finals."

In fact, Clarke was the first Harvard student to compete in the Golden Gloves heavyweight division finals since 1949. State Representative and Winchester resident Paul Casey made it to the finals at the 147-pound division back in 1983.

The Star regrets the omission.

Winter fun

The d'Entremonts of Winchester — from left Emily, Brian, Chad and Liz — attended Frontenac Ski Camp during the 1989 Christmas school vacation which began Frontenac's 28th ski camp season with children from Winchester attending continuously throughout the 28 seasons. The ski camp is located in Plymouth, N.H.

SCHOOL NEWS

Drug, alcohol education week

The McCall Parent's Association is pleased to sponsor The Improbable Players, an innovative substance abuse program on Wednesday, March 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the McCall auditorium. This compelling yet at times humorous program is performed by four recovering substance abusers who succeed in dramatizing aspects of the problem which exists in communities such as our own.

This program was performed for all students at Winchester High School in January and will be performed again for Junior High students on the morning of the 14th at 8:45 a.m. in conjunction with a week long emphasis on substance abuse prevention. Winchester High School students who volunteer as drug and alcohol peer counselors and the McCall faculty will be working with junior high students during the week and will participate in small group discussions following the Improbable Players performance.

A member of the Winchester Police Department will be at McCall to participate in a question and answer period following the evening performance. The McCall Parent's board believes this is an important program for any adult to see and urges all interested community members to attend.

More information needed on the all-night party

By SHALAGH MURDOCK
Special to the Star

"...Yeah, I heard there's going to be a really good rock group."

"No way! That'll be great. Did you hear that they're having some girl from the senior class jump out of a big cake?"

"Oh wow! I think it sounds pretty neat but they have no trust in us. Didn't someone tell you about the sixteen policemen and two breathalizers!"

Have you heard about this all night party after graduation? There have been some vicious rumors flying around and now I don't know what is true and what isn't. Plus I don't even know how many seniors want to go.

Yet this is not an idea that just emerged yesterday, there had been a committee working on it for a while. They have researched other towns who have had similar parties turn out quite successful. It is not a small committee either. There are many people working on it with each person assigned to a different job.

Their reason for having this party" To give the seniors a chance to be all together one last time in a safe drug and alcohol free environment" Sounds nice enough, yet kids are beginning to take offense. Nobody wants to feel locked up or babysat on one of the most exciting nights of their lives. Although that is in no way how the committee organized it, many are perceiving it that way.

Well what are some of the real facts? First of all it won't start until eleven o'clock and will be held at the McCall gym. There will be a disc jockey and lots of food. There will also be a free t-shirt with the design of a student printed on it. (There will be a contest held earlier in the spring.) Plus every hour there will be free prizes given out. The prizes will be things useful at college such as a clock radio, small refrigerator, or a popcorn machine. There will also be cots available for those who get really tired. If they want to go home all they have to do is have their parents come pick them up.

Since this is the first year of this party in Winchester, there is no telling how it will turn out. Hopefully it will be one of those events which everyone says they are not going to now, yet when all the rest of their friends end up there, they will go too. It is a good idea and sounds like it will be a lot of fun, yet I think more people need to be informed especially the seniors.

Baker earns scholarship

Matignon High School announces Carolyn M. Baker as the recipient of its Alumni Scholarship. Baker, presently a student at St. Mary's School, is the daughter of Theodore and Janice Baker of Harrison Street.

The Matignon Alumni Scholarship is presented annually to a student who achieves the highest score on the Matignon entrance exam, has shown prior scholastic achievement and presents excellent teacher recommendations.

Variety making gym classes more enjoyable

By DARRYL NASH
Special to the Star

Many students consider gym class to be a blow off period where you just have to make it look like you are trying. However, with the variety of events available for physical education classes, students are coming to enjoy the 45 minutes of gym provided numerous times throughout the week.

The early fall months ("way back when") mean outdoor sports for the first few weeks of classes. Though classes must contend with often near frigid cold, they "get tough" and engage in activities ranging from soccer to archery. As the winter months come around, the variety becomes larger. Students vie to gain a competitive edge as they team up to face each other in vigorating sports such as handball and volleyball. Individual and pairs sports like badmitton and raquetball require much physical stability. Though students may begin to take the course lightly, their desire for victory comes out as they give it their all.

As spring arrives, so do warm days and a return to the outdoors for another run at soccer, as well as the annual school year-ending softball.

Aside from seasonal activities, students must also take part in a running of the mile to rate themselves among the nation's overall percentages. Most students dread the day that "The Mile" is scheduled for.

In perspective, we can see that some students still can not find the will power and drive to try hard in gym class. But for the vast majority, phys-ed is a chance to take a break from a full day of studying and writing, and instead take to the field house for a period of invigorating, competitive, and downright sweaty sporting events.

Students prepare for upcoming tests

As the second half of the school year gets closer to the closing of school, students have started preparing for their Achievement and SAT testings.

These tests have caused heartache and headache for many years and that tradition will continue once again in the months to come. Deadlines for exams are closing in, and pupils are beginning to plan for their tests.

Teachers have also been offering assistance throughout the year for those students, mainly juniors and seniors, that will be taking the tests. Short drills and excerpts from past exams have given the students a wider perspective of what is to come.

Good luck to all of the students that will be taking part in these tests in the near future. Remember — skip the ones that you don't know!

Darryl Nash is a junior at Winchester High School.

Schools celebrate Colonial Day

"Here Ye! Here Ye! It is Thursday morning, March 1, 1990 in the Town of Winchester, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. I have been duly appointed to be the Town Crier to inform you, second grade children in the town of Winchester, about Colonial Day. For the past two months you have been studying Colonial people and what life was like in colonial times. I hereby invite you to Winchester Town Hall this afternoon to participate in colonial crafts, games, songs and dance and to see and practice what you have been studying. Come, one, come all to Town Hall!"

The Town Crier carried a school bell and was dressed in a woolen greatcoat and colonial britches. The woman and young girls were dressed in flowing skirts and dresses, shawls and bonnets. The men and young boys were dressed in knickers and knee socks. Some were learning their ABC's on home baked gingerbread "horn books." There wasn't a designer jean or computer in sight! It couldn't be 1990, surely it must be 1750.

At lunch time milk was poured from a pitcher into tin or ceramic cups and their lunch consisted of leftover meats and fruits and vegetables from the family's root cellar. They ate their gingerbread hornbooks for dessert. Lunches were in baskets, tin containers or wrapped and knotted in pieces of cloth. Winchester's second graders were stepping back in time.

When all 230 second graders and their teachers and principals arrived at Town Hall, they would all have the opportunity to learn by doing what the colonists once did.

With students from the High School sheet metal class, they made pierced tin candle holders. They also made colonial sweet smelling sachets, stencilled trivets, and colonial trinket boxes (paper jewelrey boxes). They played leapfrog, marbles and other American and Indian games.

They were able to watch artisans working on their crafts such as basket weaving, pottery, and quilting. They saw the spinning of wool to make the yarn, and the weaving of yarn to make the cloth. They saw bookbindings, candlemaking and embroidery. They made creations from clay. There were ale to see how tools were used by the colonists, and as they viewed there tools they may have reflected on life in 1750. Or maybe they turned their time clocks forward, and reflected on life in 1990. After all, they were in another time frame for the day. Will people in 1990 still have to sheer lamb, spin the wool, weave the cloth and sew the garments?

They saw herbs that were back yard weeds that were used for spices, medicine and teas. They sampled colonial foods such as peas porridge, fishcakes, apple pandowdy, applesauce, dried fruits, apple butter, corn bread, cookies and much more. The kneaded the dough to make the bread.

They saw decoy carving and painting of birds that are native to New England. They were able to see and touch an authentic cannon. It is 1990, but Winchester's second graders were stepping back in time!

They listened to storyteller Doug Lipman as he shared colonial stories with them. Throughout the afternoon flutists and musicians playing colonial music could be heard all over Town Hall. As the children finished their day in 1750, they sang colonial songs and danced colonial dances. As the children sang and kept the beat with over two hundred pair of wooden dowels on the floor of Town Hall, many of us wondered "Is it 1750 or is it 1990? If it is 1990, that same colonial spirit remains in our town of Winchester. In our Town Hall, our children will be portraying the spirit of sharing a bountiful harvest of talents and energies that will resemble the colonial days of 1750.

LIBRARY LINES

MacArthur Foundation aids library

Viewers of public television have often heard the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation mentioned as the funding source for many informative and educational programs. Public television producers are not the only beneficiaries of this foundation, however.

Many of the videocassettes in the Winchester Public Library's collection were purchased with the help of the MacArthur Foundation. Important documentaries such as Best Boy and Sam Maloof: Woodworker are included, as well as such popular series as Nova and The Story of English. The next time you visit the library, consider borrowing one of these fine videos. A program guide is available at the library.

On Tuesday, March 13, the Children's Department will be holding an Evening Family Story Time. The Evening Family Story Times are drop-in story times, and are geared to children aged 2 to 6 and their parents. The story times are held in the Children's Room and last approximately 30 minutes. The children are welcome to come in their pajamas. These programs will also be held on March 27 and April 10.

When doing library research, it's frustrating when you find that a magazine article that you need in a hurry is not owned by the library. Since September 5 of last year, the Winchester Public Library has been able to acquire articles from the Boston Public Library through a fax service. If an article you want is not in the Winchester Public Library's collection, you may request that the article be sent to us through the fax machine. It will be received much more quickly than through the customary interlibrary loan. There is a charge of 25 cents per page for this service. The fax service was made possible by a grant from the EnKa Society.

The featured artist in the library art gallery this month is photographer Tom Kochel, who specializes in black-and-white still life and figure studies. A former resident of Washington, D.C., Mr. Kochel has exhibited his work in the Art Directors' Club of Metropolitan Washington Annual Show, the Jones Troyer Fitzpatrick Gallery in Washington, and the Maine Photographic Workshops Annual Show.

For information about any item mentioned in this column, please call the Winchester Public Library at 721-7171.

RELIGION

Shir Tikvah observes Passover

Temple Shir Tikvah is once again planning its annual Seder dinner. As tradition has it, Temple Shir Tikvah celebrates with a Seder on the second night of Passover. This year, Passover begins at sundown on Monday, April 9. Therefore, the Second Seder dinner will be held on Tuesday, April 10, beginning at 5:45 p.m. The Seder will be led by the temple's new rabbi, Rabbi David Kudan. It will be held in Chidley Hall in the First Congregational Church in Winchester.

The Seder is open to people of all faiths, but reservations must be made by March 31. The dinner will be catered and will include traditional Passover Foods. The price for adults is $14 and $9 for children under 10. For more information or reservations, call Karen at 862-2772.

Alzheimer's group meets

St. Eulalia's Alzheimer's Support Group will meet Tuesday March 13 at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held in the "Garage Room" at St. Eulalia's Church, 50 Ridge Street. Families, friends and caregivers are invited.

It will be an open ended meeting to offer support. For further information, call Roberta at 938-6844.

St. Eulalia's hosts cabaret

St. Eulalia's Church proudly announces a parish show entitled 'Remembering the 40's'. This production will feature war songs, broadway musicals, song hits and radio skits from that era and is being directed by Robert Eagle. The show is scheduled for March 16 and March 17 at 8 p.m. and will be held at St. Eulalia's Manion Hall.

Tickets may be obtained by calling 729-9346.

Profits from the show will be donated to the children with AIDS unit at Boston City Hospital.

Purim party is open to all

Temple Shir Tikvah, serving the towns of Arlington, Winchester, and Medford, will hold their annual Purim Party on March 11 from 2 to 4:30 p.m. in the First Congregational Church of Winchester, Church St. Rabbi David Kudan will retell the story of Purim by reading the Megillah. Children should come in costume and be prepared to make a lot of noise! We will sing traditional songs and celebrate in dance. There will be games, crafts such as mask making, face-painting, and clay sculpture and traditional Purim delicacies to eat. Please bring a plate of finger food to share. Everybody is welcome to join us in this gala celebration!

Real Estate & You . . . BEWARE OF H.O.

What is "H.O."? It's your home's equivalent of B.O., and if you're trying to sell, it could cost you a lot of money.

It could be the family room that smells like an all night poker game, or the aroma of unaltered male cat that marks old Felix's territory. The important thing is to remove the root cause rather than just treating the symptoms. No amount of room freshener or vanilla on the light bulbs can mask a serious odor problem, and the sense of smell has a serious effect on the way people react when they enter your home. We've seen homes sit on the market unsold for months, or sell for thousands of dollars less than comparable homes in the neighborhood. If you think you might have a problem, have a frank conversation with your Realtor. He or she can offer some constructive suggestions and perhaps refer you to a professional who can help you ban H.O. from your home!

A Wedding to Remember

Cricket's helps with the flowers

Cricket's originally located in Lexington Center specializes in loose airy arrangements and bouquets featuring flowers from Holland and around the world. Because each bride, each wedding is special, we do not have a "packaged Wedding" instead we meet with each bride at their convenience to plan the wedding of their dreams.

Cricket's Flowers, where grace, hospitality, service and commitment can be found has the staff to turn dreams, and fantasies into reality. Balloons, cards, collectable dolls and other surprises are all available at Cricket's Flowers.

Owner Frank Sarno invites all brides-to-be to come in for a complimentary consultation. Call 861-1030 for an appointment.

Musical Touch helps couples celebrate love

At the Musical Touch, 1377 Mass. Ave., Arlington Heights, there is a beautiful array of gifts for weddings and anniversaries. We're entering the "Decade of the Couple." Everywhere there is a renewed respect for marriage and a joyful attitude about the wedding that celebrates a couple's love.

This same feeling can be found in many of the items at The Musical Touch. Commemorate your wedding date with a personalized music box. Almost any art work, photograph or invitation may be produced in a music box with your choice of tune, finish and lining.

A white porcelain bride and groom with accents of delicate pink roses that plays, "Through the Eyes of Love," is only one of the music boxes with a bridal theme. Another is of a bride and groom trimmed with pearls and plays, "We've only just begun."

Frame your wedding memories in a gold-toned, hinged frame that holds a wedding invitation and a 5"x7" photo which plays, "Everything is Beautiful."

For the attendants there are mirrored jewelry boxes, small hearts, victorian boxes or figurines of hand-decorated quality, and they all play music!

A music box is a personal gift that will not end up decorating someone's closet. If you have any questions or need directions, give them a call at (617) 643-5977 today.

Montilios Bakery: more than 40 years of experience

For over 40 years Montilios Bakery of Quincy has been the forefront in creating beautifully decorated and delicious wedding cakes and confections. Montilios has also had the distinct honor of providing the inaugural cakes to several United States Presidents and theme cakes to other dignitaries such as Pope John Paul II and Pavarotti to name a couple.

Today, Montilios Bakery and Wedding Center can be found close to home...conveniently located in Wellington Cricle Plaza in Medford (just behind Howard Johnson's and next to Lens Crafters).

Using only fresh, all natural quality ingredients, Montilio's will create a wedding cake to be remembered. Each cake is custom baked and decorated by professionally trained European pastry chefs devoted to making your wedding cake ever so special. Choose from a delicious white or gold cake to a rich chocolate or carrot torte, from numerous fillings such as Amaretto, Grand Marnier, chocolate or white mousse, then elegantly decorated with buttercream icing or a rolled fondant and finished with handmade life-like sugar flowers or fresh flowers to compliment the bridal bouquet. The possibilities are endless and however customized, each cake is truly a work of art.

In addition to your wedding cake, Montilios can provide for all your wedding parties, anniversaries, birthday parties, Christenings and other special celebrations with fancy party platters, pastry trays, decorated cookie trays, petit fours and so much more.

To view some of our elegant wedding cakes? Stop by and visit Montilio's Bakery and Wedding Center located at Wellington Circle Plaza in Medford. To taste? Call Connie or Joe Bonanno at 391-1280 for an appointment.

For whatever the occasion, Montilio's wedding cakes and confections are made not only with quality ingredients but also with a little bit of love.

Ingalls Stationer helps with invitations

S. J. Ingalls Stationer Inc., of Lexington and Bedford offers convenient hours, personalized service and selection to prospective brides looking for wedding invitations.

Unlike many conventional printers, Ingalls is open late in the evening which is popular with many career-oriented women.

The Lexington store, located at 1781 Mass. Ave. right in Lexington Center, is open Monday through Friday 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., Saturday 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Sunday noon to 5 p.m. Hours at the Bedford store, 168B Great Road in the Marshalls Plaza are the same with the exception of Friday, when it closes at 5 p.m.

Ingalls always tried to have one of their knowledgeable staff available to answer any of your wedding invitation questions.

Ingalls is the exclusive dealer in this area for Crane's wedding invitations, the finest paper and engraving process available.

Other items, such as napkins, match books brides files and guest books can be purchased at Ingalls.

If you have any questions or need directions to either the Lexington center or Bedford store, call 862-7140 or 275-6831.

Jason's salon takes pride in bridal services

At "Jason's, a full service salon and botique," we take pride in our unique bridal services. In addition to our exclusive salon services, we extend our professionalism to the specific needs of a bridal party.

Our personal bridal consultant begins her service with an initial meeting with the bride to be. After determining the look a bride wishes to achieve, through an analysis of her own individual style, the process of personal gown, hairstyle, and make-up style selection begins. And if the bride also wishes, we can incorporate her attendents and family members to the selection services.

This ongoing procedure is an asset that eases some wedding burdens off the bride and onto the consultant.

A popular pre-wedding senario includes gown selection, nailcare, pedicures, facials, bodywraps, make-up, hairstyling, and color analysis.

Special arrangements can also be made for Sunday and evening weddings. All service prices are negotiable and depend on the number of persons involved and the extent of the services.

Appointments should be made well in advance. Consultations are always free.

Helen's Pastry Shoppe keeps brides happy

Helen's Pastry Shoppe has been keeping brides happy for 51 years. Family owned and operated since 1938, owner Gregory Krain has his family helping to run it. Son and daughter in law, George and Marilyn, and grandchildren, Marianne, Georgina and Gregory, continue to turn out a full line of bakery products. This includes 40 varieties of bread. Also pies, rolls, cookies, pastries and specialty wedding cakes are made to order from recipes created by Gregory Krain 51 years ago. Any size from 10-400 servings is available.

Drop in and ask to see their wedding cake or special occasion cake book. They will help you order cakes, rolls or pastries needed for showers and receptions.

Items such as whipped cream cakes, Bismarks, Irish bread, baked beans and brown bread are available.

Being an old fashioned baker, Helen's makes all products from scratch with the finest ingredients and no preservatives. And everything is made and baked on the premises. Keeping up with the trend towards healthier products they also feature six-grain bread, no-cholesterol and no-sugar products.

P-N-P Calligraphy uses computers for custom service

P-N-P Calligraphy of Lexington provides a welcome service to all wedding and function planners -- lovely invitations and accessory items beautifully written as if by hand, but actually done by a sophisticated computer/plotter system, so that manuscripts in quantities of one to hundreds are possible.

The system will write custom envelopes, uniquely addressing each of your invited guests, and also produce announcements, return envelopes, name tags, and table cards. There are numerous ink colors and several attractive type styles from which to choose. You can select cards and papers from a wide variety of plain or attractively decorated and embossed stock. You can also provide your own stock — even partially pre-printed invitations or forms — to which your text copy can be added.

Other popular items that P-N-P Calligraphy can create for you include custom awards and certificate, special function programs and menus, signs, and decorative poetry and verse. The applications and gift possibilities are indeed endless. They also offer Paper-by-the-Pound, greeting cards for all occasions, and a variety of boxed stationery which can be personalized. Please call or stop in for details on sizes, quantities, prices, and turn-around. There are many samples on hand as well to give you some ideas for your own special designs.

P-N-P Calligraphy is an offshoot of the personalized gift department at Lexington Pack-N-Post, Inc. located at 1644 Mass. Ave. in Lexington Center across from the Lexington Post Office. Their hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday thru Friday, and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday; their phone number is 862-7734.

Flowers at Countryside enjoys helping brides

Flowers at Countryside is an all occasion florist but we especially enjoy helping prospective brides choose their wedding flowers.

We are just as enthusiastic designing flowers for a small, intimate wedding as for a large affair with many attendants.

Garden style, super sophisticated or old fashioned — the reception flowers are planned to co-ordinate with the bridal party's. We have designed beautiful swags to decorate tent poles for outdoor weddings and made gorgeous bubble bowls of tulips, bear grass and heather for table centerpieces.

If a bride wished to consult with us, it is wisest to call and make an appointment. This will allow our staff to have ample time to relax and become acquainted. In this way, we can better personalize the flower arrangements for your special day.

Consultations are at no cost to the bride. Just call 862-1989 and ask for Shirley.

Joy of Video can capture the moment

When you choose to have your wedding and reception preserved on videotape there are several aspects to consider that may not be essential but will increase the quality of your tape.

One decision to be made is whether it is best to have two camera persons persent to capure the event more completely. You will also want to discuss with the videographer the necessity of using a remote microphone or additional lighting.

Through careful planning the experienced videographer can provide adequate coverage of the entire event. However having two camera persons can enhance the coverage by exploring many angles and dimensions. There are several other advantages provided by having two camera coverage of your wedding. Ideally one camera person should be positioned at the front of the church to tape guests being seated, special wedding music and to show the bridal party walking down the aisle. The second camera person stationed at the back of the church is then able to record the couple arriving by limousine as well as special moments shared between the bridal party as they prepare to walk down the aisle. The edited take can show the most important highlights from the processional and other principle functions like the exchange of the rings from two angles and the second camera person can capture the glowing faces of the bride and groom coming up the aisle as they embark on their new life together.

Two camera persons can be an asset at the reception also because having two experienced videographers shooting from different areas will help to insure tha spontaneous excitement is not missed as the reception unfolds. Also one camera can follow the more formal group photo session while the second person reveals many of the aspects the bridal party misses like their guests arriving, signing the guest book and mingling during the cocktail hour while the still photos are taken. The best way to show the couple saying good bye to their guests and then to show them jumping into their car as they leave the reception is with two cameras.

Occasionally, people will express their concern about whether two camera persons will be able to work as discretely as one. This can be achieved because both videographers will strive to work as unobstrusively as possible allowing the zoom lens to do much of the moving to follow the action. Through careful placement even two people can videotape without distraction from the occasion.

Another question some couples have voiced is whether a remote microphone is necessary to produce the best sound quality. The best state of the art video equipment has very powerful microphones that can record in stereo so usually an external microphone is not necessary. Using a remote microphone on the principal speakers and members of the bridal party can sometimes make them feel self-conscious and could interfere with the degree of spontaneity of the event.

One more point that should be addressed is whether additional lighting is required to achieve the best results when videotaping. Most cameras can adequately intensify the natural room light to provide good quality videotaping since most couples are opposed to the use of bright lights at the ceremony and reception. Even candlelight weddings can be effectively captured without increased lighting. However additional lighting is usually allowed when taping early preparation before the wedding at the bride's home.

For further information on this or any other subject pertaining to videography, contact Joyce Bertolami of Joy of Video and secretary of the National Professional Videographers' Association at 617-933-8674.

Unlike most photographers, we own our own laboratory, and therefore are able to carefully control the finishing of every picture that we make. We have kept up with technology and have state of the art photographic equipment to ensure technical excellence.

We employ over 25 full time professional photo-finishers, many of whom have spent their entire career working at Bachrach.

Over the years we have covered thousands of weddings successfully. We are proud of our tradition of excellent photography and service, and welcome the opportunity to serve today's brides in the same tradition that we have kept since 1868.

'Bride 'n Belle Boutique' helps with wedding plans

Service is all important when planning a wedding. After all, it's a once in a lifetime day, a day that should be perfect in every way. Teresa Pepe, well-known designer and wedding consultant, will help you plan that day for your most beautiful look. Her shop, "Bride 'n Belle Boutique" will make sure the bride and entire bridal party will look their loveliest.

Quality, combined with a sense of fashion is Teresa Pepe's focus, and she brings to you the top names in bridal design including: The Diamond Collection, Watters & Watters, Eve of Milady, Demetrios, and Eva Forsythe. European seamstresses and fitters are on the premises to insure proper fit and a custom look.

Spectacular fashions are available for the entire bridal party with a special emphasis on the mother of the bride/groom. Couture fashions to wear with pride and grace throughout that special day and thereafter are featured.

At no extra charge, Teresa will make her staff available to you right up through your special day. It is well worth the trip to ensure the loveliness of your dreams.

Teresa Pepe's "Bride 'n Belle Boutique," 394 Main Street, Medford, is open Monday through Friday, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday by appointment. Phone 391-2669.

Cousins Bakery equipped to handle unusual requests

A castle in a cloud of creamy white icing, complete with a coach to carry away the groom and his princess bride...An Impossible Cake? Not at Cousins Bakery, 882 Massachusetts Ave., Arlington.

Owner Richard Kendall, formerly a pastry chef at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston, will work with the prospective bride to achieve the cake of her dreams, even if it is in the shape of a castle. Recently, he actually did make the cake described above, much to the delight of the bride and groom, who were from Medford.

With 12 years of baking experience, Kendall is well-equipped to handle all kinds of requests, from the unsusual to the traditinnal. He can make both European and traditional tiered cakes with any kind of filling. Kendall even makes a small test cake so that you can taste it before the wedding.

The price for all of this is much less than you would imagine. Currently, the cost per person averages around $1-$1.25 per person. Given those prices, Kendall can make a beautiful and delicious cake to fit any size budget.

Consultations are complimentary. Call the bakery at 641-2530 or stop by to make an appointment.

Fancy Flea Antiques offers variety of rings

A sparkling blue sapphire with accent diamonds, platimun set diamond with baguettes...Do you think that a beautiful and truly unique engagement or wedding ring is out of our price range? Not at Fancy Flea Antiques, 1841 Massachusetts Ave., Lexington Center.

Estate and antique jewelry is not only beautiful but it is also one of the best values available on the jewelry market today. In addition to many diamond engagement rings, there are also ruby, emerald and sapphire rings to choose from.

"I just sold a ring the other day to a couple. It was approximately $500 and it was beautiful. The diamond had sparkle. It wasn't a litle chip in a setting," says owner Marjorie Perlman. The store sells many engagement and wedding rings.

Need something old and blue to wear on that special day? Consider sapphire and diamond earrings. This store has an excellent selection, moderately priced.

Apart from the jewelry, Fancy Flea Antiques also has a large selection of things suitable for wedding gifts. Antique sterling crystal, Limoges, Cobalt blue pieces to name just a few.

Whether you are looking for jewelry or that perfect wedding gift, Fancy Flea Antiques is one stop you should not miss. If you need directions, call 862-9650.

Paradise Flowers specializes in weddings, parties

Paradise Flowers is located at 415 Concord Avenue in Belmont. We've been a floral consultant for eleven years, specializing in weddings and parties. Our consultants are trained to advise each bride on color, style and prices of bouquets ranging from simple to most elaborate. Each bouquet is individually catered to the bride. No two are ever alike. Matching silk or fresh haircombs and wreaths can be specially designed and colored to match bridesmaids and flowergirls. Swatches or pictures of the dresses are essential. They help us determine color and style.

Consultations can be taken during the weekday, Saturday, Sunday and evenings by appointment.

We also offer many optional services, including D.J.'s, limosines, cakes, and invitations. Aisle runners are available in different lengths, colors and styles.

All consultations are free and can be made by calling 617-484-2410.

Signature Stationers offers invitations

Hair Pluss puts together a total image

Hair Pluss, owned and operated by Pat Masulla, opened thier doors nine years ago.

Pat's goal is to help men and women fit hair and skin into there monthly routine, easily and affordably.

Hair Pluss is a full service salon. Hair, facial and waxing rooms, pedicures and manicures and make-up, along with Color Me Beautiful.

Color Me Beautiful uses the seasonal concept to help you identify your best wardrobe and cosmetic colors and put together a total image. An analysis of your skin tone, hair and eyes reveal whether your a summer, winter, autumn or spring. With help from Pat "a qualified consultant from C.M.B., you'll learn your season and you'll be ready to select the right clothing, make-up and accessory colors.

We also do make-up parties at home or in the salon privately. Call for an appointment.

Rose Miller decorates cakes

Rose has been decorating cakes for 4 years. She took cake decorating as a hobby and then decided to do it as a full time job. She went to school at Minute Man Tech and Verners Cake Decorating School. She worked at a few bakeries, but decided she would like to do it out of her home where she can take her time and create different cakes and also give her clients the value of homemade baking. For that reason she also can afford to charge less than bakery prices. If your interested, please give her a call. She has many books for you to choose a cake from. Whether its wedding, anniversary, shower or birthday cakes, call for a free estimate.

484-3454 Rose Miller.

FROM THE ADVERTISERS

• Take care of yourselves. Eat well, get rest, exercise, make time for relaxation and fun. Keep doing these things.

• Romance. Schedule time alone with your partner. It is easy to get lost in the details of planning and forget the reason for doing all this is because you love each other!

• Chill out. Don't be a perfectionist, pick a few details and concentrate on making them great. Don't be afraid to drop what seemed to be a good idea.

• Get help. Invite friends, or hire a wedding consultant to help you. Everything possible should be planned beforehand so you can avoid pressure.

If you follow these tips, you will be able to relax, and won't feel overwhelmed. Hiring a wedding consultant to help with the details, and coordinate the events of your wedding day is another good way to take the burden off and make the process more enjoyable. Above all, have fun!

Kathy MacDougall and Ellen Tierney are the owners of AKASHA, Weddings with a Creative Approach. Their company specializes in providing altenatives to conventional wedding planning services. They can be reached at 617-923-6070.

Look your best on your most important day

By ANNE MARIE FRANCIOSA

Tony Pollino is the owner of a special new salon, Hair at Four Corners, a full-service salon, which features advanced hairstyling techniques for the entire family. With this new concept in hair salon design, Hair at Four Corners offers both barber and hairstyling services in two separate salons located under one roof. Staffed with professional hairstylists and barbers, Hair at Four Corners features a complete range of services.

for over 15 years, and has worked at many fine hairstyling salons in and around the Boston area, considers one of his specialties is creating a hairstyle for the bride and her entire wedding party "groom included. "I've done many wedding parties over the years," says Tony.

In sharing his advice with the bride, Tony states "the number one rule I go by, is that the bride knows her hair, and its care needs better than anyone, including her hairstylist, and as a hairstylist, my job is to assist the bridge in creating the image she desires. I can offer suggestions and give advice, but the end result is pleasing the customer by giving her the look she wants. People only come back to you when they are satisfied with the hairstyle you gave them."

Acording to Tony, your hairstyle is probably one of the most important parts of your wedding ensemble. As a bride, you will want to plan ahead for your hairstyle as part of your wedding ensemble. The last thing you need is to worry about how your hair looks on your wedding day.

"We, at Hair at Four Corners, would like to help you plan for that special day," says Tony, "just as we would like to help you with everyday hairstyles, keeping in mind, low maintenance, high standards of effect, and looking great at a reasonable family value price."

"As for the bride," Tony continues, "our major objective is to get her through her wedding without having to worry about her hair, and looking her best on her most important day."

For a free consultation and headpiece fitting, you may contact Tony and his staff at (617) 933-9895.

Fine Impressions provides everything but the groom

The perfect place to begin planning the wedding of your dreams is at Fine Impressions, 363 Massachusetts Ave., East Lexington (863-8363). Partners for six years, Vicki Bram and Golda Dockser lend their experience, tasteful advice and infinite patience to every bride with whom they work. "We provide everything but the groom," these partners say, because they give their full attention to insuring that each wedding invitation makes the "finest first impression."

"Many future brides have little or no idea as to what kind of wedding invitation they would like," says Vicki. "We take pride in our ability to guide each client toward the right invitation to suit the type of wedding, the budget with which she is working as well as her taste." Fine Impressions has a wide range of wedding albums from which to choose and they offer a discount on every invitation, thermographed as well as engraved.

In addition to the invitation, Fine Impressions can help the bride in selecting the perfect thank you notes, placecards, matches and napkins. Members of the wedding party also find assistance at Fine Impressions with shower and rehearsal dinner parties.

"One of our greatest pleasures", adds Golda, "is working with a bride who has come to us at the recommendation of a friend or a relative with whom we have worked in the past." Both women agree that their best advertising is through their many satisfied clients. The pleasure continues for them when their brides of the past come to Fine Impressions to pick out birth announcements!

Hours for Fine Impressions are the ultimate in flexibility for their clients, they are available by appointment any day or evening and in addition are open every Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Phone them at 863-8363.

Take your time to plan the perfect wedding

As soon as a wedding date is set, or a minimum of 12 months before the wedding, the couple should begin planning to make their wedding day the most wonderful occasion of their new life together. Both the bride and the groom should work together and confer on all the decisions involved. In an attempt to help couples organize their wedding plans, the National Professional Videographers' Association has developed a timetable to guide their path to he altar.

Twelve months before

Buy a wedding planning guide or hire a bridal consultant.

Establish a wedding budget.

Determine whether you would like to have a formal or informal wedding. Decide where the ceremony will be.

Meet with the clergyman to confirm a date for the wedding and discuss any restrictions that would apply to the wedding.

Reserve your date at the reception hall and discuss the proposed sequence of events.

Choose your bride's maids and ushers (one for every 50 guests) and other attendants.

Order gowns, tuxedoes and accessories.

Select photographer, videographer, florist, limosine service, band and or disck jockey.

Make plans for new housing.

Consult travel agent to plan honeymoon. Update passport, arrange for visas, international driver's license and check on inoculations if needed.

Select and register china, stemware and silver pattern.

Begin formulating guest list.

Six months before

Confer with clergy and coordinator at reception to finalize plans for ceremony and reception.

Confirm menu with caterer and complete guest list.

Order wedding rings.

Order invitations and announcement. Address them when they arrive.

Arrange transportation for the wedding party.

Shop for trousseau.

Visit doctor for complete physical and make reservation for blood test.

Finalize plans for honeymoon wth travel agent.

Confirm order with florist. Groom pays for bride's bouquet, orders boutonnieres for men and corsages for mothers.

One month before

Mail invitations.

Buy bride's, groom's and attendants' wedding gifts.

Have final dress and tuxedo fittings.

Confirm plans with videographer. Submit introductory photographs and invitation for wedding video.

Meet with photographer. Have portrait taken.

Pick up wedding rings. Check engravings.

Make sure all legal, medical and religious documents are in order.

Schedule date to get marriage license and have blood test.

Plan rehearsal dinner with parents and members of the bridal party.

Arrange lodging for out-of-town guests.

Bride should have hair styled as she plans to wear it on the day of the wedding

Attend parties in your honor.

Groom should check arrangements for bachelor party.

Help write thank-you notes.

Get pen and guest book for reception.

Two weeks before

Double check honeymoon reservations.

Send announcements to newspapers.

Record each gift and write thank-you notes.

One week before

Bride should make hairdressing appointment.

Arrange to change your name on Social Security card, driver's license, credit cards and bank accounts.

Groom should arrange with best man for transportation from reception.

Explain any special seating arrangements for guests and all usher's responsibilities with head usher.

Put all checks to be distributed the day of the wedding in sealed envelopes and give to best man.

Purchase traveller's checks.

Get your going-away clothes ready so you can change after the reception.

Pack for honeymoon.

Arrange to move belongings to new home.

Remind members of bridal party of the rehearsal dinner. Present gifts to attendants at dinner.

Confer on seating plan for reception.

Have cards made for guests' tables.

Have final consultation with florist, videographer, photographer, limosine service, band and or disk jockey.

Confirm rehearsal plans with clergy and attendants.

Finish addressing your announcements to be mailed on your wedding day.

Careful organized planning and choosing the best professional services will help to make your wedding day go smoothly. Also, if you hire a bridal consultant, they will perform many of the functions suggested in this schedule. For further information on this or any other subject pertaining to videography, contact Joyce Bertolami of Joy of Video and secretary of the National Professional Videographers' Association at 617-933-8674.

'Just Blossoming' gets creative with flowers

Anyone who has received a floral arrangement from "Just Blossoming!" Florist in Arlington Center for a brithday, anniversary or other special occasion is delighted with the creative design unusual flowers and excellent service. So it is no surprise that Just Blossoming! wedding floral arrangements are among the most distinctive in the Boston area.

Store owner Diane Hunter, certified by Teleflora as a personalized wedding consultant feels that creativity, quality and service are a must, especially on the most important day of a bride's life. Each bride is afforded an initial consultation where the staff helps her select wedding flowers based on the color choice and style of the wedding, individual preferences and of course, budgetary concerns. Brides have the opportunity to view innumerable bouquets and arrangements and the designers then create one-of-a-kind arrangements and bouquets that are uniquely theirs. When the big-day arrives, the bride's only thought about her flowers are "that's just what I hoped for," while Just Blossoming! efficiently arranges for timely delivery and set-up of flowers to the home, the church and the reception site. The next time you see breath-taking wedding arrangements, don't be surprised to find that they came from "Just Blossoming!" Do call today to schedule consultation appointment, 641-0060.

128 Service

CAR CARE CORNER
by Dan Hogan,
Service Manager

Maintenance on the family auto is very important. Once a week you should get in the habit of a walk-around inspection. This is particularly important with the increase of self-service gas stations, since oil, tires and water don't get checked by the attendants anymore. Lights and tires are the two major things to check on the outside. Normally this maintenance program takes only minutes and does not require any great deal of car care knowledge. Setting up a routine check of your car will save a lot of heartache as well as money along with preventing future trouble.

Modern equipment is used to service cars at PETER FULLER OLDS. Open 8-5. Tel. 924-8100. M/C, Visa & A/E honored. We have our own body shop. We are authorized to do all factory warranty work on Oldsmobiles. We will finish servicing your car at the promised time. Stop in at PETER FULLER OLDS, Watertown Sq. "Olds National Service Winner".

PEOPLE

Hogue is new Army recruiter

Beginning Feb. 5, 1990, Staff Sergeant Lyle J. Hogue became the U.S. Army's active duty recruiter for Stoneham, Winchester and students who attend No. East Regional Vo-Tech School. Staff Sergeant Hogue is airborne qualified, air assault qualified and an expert rifleman with nearly six years on active duty. Staff Sergeant Hogue attended basic training at Fort Knox, Ky. then his skill training at Fort Lee, Va. He has had tours at the jungle operations training center and the 1097th transportation company in Panama; and the new 10th mountain division at Fort Drum, N.Y. Staff Sergeant Hogue is married to Kimberly of Augusta, Ga. They have a daughter who is 16 months old and a second child due in April.

Staff Sergeant Hogue is eager to talk with the young men and women in Stoneham and Winchester. He wants to make them aware of the many opportunities that are available to them in the U.S. Army today like $25,200 for college, cash enlistment bonus, airborne ranger enlistments, guaranteed training in one of over 250 job fields, guaranteed station of choice and many other opportunities. Staff Sergeant Hogue urges anyone with questions to call at 245-1755 or visit him at the U.S. Army recruiting office located at 405 Main St. in Wakefield.

Warrington was guest speaker

Dr. Gary Warrington was a speaker at the 15th Annual Yankee Dental Congress held in Boston on Jan. 18 to 21. Warrington, who practices at 955 Main Street, Winchester, spoke on "Sealants," He live in Somerville.

Over 22,000 dental care professionals attended the four-day scientific meeting sponsored by the Massachusetts Dental Society. The Yankee Dental Congress is the fifth largest dental meeting in the United States.

McDowell earns top honors for traditional quilt

Winchester resident Ruth McDowell is one of six artists who have been granted the $500 bronze award for work accepted in Fabric Gardens, the juried international exhibition of contemporary and traditional quilts. Fabric Gardens has been produced especially for EXPO '90, the International Garden and Greenery Exposition being held in Osaka from April through September. Fabric Gardens is presented by Asahi Shimbun, with support from the Japan Association for the International Garden and Greenery Exposition. It is produced in cooperation with A.P.T. International, Inc., Tokyo, and the Dairy Barn Cultural Arts Center, Athens, Ohio, U.S.A. The organizers honored ten out of 80 artists with Gold, Silver, and Bronze categories of cash prizes totalling $8,000. Ten Awards of Recognition were also granted.

McDowell's quilt "Tree Spirit: Japanese Maple" is one of 80 pieces chosen for more than 800 entries which were submitted by 532 artists from 16 countries. The quilt is created with cotton and cotton blend fabrics. It is machine pieced, hand appliqued and hand quilted. This work is one of a series of tree quilts which refers back to the historical Tree of Life pattern. McDowell is a full time professional artist who has achieved a significant reputation over the past decade. Her works have been included in numerous prestigious competitions and publications. A one-man show of McDowell's work is scheduled for December 1990 at the Gallery on the Green, 1837 Massachusetts Ave. Lexington.

SENIOR NEWS

Elders receiving Medex must pay increase

By MARY P. KELLY
Special to the Star

A very high percentage rate increase for Medex passed in January retroactive to Jan. 1, 1990. Elder Medex participants are currently receiving bills due March 1 which include the rate increase (up to $100 per person depending on coverage). This payment is for the March through May quarter.

There is no freeze on these rates, so by law elders must find a way to pay the bills or change their coverage. If they don't, they will lose their coverage.

A bill that would put a six-month freeze on the Medex rate increases, Senate Bill 1481, is currently in the Senate Ways and Means Committee for consideration, but no action has taken place. The purpose of the freeze is two-fold: 1. to give elders a chance to reorganize their finances should the increases hold up; and 2. to allow time for a committee to study Blue Cross/Blue Shield's financial status.

Elders may wish to discuss this freeze with their state senators and/or state representatives. Meanwhile, seniors, pay your Medex bills, but wait until the last due date (in the event the freeze takes effect). Remember, you will be responsible for your payments as there is no freeze now in effect.

If you have any question, the co-chairman of the Health Benefits Counselors Committee at the Jenks Senior Center, Helen Cotter, can be of assistance.

Movie of the month

'The Red Shoes'

This month's video movie, to be shown at the Jenks Center on Monday, March 12, at 1 p.m., after Eating Together, will be The Red Shoes, starring Moira Shearer. The movie is based on Hans Christian Andersen's fairy tale about a girl whose bewitched shoes compel her to dance, dance, dance, and center on the dilemma of a young ballerina who is torn between demands of career and love.

You may come at 1 p.m. to see the movie or come for lunch at 12 noon and stay for the movie. Be sure to sign up beforehand, by 11 a.m. on Friday, March 9, if you wish to participate in Eating Together.

Still collecting

items for yard sale

The Intergenerational Committee of the Council on Aging is continuing to encourage seniors to support the WHS Junior Class yard sale in the high school parking lot, on Saturday, March 31. If you are doing your spring cleaning and wish to donate saleable items, the Center will arrange for pick up. However, if you can arrange to bring in any items for the sale, they can be stored in the Center until the sale. Baked items to sell would be most welcome. Please drop these off at any time if they are items that may be frozen.

Call Barbara Ciampa, 721-7136, at the Jenks Center if you are interested in making a donation or would like further information.

Travel group

Monday, March 12 — baked potato stuffed with turkey a la king, string beans, whole wheat roll, chocolate pudding.

Wednesday, March 14 — corned beef and cabbage, diced carrots, boiled potato, dark bread, lime jelio with topping.

An invitation to

Winchester seniors

Have you ever considered living in a luxury retirement community? It really is a great idea. Come and see for yourself. You are cordially invited to an open house Thursday, March 15, at Country Club Heights, 3 Rehabilitation Way, Woburn. There will be refreshments, tours, prizes, fun for all!

Transportation will be provided by the Country Club Heights shuttle bus for any Winchester senior. Please call Marlene Doran at 935-4094 to arrange for transportation there and back. For any other information, please call Country Club Heights, at the same number.

Bus available for

Spring Flower Show

The Winchester Home and Garden Club invites all seniors who would be interested in going into Boston to the New England Spring Flower Show on Monday, March 12, to share a bus which will be leaving the Jenks Center at 9:15 a.m., to arrive by 10 a.m. at Bayside Exposition Center. It will leave Bayside Expo Center about 1 p.m. to return to Winchester by 2 p.m. The charge for the bus will be $4.00 per person, round trip.

The Winchester Home and Garden Club has chartered a bus for this trip and there are still seats available. You can help them fill the bus and, at the same time, take advantage of this opportunity to "leave the driving to someone else," as you enjoy this year's show "Bridges to Paradise."

If you are interested, please contact Fay Ghikas, President of Winchester Home and Garden Club, at 729-2868. Please do not call the Senior Center for information about this trip.

Keeping the presses rolling

Winchester Jenks Center Trustee Clarence Borggaard discusses the senior newsletter with Lucille Bourque, President of Winchester Women's Club Juniors, who presented a check to the newsletter staff.

Miss Cox is a 1983 graduate of Pope John High School. She received her bachelor of science degree in elementary education and sociology in 1989 from the University of Massachusetts at Boston. She is currently employed by the Arlington Public Schools.

Mr. Holland, a 1981 graduate of Medford High School, is employed by Local 103 IBEW as an electrician.

A September wedding is planned.

Laureen DelloRusso and Frank Zakrewski

Laureen Ann DelloRusso will marry Frank Joseph Zakrewski

Robert J. and Maryann DelloRusso of Sylvester Avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Laureen Ann to Frank Joseph Zakrewski of Quincy. Mr. Zakrewski is the son of Stephanie Zakrewski of Quincy.

Ms. DelloRusso is a 1983 graduate of Winchester High School. She is presently employed by the U.S. Postal Service.

Mr. Zakrewski graduated from North Quincy High School in 1981. He is currently employed by the U.S. Postal Service.

The couple became engaged on Valentine's Day, 1989, and a spring 1990 wedding is planned.

Maid of honor is Donna DelloRusso. Bridesmaids include Paula DelloRusso, Jean O'Brien, Sharon Weeks, Michelle Cecere, Julie Zakrewski, Suzanne Capone, Lisa Pisacretta and Francie Campagna.

Serving as best man will be Steve Zakrewski. Ushers include John Byrne, Brian Tirrell, John Cecere and Jay Bradbury.

The flower girl will be Jennifer Brown, and the ring bearer Eric O'Brien.

Following a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple plans to reside in a new home in Winchester.

Ellen and Randall Hill

Ellen Marie Franklin weds Randall Lee Hill

Ellen Marie Franklin of Stoneham and Randall Lee Hill of Detroit, Mich. were married at St. Patrick's Church in Stoneham on Nov. 12, 1989.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis C. Franklin of Hollywood Road and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hill of Wyandotte, MI.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The double-ring ceremony was officiated by Father Hannon.

The maid of honor was Joanne Franklin of Stoneham, sister of the bride.

The best man was Timothy Nelligan of Brooklyn, N.Y., friend of the groom. The ushers were Lewis Franklin of Hollywood Road, brother of the bride, James Franklin, of Allston, brother of the bride and Eric Hill of Detroit, Mich., brother of the groom.

The reception was held at the Town Lynne House in Lynnfield.

The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School and Framingham State College with a bachelor of science degree. She is employed as a decorator consultant for Sears, formerly at the Burlington location and presently at the Sears in the Emerald Square Mall in North Attleboro.

The groom received a bachelor of science degree in physics from University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich. He is employed by Sonalysts as a senior analyst in Newport, RI.

The couple now resides in East Providence, RI.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of University of Maine at Orono, and is currently employed at Peoples Heritage Bank in Portland, Maine.

The groom-to-be is a graduate of Bentley College, and currently employed at Shape, Inc. in Biddeford, Maine.

The couple plans to wed in October, 1990.

Gastro-Intestinal Disorders discussed

Gastro-Intestinal Disorders

Dr. Albert Muggia, a Gastroenterologist who practices in Winchester, will be the guest speaker in the Pond Room of the Jenks Senior Center on Friday, March 16, at 10:30 a.m. He will address the problem of gastro-intestinal disorders, afflictions that bother many people. He has an extensive background in his field and will present an informative talk concerning aggravations of nausea, constant pain, bowel difficulties, continuing weight loss, and other ailments relating to the digestive system.

Dr. Muggia is sharing generously time from his very busy professional schedule to discuss prevention, treatment and care concerning any changes that occur in the digestive system. His visit is sponsored by the Jenks Senior Center Health Committee. Let's have a full audience at this most important health presentation. The public is invited to attend. Dr. Muggia has a teaching affiliation with Tufts University and graduated from Harvard College and Yale University Medical Schools and obtained post-graduate training in Gastroenterology, Gastrointestinal Endoscopy, and Gastrointestinal Chemotherapy.

Moving Experiences Sometimes Produce Tax Deductions

If you made a job-related move this last year, you may be eligible for some significant itemized deductions on your federal tax return.

Some of the general qualifications for taking the deduction are:

• your new main job location must be at least 35 miles farther from your former home than your old main job location was;

• you, or your spouse (if you file a joint return), must have been employed full-time for at least 39 weeks during the first 12 months after arriving in the area of the new job location; and,

• your moving expenses should have been incurred within one year from the date you first reported to work at the new location.

If you qualify, the moving expenses that are generally deductible are:

• house hunting trips prior to the move, but after getting the new job;

• most expenses of selling or buying a home, or settling or getting a lease;

• meals (limited to 80 percent), and lodging while in temporary housing at the new location;

• moving personal items and household goods; and,

• transportation, meals (again, limited to 80 percent), and lodging while traveling to your new housing.

For more information on qualifications and moving expenses you may deduct, obtain the IRS free Publication 521, Moving Expenses, by using the order form in your tax package or by calling toll-free, 1-800-424-3676.

IRS Resolves to Solve

Most tax problems can be resolved through normal channels. But when they can't, the Internal Revenue Service has a Problem Resolution Program (PRP) which is available to help taxpayers. There are Problem Resolution Officers across the country ready to offer their assistance.

Last year over 300,000 cases were reviewed and resolved by the PRP offices. Most cases involved missing or late refunds, incorrect billings, and unclear notices and letters.

If you're having difficulty with a persistent tax problem, call or write your local IRS office and ask for PRP.

CHOOSE THE TAX FORM THAT

FITS YOU BEST!

Which Form Should You Use?

Form 1040EZ Only

- Filing status single (under 65 & not blind)
- No more than one exemption (your own)
- Taxable income less than $50,000
- Income must consist only of:
  - Wages, salaries, tips
  - Taxable scholarships & fellowships
  - Interest of $400 or less

Form1040A

Same as Form 1040EZ but:

- Any other filing status
- Blind or 65 or older
- More than one exemption
- Dividends, unemployment compensation, or more than $400 of interest
- Contributions (other than "rollovers") to an IRA
- Advance Earned Income Credit payments
- Credit for:
  - Child & dependent care expenses
  - Earned Income Credit

Form 1040

Any tax situation not covered by Form 1040EZ or 1040A.

REMEMBER:

If you use the simplest form that:

- Allows you to report all income or tax payments you have made
- Gives you all the tax benefits to which you are entitled

You will:

- Reduce the chance of error on your part and the Internal Revenue Service's
- Speed up any refund you are due

Few Tax Form Changes For Taxpayers

There are only a few changes to the 1989 tax forms that taxpayers will use between January 1 and April 16, 1990, to file their tax returns. They are, in brief:

• There are now two lines on the 1040 and 1040A federal tax forms to include both spouses' full names for married couples filing jointly;

• A single line has been added to Schedule 1 of Form 1040A and to Form 2441, "Child and Dependent Care Expenses," for taxpayers claiming child care expenses to enter their child care provider's taxpayer identification numbers as required by law; and

• Revisions were made to Form 2106, "Employee Business Expenses" to reflect changes in the law regarding reimbursements and other expense allowance changes.

Home Interest Limits

The deductibility of home mortgage interest may be limited, depending on when the loan was taken out.

Any home mortgage loan secured by a taxpayer's main or second home, taken out before October 14, 1987, is considered acquisition debt. The interest on this acquisition debt, is fully deductible and is not subject to any limit.

A mortgage loan taken out after October 13, 1987, secured by a taxpayer's main or second home and used to buy, build, or substantially improve that home, is also considered an acquisition debt. Acquisition debt taken out after October 13, 1987, is limited to $1 million ($500,000 for married filing separately). Interest on acquisition debt that does not exceed this limit is fully deductible. Any loan secured by a main or second home that is not considered acquisition debt is considered home equity debt. Home equity debt is generally limited to $100,000 ($50,000 for married filing separately). Interest on home equity debt that does not exceed this limit is fully deductible, unless used to receive tax-free income.

More detailed information is available in the free IRS Publication 545, Interest Expense, which may be obtained by calling toll-free, 1-800-424-3676.

Reduce Future Tax Shock

All interest and dividends you receive must be reported on your tax return. You can reduce the possibility of future problems with the IRS if you report your interest and dividends properly on your tax return. If you receive more than $400 in interest or more than $400 in dividends, you must also complete and attach the appropriate schedule to your return. If you file a Form 1040A, you must attach a Schedule 1. If you file a Form 1040, you must attach a Schedule B.

Payers of interest and dividends report payments to you on Forms 1099-INT for interest payments and Forms 1099-DIV for dividend payments. When a brokerage firm sends you a 1099- DIV, "Statement for Recipients of Dividends and Distributions," you should list the brokerage firm as the "Payer," and the total amount reported on the 1099-DIV should be shown on the appropriate tax form.

Follow the instructions for Schedule B to report interest and dividends on your return and reduce the possibility of future problems with the Internal Revenue Service. For more information on investment income and expenses, you may order free Publication 550, Investment Income and Expenses, by calling toll-free, 1-800-424-3676.

1990 FINANCIAL PLANNING GUIDE

"It is in general more profitable to reckon up our defects than to boast of our attainments"

Carlyle.

Yes, we do have defects. There are times that lines at our teller windows are longer than we wish them to be. There are times that our computers malfunction. There are times that we make human errors. But, we try very had to correct these deficiencies as we realize that customers' satisfaction is our basic objective.

We try very hard to be warm, friendly and caring – to pay competitive rates on deposits and to offer a full line of services.

At the same time, will you pardon us if we do boast of our 118 years of service to Winchester and its residents. We are proud to be an independent Mutual Bank, existing solely for the benefit of our depositors.

Once-in-a-Lifetime Tax Break for Seniors

Seniors may exclude for tax purposes up to $125,000 from the gain of the sale of their home. Certain age, use, and ownership restrictions apply to this once-in-a-lifetime exclusion from gross income.

Tax Savings for Seniors

If you are an older American, a tax credit for the elderly may reduce the taxes you owe.

The credit is based on your income, filing status, and age. Generally, the credit is not available if your income level requires you to report any part of your social security or tier 1 railroad retirement benefits as taxable income.

Schedule R (Form 1040) explains the credit, qualifications, and how to figure your credit. Call IRS toll-free at 1-800-424-3676 to order Schedule R or Publication 524, Credit for the Elderly or the Disabled.

You Can Take the Credit for 1989 if:

- You are a U.S. citizen or resident, and
- You are 65 or older by the end of the tax year, or
- You are under 65 at the end of the tax year, and

a) You are retired on permanent and total disability,

b) You did not reach mandatory retirement age before 1990, and

c) You received taxable disability benefits in 1989.

Tax Counseling for the Elderly

Free help in preparing individual federal income tax returns is available to seniors age 60 or older through a special program called Tax Counseling for the Elderly (TCE). Assistance is provided at community locations or at the homes of individuals who cannot travel because of a handicap or other condition. To find out where the nearest TCE volunteer site is located, call IRS toll-free at 1-800-424-1040.

Useful Publication for Older Americans

Publication 554, Tax Information for Older Americans, highlights important tax law changes and provisions which affect older taxpayers. To order this publication, call toll-free, 1-800-424-3676.

Break for Seniors

A larger standard deduction is available for taxpayers who are 65 or older, or are blind. Taxpayers whose itemized deductions exceed their standard deduction amount should file Form 1040 and itemize their deductions on Schedule A, (these taxpayers may not take an additional amount for age or blindness.)

The following steps will help to figure the correct standard deduction for people who cannot be claimed as someone else's dependent.

Step 1

Check the boxes if

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| You were | 65 or older ☐ | Blind ☐ |
| Your spouse was | 65 or older ☐ | Blind ☐ |

Total Boxes Checked ____

Step 2

1989 Standard Deduction Table

| If your filing status is: | total number of boxes you checked is: | your standard deduction is: |
|---|---|---|
| Single | 1 | $3,850 |
| | 2 | 4,600 |
| Married Filing Joint Return or Qualifying Widow(er) with Dependent Child | 1 | 5,800 |
| | 2 | 6,400 |
| | 3 | 7,000 |
| | 4 | 7,600 |
| Married Filing Separate Return | 1 | 3,200 |
| | 2 | 3,800 |
| | 3 | 4,400 |
| | 4 | 5,000 |
| Head of Household | 1 | 5,300 |
| | 2 | 6,050 |

Personal Exemption

Persons who file their own tax returns, and cannot be claimed as dependents on someone else's return, are entitled to a $2,000 personal exemption, which reduces their income for tax purposes.

Therefore, the number of exemptions claimed on line 6e of your tax return _____ X $2,000= PERSONAL EXEMPTION.

Example

A married couple (both 65 or older), filing a joint return, who cannot be claimed as dependents on someone else's return, would be entitled to:

|---|---|
| Standard Deduction of | $6,400 |
| Personal Exemption of ($2,000 x 2) | 4,000 |

for a TOTAL of $10,400 exempt from taxes!

For more information about the standard deduction, check the 1040 instructions or call toll-free, 1-800-424-1040.

Seniors Can Get Free Tax Help

Free help in preparing individual federal income tax returns is available to seniors age 60 or older through a special program called Tax Counseling for the Elderly (TCE).

TCE volunteers set up sites where they are needed, including retirement homes, libraries, churches, neighborhood sites, and even assist home-bound taxpayers throughout the country.

To find out where the nearest TCE volunteer site is located, call toll-free 1-800-424-1040.

Withholding and Retirees

The payments you receive from profit-sharing or stock bonus plans, individual retirement arrangements, annuities, or deferred compensation plans are subject to withholding of income tax. You may choose exemption from withholding if you qualify, or you may increase your withholding by using Form W-4P, "Withholding Certificate for Pension or Annuity Payments." To order this form, call IRS toll-free at 1-800-424-3676.

Pay as You Go

Most people think of taxes only at the end of the year, but, due to the "pay as you go" system of U.S. taxes, some may need to "think" taxes quarterly. Any person who receives income on which there is no income tax withholding may need to make estimated tax payments.

Any taxpayer who might owe more than $500 in unpaid federal taxes at the end of the year needs to estimate how much the total income will be for the year. Then, after estimating how much tax would be due on that income, he or she needs to determine how much will not be covered by tax credits and income tax withholding.

In general, a taxpayer will have to make estimated tax payments for 1990 if:

• the amount to be paid with the 1990 tax return at the end of the year will be $500 or more, and

• less than 90 percent of the total tax liability will be covered by withholding and tax credits, or

• withholding and tax credits will be less than 100 percent of the 1989 taxes.

Estimated tax payments may be made quarterly by sending in Form 1040-ES to the address listed in the instructions for the taxpayer's area. Credit for such payments is made on Form 1040 when the taxpayer files a return for the year. Forms 1040A and 1040EZ may not be used because they do not contain lines for the payments. Further information is contained in Publication 505, Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax. The free publication and Form 1040-ES may be ordered by calling toll-free, 1-800-424-3676.

Need More Time to File?

You may get an automatic four-month extension of time to file, if you file Form 1040 or 1040A.

To get the automatic extension, you must file Form 4868, "Application for Automatic Extension of Time to File U. S. Individual Income Tax Return," and forward it by April 16, 1990 to the IRS processing center for your area.

But remember, an extension of time to file is NOT an extension of time to pay.

After you've made an estimate of your tax for the year, you must pay the balance due with your Form 4868. If you underestimate the amount you owe, you will have to pay interest on the unpaid amount. If that amount is more than 10% of your tax, you will have to pay, in addition to interest, a failure-to-pay penalty.

If you file Form 1040EZ or intend to request IRS to compute your tax, you are not eligible for an automatic extension. Also, you are not eligible if you are under a court order to file by the regular due date.

Form 4868 may be obtained by using the order form in the tax package or by calling the IRS toll-free at 1-800-424-3676.

Tax Law Changes

The following are some of the highlights of recent tax law changes:

■ The amount of each personal and dependency exemption has increased to $2,000 for 1989—up from last year's amount of $1,950. (As was previously the case, if you are entitled to claim another taxpayer as a dependent, that person cannot claim himself or herself as an exemption too.)

■ Personal interest expenses (interest on a personal loan, bank credit card interest, etc.) that can be deducted will drop to 20 percent for 1989.

■ Now you are required to give the social security number of any dependent you claim who will be two years old or older at the end of the tax year. Applications and information can be obtained from the Social Security Administration.

■ Beginning in 1990, most taxpayers age 24 or older may exclude from income, interest on redeemed Series EE U.S. savings bonds issued after 1989 if the taxpayers pay tuition and required fees for themselves, their spouses, or dependents at an eligible educational institution.

■ Starting with this year's federal tax return, if a child has more than $500 but less than $5,000 in interest or dividends (including Alaska Permanent Fund dividend), no Federal income tax withheld, and no earned income, the parents may be able to choose to include this unearned income on their own return. However, the child must be under 14 years of age at the end of the parent's tax year. If this is done, the child does not have to file a tax return.

■ Beginning in 1989, if part of a child's income is taxed at the parent's tax rate, the child is not eligible for the regular exemption amount when figuring alternative minimum tax. The child's alternative minimum tax exemption amount will be limited to $1,000 plus the child's earned income. (The alternative minimum tax is a special tax designed to ensure that all taxpayers pay at least some tax regardless of the deductions and tax credits to which they may be entitled).

■ Both self-employed individuals and now their employees may choose to be exempt from paying social security taxes if they are members of a religious faith that is conscientiously opposed to the acceptance of public or private insurance benefits.

■ The targeted-jobs credit that permits employers to claim a tax credit for wages paid to members of certain targeted groups was extended through 1989. Further information can be found in free IRS Publication 572, General Business Credit.

■ The cash wages of some seasonal hand-harvest laborers, as of 1988 are no longer subject to social security tax. More details appear in free IRS Publication 225, Farmer's Tax Guide.

■ Some purchasers of diesel and nongasoline aviation fuels for off-highway business uses became, as of January 1, 1989, exempt from paying excise tax on these purchases.

■ Self-employed artists, writers and photographers were subject to the rules of uniform capitalization, which required them to add to the basis or include in inventory direct and indirect costs of producing an item. However, they are no longer subject to these rules and this is retroactive to 1986.

More information on any of these tax law changes can be found in free IRS Publication 553, Highlights of 1989 Tax Changes. It can be ordered by calling, toll-free, 1-800-424-3676.

Small Businesses Benefit From Unique Partnerships

Community colleges, government agencies and other organizations have formed a unique partnership with the Internal Revenue Service to expand tax education of the self-employed and small business owners.

The Small Business Tax Education Program materials are designed specifically to make tax rules and regulations as painless as possible for the small business owner. Some of the topics include employment taxes, excise taxes, and the small business as a partnership. The course material can be tailored to fit the needs of various audiences and used as part of a college course, business seminar, or workshop.

To find out more about the Small Business Tax Education Program, call IRS toll-free at 1-800-424-1040 and ask for the Taxpayer Education Coordinator in your area.

Fix-It Tax Form

Last week, with a sigh of relief, you finished your tax return and mailed it to the Internal Revenue Service. Today in the mail you got a wage statement from that second job you had last January and an interest statement from the savings account you closed out this past summer. What now?

The first step is to get a Form 1040X, "Amended U.S. Individual Income Tax Return," which is used to correct a previously filed Form 1040, 1040A, or 1040EZ.

Then, figure your correct income and tax. In general, you should allow 10 weeks processing time, if you have a refund, for your first return to be completed before sending in an amended return. However, if you owe additional tax, send the Form 1040X and payment in by April 16 to avoid late payment penalties or interest.

Generally, a Form 1040X can be filed within three years from the date the original return was due or two years from the date the tax was paid, whichever is later.

In the case of math errors or missing schedules, you do not need to file an amended return. The processing computers will automatically correct math errors, and the IRS will write to request any missing attachments.

To get copies of Form 1040X and instructions, call the IRS toll-free at 1-800-424-3676.

Looking for a Missing W-2?

If you do not receive your 1989 Forms W-2, "Wage and Tax Statement," by January 31, you should contact your employer(s) to request it and to be sure they have your correct address.

If you still have not received your W-2(s) by February 15, you should call IRS. The IRS will ask for your employer's name, address, and social security number or employer identification number.

You should also notify your employer if you find an error on your W-2 statement so the correct information will be shown.

If you are not able to obtain a W-2 statement, contact IRS about how to reconstruct your wage information so you can file your tax return. The IRS toll-free number is 1-800-424-1040.

Who Claims Whom?

Once students reach age 24, the rules for who can claim their personal exemptions change. Students who are 24 or older by the end of the tax year may not be claimed by their parents if their gross income exceeds the amount of their personal exemption ($2,000 for 1989). However, at that point, they may claim their own exemptions on their own tax returns.

Need More Time to File?

If you file Form 1040 or 1040A, you can get an automatic four-month extension of time to file your 1989 federal income tax return. Simply fill out Form 4868, "Application for Automatic Extension of Time to File U. S. Individual Income Tax Return," and forward it by April 16, 1990, to the IRS processing center for your area. But remember, an extension of time to file is NOT an extension of time to pay. All taxes due must be paid by April 16, 1990, to avoid penalties and interest. Form 4868 may be obtained by using the order form in the tax package or by calling the IRS toll-free at 1-800-424-3676.

Children's Income

Under certain conditions, parents can include their children's income on their own 1989 income tax returns and thereby avoid having to file separate returns for their children. Parents may be able to make the election to claim their children's interest and dividend income on their returns by completing Form 8814, "Parent's Election to Report Child's Interest and Dividends," and attaching the form to their federal income tax returns. For more information about your dependent's filing requirements, order Publication 501, Exemptions, Standard Deduction, and Filing Information, by calling toll-free, 1-800-424-3676.

IRAs Offer Savings

Both tax deferred savings and tax deductions are still available to most taxpayers through the purchase of Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs). You can invest in your 1989 IRA until April 16, 1990 and, if you qualify, take the appropriate deduction on your 1989 tax return that you are currently filing. For details, request free IRS Publication 590, Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs). You can use the order blank in your tax return package or call the IRS toll-free, at 1-800-424-3676.

Feel Inadequate, Withholding-Wise?

If, when you filed last year's federal tax return, you had to pay a large tax bill or you received a very large tax refund, the IRS suggests you fine-tune your W-4 tax withholding certificate. Big tax bills can mean additional tax penalties and the government cannot pay you interest on your tax overpayments regardless of the size of your tax refund. For details, use the order blank in your tax package or call the IRS toll-free at 1-800-424-3676 and ask for free Publication 919, Is My Withholding Correct for 1990?

Taxpayer Bill of Rights

As part of the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988, the Taxpayer Bill of Rights extended and clarified taxpayers' rights. Highlights of that legislation follow:

- Taxpayers whose tax returns are being examined, audited, or interviewed in relation to the collection of any tax by the IRS will now receive a written explanation of their rights before the examination or interview. They may also make an audio recording of any IRS interview relating to the determination or collection of any tax.
- Taxpayers who follow erroneous written advice from the IRS may be able to have set aside any resulting penalty or addition to tax (addition to tax does not mean additional tax).
- IRS Collection employees will not be evaluated by management on the basis of tax enforcement statistics.
- Tax due notices sent to taxpayers will give more detail as to why the tax and any penalties are being assessed.
- If a taxpayer suffers or is about to suffer a significant hardship due to how the Internal Revenue laws are being administered by the Service, the taxpayer may request assistance on IRS Form 911, "Application for Taxpayer Assistance Order to Relieve Hardship" (ATAO). The IRS Taxpayer Ombudsman or a Problem Resolution Officer will review the application. An accepted ATAO will suspend enforcement actions on the tax period(s) at issue while the case is reviewed. Copies of IRS Form 911 are available in IRS offices or by calling the IRS toll-free telephone number, 1-800-424-1040.
- In cases of successful court actions taken by the taxpayer against the IRS, the court may determine that reasonable litigation and administrative costs will be paid by the government.
- If an IRS employee recklessly or intentionally violates the Internal Revenue Code or regulations, court action can be brought against the federal government to recover the lesser of actual damages up to $100,000 or actual economic damages of the plaintiff plus costs of the action.
- In cases of improper disclosure of a client's tax information by a tax preparer, there now is a $250 civil penalty for each such disclosure, up to a maximum of $10,000 per calendar year.
- After a bank levy is served, there will be a 21-day hold period before the funds (including interest accrued during the 21-day period) can be sent to IRS. The levy will still take effect on the date the bank receives it.
- Tax Court now has authority to restrain the IRS as appropriate, in the assessment and collection of tax, and in related tax matters.

Dependent Care Tax Break

Do you pay someone to take care of your child or dependent? If so, you may qualify for the Child and Dependent Care Credit or the exclusion for employer-provided dependent care assistance.

The credit could be from 20 to 30 percent of eligible expenses, depending on your adjusted gross income. Your credit could be as much as $720 if you have one qualifying person or as much as $1,440 if you have two or more qualifying persons.

To qualify for this credit: you must file a Form 1040 or Form 1040A; your child and dependent care expenses must be incurred to allow you (and your spouse if you were married) to work or look for work (there is an exception if your spouse was a student or disabled); you must have income from work during the year; you (and your spouse, if you were married) must keep up the home that you lived in with one or more qualifying persons; you must file a joint return if you are married,or you must meet special requirements to file a separate return; and you must have made payments for child and dependent care to someone you or your spouse could not claim as a dependent, or, if the person you made payments to was your child, he or she must have been 19 or older by the end of the tax year.

New Law Changes

New tax law changes require you to report the name, address, and Taxpayer Identification Number (usually the SSN) of your provider on your 1989 return. You should have your provider fill out Form W-10, "Dependent Care Provider's Identification and Certification," and transfer that information to Form 2441, if a Form 1040 is filed, or Schedule 1, if a Form 1040A is filed. If you do not obtain this information, the credit may be disallowed. Only the name and address are required if the provider is one of certain tax-exempt organizations, such as a church.

If you are claiming a dependent this year on your federal income tax return, remember that a social security number (SSN) must be obtained for dependents who are at least two years old by the end of the tax year.

You can apply for a SSN by contacting your local Social Security Administration office and asking for Form SS-5, "Application for a Social Security Number Card" and the instructions.

If your dependent does not receive a number by filing time, a return must still be filed. "Applied for" must be written in the space provided for the number.

For tax year 1989, dependents under age 13 are qualifying individuals for this credit, rather than age 15 as was previously the case.

If you receive a reimbursement under your employer's dependent care assistance program, the dollar limit on expenses eligible for the child and dependent care credit is reduced.

Finally, dependent care services provided by your employer may be excluded from income within certain limits.

For more information, Publication 503, Child and Dependent Care Expenses and Forms W-10 are available by calling IRS toll-free at 1-800-424-3676.

Taxes in the Classroom

All across the United States, high school students are learning about one of the more certain aspects of life—taxes.

Teachers can order from the Internal Revenue Service an "Understanding Taxes" (UT) package of tax education materials which meets the needs of students in social studies, history, civics, government, economics, business and vocational education courses.

The program was developed and approved by the Joint Council on Economic Education, the IRS, the Agency for Instructional Technology, and representatives from every state education and economic education agency.

The modular UT package includes:

- nine 15-minute video programs on a VHS cassette;
- software that "walks" students through completion of W-2, W-4, and 1040EZ tax forms;
- an overview booklet; and,
- detailed, practical lesson plans with transparencies and duplicating masters.

Because the materials are not copy-protected, teachers can make as many copies as their students need.

For more information, teachers may contact the IRS Taxpayer Education Coordinator by calling 1-800-424-1040. Classroom volunteers are also welcome and may contact IRS to find out where they can help.

School board looks at task force report

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

While a number of suggestions set forth by the Task Force on School Closing have caught the eye of school committee members — none, singularly or collectively, add up to the money needed to keep the Vinson Owen School open absent an override of Proposition 2½, say school officials.

At its March 13 session, the School Committee reviewed 46 additional options to raise revenue or cut expenses from the school department budget — beyond those cuts already implemented in the fiscal year 1991 budget. Some of those suggestions: possible reduction of two additional instructional aides system-wide ($20,000); reduction of $6,250 from the Not Otherwise Classified line item for system services; reduction of system services dues by $3,000; elimination of professional taping of football games ($2,000); and reduction of the telephone budget by $12,000 will receive further scrutiny from school adminstrators and committee members.

But members said these reductions and several others that will be investigated will not equal enough money to offset the budget deficit. Members said due to a shortfall of $900,000 in the FY91 level-funded budget and without revenue from an override in the amount of $530,000 — the Vinson Owen Elementary School will close, activities fees will stay intact and two positions, including a clinical counselor at the high school and a teacher at McCall Junior High School, will be eliminated.

> "I don't see any way VO will stay open without an override. I've been looking a long time. I can't find alternatives."
> —Dr. Michael Ronayne

"If the override does not pass, I would not in good conscience keep Vinson Owen open and sacrifice the rest of (the school system)," said member Donna Brandt Landry.

"I don't see any way VO will stay open without an override. I've been looking a long time. I can't find alternatives," added member Dr. Michael Ronayne.

Resident Loretta Verrecchia found the School Committee's stand "unacceptable."

"No one is saying this is easy. I'm appalled. I listened to a half million dollars (in cuts proposed by the task force) and you only agreed to $12,000 (telephone reduction) ... I think your priorities are wrong," she said.

Resident Judy Dodge disagreed. "It's not a question of Vinson Owen closing, but of priorities ... There are many of us who don't feel one school is as important as a whole (academic system)," said Dodge.

Although all members of the School Committee said they are in no way in favor of closing Vinson Owen, faced with the deficit, all agreed at this time they see no alternatives.

"I'm in favor of keeping Vinson Owen open. The budget is not dead in my book," said Chairman Edward O'Connell.

The charge of the task force, formed in November, 1989, was to "re-prioritize" the school budget, with the hopes of finding at least the elusive sum of $350,000 to keep Vinson Owen open.

Although the membership of the task force splintered on many issues and two reports were submitted to the School Committee for review, the reports were combined for the scrutiny of school officials and committee members.

School Committee members may also consider several fees and fee increases for FY91. Those would include: implementing a fee for instrumental music at the elementary school ($35 to $70 per student per year); a transportation fee for elementary band, orchestra and chorus; charging the public 10 cents a page for copies of materials longer than 10 pages and raising the entry fee for "open gym" by $1 per category and increase the hours.

School officials will also look into consolidating hired equipment, reducing fees to business organizations, reducing the postal budget, reducing standardized testing, and reducing car allowances and several other options.

School budget is 'total package'

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

School Committee members have targeted a budget number which includes items they would like to see funded if an override passes, according to Chairman Edward O'Connell.

O'Connell appeared before the board at the request of selectmen to explain what had been tagged as a discrepancy in the fiscal year 1991 (FY91) budget figures.

According to Selectman Steve Powers, during Ad Hoc Budget Committee discussions last fall, cuts were targeted for both the school and municipal budgets due to cutbacks in local aid. The school's cuts totalled $400,000, while municipal reductions totalled $290,000.

"I assumed we had an agreement with the School Committee," said Powers.

But there were two disagreements on figures. The first centered on the initial figure established as a starting point last fall. Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer's target was $14,665,400. Superintendent of Schools Dr. Charles Mitsakos' target was $14,712,930. According to Mitsakos, this figure represented level service with adjustments due to change in enrollment. "It wasn't done in a formula. It was dealing with real people," said Mitsakos. Maurer's figure established a base with step and track increases as well as a small percentage for contract settlements.

The second figure in which Powers said he saw a discrepency was the figure submitted by the School Committee should an override pass. The School Committee originally requested approximately $530,000 to add back in through an override. The selectmen allotted $474,000 to the committee, as recommended by the ad hoc committee.

However, O'Connell pointed out that since the ad hoc committee was a working committee, "nothing was ever voted or binding. We are five people. I only have 20 percent of the vote."

O'Connell noted that the discrepancy is approximately $55,800 between what was originally targeted for the school budget and what the School Committee would like to get with an override.

A majority of members on the School Committee, said O'Connell, "were of the belief to go the high road and go for a budget that would reflect all the things the School Committee would want to see packaged into a total budget." While O'Connell said he and member William Jervey were in favor of the lower figure, Jervey and O'Connell "did not feel it was an appropriate time for a split vote," and made the vote unanimous, said the latter.

However, O'Connell noted that the $55,800 has been separated out in the budget breakdown as a priority "if funds are available." The money would fund a portion of a junior high school teacher position ($15,800) and one clinical counselor ($40,000).

"This one particular issue was not really something in which our superintendent (Dr. Charles Mitsakos) participated," said O'Connell. "Charlie Mitsakos did not weigh in on one side or the other."

O'Connell noted that there are two factors that work into the consideration of the school budget: the Proposition 2½ override question and the work of the Task Force on School Closing.

"There are two sets of actions we

Residents to honor wearin' of the green

This Saturday is for many a chance to celebrate their heritage — or just plain celebrate — in honor of St. Patrick, the legendary bishop and patron saint of Ireland.

On St. Patrick's Day, people of Irish descent and others who become temporarily so, don green clothing and decorations of every sort, all to participate in the revelry.

It is odd, some note, that the day's celebration is derived from a saint's feast day in the Roman Catholic Church.

Who was the man for whom so many will offer up a toast on March 17?

Patrick was born in Britain, of Roman stock, probably with the name Patricius Magnous Sucatus, according to "The Book of Saints." When he was 14, in the year 403, Irish raiders carried him to their own country as a slave, where, according to legend, he first learned to pray while tending his master's herds.

He later escaped the island on a ship taking dogs to Gaul and became a disciple of Saint Germanus of Auxerre, studying at a monastery in Lerins, according to Irish lore.

Patrick apparently thought a great deal about returning to the land of his slavery as a missionary. Saint Germanus consecrated him bishop, and he returned to Ireland in 432.

As a religious leader, St. Patrick accomplished a great many feats in Ireland, but is best remembered in folklore as the man who drove the snakes off the island. He died in 461 at Saul on Strangford Lough, Downpatrick.

With March 17 as both a religious holiday in honor of St. Patrick and a secular holiday for ethnic celebration, Winchester residents, like so many others, are sure to be donning green and making merry, regardless of their heritage.

Happy St. Patrick's Day, to all!

CLT's Faulkner rallies support for no-tax campaign

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Chip Faulkner, associate director of Citizens for Limited Taxation, the group best known for its campaign for Proposition 2½, made a stop in Winchester recently to rally members of the Winchester Taxpayers Association behind the signature cry, "We've paid enough in taxes."

Although the turnout was less than anticipated at about 50 strong, the March 8 discussion proved lively and the speakers well received.

Faulkner noted that the age group most in favor of Prop. 2½ are those 55 and older — citizens for the most part on fixed incomes.

CLT has also fought to keep the decision of Prop. 2½ in the hands of these voters, said Faulkner, and not up to the town meetings or city councils. "Special interest groups pack those two bodies," said Faulkner. "We believe in democracy."

"If people come out and vote, they can vote how they want," he added.

He noted that giving local governments "carte blanche" doesn't work because citizens often lack "trust in the government."

Faulkner would not comment on Winchester's upcoming override question, saying that he did not know the local climate — "some towns need (an override), some don't."

Faulkner also noted that CLT is pushing a petition to rollback the state income tax enacted in July, 1989. With the proposed rollback, the increase in tax would get reimbursed in two years through a decrease in fees, i.e. registry of motor vehicle fees, water and sewer rates, etc., said Faulkner.

"People in the state realize they are not undertaxed," said Faulkner. "We're at the point now where we're just not going to pay anymore."

Faulkner noted that the mailing list of CLT is about 15,000, while active membership numbers are at 10,000 to 11,000 strong. Faulkner warned however, that other special interest groups have much larger memberships. The Massachusetts Teacher Association for example alone counts its membership at 65,000.

"We need all the help we can get," said Faulkner. "We've proven with Prop. 2½ that we can control taxes. Death and taxes are inevitable, but being taxed to death is not."

One resident noted that while taxes and fees are high, Massachusetts' average personal income is third highest in the nation.

Resident Barbara Joslin also said CLT is "robbing human services, the infrastructure ... it's an assault directly on these groups. Where are the limits of your efforts?"

Faulkner said the aim of CLT is to place Prop. 2½ as an amendment in the state constitution. He also added that Massachusetts' social spending

Selectmen will review French 'Sister City' offer

City Mayor and Congressman Michel Pericard of St. Germain-en-Laye, France visits Winchester Monday evening, March 19 and all day Tuesday, March 20, discussing with the Board of Selectmen and area business representatives, the possibility of entering into a "sister city" relationship.

Mayor Pericard was first contacted last fall by intermediary John Lyons. The Board of Selectmen delegated Judie Muggia, who was to visit France in October, to contact Mayor Pericard to present him the Winchester 350th medal and to invite him to visit Winchester to further the sister city program.

Mayor Pericard will arrive in Winchester in time to be welcomed by the Board of Selectmen Monday evening and will enjoy a full program of events on Tuesday. Because Winchester High School students have enjoyed exchanges in the past with St. Germain-en-Laye and will do so again this spring, Mayor Pericard will visit the High School Foreign Language Department, meet area business interests to discuss future exchanges, and will visit Boston as well.

POLICE LOG

7:44 p.m.

Officer Joseph O'Connor was dispatched to Highland Avenue for a past breaking and entering. The property owner said the break occurred sometime between 2 and 7:30 p.m. that day. The perpetrator allegedly entered the home through the side door to the kitchen, said police reports.

Police also believed a screw driver was used to force open the door. A fax machine was reported missing from the home. Officer Gray arrived to investigate.

6:32 p.m.

Officer James Covino was dispatched to Summer Street on a report of a breaking and entering in progress.

When the officer arrived he spoke to the homeowner, an 80-year-old man, who told police he was in the basement when he heard glass breaking on the first floor.

The officer observed glass broken by the front door and a third window broken near the door that divides the vestibule from the front door, said reports.

The owner said he saw the perpetrator walking down the stairway from the second floor to the first floor. He described the suspect as a tall man, 5'5" to 5'8". According to police reports, when the owner approached the suspect, the suspect threatened to harm him if he came closer.

The suspect then fled the area in a vehicle waiting outside.

Officers James Gray and James Pierce attempted to lift fingerprints from the area.

A neighbor was interviewed who reported he had seen a man leave the Summer Street home and flee in a 1984 or 1985 model Toronado, said reports. According to police, the neighbor also said a white female was waiting in the car. The car then proceeded up Summer Street with its lights out. The owner has reported nothing missing from the home at this time.

An investigation continues.

Saturday, March 10
5:40 p.m.

While on patrol, Officer Lawrence Hill stopped a Vine Street man and asked him for his license and registration.

The man did not have registration for his vehicle. A computer check showed the man's registration was out of New York state and had expired June, 1988.

When informed of the results of the computer check, the 27-year-old man confirmed his registration had expired. He told police he had been living in Winchester for more than a year.

The man was cited for operating an unregistered and uninsured vehicle. His vehicle was towed from the scene.

8:12 a.m.

Officer Steven Fields responded to Purity Supreme for a reported shoplifter. Upon arrival, the officer spoke with the two managers who told police a man had attempted to take three cartons of cigarettes out of the store by slipping them under his jacket.

When approached by the managers, the man had pushed aside one of them, who is pregnant, in an attempt to flee the area, reports said.

According to police, both managers said they would press charges for shoplifting and assault and battery. With assistance from Officer Daniel Perenick the 34-year-old Stoneham man was placed under arrest.

Thursday, March 8
9:17 p.m.

Officer Lawrence Hill was dispatched to the intersection of Everett Avenue and Bacon Street for a report of a three-car hit-and-run motor vehicle accident.

Upon arrival, the officer spoke with two of the operators, a Waltham man and a Fernway Road woman.

The Waltham man told police he was exiting Everett Avenue when a car traveling south on Bacon Street at a high rate of speed struck his car.

The hit-and-run car then crossed over into the eastbound lane of traffic on Bacon Street and hit the car driven by the Fernway Road resident, said police reports.

According to reports, the hit-and-run car then headed south on Bacon Street toward Medford. The victims of the accident were not able to get the registration number of the vehicle, but identified the car as a light-colored Lincoln-style car, said reports.

Both vehicles were driven from the scene. Medford Police were notified of the description of the car and Winchester Officer Kurt Ellis also checked the area. No parts from the hit-and-run car had been left at the scene.

Trial to be set for woman arrested in raid of salon

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Emily Schmale, 18, of 24 Yale St. was brought before Judge Louis Gonnella at a probable cause hearing last week on drug charges stemming from her arrest Sept. 22 at Parkview Hair Salon in Winchester.

Gonnella found sufficient evident to bring Schmale to Superior Court. She is currently awaiting a trial date.

A combined drug raid orchestrated by local, regional and state law enforcement officials resulted in the arrest of Schmale, Joseph Forester, 44, of Spruce Street, John P. Griffin, 30, of Orange Street in Woburn and Anthony Bellino, Jr., 24, of Lincoln Street in Lexington.

The bust was conducted by Winchester Police, NEMLEC (Northeast Metropolitan Law Enforcement Council) forces and DEA (Drug Enforcement Adminstration) agents, who stormed the Swanton Street site following a lengthy investigation.

The four were arraigned Sept. 26 in Woburn District Court on charges of illegal drug activites, after the raid allegedly turned up cocaine, heroin and drug paraphernalia and confirmed the suspicions of local police that the 102 Swanton St. business was a center for drug distribution. Each of the defendants entered a plea of not guilty at the arraignment.

A three-week surveillance period gave Winchester detectives enough evidence to secure a search warrant for the raid.

According to Detective Lt. James Pierce, Schmale has been charged with manufacturing/distributing a class B (cocaine), illegal possession of a class B substance (cocaine) and conspiracy to violate controlled substance law.

Judge Frances P. Cullen declined jurisdiction regarding Schmale's case, thus the hearing for probable cause.

Forester was charged with manufacturing/distributing a class B substance (cocaine) to a minor, illegal possession of a class B substance (cocaine), possession of an instrument used to administer a controlled substance (syringe), conspiracy to violate controlled substance law and illegal possession of a class A substance (heroin). Forester has been arraigned on these charges in Superior Court and is awaiting trial.

Bellino was charged with manufacturing/distributing a class B substance (cocaine), illegal possession of a class B substance (cocaine) and conspiracy to violate the controlled substance law. He has also been arraigned on these charges before Superior Court and is awaiting trial.

Griffin was charged with illegal possession of a class A substance (heroin) and possession of an instrument to administer a controlled substance (syringe). He was found guilty and sentenced to 18 months probation in district court.

Photography museum plans coming into focus

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Arthur Griffin's dream of a photography museum is getting closer to becoming reality.

Andrew Cohn and William Martin of Hale and Door, legal counsel for the project, along with architect Richard Wills presented the new plan to selectmen Monday night.

Cohn presented a summary of the proposed Shore Road site lease. According to Cohn, the covenants drawn up between Town Counsel Wade Welch and Griffin's attorneys provide "some very strong protections."

Operation of the facility will be the responsibility of a trust. Should the trust default on payments, the property would revert back to the town.

A Winchester resident and world-class photographer, Griffin has been planning such a museum for years. Griffin, who is in his eighties, has found, however, that the road to the museum's construction is littered with red tape.

Recently, the Board of Selectmen has pushed to bring the dream of Griffin's museum to fruition.

The use of the property is to be limited to the photography museum and other non-profit uses. If the property reverts to the town, however, these limitations would be eliminated, said Cohn. "The town would not have to run it (as) non-profit. The town would have a beautifully built building without any restrictions," he added.

The trust will design and build the museum, as well as obtain the necessary permits at its own expense.

The trust will solicit donations to establish an endowment fund to pay for operating expenses, and any profits will be used to operate the museum and to fund a scholarship for a high school student.

"I think the benefits to the town are clear," said Cohn.

The proposed building will be a barn style, clapboard grist mill, according to Wills. The square footage of the building meets the 80 percent open space, 20 percent occupancy requirements of the town. Although the building is still in the schematic stages, the facility will contain a room for displaying Griffin's cameras, a room to exhibit Griffin's photography, and another area for guest exhibits. Storage space and office space will also be provided.

Cohn estimates the structure and surrounding landscaping will take 12 to 14 months to complete.

"We're certainly hoping everything comes to fruition," said Selectman Steve Powers. "We hope Arthur (Griffin) gets the museum he deserves."

The selectmen will propose a warrant article to Town Meeting to address the necessary zoning issues.

League report reviews level of school services

By RANDI WADE
Special to the Star

The following is the second part of a two-part series on the effect of Proposition 2½ on the school budget as researched by the League of Women Voters.

School Administration: How efficient

Is Winchester directing a larger part of its budget to paying school personnel? According to the League's analysis, there is only a five percent difference between 1981 (76 percent) and 1990 (81 percent).

ANALYSIS

The effect of cost control has reduced the "other expenses" which includes supplies, contractual agreements, special needs and utilities, from 23 percent to 18 percent.

Is administrative overhead out of line? A comparison of selected towns with, of course, different school configurations, in the Lincoln-Sudbury consortium, places Winchester at the lower end of the range for central adminstrators. Winchester has three administrators amid a range of two to six. Similarly, Winchester's administrative costs are 10 percent within a range of 10 to 12 percent.

SAT scores

Operating in a dynamic environment of changes in the school population, constant dollar decreases to the school budget, and reconfiguration of the physical plant, Winchester's school system as presented by the League has fostered an increasing level of student achievement, as measured by a four percent gain in SAT scores over the last decade.

Special education

The League also considered the question of whether or not special education is out of line. A common feeling, according to the League, is that the system spends a disproportionate amount of money on special education. However, much of the spending is state mandated, over which the town has little discretion. The League also discovered that it serves not a few, but a substantial number of children in Winchester.

In 1981, 15.5 percent or 554 children were receiving special education services, versus 18 percent or 515 in 1989. The majority, 350, are covered under Regulation 502.2 which provides one to six hours a week with a specialist outside regular classroom instruction.

Voluntary contributions

Although the School Department does not maintain a list of contributions, there is a general consensus that financial aid by parents has increased dramatically in the last two years. It included such items as ground upkeep, copiers, sports programs, art supplies, hedge clippers, playground equipment, etc.

Increasing the disparity between those schools that had parents willing to make donations and those that could not afford to do so, was the issue that emerged from the League's analysis.

According to the report, teachers and principals were concerned about their level of discretion over their funds, often wishing funds could be concentrated on enrichment and scholarship, rather than supplies and the physical plant.

Quality

Class size followed by single grade classes were the key ingredients teachers and principals saw in providing a quality education. Both groups were asked to rank the importance of: class size, presence of aides, singles grades, buying new textbooks, buying supplies and other.

Ability to teach

According to teachers, the impact has been moderatly negative. The lack of resources and concerns about class size are what both principals and teachers find most distressing.

Due to budget constraints, principals' three greatest concerns for the future were: loss of good new teachers, increase in class sizes and how morale would be affected. The teachers were also concerned about class size, as well as the loss of support from the community and that poor schools would result.

State money

Adjustment and reconfiguration have been the constants of the last decade, but not totally as a consequence of Proposition 2½. It was clear from the numbers presented by the League that Winchester has, until late, not suffered the full impact of Prop. 2½. New town revenues, drawing down town reserves, federal grants and state aid have served as buffers.

Level services

Declining enrollments, increased state aid, spending new town revenues and cash reserves, and putting off building maintenance have been the ingredients of Winchester's fiscal balancing act.

Since the enactment of Proposition 2½, the cushion of increasing state aid supported the town's vital services, as it did many others in the Commonwealth, It softened the impact of the belt-tightening that did occur.

But it is perhaps this cushion, ironically, that has caused the skepticism of the townspeople. The buffer, in combination with declining enrollments, counteracted the impact of inflation.

Robinson new Century advertising director

Susan Robinson has been named advertising manager for Century Newspapers, it was announced this week by Asa Cole, publisher of Century Newspapers, part of the Harte-Hanks Communications, Inc.

Robinson had been special-sections and national advertising manager for the Middlesex News, another Harte-Hanks affiliate.

Robinson has worked for the News for more than 10 years in a variety of capacities, including the credit department, classified advertising, outside sales, national advertising coordinator and coop manager.

"Her background gives her the ideal perspective on all our business," said Cole. "Her professionalism and dedication to quality work make her the ideal person to lead our sales efforts."

Robinson replaces Kathy Hivish, who has taken a position as general manager of the Summerfield Newspapers in New Jersey.

is the third highest in the country.

Faulkner said the problems within state programs are not being solved, but rather are expanding. "If you don't give them (state agencies) money in the first place, they can't waste it," said Faulkner.

Joslin called for a review, reorganization or audit of state programs to find problems, but not to eliminate certain funding entirely.

Resident Ann Matarese, candidate for the Board of Selectmen, voiced her opposition to an override of Prop. 2½ in Winchester. "I would rather try restructuring and fail rather than fail to try," said Matarese.

"We need to trim," added Matarese, "and it's not going to be painless."

Resident Anthony Conte questioned the amount Winchester currently spends on education. "We as taxpayers have a right to keep what we earn," said Conte.

The Override Committee is a group of your neighbors from all walks of life. We believe in the town's future, and we feel that our elected officials have responded honestly and vigorously in the face of loss of state aid, the depletion of our cash reserves, and already severe staff cutbacks. We do not relish additional taxes, but we are convinced that now is the time for our town to work together. The override question...

- raises $1.39 million for the town budget
- is a debt exclusion, not a general override
- is a temporary measure that decreases with the debt
- costs the typical $300,000 house only $3.60 per week

Schmitt cites experience factor

Thomas W. Schmitt

"Choosing a Selectman is a lot like hiring an employee. When organizations fill a job, first they review its required duties and responsibilities, and then they select someone whose skills and experience have best prepared them for the tasks to be done. Seldom are those decisions based on a single duty or ability; all factors are important. Citizens do the same thing when voting for a Selectman; they consider a candidate's views, skills and experience and select the person best suited to serve. My training and background have prepared me particularly well to continue as a Selectmen, and I want to review the abilities I offer Winchester.

"My experience in town government is diverse. Since 1987, I have been honored to be a member of the Board of Selectmen, and have served as its chair for the past year. I have been a Town Meeting Member since 1985, and according to the town clerk my attendance record is still perfect. Before joining the Board of Selectmen, I served for two years as a member of the Personnel Board, and chaired it in 1986-7. Serving on the Special Insurance Advisory Committee was my first experience in Town service. As you may recall, in the 1986 committee report to Town Meeting, I recommended changes to our health insurance programs that saved $90,000. I have also served as a member of the Town Meeting Special Study Committee on Low and Moderate Income Housing, and a member of the Housing Partnership Board, which I chaired last year.

"I am an associate dean at Harvard Medical School, where I am responsible for managing the $80 million research program, human resources, endowments and several other faculty and staff services. Before that, I worked at Masachusetts General Hospital, where I managed that organization's compensation programs. Between 1971 and 1978 I was Personnel Manager and labor negotiator for the public transportation authority in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. I am also proud of my five years in the Navy, which included Vietnam service from 1967 through 1969.

"During my three years on the Board of Selectmen I have applied many of my skills and experiences to Town business. Preparing and presenting budget analyses, arranging for alternative employee benefit plans, negotiating labor agreements, negotiating and writing terms for the Winchester Housing Fund, and initiating the Town's comprehensive water system improvement program are achievements that come to mind.

"I make my living managing. That's what I want to continue doing for Winchester. On March 27, you will decide what kind of leadership you expect from the Board of Selectman. My opponent has told you all the things she opposes, focusing most of her attention on a single issue — proposition 2½. I promise you thoughtful analysis, consideration of all issues, a willingness to listen to everyone's point of view, and hard work. As you "hire" your next selectman, I ask that you keep those differences in mind."

Matarese focuses on quality of life

The "quality of life" in Winchester is a phrase that is repeatedly used during this campaign. What does this phrase really mean? I'm sure that if we asked fifty people to define the "quality of life" we would probably get fifty different responses. I would like to share with you my thoughts on what the "quality of life" in Winchester means to me.

From an economic perspective, the "quality of life" in Winchester means effective and efficient management of our town. It means a philosophical commitment to fiscal responsibility that mandates the town lives within the constraints of Proposition 2½. It means being sensitive to the economic means of all our citizens. It means a commitment to become "fiscally fit" for the nineties. It means running the town like a business before we are literally out of business. It means prioritizing our needs, evaluating our personnel and adjusting our spending accordingly. It means a philosophical change in the old equation from how much can we spend to how are we spending our money. It means acknowledging we are taxed to the max and now is the time to get the maximum out of our taxes. Finally, from an economic perspective, the "quality of life" in Winchester means NOT overriding Proposition 2½, rather we must start adhering to it.

From a social and philosophical perspective, the "quality of life" in Winchester means creating a climate where young and old, and rich or poor, respect the inherent value of every citizen in our town. It means providing quality education for our children, and at the same time, being sensitive to the needs of all our municipal departments. It means being open to new concepts and new directions. It means having the courage to try new ideas and risk failing, rather than being guilty of failing to try. It means coming to terms with the philosophy that less does not translate into inferior. It means consolidation of services does not mean elimination of services. It means accepting the fact that the only alternative to limited spending is unlimited spending.

Finally, the quality of life in Winchester is anything we choose it to be. The next few years are going to be difficult times for all of us. As Dickens wrote, "It was the best of times and it was the worst of times." I hope this campaign will bring out the best of all of us and I pray that in the years to come, we can look back on these times and say our town was at its best when our elected public officials had the courage to finally face the challenge of fiscal responsibility. If we keep the faith, then together, we can do more for Winchester. After all, it is OUR choice!

McKay: school board needs unity

Dr. William (Bill) McKay stated that he became a candidate for the School Committee because he believes that the Committee no longer represents the views or the interests of the voters of Winchester.

The failure of the "Massachusetts Miracle" and the paralysis of state government have left our town with a financial crisis. This should have been a time for us to join together as a community and work to solve our problems. A time for leadership, hard work and innovation. Instead of working together, we are at cross-purposes. We have disunity, divisiveness and polarization. We have school administrators and teachers who feel as if they are under siege. Parents are pitted against parents, neighbor against neighbor and school against school. It is a prescription for disaster.

The School Committee, which needs to be the unifying factor in working out the resolution of this problem, is actually a major contributor. Their actions — closing a school at a time of rising enrollment; flip-flops over the middle school; inability to work out budget figures with other town officials — have caused a general loss of confidence in the process of running the school system.

We deserve better. I believe Winchester deserves a School Committee which is reasoned, objective, knowledgeable, fair and respected. A School Committee which listens and respects the opinions of its own teachers, parents and concerned members of the community. A School Committee which has the confidence of the voters that it is acting in the best interests of all the children and taxpayers of Winchester. A School Committee which is committed to building a consensus for Winchester's educational goals.

As a School Committee member, I will work to develop a five year plan for our school system. A plan which will detail where we are going, how we are going to get there, and how we will know that we did the job well. A plan which incorporates the views of administrators, teachers, parents and other citizens. Budgets will be reviewed in public session, line item by line item.

I promise innovation. I don't believe those who say "We can't do that" or "We tried that five years ago and it didn't work" I pledge to make myself available to any group and provide straight, honest answers. Finally, I pledge to work as hard for our schools as a School Committee member as I have during this campaign. I made it my goal to visit the house of every voter in Winchester and I believe I am going to do it before March 27.

I ask that you pull the lever next to McKay on March 27 and give me the opportunity to work toward consensus and unity for the next three years. Whatever is decided, my sincere thanks to the voters of Winchester who have shown me such kindness when I visited your neighborhoods. You have made me especially proud to be a part of Winchester.

Pavelle sees a public's library

My name is Anne Deborah Pavelle, and I ask for your help to become a Trustee for our library. I want to become your link to library policies, procedures and future development. Ours should be the public's library, serving the public's needs, with patron input being heard and supported by the Trustees.

While campaigning and meeting patrons I find great interest being generated by my ideas. I find patrons very responsive to progressive ideas, such as user surveys regarding hours, and providing mechanisms for patrons to comment, be heard and receive response.

I propose to work to implement the following changes to make the library more user friendly by:

- Moving the children's circulation desk downstairs.
- Conducting a survey to determine preferred library opening hours and days.
- Developing a volunteer group through the Friend's to handle renewals over the telephone during specific hours.
- Installing a pay telephone within the library.
- Reviewing the cost effectiveness of fines on books and videos.

The library has a critical need for better public relations. I will keep the public better informed by:

- Determining whether the Trustee's meetings can be included in Cable TV's monthly program listing.
- Placing closed suggestions boxes in every room.
- Writing newspaper articles following the Trustee meetings.
- Placing the agenda of the meetings in the newspaper.

I also propose to work towards a more vigorous fund raising effort, through the Friends, which would address specific targets to improve our library.

I am a Winchester resident of 12 years, married with two children in high school and one in elementary school. I received my BA from Douglass College (Rutgers University) and my MA from Case-Western Reserve University. I am a practicing Speech Language Pathologist, professional story teller, Brownie leader and a very active user of the library. I have an open mind, a deep interest in our Library's welfare and a willingness to serve our town.

Chefalo wants to shape town future

Harry E. Chefalo has announced his candidacy for one of the two available terms of the Planning Board.

"Having lived in Winchester all my life and believing it to be one of the finest communities anywhere, I would like to have the opportunity to help shape its future.

"Through the years it has been my great honor to serve our town in many capacities: Selectman, six years; Water & Sewer Board, six years; Finance Committee, 12 years; Board of Survey, three years; Town Meeting Member, 40 years; many appointed committees.

"Most relevant to my qualifications for serving on the Planning Board was my experience on the Board of Survey which had the responsibility for final approval of all subdivision plans. Ultimately, this responsibility was turned over to the Planning Board.

"Two of the many issues which the Planning Board will address in the coming year and which are of particular interest to me are the Woburn Loop land and the future of north Main Street.

"Since I was a Selectman when negotiations were initiated with the B & M for the Woburn Loop, I would like to have the opportunity to help bring this issue to a successful conclusion.

"With both the Woburn Loop and Main Street abutters, I believe it is important that they have input and are not hurt by the final solution. In my opinion, each parcel should be considered individually. Since the town meeting has dealt with individual parcels in the past and both the town and the abutters have been satisfied with the results, I feel strongly that this is the correct process.

"I would like very much to see the Planning Board present all of its ideas to town meeting and to abide by the town meeting vote.

"If you agree with me that my extensive experience and proven interest in our town qualify me to serve on the Planning Board, I will appreciate your vote on March 27."

Bailey advocates affordable housing

As do many of my fellow-townfolk, I strongly believe in serving my community. In 1987, I decided that one of the ways that I could best do this would be to serve on the local housing authority. At the time, the question of affordable housing was one of the most compelling issues that we forced on the Commonwealth. As a young father with an increasing family and as a public sector employee with a checking account that was decreasing with similar rapidity, I believed that I could contribute a particular sensitivity and insight to the position.

Since joining the Authority in 1987, I have let that sensitivity and insight dictate my performance as a Commissioner. I have consistently advocated increasing housing opportunities in Winchester, especially for our fixed income elderly, single parent families and for the town's public sector employees. At the same time, however, I have also made sure that my enthusiasm for the outdoors and devotion to open space and conservation along with my dedication to the preservation of Winchester's character and design are accorded a level of equal significance in working towards the resolution of our housing problem. In combining these interests and sensitivities, I know that my service on the Authority has already made a positive impact. I am proud of my efforts on behalf of my constituency and know that I have made a difference. I am also proud of the strides that have been made by the community as a whole towards addressing our collective housing needs. In recent years Winchester has expended effort, thought and resources toward the resolution of this extremely difficult problem.

Unfortunately, the housing crisis remains as compelling today as it was when I joined the Authority three years ago. One need only note that the waiting period of Chapter 667 elderly housing remains close to four years, that the number of families seeking Chapter 705 subsidies is close to two hundred, that the list for available 707 housing vouchers has barely moved during my tenure and that the current number of Section 8 applicants far exceeds the number of vouchers in existence, to realize how much remains to be done in the area of local housing assistance. In short, while we should all be pleased with some of our minor victories, we have a long way to go before we can help each other on winning the war.

My opponent believes that the Housing Authority should "get out" of the business of building affordable housing. One wonders whether this position belies a belief that the Authority should not be in the business of housing at all. This underlying "lassez-faire" approach is shortsighted, counterproductive and misleading. By definition, the Housing Authority is charged with looking after the housing needs of the community for which it serves. This charge requires a "pro-active," not a "re-active" approach to the housing crisis. Accordingly, as elected officials members of the Authority have an obligation to seek funding for building construction and to bring the related means and opportunity to the attention of Town Meeting, in whose hands actual implementation, acceptance and action remains. To purposefully ignore such opportunities or to knowingly decline to place the community in a position to take advantage of such circumstances is a dereliction of duty.

It is also a dereliction of duty to blindly ignore the needs and idiosyncratic concerns of one's own community. All of us on the Authority are acutely aware of the financial and physical constraints we are facing. As a homeowner and parent I too want to presrve our community design and integrity. Further, having supported and analyzed a study of the current inventory of available public land, I am well aware of how space short (as Town Meeting member I also know how cash poor) we presently are. Therefore, my pledged initiatives are to work within our limited framework. I will continue to lobby for an increase in Section 8 and 707 vouchers. I will push for money in the town's housing trust fund to be applied toward the purchase and renovation of existing properties. I will insist that park land and passive and active recreational spaces be preserved. I will urge that private developers supply on-site housing as opposed to cash contributions (money will not help if we have nowhere to build) under our inclusionary zoning provisions. I will continue to emphasize re-purchase and rehab as to appropriate initiatives and do all I can to persuade legislative and executive agreement. I will continue to listen to presentations on limiting equity cooperatives and "Teller" and "Sharp" housing programs and related funding initiatives. I will persist in requesting a long-range housing plan that takes into account all of our competing needs and interests.

My operable word will be initiative. With your help, I will continue to take the initiative to actively seek those options and alternatives that are appropriate for public debate and consideration. I appreciate the support you have shown me in the past, and hope that you will assist me in the future.

Submittted by the Candidate, R. Bradford Bailey.

Lombardi: schools don't need override

As the only candidate for School Committee whose position is against the Override, I want to state that Winchester does not have to sacrifice it's high level of education due to financial constraints. It is not inconsistent to have a position against the override and for excellence in education. The fallacy of the position of the override proponents is that more money translates into better education. Actually there is no proven correlation between increased spending for education and an increased level of student achievement.

When I attend School Committee meetings and read news releases from the other candidates, I realize that everyone is caught up in the educational jargon that only helps to perpetuate the mediocrity of our countries' public education system. Statements such as, "our foremost goal has been to provide the best possible education for our children," and "we need more money to maintain quality in education," so vaguely define the goals of our schools that it leaves us nothing specific to strive for or measure our successes by.

When you listen to the public, you hear that they simply want a better system. One concerned parent wrote me the following, "What is needed is more of a focus on quality, not as defined by the 'experts' who are part of the system but by the consumers; the parents and students, and the colleges, businesses and other institutions into which Winchester students graduate. Quality needs to be better defined and measured."

I recommend that in order to evaluate the quality of our system, we must establish a comprehensive list of measures that would be tracked year to year. This list must not only include typical quantitative measures such as college board and S.A.T. scores, but also qualitative measures such as teacher, student and parent satisfaction. The more accurately we define what a quality education means to us, the easier it will be to prioritize our spending and decide where the strength and weaknesses are in our system.

Yes, we do have a strong and respected school system, but I believe there is room for improvement. How can we publicly praise our S.A.T. scores on one hand while parents are sending their children to private tutors on the other hand. What good does it do to continually compare our quality of education to surrounding communities while the competition from other countries continually moves ahead of us at an alarming rate?

When I am elected to the School Committee I will work with teachers and parents to define what a quality education is and I will prioritize spending to best provide this education. Until this happens, our School Administration will continue to react to the present instead of plan for the future. A clear focus on these objectives and an acceptance of our financial constraints could prove to be the impetus necessary for creativity and innovation in our educational system.

Browning stresses library services

"I am Ellen B. Browning and I am a candidate for re-election as a Trustee of the Winchester Public Library.

"In my last release I talked about the importance of meeting accreditation standards.

"Another of my goals is to upgrade library service. Since the passage of Proposition 2½, we have gone from being open 70 hours per week to 50. Where we were previously open seven days a week we are now open five. The library is closed on Sundays and Fridays. The budget cuts have cost us the equivalent of 3½ persons over the past two years which in turn has forced us to consolidate the adult and children's circulation activities into one department and desk. We realize that given two entrances and exits in our building library books and other materials "disappear" because security is much more difficult to maintain.

"What must be done? We must pass the debt exclusion on the March ballot. This is the only way we can maintain state accreditation, continue to receive state funds, and upgrade library services.

"But, assuming the debt exclusion does not pass, what then? Be assured that I, along with the other Trustees will do our best, given the reduced budget, to look for ways to continue operating the Library as the valuable institution that it has always been. Our first effort will be to mount a campaign to convince Town Meeting to reinstate the budget. At the same time I would promote volunteerism in the community since, with a reduced budget, further cut-backs in the professional staff may be necessary. The great number of people, old and young, in Winchester who love and use the library may be an untapped resource. I will explore the issue of annual fund drives and other money raising events with funds to be used as operating income.

"I will continue to support the long term efforts of the Trustees in conjunction with the Friends of the Winchester Public Library to explore options for developing the existing library building account and the establishment of an endowment for the purpose of funding a library expansion effort.

"In summary, what do I stand for? I am an advocate for the library. I will vote yes on the debt exclusion issue on the March ballot. I am committed to exploring ways to improve the building so that it functions better. I wish to continue my efforts of maintaining the high standards of the library which is Winchester's only educational and cultural resource serving all our citizens."

Jervey stands on budget record

Six years ago, when I joined the School Committee, building an education buget was a political process. Today it is a disciplined management exercise. I have encouraged and supported the formal program and curriculum reviews which have enhanced our strongest departments and begun to revitalize our weakest. I pushed for the central office reorganization which cut an assistant superintendent position and the associated secretarial support. Our energy conservation program has reduced utility bills by 10 percent. I have worked to develop and promote creative approaches to controlling special education costs while improving special education programs. As Chairman of the committee, I changed the focus of the budget presentation to demonstrate more clearly to Town Meeting the costs and benefits of our educational spending.

All these efforts have helped us to improve the quality of our system. We reduced split-grade classrooms from 19 in 1983-84 to zero last year. We reduced the largest elementary classroom sizes from 30 children to 25. We provided more comprehensive counseling support at both the elementary and secondary levels. We brought music back to the junior high school. We have sought continuously to improve our academic programs and to maintain our extracurricular activities. Our schools are in better shape now than they were six years ago, yet our costs have grown less than the communities around us, and less even than the average of all cities and towns in Massachusetts.

I am proud of the success we have been able to share in Winchester these past six years. But as I look to the next three years, I see even greater challenges ahead. Two years ago, we made modest cuts in our budget: a guidance counselor at the high school, sabbatical leave funds, and $50,000 in deferred equipment expenses. Last year, we made larger cuts: 14.5 instructional positions throughout all levels of the system, one more counselor at the high school and one at the elementary level, two aides at the high school, the director of the science department, $75,000 in supplies and other general expenses, and another $60,000 in deferred equipment purchases. And this year, even if an override passes, we will have to make an additional $400,000 worth of cuts in programs and services.

Has the system fallen apart? No, of course not. We have built a far sturdier house than that. But we are chipping away at the foundation. You don't take over a million dollars away without doing some damage. On the other hand, I believe we can pull together and get through these difficult financial times. It will take hard work and an enormous commitment. My commitment to continued excellence has been the investment of some 1500 hours in the past six years. I have put in the time and the energy to come to the table prepared to contribute. I have tried to provide thoughtful leadership, and to make a contribution to this house of education that will stand through the difficult years.

One of my opponents suggests that we should welcome the end of public education as we have known it in Winchester. I suggest we have too much invested in our children and in our future to give up because times are hard. We owe our children more than that. We owe ourselves more than that. This is a time for our community to come together and face our challenges head on. I offer experienced leadership and proven success. And I am not ready to throw in the towel or to look for easy ways out. I am ready to settle for nothing less than a continued commitment to excellence in education.

Thank you for your past support and your consideration on March 27.

SENIOR NEWS

Dr. Muggia will speak on the digestive system

By MARY P. KELLY
Special to the Star

Dr. Albert Muggia, a gastroenterologist practicing in Winchester, will present a program outlining the prevention, treatment, and care, for changes in the digestive system, on Friday, March 16, at 10:30 a.m., at the Jenks Senior Center.

Dr. Muggia is a prominent local physician, on the staff of the Winchester Hospital, who is giving his time to make a presentation to seniors of the town.

In addition to presenting a very informative session on gastro intestinal issues, Dr. Muggia will answer questions about the digestive system and gastro intestinal problems. This program is sponsored by the Jenks Center's Health Committee. There is no sign up and no charge. The program follows the exercise classes.

St. Mary's dancers to entertain at Jenks

Students from St. Mary's School will be entertaining seniors at the Jenks Center on Friday, March 16, at 12:30 p.m., following the Eating Together luncheon.

Practicing as a combination and making visits to various elder institutions, as arranged by St. Mary's faculty advisor, Susan Vacanti, this talented group of dancers, ages 9 to 14, has brought pleasure and enjoyment to many. Come and see them on the 16th at the Jenks Center. Their teacher is Nancy Boudreau, daugther of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Boudreau Jr. of Winchester, and herself an alumna of St. Mary's School.

If you have not signed up for the luncheon, you are always welcome to come for the performance which will start at 12:30 p.m.

Enjoying the taste of eating right

Since March is National Nutrition Week, Peg Mikkola, Registered Dietitian from the Minuteman Home Care, will present a program entitled "Enjoying the Taste of Eating Right," on Monday, March 19, at 12:30 p.m., after the Eating Together luncheon. Ms. Mikkola will review what seniors should look for in frozen foods and supermarket foods. If you are unable to make the luncheon, you are welcome to come for the presentation at the Jenks Center, on the 19th at 12:30 p.m.

Medicare, Medigap changes reviewed

The Health Benefits Committee is offering a workshop on Monday, March 19, at 1:30 p.m., for seniors interested in reviewing the Medicare and Medigap changes. Material will be provided and Health Benefits Counselors will be present to advise attendees with interpretations of the new regulations.

Upcoming events

Thursday, March 22 — Tax Assistance, 9 to 11:30 a.m.; informal Crafts group, 9:30 a.m.; Bridge, 12:30 p.m.; Italian lessons, 1 p.m.

Reminder: On Friday, March 23, at 2 p.m., there will be a meeting of the Senior After Care (SAC) Volunteers, a group of volunteers who make home visits in town under the supervision of SAC Nurse June Hall. Newcomers are always welcome. Contact June if you are interested in giving of your time and volunteer service in this manner.

Glee Club alert

Members of the Jenks Center's Glee Club are reminded that, with the Glee Club rehearsal of March 13 having been cancelled, it is most important that all members be present at the rehearsal on March 27, as this will be the last rehearsal in preparation for the Intergenerational Spring Concert.

Eating Together menu

Please remember to sign up by 11 a.m. the day before the meal and let the desk volunteer know if you need transportation. The meal is served at 12 noon. Newcomers are always welcome.

Friday, March 16 — stuffed shells, tomato sauce, tossed salad, wax beans, scali bread, brownie.

Monday, March 19 — breaded chicken nuggets with sweet and sour sauce, au gratin potatoes, broccoli, cranberry muffin, chilled fruit.

Wednesday, March 21 — chicken teryaki, chinese rice, french style green beens, sourdough bread, fresh fruit.

National Women's History month

The month of March is National Women's History Month, honoring women who have played and continue to play important roles in America's history. Among those cited for their contributions is Marian Anderson, Opera Star, who said, in an interview in 1955, after her debut as the first Black opera star to perform with the Metropolitan Opera, "As long as you keep a person down, some part of you has to be down there to hold him down, so it means you cannot soar as you otherwise might."

Financial planning for the nineties

Under the sponsorship of the WSA Education Committee, Mr. James A. McKay will discuss retirement planning, tax planning, and estate planning on Monday, March 19, at 10:30 a.m., relating these topics to the possible inflation, increase in taxation and economic instability of the unpredictable new decade. Mr. McKay is a Personal Finance Planner and Registered Representative of the IDS Financial Services, Inc./American Express Company, and is known to be an interesting and informative speaker. No sign up is required, and there is no charge.

Julia Hennessey, a Winchester senior citizen, recently recalled memories of the 1920s and 1930s, the depression years, to benefit the Winchester High School Junior Class social studies students. Julia was a nurse who did public health nursing and home visiting during that era. Memories of those years were also shared by 12 other seniors as part of the Council on Aging's intergenerational project, under the subcommittee chairmanship of William O'Conner, who is also Director of the Social Studies Department at the High School. Pictured with Julia are three of the students, Stephanie Ciano, Cortney Perkins, and Sheila McCarthy, and Clarence Olson, Instructor.

Two earn BC High honors

Two residents of Winchester have been named to the second term honor roll at Boston College High School.

Jeffrey C. Vacanti son of Dr. and Mrs. Vacanti of Hillcrest Parkway received high honors.

Brian J. Vacanti son of Dr. and Mrs. Vacanti of Hillcrest Parkway received honors.

High Honors are awarded to sophomores, juniors and seniors who have achieved a quality point average of at least 3.85 with all grades being no lower than a "C". For freshman, High Honors are achieved with a quality point average of at least 3.6 and all grades "C" or higher.

Honors are achieved by sophomores, juniors and seniors with a quality point average of at least 3.3 with all grades being a "C" or higher. For freshmen, the quality point average must be at least 3.25 with all grades "C" or higher.

Local students take part in geography bee

The finalists in the National Geography Bee competition included: David Borenstein and Guy Fodera. Borenstein is the son of Donald and Nancy Borenstein. Fodera is the son of Frank and Saretta Fodera.

The bee was kicked off the week of Jan. 2 in thousands of schools around the United States, District of Columbia and five U.S. territories. The school winners, will now take a written test; up to 100 of the top scorers in each state will be eligible to compete in their state bee March 30.

The National Geographic Society developed the National Georgraphy Bee in response to a growing concern about the lack of geographic knowledge among young people in the United States. A 10-country Gallup Survey conducted for the Society in 1988 and 1989 found that people in the U.S. ages 18 to 24, the youngest group surveyed, knew less about geography than young people in any of the other countries.

ABOUT TOWN

Casey earns high marks

Middlesex County legislators can be proud of their outstanding environmental voting record during the 1989 session, according to the Massachusetts Audobon Society. The Society released its annual "Legislative Report Card," which rates state legislators on their performace on environmental issues.

Winchester's own Representative Paul Casey scored 97 percent, according to Audubon officials, based on Massachusetts Audubon's stance on 29 environmental roll calls in 1989.

Rich watercolors are on display

More than twenty watercolor paintings will decorate the halls of Lawrence Memorial Hospital of Medford during the month of March. William A. Rich of Winchester is the featured artist-of-the-month at the hospital.

Bill Rich is a graduate of the Vesper George School of Art. He was a graphic designer for the Poloroid Corporation until his retirement in 1987.

Mr. Rich works in many mediums but prefers to paint in watercolors and render portraits in pastels. His works have been exhibited at various shows in the Greater Boston area. Emerson Hospital in Concord, Massachusetts has added to their permanent collection a portrait recently completed by Mr. Rich. Mr. Rich is a member of the Winchester Art Association.

Ad hoc revenue committee formed

The Board of Selectmen are seeking seven citizens who hold no other elected public office (except a Town Meeting member) to serve until a final report is delivered and the committee is dissolved by selectmen.

LIBRARY LINES

Friends hold monthly meeting

The Friends of the Winchester Public Library held their monthly meeting on Tuesday, March 6. President Madeleine Kaiser called the meeting to order at 7:30 p.m. With the success of the lecture by Robert Legvold behind them, they discussed ideas for next year's programs. Poetry and dramatic readings are among the possibilities for the coming year. They also discussed improvements in the Friends' newsletter and ways to make the most of volunteer assistance. The meeting was adjourned at 9:20 p.m.

Fundraiser

Did you know that when you purchase books from the book sale table in the library lobby you are helping to support programs like the summer reading program, the Robert Legvold lecture, and the school vacation week activities? The sale of these books raises money for the Friends of the Winchester Public Library, the group that supports most of these programs. By purchasing these books, you not only enrich yourself, but other library users as well.

Storytime

Tuesday, March 27 at 6:30 p.m. will be time for another Evening Family Story Time in the library's Children's Room. These story times are geared to children aged 2 to 6 and their families. The children are welcome to come in their pajamas. No registration is necessary.

Red Cross

Library users who are interested in the activities of the Red Cross should look at the materials in the library's display case this month. They illustrate this organization's ongoing work for the community. Brochures that describe their services and volunteer opportunities are available on the nearby pamphlet rack.

For information about any item mentioned in this column, please call the Winchester Public Library at 721-7171.

McKay Fundraiser a Success

A fundraiser for Dr. William (Bill) McKay who is campaigning for School Committee was held on Sunday evening, March 4th, at Ristorante Lucia in Winchester.

The room was filled to capacity with Bill's friends and supporters who turned out to partake of the delicious Italian cuisine personally provided by Anna Fratarolli and to participate in an evening of relaxation and, of course, great fun.

On a more serious note, Bill addressed the following major points:

- accountability and responsibility - community's input should be solicited as a part of the decision-making process.
- redistricting of 466 children across all school districts requires more thought and analysis.
- a commitment to long-term planning.

It was a timely gathering which will help to re-charge some batteries for the arduous campaigning to come during the next few weeks.

Paid for by the Committee to Elect Bill McKay.

Contributions make heros of all

By DAN CHANE
Special to The Star

Heroism takes many forms in Our Town — be it found in the firm dedication of Reverend Bill Huegel as he led his congregation towards a new era, only to have much of his work ruined by fire, temporarily — or Randy and Paula Swartz as they dedicate themselves anew to the needs of church and community, after the loss of their daughter.

How can we measure the generosity, of many years, of Lewis Parkhurst, unashamed lover of Dame Winchester — or the present day legacies of James and Evelyn Jenks to our elderly?

Mr. Arthur Griffin is also a hero, having never lost sight of the dream he wants to share with Winchester — despite political obstacles which would have broken lesser men.

Or how about the anonymous gentleman who spent a couple of weekends over at Wildwood Cemetery tidying it up last summer? A hero? Of course!

George Nowell and Paul Mahoney are two local businessmen who, despite personal demands, always seem to be there for the town when the occasion requires. They are Winchester class acts that are hard to beat — and speaking of business, think of the many contributions made to town life by members of the Chamber of Commerce.

Heroics were not part of the lifestyle of the shy Forrest Manchester — but he fought long and hard, and won for us a firm foundation for our present day park system.

Monsignor Joseph Lyons and Reverend Howard Chidley were the genuine article — filled with impassioned conviction and love — they were ours for too short a time.

The indomitable spirit of Dr. Leonor Rich leads the way toward greatness of the human condition. Having been broken in body a year ago — now up and about again, she makes each new encounter with her a shining event to be cherished.

Our D.P.W. employees, though much diminished in numbers, are still there when needed — and always ready to deliver a quality product to all of us, sometimes under unbelievable conditions.

Last year when the integrity of school sports programs was threatened, Lucille Bourque said "No!", and went out with a dedicated committee and did something about it!

In the last century, our water supply was born amidst stinging controversy, as are most worthwhile projects in town. James F. Dwinell, Moses A. Herrick and D.N. Skillings — for all their concern and foresight — were heaped with unbelievable abuse by Winchester citizens as they persevered with the Reservoir project. We all won!

"Let a Smile be Your Umbrella" must be the theme song of Betty Newell, even on these dark wintry days, as she tools down Main Street — full of a contagious zest for life — on her electric wheelchair.

Remember Police Officers Carl Fuller, Peter Hersee Jr., Tom Groux and Peter MacDonnell — the men who put their own lives second to those of a young mother and her son — or Lt. John Freitas and John McDonough of the Fire Department, who took the inert body of a little boy and brought back all the joyful possibilities of life?

"Just doing our jobs," they said!

Like them, we are all heroes in one way or another — each bringing a personal contribution to this place that just wouldn't be Winchester otherwise.

What is the best way to dispose of yard waste?

Yard waste includes the leaves, grass clippings, limbs and branches, brush, and any other organic debris from the yard, such as dead plants. In the United States in the recent past much of this material has ended up in landfills or in incinerators, approximately 28 million tons annually. A typical waste stream has about 18 percent yard waste. That amount translates into a hefty portion of a town's disposal costs. Since yard waste is organic material, it has the potential of returning to nature. Allowing this natural process to take place is also the cheapest and best way to dispose of yard waste.

The backyard compost pile is the closest place to dispose of yard waste. It saves the labor and expense of bagging and hauling it. All organic material from the yard except limbs, brush and stumps can go into the pile. The pile can be free form — just a corner of the yard — or more elaborate. Investing in a leaf shredder is one way to reduce quickly the size of a leaf pile as well as speed up the decomposition of the leaves. For gardeners compost is nature's gold. Mining it in your own

Assessors oppose override

The Winchester Board of Assessors are unanimously opposed to the override question presented before the Town at the March 27 elections. The Board stresses that fiscal responsibility should be the focal point among members of elected boards and committees. Taxpayers on fixed incomes can not afford any additional increases in their taxes above what is determined by Proposition 2½.

The Board is also considering adjusting values in Town based on the sales activity of 1989. The real estate market has been sluggish with fewer sales and prices dipping slightly over the past two years. Any adjustment to assessed values will be reflected in the tax rate, which must rise to compensate for the lowering of values. Therefore, the FY-91 tax rate may reach $12 if the override is successful and values are lowered in town.

The annual increase determined by Proposition 2½ will add 27 cents to the tax rate. If the override is successful, an additional 62 cents will be added to the rate. The possibility of lowering values modestly to reflect market conditions adds another 50 cents to the rate. The Board does not believe additional increase of taxes is warranted, nor can the majority of Winchester taxpayers young and old alike afford such a dramatic increase.

Winchester is good place to live

TO THE EDITOR:

As 32 year residents of Winchester, we appreciate living in this town. We have confidence in the caliber and honesty of the people willing to work and to volunteer their services to maintain Winchester as a good place to live.

We plan to vote for the override because we feel that our town will not be a desirable place to live in the future if the town budget has to be restricted more. A list of the threatened services is frightening:

- Inefficiency of Fire Department due to old equipment and lack of manpower as seen at recent Bacon Street fire.
- Further cuts in Police Department wiith problems increasing.
- Lack of Library accreditation will affect all users even more than present inconveniences.
- Reductions in School Department budget will not only lower the level of education but will also lower resale values of all property.

Voters should remember that inflation and reductions in State aid have already dangerously lowered our Reserve Funds. For those unable to pay the small increase in taxes, abatements and special considerations are available. Consult Selectman Muggia for details.

The time has come to vote for the override on March 27 and pull together for the good of all.

Claire M. Masters
Malcolm H. Masters

Override is opposed

TO THE EDITOR:

Let's reflect back for a moment to where Winchester was this time last year. We were in the middle of a Prop 2½ override debate. To be exact, a $1.3 million debt exclusion override debate. Sound familiar?

At this time last year we heard from the Alliance for Winchester's Future and the League of Women's Voters that the quality of life in town would deteriorate beyond recognition if the override did not pass. We were told that police and firemen would be scarce and that there would be trash all over the common. We were told that there would be giant potholes in the streets and that the sidewalks would not be safe for the senior citizens to walk on. From the School Committee and Community Schools Association we were told, among other things, that if the override failed it would mean the end of quality education in Winchester.

Well, here we are. Now is the time that all those terrible things and more were supposed to happen. Look around you. Winchester is still the same and the quality of education in our school is the same. There are teachers in the classrooms and our students are still getting into excellent Colleges and Universities. We even have computer banks in all five elementary schools. The common is as beautiful as always and we even had our usual holiday lights this past holiday season. Our streets are in good condition and as far as I know we have not lost anyone in a major sidewalk accident.

Did Winchester survive? Yes, nicely. Can Winchester survive without an override again? Yes, absolutely. Look at the cuts proposed by the Town Manager. There is nothing that terrible. No more police or firemen will be eliminated. On the school side unfortunately things are not so bright. I believe that is because of the lack of leadership and willingness to trim what is not necessary to provide quality public education. But that is the topic of another letter.

The bottom line? Don't listen to the Alliance for Winchester's Future and their new group, the Taxpayers for Public Education. Don't listen to the League of Women Voters or the CSA. What they said last year proved to be extreme and mostly untrue.

Be sure to vote on Tuesday March 27 and Vote no on the override.

Deirdre A. O'Connor.

Comments on override

TO THE EDITOR:

The opposition to an override of Proposition 2½ is motivated, we believe, by the widespread anti-tax sentiment in our commonwealth, and not by a desire to impair or dismantle the functionings of our local government.

Let's face it — we would all like to pay less taxes: federal, state and local. But the frustration and anger over "wasteful" spending, "bloated" bureaucracy, and "unresponsive" elected officials is simply misdirected when our town government is the target.

Perhaps it is because the federal and state tax burdens are too remote, complex, and difficult to influence that some people have focused their energies on reducing the local levy. But it is precisely because the town budget is understandable and scrutinized by concerned individuals, and because policy can be influenced by interested citizenry that we in Winchester enjoy a responsive, efficiently managed and honest town government. Of all the tax dollars we pay, our local taxes support the services which most directly benefit us and which we most directly control. It is a mistake to hobble our true "citizen government" because of frustration with the faceless institutions in Boston and Washington. We strongly support an override to maintain the legitimate and desirable functions of our town government.

Nevins comments on override

TO THE EDITOR:

As an active participant in town government for the last decade, I am increasingly distressed at being told to listen to the people; that the people have spoken and they want no more taxes.

The town government has listened to the people and there have been large cuts in all budgets. And these cuts have been and continue to be painful in spite of all protestations to the contrary.

Our municipal government has always been lean; in this last decade it has been stripped of all fat and is losing muscle and bone.

This is not the state. Our town government is not and never has been corrupt.

Winchester's elected officials are our friends and neighbors. They are people who wanted to know what was going on and why, and decided to find out by running for public office.

This decade has been, and continues to be, personally painful, as I have seen the budget for which I bear responsibility continuously eroded, so that what was a very good library is now threatened with the loss of its accreditation.

The Board of Selectmen, composed of representatives of the Taxpayers Association and of the Alliance, after an intense scrutiny of all town budgets, voted unanimously to place a debt exclusion question on the ballot. This fact should tell the people of Winchester that the time has come to listen to their elected officials.

It is, and has always been, a sad fact that many seniors living on fixed incomes have a difficult time. But those in need are now able to seek deferred payment of real estate taxes. It is not the real estate tax that has escalated sharply; that has increased at 2½ percent since 1981. It is the sharp increases in the costs of food, clothing, transportation, repairs that cause the greatest problems for our seniors.

It is time to acknowledge that the rising prices of this decade have increased the price of Winchester's town government at a rate greater than 2½ percent.

We should be agreed that we do not want the library to lose its accreditation, that we do not want our fire department to be left out of our neighboring towns mutual assistance pact, that we do not want to postpone all capital expenses until the replacement costs are many times that of a timely repair, that we do not want our real estate values to be lowered because others perceive the excellence of our schools to have been compromised.

It is time to listen to the people who have studied all town budgets in detail: the Board of Selectmen and the Finance Committee. They have voted overwhelmingly in favor of the override. They are not nitpicking on the sidelines. They are in the fray, trying to make things work for all of us.

Edgell urges fight against bill

TO THE EDITOR:

Every year, it seems that bills are filed at the State House, that are an assault on the rights of dogs and dog owners, and this year is no exception.

Three of the bills seek to cut the humane 10-day holding period for lost dogs in public pounds, the 10 days being paid for with dog owners' license fees.

Rep. Andrew Collaro, of Worcester, has filed H.3280 and H.3281, which would reduce the holding period to a ridiculous and extremely cruel two days!

That would mean that very few pets would ever be traced and claimed by their owners, especially if, like even the best cared-for dog can do, they have gotten out and wandered for some distance.

If their owners are working, and can only look for their lost dog on a Saturday or Sunday, that's the end for the unfortunate dog — it would be killed after two days, before its owner could even begin to look for it!

In the same category of cruel bills is H.1287, filed by Rep. Michael Walsh, of Agawam, for the Hampden County Regional Animal Control Program, where the 10 days would be reduced to five days, when the dog is up for adoption, and is killed after seven days, if unclaimed.

That expensive Regional Program can't seem to manage its money matters, and, as a result, wants to take it out on the unfortuante dogs who end up in the much criticized Regional Pound out there, in Chicopee, not to mention their owners, who pay the license fees, which, in turn, are supposed to pay for 10 days.

Those who have followed the battles my family and I have fought at the State House, as volunteers, for the rights of dogs and dog owners, since 1973, know that we finally won the return of the 10-day holding period, in 1976, yet have had to fight off assaults on that, ever since.

A hearing on these, and other dog-related bills will be held before the joint Committee on Counties, at the State House, Boston, on Thursday March 15, at 10:30 a.m., in Room 2B. That's in the "basement," a beautiful room which you can reach by the door on the left of the Mt. Vernon Street arch, via Bowdoin Street, Derne Street, then Hancock Street.

To object to these cruel bills, please call the chairmen of the Committee on Counties: Rep. Michael P. Walsh: 722-2060, Sen. Bill Owens: 722-1673, Rep. Collaro's number is: 722-2692.

You may write, as follows to the State House, Boston, MA 02133: Rep. Michael P. Walsh, Room 33; Rep. Andrew Collaro, Room 167F; or Sen. Bill Owens, Room 314.

Please call, or attend the hearing — the dog(s) you save could be your own!

A tale of a town named Winfield

TO THE EDITOR:

This is a tale about a town much like our own which was faced with a most Herculean task, that of maintaining an expected quality of education in the midst of endless fiscal belt-tightening with little relief in sight. It is a story about how public policy is no longer publicly made; and how otherwise intelligent and focused public servants have forgotten that their authority and ultimately, their power, is derived from the consent of the governed.

Winfield: A Tragedy for Our Times

The kingdom of Winfield, situated north and west of the great dominion of Beacon, had fallen on hard times. And some said it was Beacon, of course, that had brought on the hard times by withholding its annual tribute to Winfield. When Winfield sought supplication from Beacon's own Greek king who was also suffering from an over-active hubris gland, it found that he was in no position to reverse this sorry state of affairs. (Once providing enlightened and responsive government to its peoples, Beacon now found its very being threatened by demagogues who made otherwise intelligent elected leaders cower with political paralysis — but that is a story for another time. And it certainly has no further bearing on our tale today.)

And nowhere were the fiscal difficulties greater than in the beloved schools. These schools were the very pride and substance of Winfield because all the kindgom's children, rich and poor alike, partook of a superior education that prepared them well for life's trials and tribulations. Wasn't this the very reason the townspeople came to Winfield from faraway lands and the dreaded cities? Wasn't the quality of Winfield's schools proclaimed by no less an educational authority than Boston Magazine? No matter that local tithes were higher than neighboring kingdoms, their children's education (not to mention their property values!) justified it all. After all, it was still cheaper than — shudder — private education.

But now the king has decided to sacrifice one of their cherished schools and send nearly 500 of the little children on pilgrimages to foster schools near the kingdom's center. This arbitrary decision has caused much divisiveness in his kingdom, literally pitting neighbor against neighbor and unrest is now the temper of the day.

Our king has just returned from his winter vacation on the Isle of Antigua tanned, rested and ready for the trouble brewing in Winfield. He is joined by the chorus, those oft-maligned and downtrodden public servants elected to be instruments of educational policy by the townspeople.

(The curtain opens.)

King: Chorus, why do you look so pale and miserable? I tell you, 10 days in the sun and I am ready for anything!

Chorus: Your Majesty, there is trouble afoot in our peaceful kingdom. The barbarians from the hills refuse to let the school closing rest. Worse, they refuse to embrace the new tithes as we had hoped!

King: Relax. Their own task force will save the day. It was a stroke of genius for us to take up their suggestion to enact a task force. The task force will conclude exactly as we did because they know that their school might be next if they do not.

Chorus: Your Majesty, there are some who say that the task force's majority has strayed from its charter and that the divisiveness of the task force is spilling over into the community. Oh, why did we ever agree to disturb this hornet's nest without looking at other alternatives?

King: There were no alternatives!

Chorus: (cowering): Yes, your Majesty, but some of the townspeople are quoting from the 1982 Task Force on School Closing which had alternatives to closing another elementary school and clearly represented months of labor and research into the situation. They are saying the findings and alternatives may still be valid.

King: That report wasn't written on my shift. Besides, my best assistant spent at least a week justifying our decision.

Chorus: Your Majesty, the townspeople are also questioning our decision-making process. They say that a policy as critical as a school closing should have been publicly discussed so that the people could give us direction on school priorities. They say we do not know what it will cost to re-open the school in a few years. By the way, your Majesty, what will it cost to re-open the school?

King: How should I know? What do these people want anyway? Don't we pay them lip service at our public meetings? Ah chorus, wouldn't it be nice to return to the good old days? When only a handful of the faithful attended our meetings — now it seems everyone in the kingdom attends and they all insist on being heard, too! Some of them presume to think they might be better at this job than you and I!

Here's the thing to do! Ask them if they want quality education in their schools! What can they say? Of course they want it! Boy, I love that line.

Chorus (looking glum): Your majesty, these new leaders are very articulate and have credentials the equal of our own. And the townspeople are beginning to listen to them. If we cannot soothe this black mood of their's some of us may not be with you in years to come. (Their heads hang low.)

King: Hmmmm, yes, I have seen this mood before. Seems the townspeople have the right by law to throw you rascals out and elect one of their own.

Thank heavens I had the foresight to negotiate for a five-year contract. (Close curtain).

So what are we to make of all this? Well, the philosopher George Santayana once defined a fanatic as one who redoubles his efforts long after he's forgotten his original purpose. In our own situation I would suggest that if you can find a candidate for School Committee who has no political axe to grind on the debt-exclusion, and who would explore and define the priorities of education with all of the community, then vote for him.

The schools, after all is said and done, still belong to the people and their children.

Mike Medaglia

Living in town is a 'privilege'

TO THE EDITOR:

Almost 30 years ago we elected to live in Winchester primarily because of its quality public education. Our two daughters, now 32 and 26, received a high-quality education in this town, from Kindergarten through high school, enabling them to go on to college, graduate school, and their current professional lives. In short, the Winchester Public Schools were outstanding!

Over the years, elementary schools have been converted to Condos, rented-out to other organizations, and school busing has become the norm for many children. Now - the future of another neighborhood elementary school appears to be in jeopardy.

We want very much for Winchester to be an inter-generational community — to have quality public schools as well as a senior citizen center. We want Winchester to be a town which attracts young families because of the calibre of its public education.

Therefore, we are prepared to vote for the override and are persuaded that it is both a responsiblity and a privilege for being able to live in a town with the history and the future possibilities of Winchester, Massachusetts.

Nancy and George Hunter

More on the override

TO THE EDITOR:

When the Medicare catastrophic care program was repealed by Congress this past fall after vociferous pressure from the elderly, one Washington columnist remarked, "the 'me generation' now has gray hair!" And as Winchester residents struggle with the override investment question this month, many long-time residents have expressed concern with the potential negative swing of the over-60 vote. At the supermarkets, public gatherings, and in various local activities, seniors have been heard to convey many positive opinions about the need now for an override — but there has been an undercurrent attitude communicated by some that they no longer care to invest in Winchester's future and that they don't worry about or support local schools now that their children are grown.

I have become deeply troubled by what I perceive is the beginning of an erosion of an unspoken social contract, that is, a reciprocal feeling of responsibility for each other's well-being throughout the generations. Younger working families are directly tied to the well-being of our older neighbors and we simply ask that you understand how important recreational programs, library services, excellent schools and parks and their upkeep are to us — all of which are threatened should the debt exclusion override be defeated.

Government budgets at all levels are pinched and it is partially because of the State's fiscal crisis that Winchester finds itself with insufficient revenue to maintain its current police and fire protection, street paving and maintenance schedule, and educational services. This year over $1.3 million in anticipated State funds were withheld from Winchester; this loss in revenue for localities will continue for the forseeable future.

I would like to respectfully offer the following example of how generations are called upon to support each other: social security. The social security cash benefit programs and the medicare hospital insurance program are financed primarily by the social security payroll tax. While conceptually an earned right, the actual financing of social security benefits for current retirees is dependent upon the productive output of workers today ("pay as you go"). For many years social security taxes were low in relation to benefits they earned but now the payroll tax is the heaviest tax burden of many workers. And who except the most mean-spirited and miserly among us would ever protest paying this tax to help support our parents' and their parents' generations?

Being a parent today, whether or not one works out of the home, is a scary endeavor. Societal dangers (family decay, alcohol and drug dependency, teen pregnancy, and AIDS, to name a few) lurk at the opportunity to snatch away our children's potential. The weight of monthly mortgage costs is severe for many families — mortgages that were assumed for the simple reason that Winchester had a reputation for being a wonderful community in which to raise children and one with excellent schools.

What kind of future do we envision for Winchester with its rich history of organizations and municipal services? What message will our children grasp after hearing grown-ups argue for and against the override? In a world filled with danger and complexities, we all need the protection that a well-supported town offers to us.

I urge you to vote "yes" for the debt service override on March 27.

Town will 'pay now or pay later!'

TO THE EDITOR:

Many of the letters you have published concerning the debt exclusion override have focused on the educational budget or spending for public safety. But if the override does not pass, there is another serious proposed cut, namely the slashing of the Capital Planning budget to $85,000 from the currently proposed $860,000. Even the $860,000 that will be available if the override passes represents no increase in spending over last year and is inadequate to fund the projects recommended by the Capital Planning Committee.

One way to view the much lower $85,000 figure is to compare it to the total worth of the town's physical plant. I have been told that $175,000,000 is a reasonable estimate for the value of the town buildings, roads, sewers and vehicles, so that $85,000 represents less than one half of one thousandth of the total value. This rate of budgeting is equivalent to setting aside $150 dollars for the yearly maintenance of a $300,000 home and represents an optimism that can only be described as foolhardy.

Residents of Winchester should be asking themselves how we can maintain our physical plant with funding at such a small level. The obvious answer is that we can't since it means that there will be no money to repair the transfer station conveyor belt, or to resurface roads, or to remove asbestos from buildings, or to buy radio communication equipment for the fire department, or to do any of the other projects recommended by the Capital Planning Committee. Of course, if the override does not pass, Town Meeting may decide to fund such projects. But then an additional several hundred thousand dollars will have to be cut from the rest of an already strapped town budget.

In the words of a well-known commercial, "You can pay me now or you can pay me later," and when it comes to maintenance paying later is the more costly alternative. The fiscally responsible action is to vote yes for the override on March 27.

Thomas L. Richardson

Vote reflects values of town

TO THE EDITOR:

I have been following the fiscal crisis in Winchester with great interest since, although my wife and I are not currently residents, we are seriously considering the possibility of moving to Winchester in the near future. One of Winchester's greatest drawing points, of course, is its excellent school system. By providing quality education for its children, Winchester has not only enhanced its own reputation, but has helped to provide the educational base necessary to keep the next generation competitive on a global scale.

In following the debate concerning how to deal with the present fiscal crisis, however, I have been disturbed by the reluctance of many members of the community to support an override of Proposition 2½ in order to maintain the excellence of Winchester's school system. At a recent public meeting I attended, it was even suggested that since past cuts had been made in the school budget without any visibly dire consequences, it was justifiable to impose further cuts on the system. Such a willingness to dismantle public education will inevitably lead to more parents opting to move their children to private schools and a further reduction in the quality of public education. The damage done to our future and that of our children by such shortsightedness is unimaginable. As a person involved in higher education, I am particularly aware of the importance of a solid primary and secondary education, particularly in the areas of math and science.

In addition to the long-term consequences, the erosion of public schools has an additional immediate effect. It is often pointed out that even those without children in the Winchester school system benefit from its quality by the resulting increase in property values, and that to compromise that system is to threaten real estate values in the future. This point was very clearly made in a letter to the Editor from a member of the MIT faculty published in the March 1 issue of the Winchester Star. I would suggest that the defeat of an override of Proposition 2½ by the 2-to-1 margin with which it was defeated last spring would send a clear mesage to prospective home buyers that Winchester is not a community committed to supporting its school and that it is therefore not a community worth moving to for its schools, whatever its past record of academic accomplishments might be. Thus, the schools need not significantly deteriorate before a direct impact on real estate values would be realized.

The absurdity of Proposition 2½ is apparent to anyone who objectively gives it serious consideration. With cities and towns having no choice but to increase negotiated salaries by 5 to 6 percent, it is clear that imposing a limit of 2½ percent on the growth of revenues means more and more layoffs, year after year. While the state has in the past been able to compensate for this difference by providing aid to cities and towns, it is clear that this source of funds cannot be relied upon. It is therefore up to the residents of each town to decide the value that they place upon public education and other basic services and to vote accordingly. The residents should be aware, however, that their votes are a highly visible reflection of their values and the future promise of their town.

Bravo Denise Randell for your letter to the editor.

I would like to put my 2 cents in: I'm a lifelong resident of this town. I worked hard and long to be able to stay and raise my children here. I'll never forget going into junior high (which is now Lincoln School) and meeting the school secretary for the first time.

Now there was a woman who ran the office by herself. She answered phones, listened to the kids complain, worked on an old Royal typewriter and used lots of carbon paper! No modern faxes, no copy machines. And she drank the same water that I did! This all happened in the late sixties.

Now I know times have changed. But what this woman did by herself it now takes three women, a fax machine, modern electric typewriters and a very expensive copier. Plus they don't drink the same water as my kids.

Let's start by keeping the teachers and getting rid of some of the "office supplies."

Muggia speaks out on override

TO THE EDITOR:

It is clear, from reading the multitude of Letters to the Editor, that an increasingly large number of Winchester residents are becoming committed to learning about their town, its condition in general and in specific and to making an informed decision on the debt exclusion override question which we will be voting on in March.

All the Selectmen have been involved in the town's fiscal process for varying lengths of time — this year, since July. Under the leadership of Chairman Schmitt, whose professional expertise in financial management has proven invaluable, we have worked weekly at our Board meetings and via the ad hoc Budget Committee, to investigate and assess every option suggested by Management, Finance Committee, elected Boards and citizens speaking at Public Hearings, to bring forth the fairest, most comprehensive and least expensive financially responsible plan for the consideration of our fellow citizens.

Chief among our considerations given paralysis at the State legislative level and the repeated losses in Local Aid monies, was protecting Winchester's Public Safety systems, Capital plant and public services on the Municipal side, while also protecting the educational future of our children.

Recognizing that meeting all Capital needs, all Public Safety requests, all program requests would result in an inordinately heavy tax-payer burden while water/sewer and transfer station fees escalate, the Board reluctantly supported further cuts in personnel, higher Recreation fees etc. and unanimously agreed to ask our fellow taxpayers to support excluding that debt already incurred in an amount sufficient to cover our losses in Local Aid.

As we make our decision in the privacy of the voting booth on March 27, let us keep in mind that we are, in 1990, our only line of defense in protecting our safety, our town buildings, roadways, schools, and our programs for seniors and youngsters alike.

I believe, absolutely, that the town cannot offer a suitable level of public safety, capital maintenance, library services, school, senior and special needs programming without a modest increase in funds.

Voting YES on the override on March 27 will stabilize Winchester's fiscal future for three years. It is the responsible action for all of us to take.

Selectman Judie Muggia

Lambiase shares pesonal research

TO THE EDITOR:

Recently there has been some discussion among the town boards that there are questionable practices used within the education budget. I am writing to inform the people of Winchester that this is, in my opinion, an accurate statement based upon research done on the education budget recently.

For instance, the School Administration is recommending what they say is 70 percent reduction in curriculum workshops because of budget restraints. Per William Jervey, incumbent candidate for School Committee, having 70 percent fewer teacher workshops will cause the end of public education as we know it. What Mr. Jervey and the Administration have not told you is: 1) There is an additional $2,600 in the education budget under in-service workshops and; 2) During our research of the FY89 education budget, the Winchester Taxpayers Association discovered an additional $13,000 spent on teachers workshops billed under 340 Professional Services, 399 Not Otherwise Classified and 345 Inside Travel. Therefore, the reduction in teacher workshops is actually 28 percent, not 70 percent, hardly the end of public education as we know it.

Per a statement made by Assistant Superintendent Bob Fitzgerald at a Task Force meeting on 1/11/90, there are three parts in the education budget. They are Personnel Services, Other Expenses and Equipment. He stated that as long as monies in the budget do not move from one section to another, they were used wherever needed within that section. Fitzgerald stated that the Administration used this method "rather than use the Reversion method."

The point is how can any person or public board know what the School Committee and School Administration is actually spending under various line items using the accounting practices described above? How can the School Committee and School Administration be held accountable for how they are spending our tax dollars using the accounting practices described above?

It is grossly misleading to parents who actually believe there will be a 70 percent reduction in teacher workshops that could effect the quality of the teachers in the classroom. Not only is it misleading, it is unfair. Also, keep in mind that these accounting practices have been going on for a few years when (except since the 88-89 school year) the education budget included a $50,000 unallocated account that should have made this shifting of money unnecessary.

Accountability is the key. We have three School Administrators and a Budget Director who are paid approximately a quarter of a million a year, and it is assumed that they would have the skill among them, to write a budget based on actual spending, with costs placed correctly in proper line items.

As a taxpayer and one of the employers of the School Department, we are entitled to full disclosure of monies (tax dollars) dispersed for bills incurred in the name of education.

I strongly suggest a full line item accounting of the current school budget be submitted to Town Meeting before any increase (tax dollars) in the next fiscal school budget be granted.

I believe now is the time for full disclosure of the school department's spending habits.

Stone Zoo may close on April 1

TO THE EDITOR:

Siberian tigers are an endangered species in the wild, but they may soon become extinct in Massachusetts. The Walter D. Stone Zoo in Stoneham is home to two of these wonderful cats, as well as to many other animals that have become favorites of zoo visitors. Sadly, new homes will have to be found for these animals as of April 1, unless prompt action is taken now. An even worse fate is possible for the older animals.

Stone Zoo is facing an enormous budget cut and is also being crippled by a severe staff shortage. Due to a state imposed hiring freeze, many crucial positions are vacant. To prevent any harm to the animals, staff or public, the zoo will be forced to close by April 1, unless immediate steps are taken to keep it open.

The future of our zoos rests in the hands of Edward Lashman, Secretary of Administration & Finance, and our State Congressmen. You can help by asking Mr. Lashman to lift the hiring freeze immediately to alleviate the staff shortage. Also, you can urge your legislators by phone or letter to vote "yes" on Senate Bill 533, which would create the Commonwealth Zoological Corporation. This public, non-profit organization would provide the zoos with an alternative to state funding and prevent them from being a tax burden.

Over the years thousands of children (and adults, too!) have come to Stone Zoo from throughout New England to participate in the educational program offered there. Local schools make especially good use of the zoo. Your own children have probably been on zoo field trips. It would be senseless and tragic to close an institution that teaches the importance of conservation and habitat protection, especially during this new decade when concern for the environment is so necessary.

We appreciate the support that you have given to Stone Zoo in the past. Your help now is vital to its future. The zoo is a benefit to everyone, and its demise would be a devastating loss to all of us. Please show our political leaders that Stone Zoo must be saved! Thank you.

Fire, police are 'insurance policy'

TO THE EDITOR:

We feel that many people in town are unaware of how seriously last year's budget cuts affected our fire and police departments. Recently we spoke with Fire Chief McNutt and Police Lieutenant-in-Charge Ken Albertelli about those cuts and their continuing effects.

Prior to last year's cuts, we had 21 firefighters available on each shift: 12 full-time with an additional nine on-call. At present, if no one is sick, injured, or on vacation, there are only 11 firefighters available per shift to man three engines, a ladder truck and an ambulance. During the summer months, when the firefighters take their vacation time, the town has only nine firemen available per shift. During this time of limited staffing, only two fire engines are kept in operation. Such limited resources have increased Winchester's dependence on its mutual aid program with surrounding communities to a dangerous level. According to Chief McNutt, "If we have one serious fire, that's all we can handle."

The Police Department lost four positions last year, one at the management level and three patrolmen. A less visible police force cannot help but encourage crime. With the current budget, the Police Department is only able to provide its officers with the most rudimentary training; there are no funds available to help them improve their skills. Having little funding for overtime salaries, it is extremely difficult for the department to cover the absence of staff who are sick, injured, or on vacation.

WINCHESTER PAST AND PRESENT

Scot Symphonic band brings music, spirit to Winchester

By ELLEN KNIGHT
Special to the Star

Strikingly costumed, well prepared with an entertaining program, and accompanied by the engaging presence of many individual musicians, the College of Wooster Scot Symphonic Band appeared in Winchester last Friday night as part of its participation in Music in Our Schools Month.

Despite the name of the band, the program of the concert, with a notable exception, was not music of Scotland. The band derived its name and McLeod tartan uniform from the Scottish Presbyterian heritage of the College, but its repertoire is, as the program states, "planned for a variety of tastes."

The program began with a piece that set the tone of the concert, Shostakovich's "Festive Overture," a bright, energetic, and indeed festive work. It was an excellent introductory piece, not only establishing the Pops style and mood of the concert but also displaying the solidity of the band's performance, both in tutti sections and sectional passages. There was also the indication in this performance, from a short clarinet solo, of fine solo work to come from members of the band. This feature was most prominent in the second selection, Briccialdi's "The Carnaval of Venice," whose "showcase" flute part was well performed by Kimberly McCoul.

The first half continued with Holst's splendid First Suite in E Flat in three movements; Knox's "American Pageant," a medley of stirring American tunes like "America," "Yandee Doodle," "Dixie," and "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean;" and finally music of Scotland.

Quite understandably, considering its name and uniform, Scottish music has formed part of the band's repertoire from its early years. Last Friday's music of Scotland was performed by pipes and snare and bass drums. During two of the segments four dancers, in pairs, performed traditional dances. The pipe music was a well enjoyed part of the program.

After intermission the full band returned and launched the second part of its program with Sousa's "George Washington Bicentennial March," one of his sparkling marches made especially bright by xylophone, glockenspiel, and piccolo solo. It was followed by the episodic tone poem "A Song of the Sea" by Rex Mitchell. The percussion section next had a chance to show off its skill with "Encore in Jazz" by Vic Firth. The program concluded with the bold and energertic "Esprit de Corps" by Robert Jager and the return of the pipes to play a simple but affective rendition of "Amazing Grace" accompanied by the band.

The band was heartily and deservedly applauded by its large audience. The bright Pops tone set at the beginning was sustained throughout as the band performed well its various pieces. Thanks go to the Friends of the Library and the Community Music School for sponsoring the Concert.

This concert was part of a tour the band is undertaking during March, which is being observed nationally as Music in Our Schools Month. In their program the band writes "we urge you to support your school music program at a time when many school programs in the arts are in a precarious position."

As spring advances, opportunities to supporty music both in the schools and in the entire community through concert attendance will increase in Winchester. A look at the calendar of upcoming events reveals a variety of offerings. The next is the Rock for Aids III concert on March 17 at the Congregational Church. Two musical shows, the high school's presentation of "Guys and Dolls" and the children's theatre production of "Sleeping Beauty," will both be staged on the last week-end of the month, with the children's show continuing a second week-end in April.

April events include: Xylophonia at the library on April 8, WCMS Ensemble/Speciality Night at McCall on April 9, a high school exchange concert on April 27, and the second concert of the new Winchester Concert Series on April 29.

Making music

Winchester was visited this past weekend by the Scot Symphonic Band from Wooster College in Wooster, Ohio. The band played a benefit concert for the Winchester Community Music School and the Friends of the Public Library.

Northeast Voke provides educational alternative

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

For the Winchester student who hopes to become a plumber, cosmetologist, electrician or carpenter — vocational school is the light at the end of the tunnel.

Although the drop-out rate is higher than at public high schools, Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School District (NMRV) in Wakefield, which is open to students of 12 communities including Winchester, can mean a fulfilling four years of achievement and advancement, versus what can be a frustrating and seemingly endless experience for those students in public school.

According to NMRV School Committee member and Winchester resident Dr. Jack Looney, of the 1989 graduates, 95 percent entered the work force, went on to higher education or joined the military. Of this total, 50 percent went into the work force in an occupation for which they were trained, 44 percent entered apprentice training programs and higher education and 6 percent joined the military.

"Vocational Education Week," which runs from March 12 to 16, will showcase the progress and accomplishments of vocational graduates with a week of alumnae activities.

Looney also stresses that community outreach is a key component of the NMRV charge. At the Wakefield facility for example there is a in-house daycare program, which is fully certified. Local residents and faculty have the program filled up and a few children are already on the waiting list, said Looney.

Also, the services of the automotive repair shop, the cosmetology center, printing studio and in-house restaurant are open to the public — and their reduced rates are a welcome advantage to those in the area community.

The vocational school is funded by the 12 communities it serves. Each year, Winchester's Town Meeting votes a budget for their portion of the tab.

Currently only 14 students from Winchester are enrolled in classes at the school and the total expenditure is $60,000. There are spaces, however, for 24, a number Looney would like to reach.

Included in the $60,000 figure is a portion of a bonding fee, which was approved last year to update the school to current safety regulations and fix the leaking roof.

And safety, says Looney, is priority one at NMRV. Because each of the "shops," or classes, deal with potentially dangerous chemicals and equipment, safety features, like proper air ventilation, are a must for the school.

And although the school is sometimes a hard sell to junior high school students because of the distance from Winchester (15 minutes by car) Looney says he thinks the benefits outweigh the inconveniences.

Graphic arts teacher Bob Struthers, right, and commercial arts student Sunday Johnson, both of Winchester, discuss a project.

Students might feel removed from their community, but those same voke students find themselves within their own community at Northeast, one without the petty town rivalries that can dog public school students.

Now in its 22nd year, Northeast also has an athletic program in line with those at public schools, says Looney. Northeast's hockey team won the Division III championship last year, boasts Looney.

Also, the school provides strong academics for the career-minded student, including math, science and English.

Although women currently make up only 36 to 37 percent of the student body, Looney says changes and additions to the curriculum should draw more female students in the future. The cosmetology program for example has been expanded, and the healthcare, daycare, dietician and welding and electrical curricula continue to attract more women.

Northeast school officials also work closely with the "feeder" schools, the 12 district schools, to attain the best education for the students. The recruiting department sponsors a "career day" for eighth grade student in the 12 district communities and these students are brought to the school by bus, given a tour of the facility and learn about a vocational/technical education.

Special needs students are also represented with a total school enrollment of 299.

Recycling

yard saves purchasing compost from the garden supply store.

If a backyard pile is infeasible, the next best place to dispose of yard waste is the compost area of the Winchester Recycling and Disposal Facility (WRDF). Here is a place for organic material to break down and turn into compost. It is also a source of extra compost needed for your yard. Brush and tree limbs should not be mixed with leaves and grass clippings because the brush and limbs do not break down as rapidly as do the leaves and grass. Also, it is important not to mix nonorganic material in yard waste brought to the WRDF. Rocks, wire, metal, plastic and cardboard contaminate a compost pile and make it difficult to use the composted material.

If you hire a service to rake your leaves or mow your grass, you can request the yard waste be placed in your own compost pile or placed in the one at the WRDF.

Waste disposal dollars go further when yard waste is turned into compost.

HEALTH

McKersie joins hospital staff

Nancy McKersie, of Arlington, has recently been named Winchester Hospital's Junior Volunteer Coordinator. Among her many duties are recruiting, training, and supervising the junior volunteers.

Prior to coming to Winchester Hospital, Mrs. McKersie was the director of volunteers at the Choate Hospital in Woburn.

"I'm deeply impressed by the friendliness and graciousness of the people at the hospital," she said. "They have welcomed me as part of the Winchester family."

Young people 14 years and older are encouraged to call McKersie and explore volunteer opportunities. Junior volunteers are needed now to serve as messengers during the after school hours and on weekends. Applications are also being accepted for summer volunteer service. Interested teens are asked to call 756-2626.

Support group for chronically ill

People with chronic illnesses seeking support and guidance can join the Chronic Illness support group, "New Day — New Hope," at Winchester Hospital, Winchester.

The support group offers counseling, information and resources for people with chronic illnesses, including multiple sclerosis, Lupus, arthritis, Parkinson's disease, chronic obstructive lung disease, heart disease, diabetes, long-term cancer and strokes.

"The support group is for anyone with a long-term disease severe enough to cause impairment and alter one's life-style," explains Jeanne Dube, group coordinator. "Common experiences and resources will be shared. New directions will be explored to further the understanding of their disease."

The Chronic Illness Support group meets the third Tuesday of each month at 2 p.m. in the Social Service Conference Room. The next meeting is March 20.

For further information or to register for the group, please call Jeanne Dube, Social Services at 756-2633.

Hospital to provide walk-in health clinic

Winchester Healthcare Enterprises, Inc., a sister corporation of Winchester Hospital, has signed a long-term lease with Cummings Foundation New Horizons, Inc., to provide for the operation of a walk-in medical center at New Horizons at Choate, on the site of the former Charles Choate Memorial Hospital on Warren Avenue, Woburn. The physician-run center will be closely aligned with Winchester Hospital.

Although Winchester Healthcare has been interested in providing for the operation of a walk-in center for some time, plans were finalized only after certain Massachusetts Rate Setting Commission rulings were clarified.

The 6,931 square foot walk-in center will be located on the ground floor of 21 Warren Avenue, in the area which previously served as Choate's emergency room. Plans call for the clinic to begin operations this spring.

Cummings Foundation New Horizons, Inc. was awarded the Coate Hospital complex in January by U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Harold Lavien. The nonprofit corporation will operate New Horizons at Choate, and assisted care living center for older adults, at the site. The venture will consist of some 60 one, two and three room units specifically designed for assisted congregate living.

"We are most excited about this opportunity to serve the Woburn community," said Eugene Loubier, president of Winchester Hospital. "The closing of Choate was a great loss. But by providing for the operation of the walk-in center at New Horizons, we will be able to provide immediate medical care to the residents of Woburn and surrounding communities, as well as to the residents of New Horizons at Choate."

The walk-in medical center is but one of the on-site services which will be operated at New Horizons. Caulfield Center, a mental health clinic, continues to operate, and plans call for an adult day health center, a residential facility for head injured adults, a day surgery unit, and 30,000 square feet of professional office space to be located at the site.

For a monthly service fee, residents will receive a variety of services and amenities, including three meals each day, weekly housekeeping and linen service, a 24-hour emergency call system and recreation, social and health programs. A substantial one-time entrance fee is required, but this is fully refundable to the resident or to the resident's heirs when the resident leaves for any reason.

New Horizons represents a new concept in congregate living for older adults, says Mary Ann Outwater, R.N., executive director of New Horizons. "Residents will enjoy a unique combination of independent living arrangements combined with ready access to wide variety of social and health-care services," says Outwater.

Cummings Foundation New Horizons, Inc., is sponsored by Cummings Properties Management, Inc., major commercial real estate firm located at the junction of Routes 128 and 93 in Woburn.

Hospital gains Wilmington site

Winchester Hospital recently announced that on March 1, 1990 Winchester Hospital was awarded ownership of the Wilmington Regional Health Center by the U.S. Bankruptcy Court.

"The Wilmington Regional Health Center represents a quality service in a growing area," said Eugene E. Loubier, president of Winchester Hospital. "We are excited about expanding our presence in the Wilmington area.

"It is much too early to say that nothing will change or that everything will change at the Health Center," explained Loubier. "We are here because we believe in what the staff at the Health Center is doing and that ambulatory care is the way of the future. Hospitals cannot successfully compete today without a focused ambulatory care plan."

Choate-Symmes Healthecare Services owned the facility prior to bankruptcy proceedings which started last October. There were two prospective bidders for the Health Center.

Winchester Hospital increased its initial offer from $4.6 million to $5.55 million. This offer did not include certain contracts or settlements with Harvard Community Health Plan (HCHP).

Taking into consideration the value of these settlements, Winchester Hospital's bid of $5.55 million resulted in a $500,000 difference between the two bidders.

"The Winchester Hospital Board of Director's approval of the $5.55 million bid was based on a fair market appraisal conducted by an independent appraisal firm valuing the Health Center in excess of $6 million," explained Mr. Loubier.

The hospital expects to close on the transaction within the next 30 to 45 days at which time all operations will be carried out under Winchester Hospital. This will not affect Winchester Hospital's acceptance of the Harvard Community Health Plan for patient care.

"Wilmington Regional Health Center is a vital resource to the communities it serves," says Loubier. "The physicians and employees of the Health Center are dedicated to delivering qualtiy care and we are proud to support them in their continued mission.

"We will work with the Community Board in addressing their expectations and concerns," he said. "We pledge our commitment to upholding Winchester Hospital's standards of excellence in the delivery of care at Wilmington Regional Health Center."

CPR instructor class at hospital

A CPR instructor course will be offered March 27 and 29 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Winchester Hospital's Kingsbury Seminar Room. Participants who complete the course satisfactorily will be certified to teach CPR.

The course fee is $85. For additional information and registration, call Winchester Hospital's Education Department at 756-2227.

Eugene Loubier, president of Winchester Hospital, and Mary Ann Outwater, executive director of New Horizens at Choate, review plans for the new walk-in medical center to be located at New Horizens. Renovations are well underway to convert the former Choate Hospital site into an assisted care living center.

RELIGION

Epiphany names Randall Chase interim pastor

Rev. Randall Chase, Jr. has been named Interim Pastor of the Parish of the Epiphany, succeeding Rev. John J. Bishop who retired in November after serving the parish as rector for 23 years.

Rev. Chase previously worked with the Diocese of Massachusetts, and has also served as Associate Dean for Students and Director of Alumni/ae and Church Relations for the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge.

A native of Florida, Rev. Chase was ordained to the priesthood in 1972. He holds a Masters of Divinity degree from the Virginia Theological Seminary and a Doctorate of Divinity from Boston University. He served as rector and chaplain ministering to young people and families in parish, school and college settings in Florida. He is particularly interested in the pastoral care and support of the community, and wishes to serve as a facilitator for the ministeries and gifts of individuals within the church family.

Rev. Chase lives in Concord with his wife Susan and his two sons, Peter and Andrew. He enjoys sailing, swimming, gardening and cooking.

Rev. Chase will serve the pastoral needs of the Parish of the Epiphany until permanent rector is called early in 1991. He will be assisted by Rev. Jane Gould and Rev. Mark Cyr who continue in their ministries to the parish.

Thai restaurant gets final OK on liquor license

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Narai Siam, the new Thai restaurant at 14 Thompson St., opens its doors March 16 with a liquor license in hand.

Selectmen signed the license for the establishment at their March 12 meeting. The license was transferred from the previous restaurant at that site, Le Neuchatel.

The transfer of the liquor license was contingent upon seven conditions, which Narai Siam attorney Laurence Moss indicated to selectmen the corporation had met.

Among those conditions was: transfer of deed from Le Neuchatel to Narai Thai, Inc. (the parent corporation of Narai Siam); termination of Le Neuchatel liquor license; commencement of construction within 45 days and completion within three months of transfer; satisfactory inspections by building, public health and fire departments; provision of a progress report to selectmen within 30 days after transfer of ownership; payment of all local, state and federal taxes by Le Neuchatel and that citizenship of the corporation be in compliance with Massachusetts General Law Ch. 138, which requires the majority of the board of directors be United States citizens.

Moss said all of the conditions had been met, but noted that proof of payment of applicable taxes would not be available. A certificate of good standing is expected at a later date.

"We have every reason to believe the seller corporation has been a good citizen and paid all of their taxes," said Moss.

Town Counsel Wade Welch noted that the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission (ABCC) has recommended the town accept the tax payment condition as having been met and allow the transfer of the license.

Owners Somchai Wiyarand and his wife, Kate Poolsirikul, plan to open the doors of their restaurant for dinner March 16, with lunch and dinner offered daily beginning March 17. The restaurant specializes in food from Thailand.

School budget discussed

should consider and reductions we ought to weigh," said O'Connell, citing the majority and minority reports of the task force. "I'm (personally) comfortable that we can achieve savings, certainly in the order of $55,000 ... I believe we can and I believe we should.

"There are members of the public who want to see evidence the School Committee does have an eraser on the end of its pencil," he added.

Selectman Robert Deering said he was concerned that the School Committee's figure was above the bottom line number. However, O'Connell noted that Town Meeting has the final say in the bottom line figure for the school budget.

Deering said he believed that to add credibility to the budget process, the School Committee ought to stick to the number originally presented as part of the override explanation. The different numbers, said Deering, "just make it that much more difficult to explain to people."

Selectman William O'Leary asked if the Vinson Owen School would close and fees be levied if the override does not pass.

"I probably have a different view from the other members of the committee. I am inalterably opposed to ... levying fees for students who attend public schools in Winchester," said O'Connell. "I am keenly sympathetic to the arguments that have been made by the parents of students at Vinson Owen School.

"I will vote my 20 percent share of the stock," said O'Connell.

Selectman Judie Muggia said she has come to realize the difference in the school and municipal budget processes.

"What you're really dealing with is very different from what we're dealing with," said Muggia.

"Nobody is trying to beat up on the School Committee, we're trying to get clarity on the numbers," said Powers.

Martha and Ted Michalski know there's more to comic books than a good laugh. (Barbara Bergen photo)

Comics store caters to the child in us all

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

For Ted Michalski, reading a comic book isn't just for fun anymore — it's a way of life.

Michalski is the owner of Chamber of Comics located at 880 Main St., a shop dedicated to the sale of comic books.

According to Michalski, his fascination with comic books began approximately 15 years ago when his private collection began to grow. "I always enjoyed comics," said Michalski. "They gave me the incentive, the outlet, to read."

But comic books aren't just for kids anymore, says Michalski. "They're really for adults."

He added that he's always thought of opening his own business. And when his collection began to take up a room in his house, Michalski says he and his wife Martha decided it was time to do something about it.

Michalski said he tried the trade show route for a while, but did not find it profitable. He then thought of a mail order company, but when his wife saw the space now occupied by Chamber of Comics for lease, it only took three days to decide the time was right to open a business.

"When I opened up, kids thought they had a candy store," said Michalski. Chamber of Comics fills a void some other stores don't by selling back issues of books.

Michalski say his books appeal mostly to people from 10 to 40 years of age. And whether it's "The Punisher," "Daredevil," "Batman" or "Spiderman," Michalski has plenty of books to choose from.

"When I first started buying comics, I was paying 20 cents (a book)," says Michalski. But today, the average new comic book costs about a dollar. A new hardcover graphics edition of "Batman" is available for $24.95, and old editions of comic books range from $6 up — some worth hundreds of dollars.

Michalski has his own philosophy about comic books as well. "I think it's a person's escape. 'I can't do anything about it but Punisher can,' " says Michalski. "It kind of gets people away from the bad news of today.

"Everyone wants to do something (heroic) but doesn't have the courage. There's a little Spiderman in all of us. We can't climb walls, but we want to do our part," he adds.

Michalski says many comic books also have undertones of issues of the day. "The Swamp Thing" by Steve Bissette, for example, is mostly a horror comic, but deals with ecology and pollution. "It's still a social statement," says Michalski.

"If I can reach one kid to be responsible and stay out of trouble, it's worth it," he says. "I'd rather have the kids here than out there doing drugs or drinking or breaking the law."

Michalski credits his wife and father-in-law for motivating him to open his own business. "(Martha) and my father-in-law gave me all the support," he says.

Mike Gorrasi sets sights high for Blazers, career

By MARK NADEAU
Sports Editor

With all the greed and decadence that has come to be associated with many professional athletes these days, it is nice to know that there are still some young people out there who play their sports for the same reason they did as kids — because they love the game.

Winchester High graduate Mike Gorrasi, a member of the New England Blazers of the Major Indoor Lacrosse League, is just such an athlete.

Gorrasi has been playing organized lacrosse since he was a Sachem sophomore back in 1980. Ten years later, the 25-year-old is still having a blast as a rookie for the region's newest hot sports franchise. The second-place Blazers are currently 5-2 and face their biggest game of the regular season Friday night; a showdown with unbeaten Philadelphia (6-0) at the Worcester Centrum.

"This is the first time we've played them this year and it's our last home game of the regular season," said Gorrasi. "I'm really looking forward to it and it should be an exciting game."

Gorrasi began his lacrosse exploits at Winchester High under the tutelage of coaches John Pirani and Gene Bouley. Coach Bouley's teams were quite successful in those years and Mike, who played attack, participated in the EMass All-Star game his senior year (1982). Gorrasi went on to Westfield State where he earned Div. 3 All-New England honors in 1986.

After graduation, Mike was recruited to play in Australia where he stayed for one year. Aussie teams were allowed to have two Americans per team and Gorrasi played for North Adlaide. "We weren't payed directly but they took care of you," said Gorrasi. "They gave us a place to stay and plenty to eat. It was a lot of fun."

After returning from The Land Down Under, Gorrasi continued his craft with the Boston Lacrosse Club before joining the Brine Lacrosse Club in 1988. There he was coached by Ron Frazier, who went on to take the top post for the expansion New England Blazers. While at Brine, he was informed that he had been drafted by Frazier and the Blazers.

As a rookie for the second-year franchise, Gorrasi has seen limited action as a center and is still learning to adjust to the indoor format. His best game to date was against New York where he had a goal and an assist.

"The indoor game is more like hockey where you go 5-on-5 plus the goalie," explained Gorrasi. "In the outdoor, it's 10-on-10 and the goalies."

Another difference is the fact that cross-checking (gripping the stick with both hands and hitting your opponent) is perfectly legal. This rule, which is outlawed in hockey, adds to the excitement — and treachery — of the game.

"You have to watch your back because it hurts when you get hit from behind," Gorrasi says. "But you also have to let the other guy (opponent) know that you're out there."

Television promotions for Blazer games suggest a never-ending chain of colliding bodies and boundless excitement. Mike doesn't dispute the notion: "The games are very interesting and people who have watched us have said it's the most intense sport around right now."

The Blazers normally practice once or twice a week in preparation for their weekend games. On road trips, the Blazers are flown to their destinations and stay in nice hotels. Social life on the road normally includes a postgame party where the players get to hobnob with the opposition, many whom are buddies (or rivals) from college or lacrosse clubs.

While Gorrasi and his teammates enjoy some of the perks of being a professional athlete, two or three years experience before salary arbitration is not an issue in this league. "I gotta get up and go to work everyday," confesses Gorrasi. "They don't pay us well enough (to give up the day job)."

Winchester High graduate Mike Gorrasi, shown here while attending Westfield State, is currently in his rookie season with the New England Blazers professional lacrosse team. The Blazers host Philadelphia at the Worcester Centrum in a Major Indoor League showdown Friday night.

Nevertheless the league, which is four years old, is doing fairly well financially and the Blazers have been attracting crowds in the 8-10,000 range at the Centrum. "Half of our games have gone to overtime this season," says Gorrasi. "That makes it more exciting for the fans."

Mike is optimistic about the league and about making a full-time career out of indoor lacrosse. But for now, his primary concern is beating Philadelphia on Friday night. A replay of the game will be presented on NESN on Tuesday night.

Young America

This photo, which was taken during a Winchester Men's Softball game between McGoldrick Paper and Pierce Insurance last summer, was one of the 100 winners of Parade Magazine's 1989 "Young America" photography contest. The photographer, Sharon Sullivan of Cambridge, and the other 99 winners were selected from 172,000 entries. Ms. Sullivan's entry was one of the 60 winners featured in the Dec. 10 issue of the magazine, and was also slated to be the cover photo in the Mar. 11 issue introducing the 1990 photo contest, "Best Friends." Parade Magazine is currently showing all the winning photographs in a nationwide exhibit tour. Jay "Bird" McGoldrick, former Winchester resident and friend of Ms. Sullivan, writes of this winning photo: "The essence of the picture is indicative of and a tribute to the successful work and fun by all those associated with Winchester Men's Softball." The individuals in the photo (l-r) include: Paul Morrissey of Winchester; Steve McCue of Woburn; James Christopher, and his son Andrew of Winchester.

Merrill Lynch hosts seminar

Merrill Lynch Realty offers free real estate seminar for homebuyers on March 15.

Have you been: Watching mortgage rates lower? Observing housing prices become more affordable? Considering purchasing a new property while the market is right?

Then take advantage of a free seminar offered by Merrill Lynch Realty held at their Winchester office, 552 Main Street, on Thursday, March 15 at 7 p.m.

The following topics will be covered:

A loan officer will outline the mortgage loan procedures and explain the various mortgage programs available today. An attorney will examine the basic legal considerations in home buying. A home inspector will describe the home inspection process and provide helpful hints on items to be concerned about.

Attendees will be eligible for a door prize but are advised to make a reservation through the Merrill Lynch office at 729-0058.

The seminar will provide an excellent opportunity for anyone who expects to be looking for a new home in the near future. Those persons interested in selling a property can also take advantage of this free seminar.

Betty Vallee

Vallee joins real estate firm

Carol Johnson, Manager of the Winchester branch of Hunneman and Co./Better Homes and Gardens, recently announced that Betty Vallee is now a member of Hunneman's staff as a sales associate.

Vallee is a 28-year veteran in the real estate industry and since 1970 had been affiliated with Swanson Associates. She is a member of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board.

In addition to her commitment to her profession, theater and art are her hobbies, and she has from time to time been in productions done by the Winchester Players or the Arlington Friends of the Drama. Vallee is also an avid tennis player.

Vallee and her husband Creighton have been Winchester residents since 1959 and are parents of two grown daughters and grandparents of one four-year-old boy.

Murtagh speaks at convention

Loraine Murtagh, sales associate with Century 21 Winchester Realty, recently returned from Orlando, Fl., where she was a panel speaker at the International Century 21 Convention. The Annual Convention attracted some 8,000 real estate professionals from Century 21 offices around the world (United States, Australia, France, Great Britain, Japan, Mexico and Canada).

Murtagh was selected to speak on the VIP Referrals System, an international network through which a local Century 21 agent helps people get the information and services they need to buy or sell a home in another location.

Recognized by the National Association of Realtors as a Certified Residential Specialist, Murtagh emphasized the importance of giving clients and customers access to a really complete "Survival Guide", to make sure that families have access to all the resources they need to make an informed, confident real estate decision.

"The basic decision, just to move from one home and select a new one, is stressful enough for the average family," Murtagh says. "When that move is accompanied by other major life disruptions — new job, marriage, retirement, expanding or shrinking family size — people require even more attention. And if, on top of that, a family is moving to a new, unfamiliar location, they deserve all the sensitivity and settling-in help we in the real estate community can provide."

"No one should have to 'shop blindly' at such a stressful time, when we have a network to find them a helping hand anywhere in the country, to make their transition as easy as possible."

Century 21 Winchester Realty, owned by Stephen Owren of Lexington, finished in First Place in the Northern Massachusetts area in successfully helping families complete real estate transactions around the country through the VIP Referrals System. In overall production, the Winchester office ranks Number 5 among 525 Century Offices in New England and Upstate New York.

Real Estate & You. . . . WE UNDERSTAND THE PAPERWORK

For those brave souls who try to sell their homes without the services of a professional Realtor, the paperwork is a major cause for concern. With many new requirements that state and local governments have covering everything from disclosures to tenants' rights, using the old stationery boilerplate contract can be a risky proposition.

We understand the paperwork and know the pitfalls that can render a contract unenforceable. In so many transactions, the buyers have at least some desire to back out of the contract between ratification and settlement. If the paperwork does not meet the precise legal requirements of your jurisdiction, they will be able to do it. Unless the terms are set forth in a clear and unambiguous way, you could find yourself in a settlement table dispute that will cost you a substantial amount of money. Many of the homes that we list started out as "For Sale by Owner" transactions that went wrong. Often the costs of unravelling the failed contracts exceed the broker's fees.

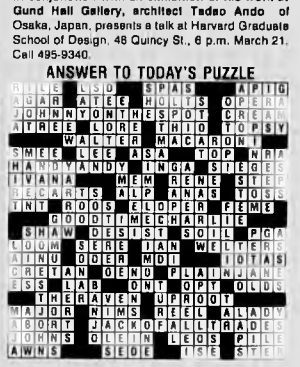
ANSWER TO TODAY'S PUZZLE



Straight teeth talk...

WHY GO TO A SPECIALIST?

What if your own trusted family dentist or pedodontist offers to straighten your child's teeth? Do you really need a specialist in orthodontics?

Well, not necessarily, but it is often advisable to get a second opinion from one.

Legally, any dentist can do as much orthodontics as he or she feels qualified to do. And certainly some non-complex orthodontic problems can readily be treated by non-orthodontists, particularly by those who have taken extra short courses in orthodontic diagnosis and treatment. By and large, however, the majority of cases would benefit from the services of the orthodontic specialist who has the training and experience to customize the latest treatment techniques to attain the most optimal result.

You can recognize the specialist by virtue of the fact he or she, 1) has completed a full time two-three year orthodontic program after dental school, 2) only does braces—no fillings are done in the office, and 3) is a member of the American Association of Orthodontics.

Orthodontic treatment is a once-in-a-lifetime event. It must be done right the first time and result in beautiful straight teeth that bite properly. The orthodontic specialist stands the best chance of achieving that result.

winchester Coming Events

Ileitis, colitis support group

The National Foundation for Ileitis & Colitis Winchester Group will have a meeting March 22 at 7:30 p.m. at Winchester Hospital, 41 Highland Ave., (Kingsbury Seminar Rm.). Admission is free; for more information call (617)449-0324.

One out of every 100 Americans has either ileitis (also known as Crohn's disease) or ulcerative colitis; 200,000 of them are children or adolescents. These digestive diseases are chronic, incurable and life-threatening. Meetings provide people with new informaiton concerning treatment. Patients and families can share problems and receive emotional support.

Two star in Adventures in Music Production

"J.S. Bach Superstar," the next offering in Adventures In Music's concert series for families, will be presented on Saturday, March 17 at the Marlboro Middle School and Sunday, March 25 at the Belmont High School. Both shows are at 3 p.m. and last one hour.

Tickets are $6 in advance and $7 at the door. For information or to order tickets, call (508) 369-1984, or write AIM, P.O. Box 59, Concord, MA 01742.

This fun-filled fantasy story begins with the great composer at home with his wife and 22 childrens in the year 1735. Then, magically, Bach is whisked ahead in time 250 years, to a modern recording studio. Professional comic actors Remo Airaldi and Kemp Harris play the roles of J.S. Bach and his press agent. Michael Allosso directs. Choreography is by Jean Wenzel.

Adventures in Music's 39-member dance troupe, including Sinead Sant and Kerri Ann Allston of Winchester, joins the AIM Chamber Orchestra, comprised of Boston-area professional players. They will perform Bach's works in the original form, and in updated arrangments by AIM Artistic Director Peter Mansfield. Mr. Mansfield has done orchestral arrangements for the Boston Pops and for major orchestras across the nation.

Parent advisory on special needs committee meets

Angela Wilkins will be guest speaker at the Winchester Parent Advisory Committee on Special Needs March 21 meeting. Wilkins will speak about Project Read. Project Read, of which Wilkins is a foremost authority, is a reading program especially beneficial to those people who do not learn to read easily. Wilkins is a director at the Carroll School as well as on the staff of Curry College.

The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. at the Lynch School's Professional Development Room. All parents and educators are invited to attend. For more information, call Susan McGonagle at 721-9856.

AARP meets on March 20

Lexington Chapter 1533 of the American Association of Retired Persons will meet Tuesday, March 20 in the dining room of Hancock Church, Lexington. At 12 noon there will be a social time with brown bag (bring your own) lunch with beverages furnished.

The 1:30 p.m. business meeting will be followed by a special program which is timely. It is a slide/script program "Safety Steps for Pedestrians" prepared by national A.A.R.P. to be shown throughout the country.

In view of the several pedestrian accidents recently, the program should be helpful for both drivers and walkers. A Lexington police officer will be present as a resource person. Guests are invited.

Persons 50 and over who are members of the national A.A.R.P. are invited to join the chapter. For information call 862-4104 or 862-8698.

Merrill Lynch hosts seminar

A seminar for home buyers will be held at the Winchester office of Merrill Lynch Realty, 552 Main St., on Thursday, March 15 at 7 p.m.

A loan officer will outline the mortgage loan procedures and explain the various mortgage programs currently available. An attorney will examine the basic legal considerations in home buying. A home inspector will describe the home inspection process and provide helpful hints on items about which to be concerned.

There is no charge for the seminar. Attendees will be eligible for a door prize but are advised to make a reservation through the Merrill Lynch office at 729-0058.

The seminar will provide an excellent opportunity for anyone who plans to look for a new home in the near future.

Chamber hosts breakfast talk

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce is hosting a breakfast meeting on Tuesday, March 22, at Maximilian's Cafe to meet the candidates who are running for public office this year in Winchester.

Candidates for all of the public offices have been invited to this breakfast meeting and we hope that anyone from the community who would like to attend will call the Chamber office (729-8870) for reservations.

Lorraine Fitzpatrick

Fitzpatrick exhibits work at hospital

Lorraine Fitzpatrick resides in Norwood and summers in Kennebunkport, Maine. She began her drawing and painting at Malden High School and continued at Boston University. She set her paints aside while she raised a family.

Fitzpatrick took up her interest in oil painting 15 years ago, studying under the tutelage of Miyo Onishi in Canton. She also studied with Ron Goyette and Roger Deering in Kennebunkport, Maine.

Her paintings are handing in private collections and offices in Massachusetts, as well as the Breakwater Inn and other sites in Kennebunkport. She is a member of the Norwood Art Association, the Goose Rocks Beach Association and a new member of the Winchester Art Association.

Still-life has been her strong point but her seascapes and landscapes of the Maine coast have been critiqued as having an original and fresh concept.

Her paintings will be exhibited throughout the month of March at the Winchester Hospital coffee shop.

Teen depression and suicide are topics of talk

A special interfaith program for Junior High School students and their parents will be presented at the Winchester Unitarian Society, 478 Main St., on Monday March 19 at 7:30 p.m. The interactive program entitled, Telling It Like It Is, addresses the problems of adolescent depression and suicide. Ms. E. Ashley Rooney, Youth Minister at the First Congregational Church, and the Rev. Arline Conan Sutherland, Associate Minister of the Unitarian Society will facilitate the evening.

Parents, and professionals working with youth, have become increasingly concerned with the escalating incidents of adolescent suicides. Over the last 20 years, the adolescent suicide rate in the United States has tripled. This program will explore ways of opening communication and will feature a video followed by parent/teen discussion. The video, produced by E. Ashley Rooney and Everyone's Group in Lexington, features teens, speaking in their own voice, telling it like it is. The central character Shirley, says it this way,

"My friends tell me I'm pretty. I am pretty. But that didn't stop me from trying to commit suicide. Actually, I tried twice. I don't know why I had to try twice before I got help, but I did. This program tells my story. I talk about why I did it and how come I felt the way I did. So do several other teens.

"Many people believe that suicidal teens are stupid or on drugs or are just seeking attention. They're not. They're just kids like me, who seemingly had it all together but who didn't — not really."

For more information please contact: Ms. E. Ashley Rooney — 721-9180 or The Rev. Arline Conan Sutherland — 729-0949.

Rock for AIDS concert is set for March 17

For the first time since last spring's Town Day, the rock quartet Progression returns to Winchester to play at this week's Rock For AIDS benefit concert.

As the only all-Winchester band on the program, Progression will share the stage with five other bands from the Boston area, including Mirage, Cake Eaters, Sticky Hippos, Menage a Trois and Sleight of Hand. The concert is the third annual fundraiser for the town's Interfaith AIDS Ministry.

Progression features keyboardist/bassist Dan Golden, drummer Mark Baldwin and guitarist Dave Westner, all Winchester High School students. Lead singer John Gray is a 1989 graduate of the high school and is currently a student a Bunker Hill Community College.

The concert is sponsored by Winchester's First Congregational Church, and will be held at the church hall this Saturday, March 17, at 7 p.m. Tickets are $5.

Dinner meeting for women in business

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce sponsors monthly dinner meetings for women in business. The next meeting will be on Tuesday, March 27, 1990 at Maximilian's Cafe and the program will be "How To Develop Your Own Personal Style" (in order to save your time, money and sanity).

Image consultant and personal shopper, Evana Anderson Maggiore, will show you how to eliminate shopping mistakes and dressing room dispair, tailor your wardrobe to your lifestyle, increase the return or your clothing investment, and enhance your own good looks. Makeover candidates, Cathy Alexander, Noreen Mc Donald and Carole Pierce will make their debut.

A professional color and style consultant since 1981, Evana is a former fashion retailer and a member of the Association of Fashion and Image Consultants. She has recently opened Evana Consulting, a firm specializing in individual and corporate training in non-verbal communication.

The group is designed for women who live or work in Winchester and is open to anyone who is interested in meeting with other women to discuss areas of mutual concern. Those attending are urged to bring business cards and brochures to help promote their business or service.

Please call the Chamber office if you would like to make reservations. (729-8870)

Winchester residents Kerri Ann Allston and Sinead Sant (left to right) are rehearsing for Adventures in Music's next family concert, "J.S. Bach, Superstar," to be presented on Saturday, March 17 at the Marlboro Middle School and Sunday, March 25 at the Belmont High School, at 3 p.m. each day.

PEOPLE

Three residents earn top honors

Three Winchester residents have earned a place on the dean's list for fall semester 1989 at the University of Lowell. They are: John Mathson of Forest Street, a junior and criminal justice major; Alexis R. Puchulu of Cambridge Street, a senior and business administration and marketing concepts major; and Tayo Van Marle of Ravine Road, a senior and business administration and marketing concepts major.

A dean's list student at the University must achieve a semester rating of not less than 3.0 and no grade of B/C or below.

Moody earns honors at college

Vanderbilt University has released its dean's lists for the College of Arts and Science, School of Engineering, Peabody College of Education and Human Development and Blair School of Music.

Winchester resident Rhett Anthony Moody, son of Mrs. Kathi W. Moody of Norwood Street, earned honors from the School of Engineering at Vanderbilt.

Pigott returns from sea semester

Edward Pigott of Bellevue Avenue was among the Massachusetts Maritime Academy cadets returning from Sea Term Semester training aboard commercial ships.

These cadets, all members of the class of 1991, were selected to participate in this program based on a series of criteria, including academic performance, leadership and conduct. The internship option is avaialbe only to honor students in the place of the 48-day training cruise aboard the Patriot State.

The Sea Term Semester, which runs from Jan. 7 through Feb. 16, provides Mass. Maritime cadets with a portion of the six months of seagoing experience that is required by the U.S. Coast Guard before the students can take their Ship's Officer examinations.

Local residents finish tour of sea

Thomas Pigott of Bellevue Avenue, John Berry of Baldwin Street and Verne Fryklund of Mason Street were among the Massachusetts Maritime Academy cadets returning from Sea Term Semester training aboard the school's Patriot State training ship.

These cadets, all members of the class of 1991, were selected to participate in this program based on a series of criteria, including academic performance, leadership and conduct. This year the ship visited ports in Tampa, Fla.; New Orleans, La. and Nassau, Bahamas.

The Sea Term Semester, which runs from Jan. 7 through Feb. 16, provides Mass. Maritime cadets with a portion of the six months of seagoing experience that is required by the U.S. Coast Guard before the students can take their Ship's Officer examinations.

Local residents make dean's list

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst has announced the names of students who qualified for the dean's list for the 1989 fall semester at the university.

The following Winchester residents were named: Michael S. Abrams of Ardley Road, Orissa D. Baker of Mt. Vernon Street, Jurgen E. Botz, of Berkshire Road, Michael S. Donaghey of Brookside Avenue, Denise A. Finneran of Oneida Circle, Adam F. Keats of Summit Avenue, Guy S. Lake of Copley Street, Maryellen McCarthy of Marshall Road, Suzette M. Piazza of Valleywood Circle and Stephanie L. Smith of Fells Road.

Residents earn dean's list status

The following area students enrolled at Northeastern University were named to the dean's list for fall quarter 1989.

They are: Lori T. Kenneally of Loring Avenue, college of business adminstration; Kenny Maeve of Ridgefield Road and Kenneth A. Offner of Cross Street, college of arts and sciences; Paula M. Papastathis of Wellington Road and Amy Robertson of Highland Avenue.

Guarnotta ends Peace Corps stint

Christopher Guarnotta, of Winchester, completed a stint with the Peace Corps in Costa Rica where he served as a community services volunteer for the last two years.

Guarnotta, a 1983 graduate of the University of Notre Dame with a degree in government, was prompted to join the Peace Corps because of his desire to "use my abilities and skills to help less fortunate people in a foreign country." It was also a chance for him to live, work and become a part of a foreign culture, he explains.

As a community services volunteer, Guarnotta planned and organized the construction of a rural elementary school. He also worked with home and school gardens, created an interest in his community in reforestation, and launched a small tree nursery. In addition, Guarnotta taught other volunteers and Costa Ricans how to build safer and more efficient wood burning stoves with local materials.

Peace Corps, in the course of the last 27 years, has been able to serve the needs of individuals in 99 countries of the developing world. Volunteers promote self-sufficiency and mutual understanding in nations of the Caribbean, Africa, Latin America, the South Pacific and Asia. Volunteers work on projects determined by the need in the communities where they serve. Assignments are as varied as assisting a public health physician, building bridges and schools, teaching home improvement skills to women in villages and educating farmers about deforestation.

Moore nominated volunteer of year

Marjorie Moore of Winchester has been nominated as one of the Boston area's most outstanding volunteers in the United Way of Massachusetts Bay's Volunteer of the Year Program. Moore has been a Boston Partners in Education library volunteer for nearly 20 years. She currently spends a full day each week at the Dever Elementary School in Dorchester. Moore was nominated by Boston Partners in Education, and if chosen by the United Way as one of the top volunteers in the area, will be recognized at a ceremony on April 26.

As stated in the nomination, Moore not only efficiently handles a variety of responsibilities in the Dever library, but also relates exceptionally well to the children there. Many of the Dever's students are Latino and she regularly reads aloud in Spanish or translates popular children's stories. Through her creative efforts, Moore has been able to increase the cultural awareness of the Latino children and the cultural appreciation of the other students.

Moore has generously shared her time and talents over the years with thousands of Boston Public School students, teachers, librarians, and administrators. Each day, she brings the same care, focus and enthusiasm to her work that she did two decades ago. As the Dever's principal states, Mrs. Moore "brings excitement, cultural awareness and willingness to do anything and everything."

Boston Partners in Education is a private, non-profit agency which has been matching community resources with the Boston Public Schools since 1966. If you would like to volunteer in a Boston Public School, call Boston Partners at 451-6145.

Micciche named Marine captain

Former Winchester resident, Jeffrey A. Micciche was promoted to the rank of Captain in the United States Marine Corps. on Feb. 1, 1990.

Captain Micciche was commissioned into the Marine Corps. in June 1985 aboard the U.S.S. Constitution in Charlestown, Mass. After attending flight school in Pensacola, Florida, he was designated a Naval Aviator in May 1987.

Micciche, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Micciche of Partridge Lane is married to the former Carolyn Mandeville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Mandeville of Upland Road., Winchester.

Captain Micciche, a Winchester High School and Tufts University graduate, is currently a KC-130 Aircraft Commander, stationed at Cherry Point, N.C.

Woolcott earns dean's list honors

Marcus John Woolcott, a senior majoring in history at the University of Rochester, was named to the dean's list for the fall semester.

The student, a graduate of Belmont Hill School, lives at Sheffield Road in Winchester.

Barone takes part in PBS program

Dr. William D. Barone of One School St., Winchester, representing the World Affairs Council of Boston, was a participant on the PBS Television's Foreign Affairs Series the "American Interests."

This program was held at the Meridien Hotel in Boston on Feb. 28.

Morton Kondracke was series host and moderator and is Senior Editor of "The New Republic" and a panelist on The McLaughlin Group.

The debate was "Which Road to Capitalism in Eastern Europe? America's Aid and Trade Policy."

The program participants were: Lawrence Kudlow, former Associate Director of OMB in the first Reagan administration and Jeffrey Sachs, a Harvard economist and is now a key advisor to Poland's Solidarity government.

Dr. Barone has been active with the World Affairs Council of Boston for over 25 years and with the Ambassador's Group of the Council for the past seven years. He did a PR program for the Support of Solidarity that assisted in the release of Lech Walesa and also created and proposed three summit meetings for Presidents Nixon and Reagan. The King Faisal-Nixon-Sadat in Cairo in 1974 and the Reagan-Gorbachev in Geneva in 1985 and 1987 in the United States.

McDonaugh earns dean's list status

Shannon McDonaugh of Glenwood Avenue was named to the dean's list for fall semester at the University of Findlay in Findlay, Ohio.

McDonaugh, a biology major, earned a 4.0 grade point average last semester.

Sheraton-Commander Offers 60 Years Experience To Brides

In their search for the right reception facility brides are taught to look for an establishment run by professionals well versed in wedding planing. The Sheraton-Commander has been in operation for over 60 years. Recently, a couple celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at the hotel. Now, that's quite a feat in these days of divorce, but what made this celebration even more special was that the couple had been married at the hotel in 1937. This party was a big success.

It takes a lot more than good ideas to create a successful wedding reception. You first must have adequate space to conduct that celebration. The Sheraton-Commander is well equipped with five function rooms.

It's sad to say, but many brides and grooms don't really know what's going on until it's too late. The Sheraton-Commander will educate you and you'll be happier for it. You probably never thought that you'd be attending school in Harvard Square now did you?

You get such high quality service at the Sheraton-Commander because the staff knows how to make decisions.

Your wedding reception is of great importance and you should realize that you're in good hands at the Sheraton-Commander. For information on functions at the Sheraton-Commander call (617) 547-4800.

128 Service

CAR CARE CORNER
by Dan Hogan, Service Manager

Dirt is damaging to any car engine. Abrasive dirt in engine oil can spell disaster -- causing destructive wear and failure of the rod and main bearings, camshaft, lifters, oil pump and just about anything else in the engine requiring oil to keep it lubricated and operating with minimum wear. A single small piece of dirt in the fuel system can bring an engine to a complete halt, or cause the injector in a fuel injection system to stick. What keeps all these terrible things from happening? Filters. Years can be added to the life an engine just by regularly changing the oil filter and oil. Check it often!

ASE certified technicians are employed by PETER FULLER OLDS. Open 8-5. We have our own body shop to make necessary repairs. M/C, Visa & A/E honored. Tel. 924-8100. Conveniently located within walking distance to public transportation. Your questions are welcomed at PETER FULLER OLDS, Watertown Sq. "Olds National Service Award Winner".

Help for Ailing Budgets

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

town to rehire four firefighters and augment the police training and overtime budgets. Unfortunately, the proposed town budget does not permit replacement of the eliminated law enforcement positions even with the override.

Much has been said and written about the impact of our current budget crisis on public education, and some of our citizens without school-aged children feel that they would see few benefits from increased taxation. Public safety is an issue that affects all members of our community, even though it is commonly taken for granted. The police and fire departments are like an insurance policy: They seem like a poor investment until you really need them. Over the past few years, we have been negligent about paying our premiums. We think it's time to rectify this problem. Join us in voting for the override.

Nursery school parents concerned

TO THE EDITOR:

As concerned nursery school parents, we want the best possible school system for our children. These young ones haven't even entered the public school system, and their educational future is at risk.

In addition to our concern about their education, we also want to ensure their safety in this town. Adequate police and fire protection is essential in any community. More money is needed to keep the existing police and fire personnel on the payroll.

Many of us use the library often. It is a positive learning experience for our pre-schoolers. The threat of a loss of accreditation for the library is near due to a need for additional funds.

Due to inflation and the loss of state aid, the town faces a $2.2 million shortfall unless there is an override. We have been systematically cutting the town and school budgets since Proposition 2½ was enacted. The debt exclusion override of $1.39 million which will appear on the ballot will help preserve programs and services and will still leave a $800,000 shortfall.

With or without an override, we all will be paying more money. Without an override, we will all pay user fees which are not tax deductible. An increase in property tax due to an override is tax deductible. If the debt exclusion override is passed, the owner of a $300,000 home will pay an additional $181 the first year. The owner will pay decreasing amounts every year for the next 10 years.

If our town services decline, so will the value of our homes. Excellent schools encouraged many of us to move to Winchester. Now we would like our pre-schoolers to enjoy and flourish in our public schools.

Please vote for our children's future. Vote YES for the override on March 27. We all will benefit by maintaining our schools, library and town services.

State laws give relief to seniors

TO THE EDITOR:

Have you heard anyone say that they might have to leave Winchester if the override of Proposition 2½ passes? Especially for seniors on fixed income, this may be a very real question. Many people do not realize that state laws provide relief from the property tax burden for our older citizens who have contributed their labors over so many years — and paid their taxes too!

If you have lived in Massachusetts for 10 years and owned your home for five years, and if you meet the eligibility standards below, you can apply to the Board of Assessors as of July 1 for either exemption (cut in tax due) or deferral (postponement of payment of tax until the property changes hands.) Please see the chart below.

"Income" means wages, pension, Social Security, interest, etc. "Estate" means money in the bank, value of car, stocks and bonds, other real estate — but not the house you live in.

For those whose income or estate is not within these limits, there may be the option of a loan or line of credit based on the equity — that part of the valuation of the house which you have paid for. To use some of what you own in order to stay in your home may well be part of a sensible financial plan for later years.

Deferring payment of taxes does not mean "turning your house over to the Town." It only means postponing payment. The Town will be paid with interest when the ownership changes. No one should hesitate to use privileges which are written into law for the benefit of older citizens — we earned them!

| Age | Marital Status | Income | Estate | Entitlement |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 70 | single | $13,000 | 28,000 | $500 exemption |
| 70 | married | $15,000 | 30,000 | $500 exemption |
| 70 | NR* | NR | $40,000 | $175 exemption |
| Any | widowed | NR | $40,000 | $175 exemption |
| 65 | single or married | $20,000 | NR | total tax deferred |

Coleman study teaches lesson

TO THE EDITOR:

Our property taxes are getting higher and higher. Relax, they tell us. Most of the money is going to maintain the quality of education in our schools. And doesn't that mean our kids will be better educated and able to compete in our demanding world? Of course, so it must be worth it, right? Wrong.

Recent data proves that our nations schools are no better off than when they were spending a lot less money. Actually our predisposition with numbers such as per pupil costs and pupil-teacher ratios, are distracting us from what is really important, teaching the basics of education.

Although I totally agree that adequate funding is of the utmost importance, pouring more and more money into education does not provide better education as some would have us believe. Erik Hanushek, University of Rochester Economist, has made extensive studies of educational performance and their relationship to educational costs. James Coleman, Professor of Sociology and Education, has also completed extensive research in this area.

Professor Coleman has concluded that family background mattered much more in relationship to student achievement than the amount of money spent on the school system. Communities that have a high degree of student achievement are also those that have residents who place a high value on education and bestow that value to their children. The relationship between money spent on education and student achievement "disappear when differences in family background" are considered according to Professor Hanushek in his paper published in the May 1989 edition of the Educational Research Magazine, a prestigious educational publication.

His work also casts doubt on the relationship between increased teacher salaries and student achievement. He analyzed 69 academic studies on this subject and found little connection between them. Also, only 14 of 152 studies that the Professor researched concluded that smaller class sizes increased student achievement significantly. He found almost no positive correlation between educational performance and teacher education, and administration support. Only teacher experience seemed to count for some degree of student achievement.

As a result Professor Hanushek has concluded that "expenditure increases if undertaken within the current institutional structure...are likely to result in growth in costs that almost surely exceed growth in student performance."

Considering all of the above, what should parents do? We should instill a love of learning in our children. The Professors further recommend that schools should change their priorities and make academic standards higher, give teachers greater autonomy and return to the basics in education. Sadly they say, most of the educators who understand this are no longer in our educational systems and have been replaced by people with almost opposite views.

Do we need to Override Proposition 2½ to provide quality education in our schools? No. Instead we should take some of the advice these learned gentlemen have given us.

WTA thanks Chip Faulkner

TO THE EDITOR:

The Winchester Taxpayers Association would like to thank Chip Faulkner, Executive Vice President of Citizens for Limited Taxation, for addressing members of the Winchester Taxpayers Association and other members of the community on March 8. His address was very informative and in many ways applied to Winchester's fiscal problems as well as the state's.

Mr. Faulkner began by giving an overview of Prop. 2½. He explained that Prop. 2½ was enacted because of very high property taxes in the state and that Prop. 2½ gives citizens more control over their taxes. At that time, only Alaska had higher property taxes than Massachusetts.

During his comments, Mr. Faulkner gave some very pertinent information that we would like to share with all the people of Winchester. For instance, Massachusetts is not an undertaxed state. Massachusetts ranks 5th highest in the country in local taxes and 4th highest in the country in state taxes. Massachusetts is 14th highest in taxes paid per capita income and that our property taxes per capita are 29 percent above the national average. Also Mr. Faulkner pointed out that Massachusetts has closest to the highest housing costs in the country and some of the highest insurance and energy costs. Also Massachsuetts has the third highest level of social services of all the states in the country.

Mr. Faulkner further stated that "if it weren't for 2½, our property tax assessments would go through the roof. The Prop. 2½ limits on property taxes protects you." He stated that instead of just accepting the position that the town wants more money in taxes, we should be asking what you are doing with the money you have and have you spent it wisely?

Finally Mr. Faulkner stated that "Even though Death and Taxes are Inevitable, being Taxed to Death Is Not!" The Winchester Taxpayers Association totally supports that position. Vote no override.

Citizens should have had input

TO THE EDITOR:

The Vinson Owen Coalition would like to make some observations on the five (5) year contract given to the Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Charles Mitsakos, by the School Committee on 1/9/90. The vote of the School Committee members were: Mr. Jervey, Mrs. McCarter and Mrs. Landry in favor of the five year contract with Mr. O'Connell and Mr. Ronayne opposed.

We are concerned about the contract for the following reasons:

1. The length of the contract, five years, restricts the authority of future School Committees. It ties their hands so to speak and assumes to make decisions for them on what they perceive as a reasonable contract length for the School Administration's highest paid official. A School Committee member's term is three (3) years. This contract outlives that term. For your information, the Town Manager has no contract at all.

2. There was no vehicle for the general public to be made aware of the provisions of the contract before it was presented at the School Committee meeting the same night it was voted on. All prior discussions by the School Committee on this issue were done in Executive Session. There were no press releases and there was no opportunity for the public input on this matter until the evening when the School Committee took it's final vote.

Simply having such an important subject that effects so many people as an agenda item at a School Committee meeting is not enough and seems unfair to all citizens of Winchester who would want their point of view considered in the final decision.

Necessities cost say residents

TO THE EDITOR:

NO, we do not like taxes; but YES, we do believe it is society's duty to provide any child with a good, free education worthy of this country; it is society's duty to help senior citizens live in dignity; it is society's duty to provide for everyone's safety through police and fire protection; it is society's duty to help those less fortunate than ourselves with opportunities to better their lives. And YES, we do believe in sharing our hard-earned dollars to help society perform these very important duties.

We are all in this life together. It is in everybody's best interest that we have decent police and fire protection and that today's youth receive a good education. None of these necessities is without cost. Let's find a balance between what each of us feels we can afford and the human needs of all the residents of Winchester, young and old. Vote yes on the limited override.

Thanks to those who aided in Day of Prayer

TO THE EDITOR:

Church Women United in Winchester recently celebrated the World Day of Prayer. It was a beautiful service due to the efforts of women from 10 churches in town who served as readers, ushers, choir members and "voices" from the congregation.

I wish to thank the Winchester Star for the wonderful coverage prior to the event. Thanks also to Carole Beals who assisted me in many ways and to Carolyn Dettinger and her committee who provided a lovely fellowship tea following the service.

My deepest appreciation goes to those women who substituted at the last minute. Again I say "thank you."

Financial issues top debate

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

The debate over whether or not an override of Proposition 2½ is necessary topped the discussion as candidates went head-to-head at the League of Women Voters' forum March 18 debate.

Candidates for Board of Selectmen, School Committee, Planning Board, Board of Library Trustees, Housing Authority and Board of Health were on hand to present voters with their qualifications and views to a standing-room-only crowd of more than 150 people. The debate will be replayed on Channel 19 tonight (Thursday, March 22) at 8 p.m. and Sunday, March 25 at 1:30 p.m.

Serving as moderator was Town Moderator John Sullivan, who is running for re-election unopposed this year.

Board of Selectmen

Candidate Ann Matarese spoke first and explained her opposition to a Proposition 2½ override. Matarese said she thinks it is "morally wrong" to tax residents out of their homes.

Matarese said the town must prioritize its needs, and "adjust spending habits." She added that she is not opposed to providing quality services, but believes that more departments should be consolidated and cuts to personnel made that do not directly impact services instead of override Proposition 2½ this year.

Matarese said the "same hysteria we heard in last year's campaign" is being used again. She referred to the threat of the Vinson Owen School closing as "blackmail."

When asked if she would support putting an override question on the ballot in future years, Matarese said she does not have a crystal ball, could not support an override until all possible cuts are made.

In response to a question regarding where Matarese would make additional cuts to the budget, she said more cuts must be made to the administration, such as in "assistant" positions.

Incumbent Thomas Schmitt, the board's current chairman, said "creative leadership" has been necessary in running the town's finances during his three-year tenure on the board. Schmitt noted accomplishments by the board including 24 personnel cuts in the municipal budget, putting the water and sewer costs on an enterprise system and reducing the cost of health insurance. "We did that all and kept a AAA bond rating," he said.

"When I took office three years ago, the water system was under scrutiny," said Schmitt. "We have developed a way to finance that under a progressive rate system."

When asked about his stance on the override of Proposition 2½, Schmitt said the Board of Selectmen originally voted to place the question on the ballot to allow voters a choice.

Candidates for town office had a chance to speak their minds on the issues last Sunday at a forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters. (David Stone photo)

Schmitt said he personally plans to vote in favor of the measure. Schmitt was asked if he would support placing an override on the ballot in the future, and said passage of the current question "would provide sufficient funds to operate the town for at least two years."

In response to Matarese's statements regarding cutting positions such as the assistant town manager, Schmitt said, "Just to pick out positions because they have 'assistant' next to them does disservice to the employees who are doing a fine job in this town."

Political climate heats up

McSweeney files complaint against League

By KAREN BUCKLEY
and ELLEN FANNING

As the weather turns warmer, so does the political climate in Winchester and with elections just around the corner, campaigns have heated up — and some say, stepped outside the boundaries of fair play.

Campaigning efforts have resulted in complaints facing the Winchester League of Women Voters and candidates at odds over the ethics used in comparing their platforms.

Town Meeting member Brian McSweeney recently filed a complaint against the Winchester League of Women Voters for failing to file a statement of organization of a political committee with the Town Clerk. McSweeney claims the League was acting as a political action committee and should have filed with the Town Clerk, as required under Chapter 55 of the Massachusetts General Laws.

In a written statement, McSweeney said he was "disturbed" when the League offered its bulk mailing permit to the Alliance for Winchester's Future pro-override mailing prior to the March, 1989 election. When he received the League's March, 1990 newsletter in the mail, which stated a pro-override position, he contacted Town Clerk Carolyn Ward to see if the League had filed a statement of organization. McSweeney said he then contacted League President Lindsay McSweeney (no relation) to inform her of his intention to file a complaint.

When the League had not filed papers as of 4 p.m. March 19, Brian McSweeney filed his complaint with Ward.

Lindsay McSweeney said the League "is waiting to review the complaint and until then (has) no comment."

Said Brian McSweeney in his statement, "The bottom line is that there are established rules of the game, and no organization, partisan or non-partisan, is exempt from them. I should have the same opportunities and be under the same constraints in expressing my viewpoint as my opponents."

According to Ward, she and the Office of Campaign and Political Finance have determined that the League is not a political action committee since it was not organized solely for the purpose of soliciting votes. However, Ward said because the League is a corporation that has spent funds on behalf of the issue, "As a corporation, they must file with me (Town Clerk) disclosing they have done this."

Ward said Town Counsel Wade Welch is requesting a formal opinion from the Office of Campaign and Political Finance. If that opinion indicates the League should file, and the group does not, the complaint is referred to the Attorney General's office, said Ward.

Large turnout expected for Tuesday's election

Voters are expected to turn out in high numbers for the March 27 town election.

At the polls, voters face choices among candidates for the Board of Selectmen, Planning Board, School Committee, Board of Library Trustees and Housing Authority, as well as the decision whether or not to override Proposition 2½ through a limited debt exclusion. Candidates for the Board of Assessors (Mark A. Lombardi), Board of Health (Randall W. Swartz) and Moderator (John J. Sullivan) are running unopposed.

Polls are open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Election Day. Precincts 1 and 2 vote at Muraco School, 33 Bates Road. Precincts 3 and 4 vote at Lincoln School, 161 Mystic Valley Parkway. Precincts 5 and 6 vote at Vinson Owen School, 75 Johnson Road. And Precincts 7 and 8 vote at Lynch School, 10 Brantwood Road.

"I think we will see a pretty high turnout," said Town Clerk Carolyn Ward. "There is certainly a lot of interest. We have received a lot of questions."

Ward noted that the absentee voter turnout has been higher so far than the March, 1989 election, when Winchester had a 47 percent turnout.

There are currently 12,797 registered voters in town.

Stone Zoo is again in peril

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

For the second time in a year, the fate of the Walter D. Stone Zoo in Stoneham is in peril, according to Representative Paul Casey (D-Winchester) and zoo officials.

Due to a state hiring freeze imposed last November, the Stone Zoo and the Franklin Park Zoo in Boston can not fill 22.5 full-time equivalent (FTE) positions provided for in the budget, said Casey. This equals a 31 percent reduction in staff — a staff that was already pared down when the state was required to eliminate 5,000 FTEs for FY90 budget, added Casey.

Because of the employee turnover in the zoos, many key positions, animal handlers for example, have been vacated and currently remain unfilled, he said.

With legislation spearheaded by Casey, along with Representatives Timothy O'Leary (D-Medford) and Anthony Giglio (D-Medford) in March of 1989, Frankin Zoo and Stone Zoo were able to charge admission and retain this money as revenue for the facility.

However, due to the hiring freeze, the monies cannot be used to replace staff members. And if the money is not used by the end of fiscal year 1990 in June, it will revert back to the state's general fund, said Casey.

But as visitors — who numbered some 300,000 last year — continue to shell out admission fees, the quality of the attractions is declining due to the staffing shortages.

Wendy Davis, chairman of the Stone Zoo advisory committee, says if the present situation does not change, the month of April has been targeted as the closing date of the Stone Zoo by the Boston Zoological Society, which provides the facility with animals. April was chosen because as staffing decreases, the onset of daylight saving time increases the hours the zoo must be open and the issue of safety of the employees and visitors comes to the forefront.

To battle the potential closing, Casey, Sen. John Brennan and Rep. O'Leary have requested from the governor a waiver of the position freeze at the zoos.

"Even in light of the waiver, it is crucial that the agency be allowed to fill these critical positions," said the request.

Prior to the hiring freeze, said Casey, the staff at the Stone Zoo numbered 33 full-time equivalent positions for tending to the animals. Currently, the staff is down to 20 employees, said Casey.

"Senate Bill 533 allows zoos to become an entity unto themselves," said Casey. While the zoos would become detached from the mainstay of the state's budget, they would remain under the domain of the state, but retain the ability to utilize their revenue account.

Casey outlined two options open to residents concerned with the fate of the Stone Zoo. Residents may write letters to the governor or their local legislators, or volunteer at the Stone Zoo.

Davis added that the Stone Zoo consistently stays in the top 10 of attractions in the eastern part of the state. These included such visiting sites as the USS Constitution, the Boston Aquarium and Science Museum.

"(The zoo) means so much to so many people," said Davis, "Thousands of school children attend each year."

Davis added the zoo has an environmental value as well by providing shelter and breeding grounds for endangered species.

Middlesex Fells Reservation reopens April 1

By DAVID WELDON
Special to the Star

The MDC will officially reopen the Middlesex Fells Reservation next week, after a long winter of nonuse by the agency and the public.

According to Leanne Del Vecchio, of the MDC's Public Information Office, the reservation is scheduled to reopen on April 1 now that MetroParks personnel have been freed up with the end of the public rink season.

Last fall the MDC voted to close all 14 reservations in the MetroParks system when its budget was substantially cut. Only one reservation, Breakheart Reservation in Saugus and Wakefield, was eventually spared from closing. The others saw their staff reassigned to the MDC skating rinks for the winter, to save on hiring skate guards.

The skating season recently ended, allowing the MetroParks staff to return to the reservations, but as Del Vecchio noted, that staff has been greatly reduced.

"The Middlesex Fells Reservation will be reopened next week in that the gates will be open," Del Vecchio said, "but we will still be at very limited staff, and we've not sure about offering public programs."

Del Vecchio said the reservation will get its traditional two staff supervisors, but where it will suffer is with visitor services programs. In the past the MDC has tried to staff visitor services supervisors at each major reservation, and to make public programs a major educational effort. This year that has all changed.

Improbable Players bring a sobering message to McCall

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Their four-person troupe is called "The Improbable Players" because who could have believed — themselves above all — that four alcoholics could gather their lives together and best yet, teach children to stay away from drugs and alcohol.

Their recent performance at McCall Junior High School drew cheers, applause and a few reflective moments as students reacted to skits that centered around alcoholism — "the family disease."

"Charlie," the alcoholic, drinks himself into a stupor, suffers through the ordeal of a hungover and vows never to touch another drop. Soon after, the audience sees Charlie drunk again and then later, hungover again. The message is clear — alcoholism is a disease that needs to be treated.

In the next scene, the players acted out a drunk driving accident, and then called for volunteers from the audience. With the help of the volunteers the accident was averted and everyone arrived at their destination safely.

The statistics the players offered were equally sobering: the number one killer among Americans 15 to 24 years old is alcohol-related accidents; 40,000 teenagers are permanently disfigured each year from drinking and driving accidents and on any given night, one out of 50 drivers travelling on the road, is a drunk driver.

"(Drunk drivers) hurt themselves, their family, their friends, their employer, a stranger on the highway ... and you," said the players.

Board holds hearing on zoning changes

The Planning Board will hold a hearing on its proposed zoning changes in the north Main Street area on Monday, March 26 at 8 p.m. in Town Hall.

The present zoning remains exactly as it was in 1924 when Winchester adopted its first zoning provisions in an effort to control what was feared had become a somewhat random and unpredictable pattern of development.

At that time, although there were a substantial number of manufacturing firms in Winchester, population was only about 10,000 and there was still a substantial amount of open space. The town felt a need to expand the tax base through major residential and commercial development while at the same time creating guidelines for that expansion.

During that period, Woburn was experiencing major conflicts between residential and commercial interests. This did not go unnoticed in Winchester.

Records of that time indicate that few officials would have ever predicted that Winchester would have evolved from its substantial manufacturing nature of 1924 into the primarily residential character of 1990. During debate over the town's potential adoption of zoning, some officials were strongly against any form of zoning. They felt there should be as few restrictions as possible, in order to attract as many developers as possible.

Today, Winchester is a substantially different community. The population has more than doubled, developable land has become scarce, and the town has become primarily a residential community.

The proposed zoning changes would update the "strip zoning" established in 1924 to better reflect development standards of 1990. According to the Planning Board, the plan would incorporate three objectives:

- To ensure that the inevitable future changes along Main Street occur in a predictable and rational manner.
- To take the first small steps to encourage buffer zones between commercial and residential enterprises: i.e. promote a good neighbor atmosphere.
- Enhance or stabilize the property values of the more than 250 property owners for whom north Main Street is a major gateway.

The ultimate decision on the proposed zoning will be made at the April Town Meeting where both proponents and opponents will have an opportunity to present their positions.

Middlesex Fells reopening April 1

(From page 1A)

According to Visitors Services Director Joshua Kline, who has traditionally been assigned to Breakheart Reservation only, he will now divide his time between five seperate reservations. These will include the Middlesex Fells Reservation, Breakheart, Belle Isle Marsh in East Boston, Nahant Beach Reservation and Beaver Brook Reservation in Waltham.

Because of that, Kline said Middlesex Fells, as well as the other reservations, will probably offer no public programs this year.

"There will be some staff working with me," Kline said, "and we will provide the best services we can, but those will primarily be school programs."

Initially the MDC had planned to concentrate public programs at perhaps only one or two reservations, which Kline indicated would have probably meant Breakheart. The most Northern reservation in the MDC system, Breakheart has seen among the most extensive revitalization efforts in recent years.

Under the MDC revitalization program, Georges Island was the first reservation targeted, Breakheart second, and most recently, Middlesex Fells.

Breakheart Reservation Supervisor Jim Comeau, the only MetroParks employee to actually remain at his own reservation through the winter, said the decision was made to regionalize the public programs as far as the resources will go, rather than offer nothing at most of the parks.

As Kline noted, "we decided we really wouldn't be a metropolitan system if we had done that."

In the meantime, Del Vecchio indicated the MDC is looking for the public to get involved in taking care of the Middlesex Fells Reservation.

"We're looking to the public to help us maintain the site, to pick up their trash, to alert us to problems," she said.

Publication does not aid local forces

Local fire and police forces do not benefit from "fundraising" efforts of an advertising representative, according to Kenneth Duffy, Winchester firefighters union president.

According to Duffy, an organization calling themselves Fire Safety Examiners have recently been in Winchester and Woburn soliciting for funds for a fire safety book. Duffy noted that at times, the group also claims to represent the police department.

However, said Duffy, "On behalf of the Fireman's Relief and the Winchester firefighters, neither one of us at present have any fundraisers going on."

Duffy told The Star Tuesday that he received a call at his appliance business in Woburn asking for donations. Duffy said the sales pitch used would lead some to believe the organization is raising funds for local fire departments.

"The organization is private industry, a private company giving the impression the funds are going to the firefighters, but they're not," said Duffy.

What Is a SMART Alarm?

New technology in the security field has virtually "exploded" during the 1980's. As a result, alarm systems have become "smarter" and more "user-friendly".

A "smart" alarm system not only reports a break-in but also tells the home or buisness owner the time of the intrusion and where it occurred. . .a basement window or a back door, for example.

When an owner is leaving, if a door or window is open, the "smart" alarm will tell where the problem is. . in simple English.

"Smart" systems also detect and immediately report any damage to wires, a low battery condition, or other internal problems which could jeopardize reliable operation.

As a result of the "smart" alarm systems, responding authorities (police and firefighters) have more information to work with and the owner has a more convenient, reliable and easy-to-understand security system.

And, surprisingly, these "smarter" systems often cost less than typical alarm systems did ten years ago.

POLICE LOG

Tuesday, March 20
6:27 a.m.

Officers Joseph O'Connor and Lawrence Hill observed a man walking along Main Street, later identified as a Rhode Island resident, staggering as he walked. The man was known to have created a prior disturbance on Swanton Street.

The man told police he was on his way to the train station, so police transported him to Wedgemere.

When the man refused to take the train, and said he was going to walk back to the Swanton Street apartment, police took the man into protective custody, said reports.

Sunday, March 18
3 p.m.

Officer Kenneth Green responded to the scene of a two-car accident on Mt. Vernon Street.

The driver of the first car, a 52-year-old Rhode Island man, rammed the rear quarter panel of the second car, driven by a 24-year-old Medford woman, causing the second car to bounce off the island and crash into the building at 1 Mt. Vernon Street. The side of the building was damaged on impact, said police reports.

The second car was traveling off of the rotary at the time of the accident. No violations were recorded by police.

12:53 p.m.

Officer Steven Fields was on patrol when he stopped a motor vehicle with an expired inspection sticker on Main Street by the car wash. The vehicle also had an expired registration sticker dated 10/89.

A computer check showed the registration was expired non-renewable due to parking tickets. The operator, a 29-year-old Cambridge woman, was cited for operating with an expired registration, and her vehicle was towed.

Saturday, March 17
5:33 p.m.

Officer Daniel Perenick was dispatched on a report of a group of youths in a suspicious motor vehicle on Andrews Road. Police found the vehicle in question and determined that it was registered to an Arlington woman. The vehicle had been left unattended at the end of the road.

Officer Philip Coss was also dispatched to the area to assist, according to reports.

Police located the youths inside a tower on the hill near the Bartlett School. The four male youths were asked to exit the tower and at this time, police noticed a six-pack of beer in the tower.

The youths were identified as a 20-year-old, two 17-year-olds and a 19-year-old, all from Arlington. Police discovered 13 full beers and four beers that were partially full in the tower.

The youths were placed under arrest for being minors in possession of alcohol. They were frisked, handcuffed and transported to the station, said police reports.

Friday, March 16
10:01 p.m.

Officer James Covino was dispatched to Mayflower Road on a report of a large gathering. On arrival police observed 150 to 200 youths gathered in the front yard and back yard.

Two of the residents of the house, both under 21, were interviewed by police.

According to police reports, there were also many open containers of beer, some empty, some half full, laying on the ground and also empty plastic cups.

The youths told police their mother was out of town for the weekend.

Complaint forms were filed and dispatched to Juvenile Officer Daniel McGee. The youths will be summonsed to court on charges of being minors in possession of alcohol.

10:10 a.m.

Officer Kenneth Green was on patrol when he observed a motor vehicle on Swanton Street with an expired registration. The driver, 29-year-old Swanton Street woman, was found to have parking violations and her car was towed from the scene.

The woman was cited for operating an unregistered motor vehicle.

REASONS TO VOTE NO TO THE OVERRIDE

1. Winchester ranks among the top ten in property taxes paid per single family home. Massachusetts pays the fourth highest paid taxes per capita (including property taxes) among all 50 states. Therefore, we are already some of the highest taxed people in the country.
2. Even without an override the costs to own property in town will increase due to:
   a. 2 1/2% allowed increase in property taxes under Prop. 2 1/2,
   b. quarterly water and sewer bills projected to increase 360% in the next ten years due to MWRA charges.
   c. added cost per household for the $4.2 MILLION dollar bond to renovate the town's water distribution system voted in by Town Meeting.
   d. additional increases to water and sewer bills due to mandated projects in the near future including a $2.5 MILLION dollar filtration system at the reservoirs and a $10 MILLION dollar sewer system renovation project.
3. Even without an override our schools will continue to provide a quality education. Including grants and town expenses, the total education budget is $16.7 million, an actual per pupil cost of $5690. The pupil teacher ratio is 16.4/1. Our teachers are among the highest paid in the state. We pay more than Acton, Arlington, Belmont, Carlisle, Dover, Needham, Newton, North Andover, and Sudbury for students in regular all day programs. (Source: Dept. of Educ.)
4. The Finance Committee has voted for fiscal 1991, without an override to:
   a. Fund the Library budget at $622,413 assuring state accreditation.
   b. Fund the Police Dept. at $2,037,034 maintaining current and adequate staffing levels.
   c. Fund the Fire Dept. at $1,898,774 maintaining current staffing. Chief McNutt has assured the Finance Committee that there is no jeopardy to mutual aid or to service in Winchester at these levels.
5. Winchester's cost for Public Works is 10.5% of the total budget, higher than: Arlington (5.2%), Bedford (4.0%), Belmont (5.5%), Lexington (4.8%), Wellesley (5.7%) and Weston (6.2%). (Source: Dept. of Revenue)
6. Winchester's cost for General Government is already 8.3% of the total budget, higher than:
   Arlington (5.9%), Bedford (4.6%). Belmont (4.9%), Lexington (4.1%), Wellesley (4.8%) and Weston (4.0%). (Source: Dept. of Revenue)
7. Prop 2 1/2 belongs to you, it makes government work for the people. Prop. 2 1/2 is the only protection we have over uncontrolled spending.
8. Town government must live within our means. Rather than reducing town expenditures to a level which can be supported by our already high level of taxation, the spenders are demanding that our taxes be raised by $1,391,000. If the town does not bring spending down to a sustainable level, we can expect a succession of overrides year after year returning us to the days before Proposition 2 1/2.

Why is this the right time to Override?

"I have personal acquaintance with the members of the Board of Selectmen who provided us with this opportunity to vote on the level of services from the Town. I urge you to trust them, as I do, that we have trimmed enough from public safety and other municipal budgets and we must now make up for the shortfall from the state."
Bob Ericson, Council on Aging

"After a decade of substantial reductions in Winchester's operating budget, we now need this override just to maintain our reduced level of services and to avoid some irreversible losses in the future."
Alan Macdonald, Town Meeting

"You don't wait until the basement fills with water to repair the leak in the roof. Winchester's capital repair, replacement, and maintenance needs aren't going to go away or get better by themselves, they're just going to get more expensive and more damaging."
Peter T. Van Aken, Chairman, Capital Planning Committee

"This year the debt service override allows us to implement the Board of Selectmen's responsible and stabilizing three year financial plan in spite of state level fiscal paralysis and resulting local aid shortfall. We have studied in depth all options. Replacing lost aid through the debt exclusion override is in our view the fiscally responsible action to take."
Judie Muggia, Selectman

"Winchester will have the quality of schools that the electorate are prepared to fund. Loss of state aid coupled with the restrictions of Prop. 2 1/2 have caused us to fall behind in many school and municipal areas. An override at this time is essential to maintain the excellence we deserve in our schools and in our municipal government."

Children's theater to stage 'Sleeping Beauty'

Rehearsals are well underway for this year's production of Sleeping Beauty by the Winchester Cooperative Theatre for Children.

Cathy Alexander (Mrs. A), along with co-founder Alice Gross created one of Winchester's most popular after-school programs for elementary school-aged children in 1980. Since then, Alexander and Gross have gathered a group of talented and dedicated adults assisting them in the instruction of this assortment of children.

This year's cast of 85 children have been working diligently since early January. Coordinating all the activities of the Cooperative Theatre is assistant director Pam Jervey, Alexander's right-hand person.

Musical director and vocal coach Carole Davidson teaches the entire cast every song in the play. Then, after learning the music, the choreographer, Linda Vacovec, with the help of her junior high school assistants (graduates of the Cooperative Theatre), instructs each child in the movements he or she will need throughout the performance.

Brian Milauskas, with the help of Alice Gross, creates and ocnstructs the colorful light sets while Hugh Thompson, lighting designer, lights up the scenery on stage.

With most of the cast needing three costumes each, this enormous task falls on the creative talents of Debbie Dimes, Mary Ann Magee and Judy Houston along with innumerable nimble-fingered hands.

Finally, the ticket chairpeople, Martha Krause and Susan Corkery, make sure those seats are sold.

With all this hard work, this year's production of Sleeping Beauty is sure to be a winner. The curtain rises at 7:30 p.m. this Friday, March 23, followed by two performances Saturday and Sunday, both this weekend and next. For ticket information, call 729-4819 or 729-6657 as all seats are reserved.

School Committee

Incumbent member William Jervey cited his six years of experience on the board.

"I have helped build a record for Winchester that is unequaled in the Commonwealth," he said. Jervey said Winchester has reduced the amount of money spent per pupil and retained high test scores and quality programs. In addition, Jervey said Winchester is keeping more students in public school, approximately 90 percent, than other towns, he noted. Eighteen percent of students in Arlington and more than 30 percent of students in Medford attend private school, he said.

"I have tried to provide thoughtful leadership," said Jervey. "Many decision are difficult and are not well liked."

Jervey said the five-year contract for the superintendent will save the town $40,000 to $50,000 over that time period. When asked further about the contract, Jervey said stability is important in difficult financial times.

Candidate Mark Lombardi said he is "the only candidate who believes we can live within the limits of (Proposition 2½) without sacrificing quality education or closing an elementary school." He said there is "no proven correlation between increased spending and quality education."

Lombardi said quality education must be more accurately defined, and that promotions should be made from within the system, rather than hiring outside candidates. Hiring from outside gives the wrong message to employees, he said. He added that the superintendent's five-year contract limits the review process, and in response to a question on the subject said he does not see it as a "healthy situation."

Advertisement triggers questions

The three-way race for a seat on the School Committee also hit a snag last week when candidate Mark Lombardi ran a political advertisement with The Winchester Star that his opponents contend misrepresents their positions on several issues.

Candidate William McKay, for example, was listed as in favor of closing a school without an override of Proposition 2½ in the ad. Lombardi contends McKay made such a statement at a "coffee" — a meet-the-candidate-style forum.

"I went to a coffee to meet him before I got into the race. He said then an override was the only way to keep Vinson Owen open," said Lombardi.

But McKay maintains he did not make such a statement. "I know that is not the case," said McKay. "(Keeping Vinson Owen open) is why I did this, that's what motivated me (to run for office) from day one."

Incumbent William Jervey also questioned the contents of the advertisement stating "educationally unnecessary spending" is a subjective term.

"I support spending to maintain the quality of schools in Winchester," said Jervey. "People interpret things in different ways ... and have differences of opinions."

Jervey also stated that since the school budget is not balanced against revenues, the statement that he supports an "unbalanced school budget" is inaccurate. The budget must first be reviewed by the Finance Committee and then approved by Town Meeting, and not until the budget has gone through these channels is it finalized, said Jervey.

While Lombardi agrees the term "unnecessary" is "open to interpretation" he said he felt it was his political advertisement and therefore would serve to express his opinions.

Lombardi also contends however, that the Ad Hoc Budget Committee came up with a number to achieve a "balanced" budget for the entire town and slated a figure for the school committee to meet. Since the School Committee's budget number exceeded the ad hoc committee's number, Lombardi concedes the school budget is "unbalanced."

"If I had known that they were going to be upset," said Lombardi, "I wouldn't have done (the ad) that way."

Other mailings

The Override YES group has also received some criticism for a flier, which stated, "All of our selectmen and all of our town committees and boards, who have worked hard to identify other alternatives, now recommend this action (passage of the override)."

Chairman of the Board of Assessors Charles Shannon said his board is unanimously opposed to the override because of the resulting increase in taxes.

Recycling efforts paying off

By BRENT WOLFE
Special to the Star

The following is the first of a two-part series on recycling, which chronicles the history of recycling in Winchester and looks at the present day system.

Winchester's first recycling habits can be traced back to August, 1971 when the town began a small recycling program. Recycling efforts like those of Winchester are helping to preserve the environment. Recycled materials are used to produce new products that would otherwise use raw materials and valuable energy. Thus, our consumption of natural resources such as trees and oil is reduced.

Department of Public Works Director Tony Celli points out that recycling has an even more immediate benefit than the long-term preservation of the environment — it saves Winchester taxpayers money. "Cost avoidance is the key," says Celli, who cited the way in which Winchester disposes of its waste.

According to Celli, waste collected at the Transfer Station on McKay Avenue is trucked to the North East Solid Waste Committee (NESWC) co-generation plant in North Andover. There, the waste is burned and converted to electricity which is sold to cover operating costs of the plant.

> 'I think there's been a very positive effort in the community of Winchester for the recycling effort.'
> — DPR Director Tony Celli

Celli says that it costs Winchester $67 a ton to send waste to the NESWC plant. In fiscal year 1989 (FY89) the Department of Public Works says that Winchester sent 13,652 tons of waste to the NESWC plant. That puts the FY89 cost to Winchester taxpayers at $914,684.

Recycling reduces the amount of waste being sent to the NESWC plant, thus saving money for Winchester taxpayers. And according to Celli, the recycling efforts of the town in the last few years have already had a measurable effect. The Public Works Department says that in FY88 Winchester sent 14,698 tons of waste to the NESWC plant. That is 1,046 more tons than in FY89, thus the town's waste bill was $70,082 less in FY89.

In the past few years Winchester has developed programs to recycle newsprint, glass, metals, and leaves and grass. The recycling of these wastes signficantly reduces the waste stream to the NESWC plant. Celli estimates that in FY89 Winchester recycled 850 tons of newsprint, 80 tons of glass, 450 tons of metals, and 1,900 tons of leaves and grass.

Newsprint, glass and metals are all sold to plants or merchants of these commodities. While Winchester may not directly receive much money from recycling these products because of transportation fees, money is saved indirectly because these items are no longer part of the waste stream to the NESWC plant. Unfortunately, Celli says, there is not much of a market for the leaves and grass, known as mulch.

Last year, Celli reports, the Transfer Station received 40,000 cubic yards of mulch. "If we do this every year, we're going to be wallowing in mulch," says Celli. The Public Works Department hopes to use the mulch in top dressing for the cemetery, fields and town plantings.

Winchester's recycling efforts are not limited to residents, however. "The employees at the Transfer Station do a tremendous job on recycling," says Celli. The Public Works Department has an incentive program for its employees at the Transfer Station where they are rewarded for pulling recyclable materials off the conveyor belt. These materials are then transferred to the recyclable containners. This further reduces the waste stream to the NESWC plant.

Next week watch for information on new recycling programs in Winchester and recyclable products for today's consumers.

Ours is not the only Winchester of note

By BRENT WOLFE
Special to the Star

Winchester, Mass. is not the world's only Winchester. Winchester, England was the most influential city in England until the 13th century when it was eclipsed by London. Today, the city's biggest attractions are the Great Hall, the cathedral, and Winchester College.

According to Let's Go and Fodor's travel guides, Winchester was the seat of the royal throne in early times. King Alfred, the first great King of England and its savior from the marauding Danes, ruled from Winchester between 871 and 900 AD.

The royal tradition continued in the 11th century when William the Conqueror had his second coronation, after that in London's Westminster Abbey, in Winchester. William the Conqueror then built a castle in the city whose remains are today known as "the Great Hall." Sir Walter Raleigh was sentenced to death in the Great Hall and it currently houses the actual table of King Arthur's legendary Round Table.

The famous Winchester Cathedral has the longest nave in England and was built in just 14 years between 1079 and 1093. It was revamped in the late 15th century to incorporate a more Gothic style.

Oliver Cromwell's soldiers smashed the rear stained glass window in the 17th century and unfortunately it was put back together incorrectly, giving it the abstact appearance that it has today. The cathedral houses the tomb of writer Jane Austen and perhaps its greatest treasure is to be found in the Cathedral Library where the Winchester Bible, a delicate work of calligraphy from the 12th century, is stored.

Winchester's other institution which bears the city's namesake is Winchester College. This prestigious school for children up to high school age was founded by William of Wykeham in 1382. The college is one of England's so called "public schools" which are in actuality private schools. While much of the school's religious discipline has been eased, it has maintained its tradition of academic excellence. Winchester College is open to visitors and daily tours are conducted.

Winchester today is a quiet city that blossoms into activity with the parades of tourists each summer. It has many fine examples of Tudor architecture and the city's youth hostel is housed in a remodeled water mill. Winchester will continue to remind visitors of the England of old while avoiding some of the problems of big cities like London.

Hearing on MetroTech budget set for March 29

John F. Looney, Jr., Winchester's representative to the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational District School Committee announces that a public hearing on the fiscal year budget will be held on Thursday, March 29, at 7:30 p.m. at the school on Hemlock Road in Wakefield.

All elected and appointed officials and residents of the school district are invited to attend and participate in this public hearing. A copy of the proposed budget is available to the public prior to the hearing at the office of the superintendent — director. Copies will also be available at the public hearing.

Dueling car placards

The cars of the candidates for town office got closer than the candidates themselves did on issues at last Sunday's forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

Fiscal issues highlighted in forum

(From page 3A)

William McKay said his bid for the School Committee came about as a result of his belief that "the School Committee is not working in the best interest of the children or the taxpayers." He added that the "old way of doing things" must be rejected to address the financial crisis, which he said the present committee has not done.

McKay said he believes it is time for "new ideas, hard work and openness."

"Stonewalling any attempt to find new alternatives to school closing has pitted parents against parents and neighbors against neighbors," added McKay. McKay said the committee has ignored the findings of the Task Force on School Closing, and has lost the confidence of a number of voters. McKay also said long-range planning is needed for the schools.

In response to a question regarding the superintendent's five-year contract, McKay said he feels it ties the hands of future School Committee members.

When asked about his position on the override, McKay said he personally supports it, but added, "I'm not running with the override. Certainly that has little or nothing to do with my qualifications."

Library trustees

Incumbent Ellen Browning said the major challenge facing the library is its potential loss of state accreditation. To meet state accreditation requirements, Browning said one requirement is that the library spend 15 percent of its annual budget on the purchase of new materials. Almost all of the money for that purpose will come from trust funds next year, she said.

Browning said should would like to see library services upgraded and an increase in volunteers. "I am an advocate for the library," she said. Browning said she supports the override of Proposition 2½ to maintain accreditation.

Constance Papas, also an incumbent, said her experience in town government has taught her to "manage through a crisis and not around it." Papas said people need to work within the limits of Proposition 2½.

Papas said passing the override is "what your state officials want you to do." She said passage would give state officials the go-ahead to continue spending "as if there is no end to their money supply."

The challenge, said Papas, is to live with the funds available. Papas said better accountability should be provided by the library administration. "I believe library services are a priority for Winchester residents and I will fight at Town Meeting to get sufficient funds" to maintain accreditation, she said.

Challenger Deborah Pavelle said she is concerned about eroding library services. "In financially hard times, it is imperative we maintain services," she said. Pavelle said that as a trustee, she would like a volunteer group developed to help out. In addition, she suggested installing a pay telephone in the library, reexamining fees, surveying the public to find the best times and hours for the library to be open, and developing a new purchase policy.

Pavelle said she would work to better inform the public about library trustee meetings and events at the library through articles in the newspaper.

Town courts French mayor's favor

By BRENT WOLFE
Special to the Star

The town put its best face forward this week with the hopes that Michel Pericard, mayor of Saint-Germain-en-Laye, France would look favorably on Winchester and make it his homeland's sister city.

Pericard's visit centered on the possibility of establishing such a relationship with Winchester. Pericard was accompanied by his wife, Catherine, and a translator, Xavier Lebray, and Lebray's wife, also named Catherine.

Pericard and his fellow countrymen started their visit in Winchester with a trip to the selectmen's meeting. Through his interpreter, Pericard said he had been mayor of Saint-Germain-en-Laye, a city of 40,000 inhabitants, for 13 years, and a member of the French Parliment for more than 12 years. Previously, Pericard served as journalist on French television for 25 years.

Saint-Germain-en-Laye, the birthplace of Louis XIV, is 20 kilometers from Paris, and linked to the capital by subway, said Lebray. He added that the city is home to a number of headquarters for companies, such as IBM, as well as research laboratories and France's largest forest. The city also has three museums, including a state archeology museum, a departmental museum for Impressionist painters and a municipal museum.

Selectmen were curious about the emphasis on education and the tax system in Saint-Germain-en-Laye. According to Lebray, the schools are a state system, and children attend school from the age of 3 to 18. Before going to university, students must take an exam.

Michel Pericard, left, mayor of Saint-Germain-en-Laye, France visited Winchester this week to consider the town as a possible sister city. Pericard was accompanied by, from the left, his translator, Xavier Lebray, and Lebray's wife, Catherine, and Pericard's wife, also Catherine.

As for taxes, Lebray said there are "a lot of taxes in France," including a corporate tax, a VAT (value added tax on purchases) and an income tax, as well as a local tax on tenancy, including property tax.

The group started the day Tuesday at Winchester High School, which was appropriate as local students have had an exchange program with Saint-Germain-en-Laye for several years. The group was greeted by Superintendent of Schools Dr. Charles Mitsakos and Winchester High School Principal John Ritchie.

The entourage then proceeded to the Foreign Language Department where members met with students from Leslie Hastings' French class, several of whom have been abroad. Students discussed the differences between life in France and Winchester. The mayor also asked to see one of the student's assignments, which he corrected, giving it a "20," a perfect score in the French system.

The mayor presented Hastings and the school with a book entitled, "Les Peintures et les Yvelines." The book chronicles Impressionist art in the Saint-Germain-en-Laye region and was written by Pericard himself.

The mayor and his party were then treated to a complete tour of the school and appeared impressed with the facilities. They were particularly interested in the folding bleachers in the gym. Perhaps such bleachers may soon find their way to Saint-Germain-en-Laye. The group ended their visit to the high school by purchasing several Sachem sweatshirts.

After the tour of the school, Selectman Judie Muggia, who arranged much of the mayor's visit, drove the party to the Transfer Station to observe Winchester's recycling program. This was of particular interest to the group because Saint-Germain-en-Laye is currently faced with a waste problem.

According to Pericard, the city produces 100,000 tons of waste a year. This contrasts with Winchester, which produces approximately 14,000 tons per year. In the past, Saint-Germain-en-Laye's waste has been put in a landfill, but this landfill will be full at the end of the month, said Pericard. Thus, the city must find alternative methods of disposing of its waste, he added.

The group spoke with Transfer Station Foreman Andy Conley, and was highly impressed with Winchester's recycling program.

While Saint Germain en Laye is also considering sister city relationships with towns outside of Philadelphia and New York, the mayor's translator, Lebray, says that they have a special affinity to Winchester because they have had contact with the town for a number of years through exchange programs. The mayor also wants to continue or expand the youth exchanges between Winchester and Saint-Germain-en-Laye.

The party's schedule for the rest of the day included a business lunch at Maximillian's, a tour of Boston, and a dinner at the home of Selectman Judie Muggia.

more difficult with limited financial resources, but not impossible. McCall-Taylor cited her experience on the Planning Board, and explained the plan she said will "limit the business district on Main Street to where it belongs rather than spill over into (residential) areas."

McCall-Taylor said her board will continue to propose zoning changes to promote affordable housing. If elected, she said she will encourage more inter-board communication.

Incumbent Margaret Roll cited her familiarity with the current issues facing the board. Roll said the proposed Main Street zoning changes will address lighting, noise and parking problems in the area.

Roll said the board will continue to look at issues such as affordable housing, mixed-use zoning and open space.

Candidate Harry Chefalo was not present.

Housing Authority

Incumbent R. Bradford Bailey said he wanted to reaffirm his pledge of 1987 to increase housing options in town. Bailey cited his sensitivity to housing needs, and added that authority should be proactive in seeking housing.

Bailey said the authority should push to increase federal and state voucher programs and to make those count toward affordable housing requirements.

Challenger Werner Carlson said he would encourage legislation for new housing options. Carlson said the town must not use up open land, and cited the Lockeland Road and Cambridge Street cites as "poor planning," saying the houses do not fit in aesthetically with the neighborhoods.

"The next five years will be of great importance as to how Winchester will address housing needs," he said.

Looking Toward Spring

As we look toward spring, we experience the same revitalation the world does. It it time to put our house in order, to ready ourselves for the new life coming with the approaching end of winter.

Now is the time to think about cleaning your gemset jewelry. We would be glad to discuss with you how to care for your jewelry at home. It is a good idea, however, to bring your items in for professional cleaning once a year. That way, we can check to be sure that your settings are secure, that your clasps are in good shape, and that your jewelry shines as it did when you first bought or received it.

Consider, too, whether you might bring new life to some of your gemstones by changing their mounting. Perhaps you've left your avant garde look behind and are ready for elegant sophistication. Your jewelry wardrobe can be updated to match your present style. Now is a good time to consider what pieces you might want to add to your jewelry wardrobe as well.

If you haven't already had appraisals done for insurance purposes, now is an excellent time. Please understand that an appraisal is a professional service. Seek out an appraiser who is trained in the appropriate methodologies and expect to pay an appraisal fee based on an hourly rate rather than on the value of the item.

At Swanson Jewelers we'd be glad to be part of your renewal for spring.

WINCHESTER PAST & PRESENT

Guys and Dolls something special

By ELLEN KNIGHT
Special to The Star

According to director Wally Gagel, the audiences for the high school's upcoming production of "Guys and Dolls" have something special to look forward to. "I think that when everything is put together," he says, "this cast will be one of the most remembered casts for those patrons of the theater who have viewed many high school shows, because of their high energy and their insistence upon perfection."

Gagel himself has a good memory for student shows in town, especially since he directed several of them. In 1971, after attending a junior high production in Newton, he approached Bob Fitzgerald here in Winchester to do a show at the Lynch Junior High where he was a science teacher. The show was "Oliver!," and it was a great success—in fact, a sell-out.

"The support from the parents, students, and faculty," says Gagel, "was unbelievable, and it's been that way ever since."

Gagel next directed "Guys and Dolls," "Pajama Game," "Bye Bye Birdie," and non-musicals such as Kaufman's delightful "The Man Who Came to Dinner" (which the Winchester Players will be producing this May). A highlight of his directorial career was "Annie," staged at McCall in 1985, which many should remember since it was, claims Gagel, a record-breaker for audience attendance.

Retired from full-time teaching since 1988, Gagel is now directing the high school show at a time that he feels he can dedicate the required hours to the production. A former Nathan Detroit himself, he chose "Guys and Dolls," he says, because "I can use a lot of people in the cast, I've directed it before, and because it's a fun show and I like the challenge of converting these Winchester-accented kids into New Yorkers."

The book of "Guys and Dolls" was written by Jo Swerling and Abe Burrows, based on a story and characters by Damon Runyon. The music and lyrics were written by Frank Loesser.

Loesser began his Broadway career writing lyrics for other musicians' tunes, but soon wrote his own music as well, beginning with the song "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition." His first Broadway show, written in 1948, was "Where's Charlie." "Guys and Dolls: A Musical Fable of Broadway" appeared in 1950, directed by playwright/director George Kaufman. It was an immediate and continuing success.

The Winchester High School production of "Guys and Dolls" involves quite a large cast and crew. About 70 are in the cast, 30 in the orchestra, two dozen in the stage crew, and 30 support parents. And just as importantly involved in the production as the stage director are the music directors.

Of vocal director Lynne Rahmeier, Gagel says, "she gets harmonies and sounds from these kids that are unbelievable. She takes cacophony from them and turns it into the most pleasant and involved harmonic sounds."

Priscilla Miller, conducting the orchestra, is described by Gagel as "a saint and an angel. A genius," he explains, "because, when I look at the score I get nauseous it's so complicated, and sanctification is having the patience to accept the variations of ability of each person in the pit and then mold them."

He also has only praise for his student stage manager, Alison Hofnagle, and the co-producers, claiming "a show like this becomes easy when you have producers like Eileen Schlorff and Anne Esposito." Not to stint on credit, he also points out the work of set constructors Dave Miller and John Fusco and set painter Mary Ott.

Like everyone working on the show, Gagel is looking forward to good houses on performance nights March 29-31. "It's very rewarding to have a house full of people in front of you when you perform," and, if Gagel's confidence in his cast is justified, it will certainly be rewarding for the audience to be there.

Life March unites all walks of life

By EVA MEDZORIAN
Special to the Star

A three day "Life March" took place March 3 to 6 in Washington, D.C. bringing together people from all walks of life. There were Protestant and Apostolic clergy, Rabbis, professors, businessmen and women, law students, housewives, World War II veterans, Vietnam veterans and genocide survivors.

This grass roots delegation organized by the Armenian Community Council of the San Joaquin Valley of California brought together 64 citizens from 10 states. There were eight participants from Massachusetts.

The Rev. Roger Minassian, pastor of the Pilgrim Armenian Congregational Church along with Alan Jendian, both from Fresno, Ca., were the leaders of the group. Eva Medzorian of Winchester organized the council volunteers in the New England area.

In all, 100 Senate offices and another 100 congressional offices were visited by this lobby group. Turkish government distortions aimed to mislead public officials and the American public were targeted.

The trip was hailed by participants as a positive and productive effort for the Armenian causes. It included an ecumenical worship service on the Capital steps on Sunday noon, March 4 and a candlelight vigil in front of the White House at 5 p.m., Monday.

The following Tuesday afternoon a prayer vigil took place in front of the Turkish Embassy. This was a visibly heart-wrenching experience for the survivors and children of victims and survivors. The solemn scene in front of the palacial Turkish Embassy, where red flag with crescent and star was flying above, Armenian voices were singing the Lord's prayer, Der Voghormia (Lord Have Mercy), and Yerevan Yerebuni with a bull horn was reportedly awe inspiring to participants.

Many carried signs that said, "The Truth Shall Make You Free!" and "We Honor Turks Who Saved Armenian Lives!", "Keep Your Promise Mr. President" and "Turkey, Don't Deny the Genocide!" The sign relating to the President dealt with the fact that President Bush said during his presidential campaign that he would never succumb to political pressure against efforts to commemorate what he called the "attempted genocide" of the Armenian people.

The group said the next step in lobbying is to monitor the future Armenian Genocide resolution and to seek financial relief for earthquake ravaged Soviet Armenia and support the oppressed Armenians in the Nagorno Karabagh region of the Soviet Union.

After the earthquake there were 500,000 homeless followed by 250,000 Armenians seeking safety from pogroms in Baku and Sumgait (Azerbaijan) and from race violence in Uzbekistan and Tadjikistan. Human rights must be protected, they noted.

One group spokesperson said Armenians are being victimized and killed for no other reason than their nationality by Azerbaijani Turks who are spreading anti Armenian hatred to other Soviet Republics to enhance their position in this controversial Nagorno Kharabagh landgrab issue.

S.J. resolution 212, would designate April 24 as a day of remembrance of man's inhumanity to man. Senator Robert Dole first brought it to the U.S. Senate floor February 19 where it provoked an unusual split between both parties due to very active pro-Turkish pressure groups and lobbying heavily financed by the Turkish government.

It was stated by many Senators that the only other time such heavy lobbying took place was during the MX missile period. From 1915 to 1923, 75 years ago, 1.5 million Armenians were brutally massacred by the Turks. Strong opposition to the resolution was led by Sen. Robert Byrd, Democrat from W. Virginia, who refused to allow the Senate to act on the resolution.

HEALTH

Aging relatives are topic of talk

Nearly everyone, at one time or another, is faced with some issue related to the aging of a parent, spouse or friend.

For people who want to understand the process of aging, how it affects family life, and how to deal with the special problems created by aging parents, spouses or friends, a five part workshop "Understanding and Caring for Your Aging Friends and Relatives" will be held Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 at the Arlington Council on Aging beginning March 29.

The workshop will provide an opportunity for community members to address the areas of community and home services, supports, nursing home placement, relationship issues, and aging. It is sponsored by the Arlington Council of Aging, Winchester Hospital, Cooperative Elder Services, Inc., Minuteman Home Care, and The Center for Mental Health.

For more information and registration call Carol Symonds at 646-1000, extension 4754 or Muriel Ellman 932-8556.

Ileitis Colitis Support Group

The National Foundation for Ileitis and Colitis Winchester Support Group will meet March 22 from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the cafeteria at Winchester Hospital, 41 Highland Avenue.

Admission is free. For more information call (617) 729-9000, Ext. 2040.

Babysitting class offered

A two-session babysitting course will be held April 17 and 19 from 9 a.m. to noon at 7 McKay Avenue in Winchester

The course will provide instruction about personal and home safety, child and infant care, fire safety, emergency procedures, and beginning first aid.

Students who successfully complete the course receive certificates. The participants' names will be added to the Winchester Hospital babysitting referral list with parental permission.

Susan Powers, RN, course instructor, will be assisted by members of the Town of Winchester Fire and Police Departments

The cost, which covers materials, is $25. For further information and registration call 756-2227.

CPR courses at Hospital

Community members interested in learning CPR are invited to attend one of several classes offered by Winchester Hospital's Education Department.

A full CPR course will be offered April 10 and 12 from 6 to 10 p.m. at Billerica Regional Medical Center and April 17 and 18 from 6 to 10 p.m. at Winchester Hospital. The fee is $40.

For more information and registration call 756-2227.

Endorsements

One of the inherent problems in an election that involves a heated issue such as the debt exclusion override is that it becomes a one-issue debate — support for or opposition to the override. The problem with this mind set is that the offices are not one-issue jobs. They involve more than budgetary discussions. The involve programs and services, people and policies.

The Star endorses candidates for contested offices, and takes a position on the override of Proposition 2½. There are uncontested candidates for Board of Health and Board of Assessors, on which the Star does not take a stance.

Board of Selectmen

Selectman Thomas Schmitt has shown foresight in planning for the future. Schmitt has been instrumental in establishing a fiscal plan for the next three years, a difficult task in unstable financial times at the state level. He has worked to create an enterprise water system, and has helped develop a permanent affordable housing fund. By voting to put the Proposition 2½ debt exclusion override on the ballot, Schmitt has shown he is truly a representative of the people, willing to work with whatever decision they hand him.

And he has shown that when it comes time to make cuts, he can do the job. He has helped to make the town run more efficiently with less money. He has contributed intellect, time, energy and dignity to the office, and has shown he can deal with multi-million dollar problems.

Schmitt is also committed to bringing forces together in working towards Winchester's future. As chairman of the Board of Selectmen, Schmitt has allowed residents to state their concerns, and has shown his leadership abilities in keeping discussions on track. Voting for Schmitt will keep an experienced, thoughtful voice on the board in facing the challenges of the future.

School Committee

School Committee member William Jervey has the courage to make tough decisions, though they may be unpopular, such as the potential Vinson Owen School closing. He is willing to stand behind his decisions, and fight to maintain quality education. Jervey has committed himself to the students and programs. He has fought and pledges to continue to fight to maintain a low pupil/teacher ratio, to avoid split grades and to provide strong support to early childhood education. In addition, he is committed to retaining a diverse curriculum at the high school, and maintaining a positive rapport with employees. He should be returned to office.

Library Trustees

Incumbent Ellen Browning has shown thoughtful commitment to library issues in her four years on the board. Browning is dedicated to retaining the library's accreditation as well as improving library services. Her commitment deserves your vote.

Newcomer Anne Deborah Pavelle has shown initiative in her plans for involving the public more in its library. Her ideas for improving services and keeping the public informed are positive. She should get the chance to serve.

Planning Board

Incumbents Margaret Roll and Maryanne McCall-Taylor have been strong members of the Planning Board and have shown insight in the town's planning.

While challenger Harry Chefalo offers many years of town experience, Roll and McCall-Taylor would provide a familiarity with issues presently facing the board, particularly the Main Street re-zoning issue. This experience deserves your vote.

Housing Authority

Incumbent R. Bradford Bailey has exhibited sensitivity to affordable housing issues. He has pledged to push for use of existing housing to meet the town's affordable housing needs, and to preserve those already too-few plots of green grass of open space. Bailey is willing to face the difficult task of increasing Winchester's affordable housing stock, and should be returned to office.

Proposition 2½

Town officials have proven cuts can be made when necessary. When faced with a $775,000 cut in local aid, budgets were reduced and belts were pulled tighter. The town instituted a hiring freeze, and eventually put a hold on management salaries. Free cash was used up, as well as most of the stabilization fund. There is little left in the the town's "savings account."

Some of those cuts have run deep, and certain areas can not deal with another budgetary blow. With continued reductions in local aid, Winchester must take its future into its own hands. Looking to the state for help has been unsuccessful. The time for an override is now.

The measure allows the town to place debt services — including transfer station trailers, the public safety building, town computers and Town Hall renovations — outside the tax base. The cost on an average $300,000 home would be $3.60 per week.

Whether you agree certain music or art courses are necessary at the high school, whether or not you believe you can live without the public library on Sundays and Fridays, there is little doubt about the necessity for public safety. Winchester cannot continue to put residents in life-threatening situations. The Stowell Road fire came too close to claiming the life of a three-year-old boy. It is time to reinforce Winchester's public safety force.

Winchester has always provided a quality education system. But further cuts will only break down that system, will undermine the essence of neighborhood schools. In addition, the town's capital budget has been referred to as "woefully underfunded" in the current year. The proposed FY91 budget without an override is $85,000. There is little that figure can do to address the erosion of the town's capital plant.

The budget pinch will still be felt even with a successful override of Proposition 2½. The fiscal year 1991 (FY91) municipal budget will be reduced by $290,000 from the previous year. The school budget will be cut by approximately $300,000.

Passing an override is not a blank check to the state to come to Winchester when funds are needed. It is an affirmation of residents' belief in the town. ( By the same token, the override is not a blank check for Winchester. School officials must go back and take a close look at both the minority and majority reports from the Task Force on School Closing. Selectmen must continue to seek alternatives to consolidate departments.)

The Star endorses the limited override of Proposition 2½ through debt exclusion. It is time to stop looking at the "mistakes" of the past, as Town Hall renovations have been referred to, and start looking to the future. It is time for residents to again come together as a united front, working in the best interests of Winchester. It is time for an override of Proposition 2½.

Alcohol, drugs not for kids

By TERRY MAROTTA

The situation is this: in a pretty town where the schools are good and the streets are clean and no one would dream of letting garbage blow around, a party for teens takes place on a Friday night.

Phone calls are made to the parents of the young host. The party is legit. They'll be home the whole time.

But when the kids are picked up at party's end, it is clear that some have been drinking, and some are outright sick. When questioned, they admit that the liquor they drank was provided by the same parents who were so reassuring, a few hours before, over the telephone.

The kids, both host and guests, are in Eighth Grade.

This situation, which is both real and recent, is not as unusual as one might think. More and more, in towns both pretty and otherwise, the drinking problem is moving down. And drinking, often drinking in excess, is occurring in teens' homes with the blessing and sometimes the liquor, of the parents who live there.

Why would adults do this? Why would they serve beer to 17-year-olds at five o'clock in the afternoon on the evening of their prom, as happened in my town last spring, so that some of the children, and children they surely still are, can be seen in their lovely prom gowns and handsome tuxes vomiting over the porch railings of the gracious Victorian homes?

I guess the answer lies deep in our assumptions about rites of passage, and the place of alcohol, and our attitudes toward its use, which seem to be changing as rapidly as everything else today.

A great fuss kicked up a month or so ago when Boston University President John Silber suggested in a public forum that drug use was worse than drinking, since you don't see drunks yanking gold chains from off people's necks. What you do see drunks doing, of course, is causing death by car crash, in enormous and tragic numbers.

Drinking has been around for a long time. "Wine, for thy stomach's sake," recommends Shakespeare. It is a balm sometimes, is the implication; it is a tonic. Drugs, on the other hand, are new to most of us. Outside of their use in religious ceremonies among some Native American tribes, they exist in the shadowy netherworld. They scare us.

I had a talk with a boy last week about drugs and why a person shouldn't use them. "They make you stupid," I found myself saying. "They fragment your awareness. Your own impression of your clever self notwithstanding, they make you dumb in conversation." They take the edge off sex, I might have added. And liquor does all the same things.

When I was 18, I worked as a counselor in my hometown at a summer camp for children, held in one of the schools. The real counselors were by and large the city's teachers, and college kids like us were their assistants. At season's end, the staff threw an evening party at the school. That night I drank beer. When the party ended, I went out with other staff members to a bar and for the first and last time in my life drank beers and shots. Then I blacked out, which means I functioned, talked, got in a car, walked around; but remembered none of it; and woke up back at the camp, out in a field, flat on my back, alone with a 35-year-old married teacher.

Lucky for me, I "woke up" then. I was NOT that sort of girl, I told him angrily. Evidently, though, I was the sort of girl that would drink too much, too late, in the wrong company, thus extinguishing judgment, control, and dominion over my own and only body.

Just a month ago, I found myself in the same general company as this man, by chance, 20 years and 400 miles distant from that night. My heart raced. I looked away fast. Later, I looked back. Eventually, he looked at me — without a shadow or trace or glimmer of recognition.

I'd have hated him if he remembered me, probably. As it turned out, I hated him more since he didn't, the faceless young chick with whom, for a few minutes, he thought he'd got lucky.

What an irony for the parents who serve their children booze, if instead of buying love and thanks with their "gift," they turn out to have bought for themselves instead this bitter salty hatred.

Resident thanks Casey for efforts

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to express my appreciation to Representative Paul Casey who was very instrumental in the enactment of Senate Bill 2014. This bill, which was signed by Governor Michael Dukakis on Jan. 9, 1990, was filed on my behalf to reinstate me in the Massachusetts Teachers' Retirement System.

After teaching 14 years in the Arlington Public Schools, a very serious illness occurred in my family. Due to my sister being stricken with Alzheimer's Disease, it was necessary for me to become her guardian. In order to assume this responsibility which required full-time attention, I retired from teaching. After a considerable length of time, my sister's condition was brought to a state whereby my constant care was not necessary and I was able to resume my teaching career. At this time, however, I found it was not possible to be reinstated in the Teachers' Retirement System without a special act of legislation.

Representative Paul Casey whose tireless effort and concern in bringing and defending the bill in the House of Representatives played an extremely important role in its passage. As a resident of Winchester, I feel very fortunate to be represented by such a compassionate and dedicated individual.

Other Arlington and Winchester legislators who were also supportive of bill were: Senator R. Kraus, Senator S. Albano, Repersentative Mary Jane Gibson and Representative Robert Havern. Many thanks to all those who were actively involved in the inactment of this bill.

Gladys Ayvazian

Don't learn by word of mouth

TO THE EDITOR:

I am appealing to all the voters in Winchester to become not just informed on the issues of the day, but to become correctly informed. The key word here is correctly. During these times of fiscal instability, it is our responsibility to learn the facts, NOT the fiction. How do you do this, you ask? Some people will have you believe that their "Letters to the Editor" contain concrete statements of facts. This, however, is not always the case. Many of these letters, while delightfully entertaining, are opinions only. Many are filled with statements that make for great literature, if you have a yen for reading mythology. Most are mere opinions and feelings from those who desire to express their wishes to the town, whether we want to hear them or not. When you read these letters and see figures with no back up proof of the source, or rarely the methodology explained used in calculating these figures explained, do you actually believe they are credible? Are they fact or fiction?

Many people believe they should sit back and learn by word of mouth. We all remember the old "Grapevine Whisper" game we played as children. The end result was always viewed as hysterically amusing (not unlike the results I hear today on the street). Again, do you believe this to be fact or fiction?

The only correct way to gather information and facts on the issues, for those of you who are interested, is to attend meetings, ask questions; call your elected officials and Town Meeting members, ask questions. All of these people are more than able to answer or investigate your questions thoroughly. They are more than willing to explain processes if it means making one more citizen aware. This is one of the reasons we voted for them, isn't it?

I have been asked many questions by neighbors and acquaintances about several of the "hot" issues we seem to be facing today. Who am I to answer? I will be more than happy to express my opinion, but when it comes to facts, I have pleaded with these people to attend meetings, call their elected officials, etc. and ask their questions. During the next few weeks before the election, there are an incredible amount of people using an unbelievable amount of energy to organize meetings, forums, informational coffees, flyers, etc., etc., to make the facts available to all the citizens in Winchester. There is no reason to go to the polls uninformed.

I am asking all of you who read this letter to gather information, know the issues, and go to the polls on March 27 with a clear conscience and the confidence that you know all the facts. If you are one of those people who do not want to know, do not care to spend a little energy correctly gathering the information needed to help preserve the town in which you live, to vote with ignorance, then I hope to see you at the polls on March 31.

On the Town Meeting elections

TO THE EDITOR:

With all the talk abut the override issue, let us not overlook the importance of voting carefully in the Town Meeting election. The people you elect will ultimately decide what happens to available revenues regardless of the outcome of the override. It is in your best interest to know the views of those you are voting into office for the next three years.

You might however, find this to be a problem considering our experience in precinct eight. Six out of the nine people running for the eight available spots have unlisted phone numbers or, as far as we know, have no phone at all. While we do not expect Town Meeting members to make decisions based only on the views expressed by those who call them, we do expect them to be accessible and interested in receiving such phone calls.

For those of you who are interested in voting responsibly we hope you have better luck in your precincts.

Override letters

Space limitations prevented the Star from publishing the dozens of letters to the editor that were submitted on election issues and other matters this week. In the interest of fairness, the editors have selected an equal number of letters from the proponents and opponents of the proposed override vote scheduled next Tuesday. Those letters appear on page 9A.

Recalling 1940 polls

By DAN CHANE
Special to The Star

On Election Day, Monday March 4, 1940, as the polls opened at Town Hall, local attitudes toward the tragic events in Europe had yet to crystallize. Winchester certainly did not want to go to war!

As the town climbed the slate steps to cast its collective ballot, it entertained fervent hope that actions by President Roosevelt — or The Pope — might put a halt to the unrest.

Ben Schneider and Marshall Symmes won the two seats available on the Board of Selectmen and plunged wholeheartedly into the business of this well-heeled town of 14,969 persons, 23 cows and 21 horses.

Still big news — over at Splendid Lunch (with its facade of flashing blue mirrors) or at Randall's was the St. Valentine's Day Blizzard — a storm which caused the Board of Selectmen to authorize a budget overdraft to pay for emergency snow removal.

Around town, talk increasingly turned to the "parking problem" in the square and it was noted, in 1940, that many all day parkers were the local merchants themselves.

The sorry condition on Town Hall Auditorium, with its serious problems caused by water entering at will through tired flashing and cracked roof slates, was evident to all who entered to vote — and there was talk of forming a committee to address the neglect of over 50 years. It was noted in 1940 that there had been no major repairs or material improvements to the building since 1887.

Shoppers at the Economy Market clucked their tongues over the net school budget of $264,714.87 — but never begrudged the youth of Winchester the best education money and dedication could provide. Local pride noted that 38.9 percent of the Winchester High School Class of 1940 planned to continue its education after graduation.

Angry residents of Hancock and Webster Streets stormed Town Hall more than once to fight construction of "Winchester Arms" on Washington Street — the town's first "group house." Grave reservations were expressed by the Planning Board regarding future projects of this type without first addressing inadequacies in the zoning by-law.

During the year, locals hanging around the square watched with pride as the B and M Railroad built a two story brick signal tower, of colonial persuasion, right beside the tracks as they crossed Main Street. Winchester Police had it better then — no begging for a cramped police box — for they had a room to observe and control traffic on the upper floor of this tower. Remember the bell outside that tower clanging without end as the heavy yellow gates came down across Main Street in preparation for yet another train?

Well, how did the 1940 election go?

Four offices went with no contest — but it is interesting to see that most races held four to five candidates running for only one or two openings per board. And — get this John Sullivan — there was a heated race for Town Moderator and out of 4,130 votes cast, Ray Wilkins took the honor by about 700 votes!

This year Election Day is Tuesday, March 27. The polls are open all day long so take a friend and support the spirited concern for the future that every candidate has for Our Town — whatever the political persuasion.

PRO-OVERRIDE LETTERS

Override would 'maintain services'

TO THE EDITOR:

A recent Star article referenced statistics which were released by the Massachusetts Department of Education on "per pupil" education expenditures for the various cities and towns. The statistics show that we are spending less on educating our children than every other town in the Lincoln-Sudbury Consortium, which is comprised of eight of the finer school systems in the state. We are also spending less than many of our neighboring towns, such as Woburn, Arlington, Lexington and Medford.

These figures dispel the myth, which has been perpetuated by some individuals, that our school system is spending extravagantly and that there is much waste that could potentially be trimmed from the school budget. It simply is not the case, and, if anything, we should probably be spending more on our schools. The importance of such figures may be evidenced in a Boston magazine evaluation of Massachusetts schools, which concluded that there is a direct correlation between school system rankings and real estate prices.

The primary reason that young families are willing to pay a premium to settle in Winchester is its favorable educational ranking and inclusion with towns in the Lincoln-Sudbury Consortium. These towns realize that an ongoing investment must be made in order to maintain their competitive academic standing, and, as such, have typically overridden Proposition $2^1/_2$. We must be willing to, at a minimum, maintain our current level of educational expenditures, if we expect to continue to keep pace with the other top school systems.

I am not affiliated with any political faction within the town, nor do I presently have children in the school system; however, it is apparent to me that erosion of our educational ranking will clearly be reflected in our property values. What message is Winchester sending to prospective homebuyers when it refuses to properly fund its schools? What conclusion can be drawn about a town whose public library is in jeopardy of losing its accreditation?

A "yes" vote on the override question is not a vote for increased spending. It is a vote to merely offset the $1.3 million reduction in state aid. It is a vote to maintain basic services which distinguish Winchester from most ordinary towns. It is a vote to preserve a standard of living which will continue to encourage young families to choose to settle in Winchester.

Paul Fitzpatrick

Magee addresses override issue

TO THE EDITOR:

I am writing to express my concern with what I perceive is the mistaken belief on the part of some of our citizens that the fiscal constraints which have been part of our budget process for the past several years have not adversely affected various elements of our Town government, particularly its education system. I am specifically referring to a recent letter to the editor from Mr. Frank Lambiase and a press release of Mr. Mark Lombardi, both of which take issue with a statement made by Mr. Bill Jervey at a recent School Committee meeting. Mr. Jervey stated that he is worried that budget cuts will result in the end of public education as we have known it.

I for one share this very concern. Next year, I will have a child at each level of our school system: one entering the high school, one entering McCall Junior High, and the youngest in the fifth grade at Lincoln School. Some of the matters I worry about include the following:

- Three levels of the German program at the high school are currently taught simultaneously in the same classroom.
- There will not be a librarian at the McCall library next year.
- We have a kindergarten class with 28 children, four of whom speak English as a second language.
- Textbook replacement programs have been frozen for next year.
- Each guidance counselor at the high school will serve over 250 students next year.
- We cannot provide enough educational supplies for classroom teachers to make it through the year. The Home Economics classes at McCall require students to bring supplies from home. The Friends of Art were formed to provide art materials for the high school.
- Students must pay to participate in scholastic athletic programs and if the override fails, an activities fee may be imposed on all elementary and secondary students for participation in school-sponsored extracurricular activities.
- Last year, we finally got rid of split grades in the elementary schools; this year we have five splits back again.
- Finally, and perhaps most troubling of all, is the fact that some members of the community call for major cuts in professional development, want to take water out of the teachers' rooms, demand a salary freeze for school employees, want the teachers to agree to "significant give-backs" in their next contract and yet somehow still expect our teachers to be dedicated, loyal and committed to our children.

I was interested to learn that the State income limit for low income housing for a family of four is currently a net (after tax) income of $25,920. The Town Manager's budget for FY91 carries a total value of $31,200 for the elimination of one high school teaching position. I wonder how many of our "overpaid" teachers would qualify, or almost qualify, for the Town's low income housing.

Too many people want a first-rate educational system without having to pay for it. Clever rhetoric is no substitute for hard work. Cliches do not replace commitment.

Winchester currently spends less on education than all the other members of the Lincoln-Sudbury consortium. We spend less than our neighboring communities of Arlington, Lexington, Medford, and Woburn. While we currently have an excellent education system and a dedicated staff, I believe that you can consolidate and cut only so much before you start to dismember the system. With no end in sight to our revenue problems due to the limits of Prop. $2^1/_2$, I believe that we might indeed see the end of quality public education if cuts continue. Please, vote for the override.

Residents cite responsibilities

TO THE EDITOR:

When Proposition $2^1/_2$ was passed nearly 10 years ago, taxpayers were justifiably looking for a means to get the cost of government at all levels under control. Large annual tax increase were commonplace, confidence in public officials was low, and ther appeared to be little hope for change.

It has worked! Thanks to the strong message of the referendum and the responsible efforts of our officials, Winchester's budget has been held well within inflationary increases for nearly a decade. Can we expect to hold the line forever? Yes, we must. Our property values and quality of Winchester life depend on it. However, it is not possible to hold increases indefinitely to levels less than half the rate of inflation. Services will suffer and jeopardize these same property values and quality of life. The time has come to face this reality.

When Proposition $2^1/_2$ passed, we the voters and taxpayers undertook the perennial responsibility to recognize and deal with the important tradeoff between taxes and services. Not to do so would threaten all that Winchester has come to mean to us. Facing up to this responsibility means passing the debt exclusion override.

ANTI-OVERRIDE LETTERS

Borggard asks about water use

TO THE EDITOR:

We hear a lot about "budgets" these days, especially the "School Budget;" in particular.

As I understand the meaning of the word, a budget is a plan, or schedule, made in advance, to provide a framework for the expenditure of certain funds for certain specific purposes. To be a true budget, it should provide for all the expenses to be incurred by by that particular undertaking.

With this definition in mind, let us look at the current School Budget. It requests the sum of $13,463,751 for the coming year (Let us say $13 million for ease of handling). Presumably, this sum is all that the School Committee would like the town's taxpayers to think the schools will cost this year — this amount, and no more!

Unfortunately, however, this sum is totally inadequate for their ambitious programs. They know it, too — or should know it — they can get the figures as well as I.

I feel there is deceit — or at least subterfuge — here, whether intentional or not. As you will see from my figures, published below, there are over a dozen very expensive items connected with the costs of our schools that have been palmed off to other town departments. For the life of me, I cannot see that this procedure serves any useful purpose whatsoever. It does not save the taxpayer a dime, or make life easier for anyone. It does, however, serve to delude the taxpayer from learning just how much more the shcools are costing him than he is led to believe.

To set him straight I publish the true figurs below for every citizen to see. These are not my figures (I am not a bookkeeper or an accountant). These figures came "right out of the horse's mouth," and can be verified by anyone who cares to question them — please, be my guest!

To get back to the matter of the expensive items I mentioned, please note that there are at least eight (8) items mentioned that pertain to buildings and grounds for a total of over $800,000 and six more involving a total of almost $2 million for more or less personal affairs (including one item of $136,800 handed to the Police Department).

We now have a total of almost $17 million instead of $13 million (I round these figures out so you can remember them better).

When I was handed these figures I said, "these figures are no good!" "What do you mean? They are right out of the books."

"I know," I replied, "but you forgot something."

"What's that?" he wanted to know.

"You forgot to add the water bill," I said. "There are well over 3,000 people there day after day — don't they flush the toilets? Don't they take showers after exercising? Don't they wash dishes in the cafeteria? Don't they drink the stuff, water plants, scrub floors?

I pay about $400 a year for just me and the cat. Multiply 3,000 by $400 and you will see that the water bill counts up (unless, perhaps they flush the toilets with Perrier Water or Poland Springs — I did hear some rumors about Perrier Water being charged to the town).

Hope it all comes out in the wash (and please, remember to vote against the override).

C. Borggaard

P S : This year's total is $11½ million above last year's figures. I fail to see how this constitutes the dramatic "cut" being complained about.

Carroll responds to letter-to-editor

TO THE EDITOR:

I must respond to the Letter to the Editor that called for all people on fixed incomes to support the override and then file for an abatement for relief of their taxes. I find this concept totally absurd as everyone in town knows that it is very difficult to get an abatement and that the amounts usually received on an abatement never decreases your taxes by any significant amount compared to the tax bill itself. Also it is highly unlikely that anyone would get an abatement every year yet our taxes automatically go up every year! Even the $500 abatement allowed some seniors is nothing compared to three and four thousand dollar tax bills.

Also this gentleman wrote that he was willing to override $2^1/_2$ and pay additional taxes so that he can continue to live in a town where "dog bites man" makes the news and town officials names are not mentioned in the same sentence with the word indictment. Let me tell you sir that even if the override fails our town officials will not become crooks and our town will not be overrun with criminals. To even suggest that is ridiculous.

The quality of life in Winchester does not depend on more money. The quality of life in Winchester is due to its people, the same people who built this town to what it is today and who would not dream of leaving because it is our home. Therefore sir if you are so concerned about your well being and the education of your children, I suggest you either move or send them to private school. I understand you can well afford to do both and I doubt that what Winchester offers will ever be good enough for you.

To the rest of us, I suggest we support the "no override position and candidates on the ballot on March 27.

Vincent Carroll

WTA is to be thanked

TO THE EDITOR:

The Winchester Taxpayer's Association deserves our thanks. They are the only ones who care about the taxpayers. And they are certainly the only ones who present us with the opposing point of view about Winchester's fiscal crisis.

It makes me angry when I see comments in the newspapers stating that the only thing the no override people care about are their tax bills. That is unfair, simplistic, and in my opinion absurd. They obviously care about families trying to afford a home and raise their kids, town employees who want to live as well as work in town, and senior citizens on fixed incomes who want to be able to afford to stay in their homes. They certainly care about far more people than the pro-override groups.

We should all listen to what they have to say. Thank-you Winchester Taxpayer's Association. My hat's off to you.

ELECTION '90

Candidates answer LWV questions

SELECTMEN

Given Winchester's financial constraints, how can the town keep and recruit well qualified personnel?

Ann Matarese

Name: Ann Matarese
Address: 16 Surrey Road

Education: BA, Salem State College, 1969
Occupation: Political Consultant
Winchester residency: 11 years

Preparation for office: Precinct 6 Town Meeting member, 8 years; regular member Winchester Zoning Board of Appeal; past member Winchester Conservation Commission; past chairman, Citizens' Advisory Committee on Housing; founding chairman of Winchester Taxpayers' Association; alternate member of Winchester Republican Town Committee and delegate to 1990 Republican State Convention

ANSWER:

Winchester, like every other town in Massachusetts must come to terms with increased demand for services balanced against limited revenues. We must start living within our fiscal means. By consolidating departments and reducing administrative staff wherever possible, I believe we can keep the majority of our personnel intact. Many of our town employees, living in Winchester, have repeatedly told me that they can't continue to live here, if we override Proposition 2½. I believe it is morally wrong to tax people out of their homes — especially our town employees. Let's prioritize our needs, evaluate our personnel, limit our spending, and create an economic climate that is responsive to the financial means of all our citizens.

Thomas Schmitt

Name: Thomas W. Schmitt
Address: 44 Winthrop Street
Education: BA, Hamilton College
Occupation: Associate Dean, Harvard Medical School

Preparation for office: Board of Selectmen, 1987-1990, chair, 1989-1990; Personnel Board, 1985-1987, chair 1986-1987; Special Insurance Advisory Committee, 1985-1986 chair; Town Meeting Special Study Committee in Low and Moderate Income Housing, 1986-1987; Housing Partnership Board, 1987-1990, chair 1988-1989; Town Meeting member 1985-1990 (perfect attendance); Middlesex County Advisory Board.

ANSWER:

In difficult financial times, organizations must retain and attract high quality employees. Winchester's recent workforce reductions place the town in that category. As a human resources professional, I have been guided by three underlying principles to achieve that objective with shrinking resources. First, as the number of staff members decreases, it is important to reward those who remain by protecting job security to the maximum possible extent and by rewarding superior contribution through a well-developed and adminstered performance planning and appraisal process. Second, in order to maximize productivity, managers and supervisors must be selected and trained to be effective leaders who can motivate well and maintain high morale. Third, it is often employees who come up with the best ideas. Assuring their participation in operational planning not only increases employee commitment to the Town's overall objectives, but also maximizes the energy they contribute to their jobs.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE:

Assuming a limited school budget in the future, which specific services and activities should the School Committee (a) eliminate or (b) retain funded through user fees?

Name: William T. Jervey
Address: 22 Stone Avenue
Education: BA, cum laude, Boston University
Occupation: computer software
Preparation for office: School Committee member, 1984-1990, chairman 1987-1988; Town Meeting member (Precinct 1); Capital Planning Committee member; Parents Advisory Committee on Special Education member; served on Muraco Parents Association, Town Day Committee and 350th Committee.

ANSWER:

We have always had a limited school budget, and I expect we always will. In the past few years, it has become too tight to maintain the same level of service we had three years. As a result, we have cut some administrative positions, increased class sizes slightly, combined five elementary classrooms (such as the 4/5 split), combined advanced classes at the high school (e.g. German 3, 4 and AP are in one class), reduced counseling, and instituted a user fee for high school athletics. If the School Committee budget is approved in May, we will have cut about $1 million in three years. We cannot continue to make cuts at that level and remain a first rate educational system.

Name: Mark Lombardi
Address: 18 Fells Road
Education: Winchester Public Schools, M.S. business Rensselaer Poly. Inst., MBA Boston University
Occupation: self-employed builder
Winchester residency: life-long
Preparation for office: Town Meeting member 1980 to present; member Muraco School Parent Association, 1983 to 1985; President Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School, 1985 to 1987; Finance Committee member 1985 to 1987; Finance Committee Education Subcommittee, 1987; life-long Winchester resident, wife Doris and four children.

ANSWER:

The school budget has, in fact, always been limited based on our perception as a community of what a proper balance between taxation and spending should be. The specific constraints of Proposition 2½ over the past 10 years have only more specifically delineated the public felling of where this balance should rest.

A yearly process should be implemented to examine all areas of the budget and to prioritize every service and activity now existing. The public should be aware of what is considered essential and at the heart of our education system and what is not.

Although there is not ample space to delineate and justify exactly what my priorities are in this article, I look forward to doing this throughout the campaign. The report submitted by the Task Force on School Closing initiated this process and the School Committee must pick up where the report leaves off.

Name: William F. McKay
Address: 202 Ridge Street
Education: Lexington Public Schools, BA, MA, PhD Boston University; Fulbright Scholar, Britain and Kenya
Occupation: self-employed builder
Preparation for office: 15 years experience in alcohol and drug prevention and treatment. Serve on review boards on child and spouse abuse and juvenile offenders. Direct a staff of counselors, educators, lab technicians and support personnel. Develop budgets and review programs. Streamlined my program to provide the same services for fewer dollars. My program has consistently been cited as one of the best in the U.S. military. Nevertheless, last year I was able to give back $40,000 to the U.S. Treasury. Graduate studies and research abroad.

ANSWER:

I believe the primary issue facing the School Committee is not what services to cut but the process by which policy is made. The School Committee can not opt for quick fixes. It's decisions must be both educationally and financially sound. It can not pit the interests of one group of students against another.

My concern is that the committee has lost its sense of direction. It has turned its back on Winchester's traditional commitment to neighborhood schools and its own earlier planning and priorities. Worst of all it has allowed the issue of school financing to divide the town.

Winchester needs a School Committee concerned with making every tax dollar cost effective. There must be a comprehensive planning process and ongoing rigorous public reviews of all aspects of the school system. These reviews should reinforce what needs strengthening, applaud what is successful, and eliminate what is wasteful or ineffective.

2. The exclusive right and easement to use one (1) undesignated parking space; and
3. The exclusive right and easement to use the balcony or deck, if any, immediately adjoining said Unit.

The Unit is laid out as shown on a plan recorded with the first deed to said Unit in Registry and affixed to which is the verified statement of a registered engineer, certifying that the plan shows the unit designation of the Unit hereby conveyed and of the immediately adjoining units, and that it fully and accurately depicts the layout of the Unit, its location, dimensions, approximate areas, entrance and immediate common areas to which it has access, "as built."

Unit is intended to be used primarily for the purposes set forth in Paragraph (7) of Master Deed, and are subject to the restrictions set forth in Paragraph (8) of Master Deed.

The premises will be sold subject to any and all unpaid taxes and other municipal assessments and liens, and subject to prior liens or other enforceable encumbrances of record entitled to precedence over this mortgage, and subject to and with the benefit of all easements, restrictions, reservations and conditions of record and subject to all tenancies and/or rights of parties in possession. It shall be the bidder's sole responsibility to ascertain all items described in this paragraph and no representations are made concerning compliance with applicable zoning, building, sanitary or other State and/or Municipal regulations.

TERMS OF SALE: Cash, cashier's or certified check in the sum of $5,000.00 must be presented at the time and place of the sale in order to qualify as a bidder and shall be tendered by the purchaser at the time and place of sale; a minimal acceptable bid amount may be announced at the time of sale; high bidder to sign a written Memorandum of Sale upon acceptance of his/her bid; balance of said purchase price shall be paid in cash, cashier's or certified check within Thirty (30) days thereafter or such other time as may be designated by the mortgagee and shall be held in escrow by the attorney listed below until the Court approves said sale, whereupon a foreclosure deed shall be delivered terminating said escrow.

This sale may be postponed or adjourned from time to time, if necessary, by the Attorney for the mortgagee at the scheduled time and place of sale. The description of the premises contained in said mortgage shall control in the event of a typographical error in this publication.

Other terms to be announced at the sale.

(SEAL) Case No. 142915

To Wayne W. Aho; Ruth M. Aho; Farmers Home Administration and to all persons entitled to the benefit of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended:

Union Deposit Corporation claiming to be the holder of a mortgage covering real property in Winchendon, numbered 42 Mill Glen Road, given by Wayne W. Aho and Ruth M. Aho to Union Capital Corporation, dated April 19, 1988, and recorded with Worcester County Registry of Deeds, Book 11270, Page 122, and now held by the Plaintiff by assignment, has filed with said court a complaint for authority to foreclose said mortgage in the manner following: by entry and possession and exercise of power of sale.

If you are entitled to the benefits of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended and you object to such foreclosure you or your attorney should file a written appearance and answer in said court at Boston on or before the 23rd day of April 1990, or you may be forever barred from claiming that such foreclosure is invalid under said act.

Witness, Marilyn M. Sullivan, Chief Justice of said Court this 8th day of March 1990.

Candidates answer LWV questions

LIBRARY TRUSTEES: Should the Library Trustees mobilize the community to demonstrate support for the Library? If so, how?

A. Deborah Pavelle

Name: A. Deborah Pavelle
Address: 23 Berkshire Drive
Education: BA Douglass College (Rutgers University); MA Case Western Reserve University
Occupation: Speech language pathologist
Preparation for office: Active library patron deeply concerned with erosion of services; working professional.

ANSWER:

Absolutely. Mobilization is synonymous with patron involvement and is part of the responsibility of being a trustee. The Trustees speak for the public's library. The trustees must establish a strong public relations policy and be vocal and visible at the community level. The trustees should encourage attendance of trustee board meetings by library staff, the public and members of the Friends. The trustees should develop better public communications, followign trustee meetings, through the use of Cable t.v. and newspaper articles. The trustees must involve the community in the library's changes via their input from surveys and suggestion boxes. In addition, they must continue to work with the Friends whose dedication and committment is imperative to the library's survival. The trustees must remember they see the library from the user's viewpoint.

I will represent the public and will work with these concepts described above.

Name: Ellen B. Browning
Address: 2 Cabot Street
Education: AA degree, Endicott Junior College.
Preparation for office: Library trustee, four years; 17-year resident; Town Meeting member, seven years. As library chairperson, worked with town Finance Committee, Personnel Board, and Town Meeting. Active as parent at Lincoln, Ambrose and McCall Schools and school library volunteer.

ANSWER:

Yes, we should inform the community and let each resident decide based on facts. Example: due to funding shortfalls, library is threatened with possible loss of state accreditation and loss of eligibility for our share of state aid. Handout: "How Funding Affects the Library Services & Standards" available at library since December. Article for local newspapers being composed by chairman, with approval of trustees. Trustees preparing a town-wide mailing in support of library and override question. Our advocacy group, Friends of the Winchester Public Library, will also assist in mobilizing support for the library in general, and revenue questions as they affect the library.

Name: Constance D. Papas
Address: 18 Amberwood Drive
Occupation: Manager
Education: BA, Northeastern University.
Preparation for office: Library trustee, current vice chairman; Town Meeting, 15 years; School Committee, nine years, chairman three years; Served on several other town committees; advocate of library services.

ANSWER:

I think what you're really asking is "Should the Library Trustees try to organize library users to override Prop. 2½?" If that's so, my answer is "No." The taxpayers of Winchester are smart enough to know how much they can afford to pay and how they want their taxes spent.

Instead of mobilizing the community the trustees should put all of their effort into making suer that the library delivers the services the public wants.

HOUSING AUTHORITY: How strongly do you support the state's mandate that Winchester provide housing for the mentally handicapped?

R. Bradford Bailey

Name: R. Bradford (Brad) Bailey
Address: 12 Sussex Road
Education: Harvard College, BA cum laude 1980; University of Virginia of Law, JD 1983.
Preparation for office: Served on the Housing Authority since 1987, member of the Winchester Fair Housing Committee, served on Affordable Housing Task Force at the Church of the Epiphany, attend housing seminars and discussions, read housing newsletters, Town Meeting member, father, taxpayer and public sector employee.

ANSWER:

Since joining the Authority, I have advocated the need for increased housing opportunities in Winchester. However, I don't believe in development for development's sake. I believe that the responsible housing plan must respond to the needs of the community. Currently, Winchester's greatest need is for elderly and low to moderate income family housing for its residents. To the extent that 689 housing will secure state funding for 667 and 705 projects, it should be considered, using a needs assessment, site-suitability analysis and public dialogue.

Fiscal constraints present funding for public housing projects until 1991. We should use this hiatus to develop a long-range housing plan for all our needs and interests and pursue opportunities that help us realize these goals appropriately.

Werner Carlson

Name: Werner A. Carlson
Address: 14 Bigelow Avenue
Education: BS in business management, real estate major.
Preparation for office: Served on the Housing Authority since 1987, member of the Winchester Fair Housing Committee, served on Affordable Housing Task Force at the Church of the Epiphany, attend housing seminars and discussions, read housing newsletters, Town Meeting member, father, taxpayer and public sector employee.

ANSWER:

While chairman of the Permanent Building Committee in Arlington, I worked on programs to integrate educable students into the school system. There were also programs of town-owned housing for the mentally handicapped. If, in fact, Winchester is mandated for these programs, I am familiar with them and can offer expert advice. I firmly believe, however, we should not build on town-owned land but rather work with Winchester landlords to fulfill these needs.

Ballot question

Shall the Town of Winchester be allowed to exempt from the provisions of Proposition Two and One-Half, so called, the amounts required to pay for the bonds issued for the following: to finance the reconstruction and furnishing of the Public Safety Building; to finance the purchase of Transfer Station Trailers; to finance the purchase of the Municipal Computer System; to finance the reconstruction and furnishing of Town Hall?

Candidates answer LWV questions

PLANNING BOARD

What is your vision for Main Street from the Center northward?

Harry Chefalo

Name: Harry Chefalo
Preparation for office: Selectman, 6 years; Board of Survey (responsibilities now assumed by the Planning Board), 3 years; Water and Sewer Board, 6 years; Finance Committee, 12 years; other appointed Town committees; Property developing experience.

The candidate did not answer the LWV question by the designated deadline.

Name: Maryann McCall-Taylor
Address: 8 Sanborn Street
Education: Master in City Planning, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; BA in history, Wellesley College
Occupation: Associate Dean, Harvard Medical School
Preparation for office: Winchester Planning Board, 1984 to present, chairman 1986 to 1988; Town Meeting member 1984 to present; Winchester Housing Partnership Board, 1987 to present; Fair Housing Committee, 1985 to present; Woburn Loop subcommittee, 1987 to 1988; extensive experience in planning at the graduate and undergraduate level.

ANSWER:

Planning and revision of the current zoning by-law will allow Main Street a chance at healthy growth. The amount of business the Town can support is limited. Main Street is the appropriate place for business but the surrounding neighborhoods are not. Moving the zoning line so that new business is allowed only on Main Street wil lessen the impact on the residential areas.

In order to promote an attractive and viable business area the Planning Board must, in addition to the currently proposed rezoning along Main Street, examine the parking, set back, height and buffering elements in the current by-law. I would also like to see the board, in conjunction with the Housing Partnership Board, investigate a multi-use zone that would allow the development of mixed residential and business uses in the general business district.

Margaret Roll

Name: Margaret Roll
Address: 5 Central Street
Education: BA, University of Michigan; MS, Purdue University.
Occupation: Editor
Preparation for office: Three years on Planning Board, one year as secretary, one year as chairman; three-month course in Land Development Law; Observer Corps LWV 1986 to 1987; ABC Board, 1986 to 1988; host parent ABC 1982 to 1986; Religious education teacher, 1983 to 1987; Cadett Girl Scout leader, 1978 to 1980; Alumni Board of Phillips Academy, 1978 to 1981.

ANSWER:

Planning Board has proposed changes in zoning along North Main Street to curtail and curtail commercial growth. Zoning existing from 1924 allows dissecting properties through buildings and through lots. Proposed changes would bring integrity to those properties and would protect residential neighborhoods which abut commercial zoning. New plan benefits both residential and commercial owners. Lack of parking, heavy traffic, problems with lighting and noise have long been problems to North Main Street area residents. By restricting commercial growth, we respect the sanctity and health of residential areas. We encourage business use on Main Street, recognizing limited parking space. On west side of Main Street, we considered possible uses of Woburn Loop. Important to illuminate light industrial zone and to keep buffering and protection for residential properties. Generally encouraged business use with addition of Woburn Loop for parking.

I helped to formulate and wholly endorse these proposed changes by the Planning Board.

BOARD OF HEALTH

Which sites in Winchester should receive priority for cleanup? How can the Board of Health most effectively accomplish this cleanup?

Name: Randall Wolfe Swartz
Address: 15 Manchester Road
Education: BS, Biology, PhD Microbial Psychology, Molecular Biology, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute; MBA studies, Indiana University/ Purdue University, focus on accounting, managerial economics, organizational behavior and group dynamics.
Occupation: Director, Biotechnology Engineering Center, Tufts University; consultant; entrepreneur; research scientist.

Preparation for office: Service on Winchester Conservation Commission. Career experience studying microbial and mammalian systems, technical and operating responsibility for large chemical/biochemical manufacturing facilities. Recreational interest in the outdoors and nature. Leadership positions on church councils and other volunteer groups. Personal study of the health impact and effects on nature of environmental pollution by chemicals of water, soils and air.

ANSWER:

The former J.D. Whitten Co. at 134 Cross Street, Case No. 3-0115 is a confirmed priority disposal site under MGL 21E. The Ferrari property on Rock Avenue is a confirmed 21E disposal site. It is a model for what should never have been allowed to happen and must never happen again. While implementing solutions we should study the larger picture of soil and groundwater pollution elsewhere in Winchester by organic and heavy metals.

Also of great concern is the continuing pollution of Winchester's ponds and surface waters by raw sewage due to overflows caused by identified illegal inflows to the system and by irresponsible activity by communities upstream.

The Board of Health is broadly empowered under Massachusetts law to take action when the health and safety of people is threatened. Because the DEP is overwhelmed by the task at hand, we must use this authority decisively to protect our town.

ELECTION '90

Pros and Cons on override question

■ Vote no on override

Dear Fellow Residents of Winchester:

The Winchester Taxpayers' Association asks you to join with us again this year to defeat the override of Proposition 2½. The Taxpayers' Association was formed because we realized that without an organized voice, we would be steamrolled into a tax increase year after year by the various town boards and special interest groups. Much has been published about why we should override Prop. 2½ and there has even been a sense of moral superiority on the part of some groups who have wished to "educate" us. However, the Taxpayers stand firmly against this override.

We believe that Winchester not only can but must come to terms with the reality of its financial problems. We have been told that our teachers will no longer teach, that our lives will not be protected, our library will not be accredited, our buildings and streets will fall apart, one of our elementary schools must close, and even that people will not buy our homes. The fact of the matter is, however, that none of this has or will happen because the people of this town will not allow this to happen. What the people of this town do expect is that when we are faced with some difficult decisions, our managers step up to the problem and face it head on. Last year the overwhelming majority of voters in Winchester told our elected boards that they wanted them to hold the line. When Governor Dukakis cut aid to the cities and towns he created additional pressure on the town. However, it is not up to the cities and towns to bail the state out of its financial crisis. Proposition 2½ was enacted to take the burden off the property tax. We do not want to return to the days of the second highest property taxes in the country. What then is Winchester to do?

Town government must cooperate with the citizens of our town to keep living in Winchester an affordable reality. Our leaders must move to address our problems in ways that do not try to punish and scare us. Rather than referring to the "dismantling" of public education, the School Committee must deal with the fact that there is absolutely no reason why they cannot deliver an excellent education even without an override of Proposition 2½. This is not the catastrophic end we have been lead to believe and it needs to be put in perspective. Let us look at what the schools will have in fiscal 1991. The fact is that even without an override our school system will remain fundamentally intact.

- Virtually all programs and services will be offered at the same levels as last year.
- Money has been put aside for teacher raises next year.
- Current staffing patterns and pupil/teacher ratios will be maintained at their very low 16.4/1 levels.
- There will be no loss of AP courses.
- A school does not have to close despite the decision of the present school committee and its poor choice of priorities.

Furthermore, despite all of the threatening headlines the fact is that even without an override:

- The police department will be funded at $2,037,034 maintaining the same safe staffing levels as last year.
- The fire department will also maintain its current staffing level with a budget of $1,898,774. Chief McNutt has already assured the finance committee that there is no jeopardy to mutual aid or to service in Winchester at these levels.
- The library budget has been approved by the finance committee and assures state accreditation next year.

Of course we recognize that there will be a need for some reductions to (See PRO, page 14A)

■ Vote yes on override

On March 27, we will have the opportunity to vote on a debt-exclusion override to raise $1.39 million in revenue for Winchester. This revenue will cover two-thirds of a $2.2 million dollar shortfall which exists in the Town Manager's FY91 budget predictions. The Selectmen, as well as the Capital Planning Committee, the Finance Committee and the School Committee have unanimously endorsed the debt-exclusion as being a necessary response to a very serious fiscal problem. The decision to agree to raise one's property taxes is never pleasant, and even a modest increase in tax payments will be difficult for some of our residents. The alternative to the debt-exclusion override, however, is severe cuts in all areas of the town budget which will place a burden on many of our residents.

Our opponents say we must keep cutting, but they never tell us where the cutting will stop. They say waste is rampant, but they do not and cannot identify $2.2 million dollars in additional cuts that would leave the Town with anything approaching the current level of essential services. They say Winchester cannot afford to be Winchester anymore. We say Winchester is a well-managed town and that significant cuts have been made systematically since Proposition 2½ was enacted. We say more budget cuts will further erode our town services, particularly in the areas of public safety, public education, and maintenance of public properties. We say Winchester should preserve its property values and its reputation as one of the most desirable towns in the Commonwealth by providing a reasonable level of services, excellent schools and a safe environment. We say Winchester residents have a responsibility to one another to vote YES.

Winchester is one of only six Massachusetts towns with a AAA bond rating. In spite of this, we are currently caught by the difference between inflation at an average of 5½ percent over the last 10 years and revenues which are held at 2½ percent of the tax levy limit plus the new growth factor provided for by Proposition 2½. In other words, inflation has been running ahead of tax revenues for several years and there is little to indicate that this will change in the future. Other factors beyond our control have complicated the situation further. Winchester is experiencing massive cuts in state aid and next year will receive $1.3 million less than last year. There has been no federal aid since the elimination of Federal Revenue Sharing. At the same time, state and federal requirements related to special education, water and sewer rates and insurance have added to our costs. Our 1 percent tax rate is far under the limit of Proposition 2½ ($10.50 vs. the $25.00 per $1,000 limit). Our current tax rate is reflective of how fiscally prudent we have historically been.

Winchester's level of spending is reasonable. A survey of 14 similar towns (such as Lexington, Belmont, and Reading) found that Winchester's per capita spending on police is 11 percent below the average and 11 percent less for fire protection. Since 1988, the number of town employees has dropped nearly 10 percent from 265 to 244. The Winchester schools spend the least per pupil of any of the towns in the Lincoln-Sudbury consortium and less than neighboring Woburn, Arlington, Medford and Lexington. Over the last six years, the average increase in per pupil expenditures has been 8.4 percent in Winchester, while the state-wide average has been 9.4 percent and the average among contiguous communities has been 11.3%. While we traditionally have had lively debate in Winchester over decisions made by our volunteer town boards, town officials and town meeting, our fiscal responsibility cannot be seriously questioned. All budgetary decisions have been made in open meetings after full debate. While each of us may not agree with each decision made, the process has been fair. We have not and will not let the "flood-gates" of spending be opened.

Without the override, the town faces a $2.2 million shortfall that will have an impact on all residents. While the override provides for $1.39 million in revenue, the town will still cut its budgets nearly $800,000. The Town Manager and the Selectmen have provided a priority listing of budget items to be restored if the override passes: four firefighters, police training funds, funds to retain library accreditation, two public works positions, materials for public works, the conservation administrator, the building inspector, administrative expense items, temporary help in the Town Clerk's office, assessors expenses, ½ floating clerk position, and one engineering assistant. This represents 10 positions and $332,900. With or without the override, 7 other positions and other expenses totaling $290,000 will be cut from the municipal budget.

If the override passes, the School Committee recommended the following items: maintenance of five elementary schools, elimination of the proposed activities fee, and .4 of a junior high teacher. This represents a total of 16.8 positions and $474,000. In addition the School Committee has established a priority of preservation of service if $55,700 of additional funds were available which include the .6 portion of the junior high teacher and the High School clinical counselor. With or without the override, 8 other positions, curriculum workshops and other expenses totaling $304,800 will be cut from the school budget.

In addition to the municipal and education budgets, the debt exclusion override if passed will restore the capital budget to a level of $860,000. The capital budget has been cut virtually to zero in the past which has resulted in the further deterioration of town buildings and roads. Revenues from the override will fund asbestos removal and containment, two police cruisers, a new transfer station conveyor belt, school maintenance including roof and boiler replacement and chimney repair, and misc. equipment purchases for the DPW, Library, Fire Department and Schools. As Peter Van Aken, Chairman of the Capital Planning Committee says, "You don't wait until the basement fills with water to repair the leak in the roof." For several years the town has been underfunding the capital budget, deferring maintenance so money could be used for operating expenses. Even with the override, the capital budget will not be fully funded.

The override question is a limited, temporary increase to pay for existing debt. Next year it would add $186 to the tax bill for an average $300,000 house, decreasing each year until the debt is paid off. That increase is roughly $3.60 a week the first year dropping to 29 cents by 1999. This modest increase is in addition to the 2½ percent increase that is allowed under the provisions of Proposition 2½. A "debt exclusion" override essentially allows the town to remove from the operating budget the $1.39 million in principal and interest already owed for our current public safety, public works and town hall debts. In effect, this allows town revenue that would otherwise have to be paid for debt service, to be used instead for operating expenses for schools, town functions, and essential services. The override question is not "anti Prop 2½". Proposition 2½ includes an override provision to allow each town to choose the level of essential service it is willing to pay for. The override is not a "blank check" but is needed to preserve services that make Winchester the kind of community it is. Even with the override, $800,000 of belt tightening will still be necessary.

Our community has a unique opportunity to decide for itself what we want for ourselves and our children. Around the turn of the century, Winchester residents faced pressure for change as existing buildings were outgrown, services needed updating, and new people arrived to put a strain on the existing services. Their response was to make a major commitment to the future: they built parks, brick schools and town buildings, improved services and created the foundations of the Town as we know it today. They sacrificed and gave of themselves. We are faced with similar challenges.

Our choices are clear: either we make the sacrifice to pay more by increasing our residential tax burden or we decide that we are willing to give up services, decrease our provisions for public safety, chip away at the excellence of our public schools, and let our infrastructure slowly crumble away. We must be aware of what that choice means. The value of our homes depends in great part on the perceived quality of our Town's services and schools. If the perceived quality is eroded by continued cuts which affect the quality of life, Winchester will be unable to attract new residents and maintain current relatively high property values. Make no mistake about it, Winchester is in competition with other similar towns for new residents who want to share in Winchester's future. We cannot hope to maintain our position of being an

Alzheimer's support group meets March 27

St. Eulalia's Alzheimer's support group meets Tuesday, March 27 in the Garage Room at St. Eulalia Church, 50 Ridge St., Winchester.

Judy Antonangelli, Alzheimer's specialist at Minuteman Homecare, is guest speaker and will explain programs available through Minuteman Homecare.

Meetings are open to friends, families and caregivers. Questions and concerns are invited. For further information, call Roberta at 938-6844.

Epiphany Lenten quiet day is set

A Lenten Quiet Day will be held on Wednesday, April 4 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Church of the Epiphany, 70 Church St., Winchester for everyone in the area who would like this opportunity for peaceful contemplation. The Day will be led by an outstanding member of the Boston religious community, Sister Mary Hennessey. Active in the Jesuit Urban Center in Boston and the women's shelter known as "Day Is Done", she also is heard on the weekly radio program "Talking Religion" on station WRKO.

Everyone is welcome to attend and to bring a "brown bag" lunch. Coffee will be provided.

Any questions about the Lenten Quiet Day can be answered by Mrs. Marshall at 729-5444.

Peabody Players will perform in Winchester

On Saturday, April 7 the Peabody based Fellowship Players will be performing the Passion Play at 7:30 p.m. at the First Baptist Church in Winchester (Corner of Mt. Vernon and Washington Streets).

This talented ecumenical group of actors and singers have been dramatizing the Easter events annually for 10 years in the Peabody area to capacity crowds with standing room only. It is truly a powerful, memorable, spiritual experience.

The Play begins with Jesus as an infant, then finds him in the temple at age 12 talking with the elders. It follows him as he grows into a young man and becomes the great teacher.

The Hosanna scene sweeps the congregation away as they feel themselves caught up in the entering of Jesus for the last time. The Last Supper scene, the betrayal by Judas and the crucifixion are portrayed with heart-wrenching realism.

The Passion Play entitled "For God so Loved the World" is directed by the talented William Enslow III whose enthusiasm carries the day as his cast and crew of nearly 75 people joyously follow his direction with precision and personal involvement.

The group comes to Winchester First Baptist at the invitation of Pastor William Huegel, whose former church was in Peabody. There is no charge for performances. The cast depends on private donations by Friends of the Fellowship Players.

The public is cordially invited. Don't miss it.

OBITUARIES

James Willing

James B. Willing of Winchester died March 18 at New England Medical Center after a long illness. He was 84.

Born in Kettering, England, Mr. Willing later lived in Waban and then in Winchester for more than 60 years.

Mr. Willing attended the Newton school system and later graduated from Dartmouth College with a bachelor of science degree in 1927. He also graduated from Tuck School in 1928.

Mr. Willing was a retired accounting executive and was a managing partner of the Boston office of Alexander Grant and Co. at the time of his retirement in 1971.

He was a president of the MSCPA in 1951, a member of the AICPA, a past treasurer of the Winchester Council of Girl Scouts and a member of the advisory committee of the Winchester Girl Scouts.

Mr. Willing was also a honorary trustee of Malden Trust Co., and a past trustee of Winchester Savings Bank and a member of the Winchester Country Club.

Mr. Willing was the husband of the late Marion L. (Smith) Willing.

He leaves a son Robert Willing of Winchester; two sisters Mrs. Thomas Vallack Briggs of Madison, Conn., and Mrs. Kirkwood B. Brown of Dennis, nine grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren. He was also the father of the late Patricia MacDowell.

A funeral was held at the Church of the Epiphany on Wednesday, March 21 officiated by Rev. Randall Chase. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery in Winchester.

Arrangements were made by the Costello Funeral Home in Winchester.

Memorial donations may be made to the Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church Street, Winchester, Mass. 01890 or Winchester Hospital, 41 Highland Avenue, Winchester, Mass. 01890.

J. Frank Holland

Frank Holland

J. Frank Holland, a lifelong resident of Winchester, died March 14 at the New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham. He was 89.

Mr. Holland attended Bentley College for three years. He was a retired foreman of the Winchester Park Department.

Mr. Holland was a member of the Winchester and Salem Lodge of Elks for more than 50 years. He was past president of the Winchester Lions Club. He was also past president and board member of the Bessom Beach Association of Marblehead.

In addition, Mr. Holland was past chairman of the Winchester Contributory Retirement Board and past president of the Massachusetts Association of Contributory Retirement Board. He was also on the Executive Board of the National Contributory Retirement Association.

Mr. Holland leaves a sister, Gertrude E. Walker and a niece, Lenora G. Walker, both of Winchester; and a sister-in-law, Mildred L. Holland of Reading.

A funeral was held March 16 from R.J. Costello Funeral Home. A Mass of Christian Burial followed at St. Mary's Church.

Arrangements were handled by the Costello Funeral Home.

Donations in his memory may be made to the charity of choice.

Reina Messer

Reina Hadley Messer died March 12 at the Fairlawn Nursing Home in Lexington. She was 92. She survived her husband, Theodore P. Messer, by a year and six months. The Messers had been Winchester residents since 1941, living on Priscilla Lane and recently at the Mt. Vernon House.

Mrs. Messer was a graduate of Somerville High School, 1918, and the Garland Evans School of Boston. She was a member of the Boston Professional Women's Club, the Forthian Club of Somerville, the Florence Crittendon League, and the Presidents Club of Massachusetts. She was a former Second Reader at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Winchester.

She is survived by her daughter, Priscilla Morrill Bryson of Burbank, Calif.

Arthur Polli

Arthur P. Polli of Wedgemere Road died March 12 at Winchester Hospital. He was 67.

Mr. Polli was born in Boston on April 30, 1922. He was a veteran of the U.S. Army and served in World War II. He was a toolgrinder with Market Grinding Service and also served as that organization's president.

Mr. Polli is survived by his wife, Mrs. Celia Polli, and daughter, Jennifer Polli, both of Winchester; his mother, Sylvia Polli of Burlington; two brothers, Remo Polli of Braintree and Herman Polli of Belmont; and two sisters, Olga Beltram of Somerville and Alma Di Fabio of Burlington.

A funeral was held March 15 at St. Mary's Church followed by a burial at Oak Grove Cemetery in Medford. Arrangements were handled by the Dello Russo Funeral Service.

Pro-override

various departments. That goes without saying. The question is can we live with consolidated services knowing that more money will always be needed and yet something must be done to alleviate the burden of our already high taxes. Winchester presently ranks among the top ten highest in property taxes paid and Massachusetts pays the fourth highest taxes per capita, making us some of the highest taxed people in the country. The Board of Assessors has come out against the override because they are concerned about what will happen to the tax rate.

Please do not allow the various special interest groups to frighten you with their doomsday predictions. Vote NO on Tuesday, March 27 and send our town officials the message that they must find the courage to deal with our problems both realistically and reasonably for the good of all of us.

extremely desirable town for people to settle in if we do not maintain excellent schools and reliable services.

It is the responsibility of the local government to finance public safety, schools, public buildings and local services. We must share that burden together. We cannot depend on the state to finance increases in the cost of local services and we should not. Voting for the override is not shirking fiscal responsibility, it is accepting it. Please join us in voting YES on the debt service exclusion override question on March 27, 1990.

Political Advertisement

McKay disputes Lombardi ad

TO THE EDITOR:

I am Bill McKay, a candidate for School Committee, and I am writing to protest a political advertisement in last week's Winchester Star. This ad claimed it was comparing the positions of the three candidates in the School Committee race. My objections are two-fold. First, the ad falsely states my position. Second, such ads undermine the electoral process because they deceive or at best confuse voters.

Opponents in an election have the right to question the wisdom of each other's positions. That is the essence of democracy. However, they do not have the right to falsify each other's positions. Without accurate information, how can voters make informed decisions?

For the record and to correct the ad I refer to, let me state categorically as I have done throughout the campaign, I support keeping schools open with or without an override. I believe the closing of a school should never have been linked to the override issue. Such a linkage is unfair to the students and the taxpayers.

One last point on the substance of the ad. What does the "no prior knowledge" ascribed to me mean? That my opponent has no prior knowledge of my position? If so, since he knows my telephone number and even began the campaign by signing a sheet to be one of my campaign workers, why not give me a call if he needs information on my positions?

Despite this distressing incident and its implications for politics in Winchester, I must again thank the citizens of our town for their kindness to me as I have gone door-to-door during this campaign. You have made my first foray into politics a terrific experience.

Pee Wee squad takes first in tournament

By DAVID PYWELL
Special to the Star

A first for Winchester's Youth Hockey Program was attained this past weekend when the Pee Wee team won five games in row to take first place in the State Open Invitational Tournament. The tournament, hosted by the Twin City Youth Hockey Association of Fitchburg, took place at the Wallace Civic Center in Fitchburg.

Sixteen teams from all over Massachusetts participated in the tournament. Burlington, Winchester, Natick and Arlington were representatives from the Middlesex League. Teams from as far away as Falmouth to Westfield also participated. The playdowns started Friday night with the teams divided into four sections.

The first game for the Pee Wees was against Gardner. The first period ended scoreless, with Winchester pressing and leading in shots. Three minutes into the second period, Kevin Coughlin netted the winning goal, assisted by Chris Washington. The final goal went to Danny DiPietro. The team demonstrated good passing and great defense as they won, 2-0, and they led in shots on goal, 27-8.

In game two, Winchester played Franklin. This team came out and got one quick goal in the first period, and from then on Winchester goaltender Andrew Brown shut them down. Two goals were scored by Chris Washington, assisted by Bobby Marrone and Danny DiPietro, and one goal each were scored by James DuVal and Danny DiPietro, both unassisted. Franklin outshot Winchester, 29-15, but the defense of James DuVal, Joey Vaccari and Billy Aufiero were able to control the rebounds and clear the zone.

> With only four hours of rest, Winchester had to face Revere for the final round. Revere is known for their physical and well-positioned game. Fan support and backing played a key role in keeping Winchester's spirits up.

Game three was against our Middlesex League rival from Natick. There was a hostile crowd from Natick but Winchester pressed. The locals outshot and out defended and went on to win, 7-0.

Andrew Brown logged his second shutout in three games. Goals in this game were scored by Chris Washington (2), assisted by DiPietro and Jeff Lucero; James DuVal (2), Kevin Coughlin, assisted by Chris Washington, Danny DiPetro; and Bill Aufiero assisted by Andrew Pywell.

The semifinal round Sunday morning was against Sudbury-Maynard-Stow. This team had been running up big wins with high scores in their early round games. Halfway through the first period, SMS put in two quick goals. Winchester held on through the rest of the first period.

In the second period, Winchester scored the only goal with Danny DiPietro doing the honors, assisted by Matt Brewer. Both teams were pressing, and in the third period, Winchester opened it up by scoring three goals. Chris Washington scored two of them, assisted by Matt Brewer and Danny DiPietro, and James DuVal scored an unassisted goal.

Although they didn't score in the game, both Pat Quill and Sparky Brooks had several opportunities as they were out in front of the net trying to put away the rebounds. Winchester won 4-3.

With only four hours of rest, Winchester had to face Revere for the final round. Revere is known for their physical and well-positioned game. Fan support and backing played a key role in keeping Winchester's spirits up. With Danny DiPietro out with a bruised shoulder, Winchester knew they were giving up a goal and an assist per game. With Danny still in the hospital, coaches Doug Dalton, David Pywell and Mike Murray rallied the team together in the locker room, so all were in the right frame of mind.

When the teams came out on the ice, it was Winchester's cheering squad led by Mrs. Maureen Riley and Mrs. Diane Coughlin, and all the parents, that spurred on the team. Winchester and Revere went scoreless for the first 10 minutes of the first period before Andrew Pywell passed across the crease and Paul McGown got his first goal.

Thirty seconds later, Matt Brewer passed off to James DuVal and Winchester was up, 2-0. Winchester went scoreless in the second while Revere netted one. In the final period, Kevin Coughlin scored assisted by Chris Washington.

Special thanks is offered to J.J. Washington and John McDonough. Because of a tournament rule, back up goalies are needed. Winchester didn't have one so the coaches asked J.J., who skates for the Yankee Conference team, and John, who skates for the Squirts, if they could help out. They were great sports knowing they would not play, but just had to be there to satisfy a rule.

On bchalf of the coaching staff, led by Doug Dalton and assisted by David Pywell, Mike Murray and Fred McCormack, a special thanks to parents, sponsors and the Youth Hockey Program for their continued support, and to the boys for their work over the entire season.

MDA's Milk Run slated for April 8

A field of more than 4,000 men and women is anticipated for the ninth running of the MDA Boston Milk Run, set for Sunday, April 8, at 1:45 p.m. at Simmons College in the Back Bay section of Boston.

Co-sponsored by the Massachusetts Dietetic Association and the diary farmers of New England and Eastern New York, the race promotes fitness and excellence through good nutrition.

Historically, the MDA Boston Milk Run has assembled some of the best 10 kilometer fields in New England. The 1989 race, under ideal divisions, and a world record for master's men. The race now boasts the following records.

Men's Open; John Halvorsen 28:01 (New England 10 K Record) 1989

Women's Open; Ingrid Kristiansen 30:59 (New England 10 K Record) 1989

Men's Master; John Campbell 29:04 (World Record) 1989

Women's Master; Priscilla Welch 32:54 (New England 10 K Record) 1985.

It should be noted that Ingrid Kristiansen went on to win the Boston and New York Marathons in 1989, and is generally acknowledged to be the top women's long distance runner in the world.

Falling the week before the Boston Marathon, the MDA Boston Milk Run is the perfect setting for a marathon final tuneup, and the race to watch for the inside track on marathon picks. But the Milk Run also attracts thousands of amateur runners from across the Northeast who race for the sheer pleasure of participating, and to enhance their physical fitness.

The Massachusetts Dietetic Association also hosts a Nutrition Fair at the race site at Simmons College, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., the day of the race. The Nutrition Fair is open to the public and Milk Run participants to learn and ask questions about nutrition and fitness. Highlights include taste testing of healthy foods, cholesterol screenings, body fat analyses, target heart rates, blood pressure tests and nutrition counseling information.

A minimal charge of $6 for cholesterol screening and $5 for body fat analysis will be assessed to those who wish to have those services performed, to cover costs. All other Nutrition Fair information and services are free.

The MDA Boston Milk Run offers $25,000 in TAC (The Athletics Congress) Development Funds prize money, and interested runners can sign up for the race up to one hour before start time. Registration fees are $15. The Milk Run is a charity event, with proceeds from the race benefitting the "Jimmy Fund" of the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston, to fight cancer in children.

For more information on the race, call Milk Run headquarters at 617-396-3001. For more information on the Nutrition Fair, call Liz Ward at 617-262-1500.

Winchester High star athlete John Szczepanski is presented with the Frank Provinzano "Players' Player Award" by Mrs. Frank Provinzano and his parents, Lieut-Colonel and Mrs. John Szczepanski.

Tennis Assoc. to hold annual meeting April 12

The Winchester Tennis Association will hold its annual meeting April 12 at the Winchester Indoor Tennis Center at 7:30 p.m.

The WTA has been involved in the support of tennis in Winchester for 62 years. In has promoted tournaments for adults and juniors, and has helped in the maintenance of the Packer courts and surroundings.

The WTA has extended its thanks to tournament organizers for 1989. They include: Roy and Anne Palumbo, Memorial Day Draw; Phil and Betsy Coonley, Husband & Wife; Joe Tozza, Junior Tournament; Steve Brosnan, Fall Tournament.

This year's expanded tournament is as follows: Memorial Draw, May 26-28; Resident/Non-Resident (Mens and Womens Doubles), June 23-24 (proposed date); Mens 35 & over (NELTA sanctioned), July 7-8; Husband & Wife, Aug. 11-12; Junior Tournament, Aug. 13-15; Fall Tournament, Sept. 8-9 & 15-16.

Fastest skater contest

A fastest skater contest for children from kindergarten through grade 12 will be sponsored by Sports Etc., 1303 Mass. Ave., Arlington, on Sunday, March 25, from noon to 2 p.m. at the Sports Center, 422 Summer St.

Those wishing to enter can sign up at Sports Etc. or at the door on the day of the event. Entry and admission are free.

For additional information call 646-1000.

Soccer Club donates new videos to library

The Winchester Soccer Club has added two new video tapes to the already extensive selection of soccer tapes at the Public Library.

The new tapes are highly acclaimed products by Jape Shattuck, former head coach of Harvard University and of the Massachusetts Youth Soccer Association. No samples of practices and skill drills on this video, but lots of fast paced action to explain the principles on which successful modern soccer is built.

The intended audience of these two videos (Individual Attacking and Defending) is the experienced coach of an already skilled team. For others, they will serve to give some insight in what good soccer is all about.

Video tapes donated previously to the library by the soccer club include three beginners tapes: Coaching Youth Soccer (USYSA) and Just for Kicks (NSCAA), which consists of separate coach and player videos. For the more developed coach and player there are 10 different videos: Soccer on the Attack (three tapes) and Soccer Tactics and Skills (seven tapes plus textbook).

All soccer videos can be taken out for three days during the (pre)season and for one week at other times.

Szczepanski earns Players' Player honor

Winchester High senior John Szczepanski garnered two more athletic awards recently for his achievements in football and indoor track.

A quad-captain for the Sachem football team, Szczepanski recently received the Winchester Lions Club Ninth Annual Frank Provinzano "Players' Player" Award. His gridiron teammates picked him for this honor based on his motivation, dedication and athletic skills. The award was presented at the Lions Valentine's Day Dance.

Szczepanski capped an outstanding indoor track season by being named to the Boston Globe All-Scholastic indoor team. During the regular season, John was undefeated in the hurdles and broke a 22-year-old Middlesex League record with a 5.7 in the event. He went onto win the hurdles in the State Class C Meet after finishing fourth in the State Coaches Meet.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Belmont Hill School varsity awards given

At a recent school meeting G. Clifford Goodband, acting headmaster of Belmont Hill School, announced the varsity sports awards for the winter season. Among those honored with varsity letters were the following from Winchester.

Keith M. DiBlasi, son of Louis J. DiBlasi, was honored in wrestling, and Stephen C. Senna, son of Joseph J. and Janet Senna, was honored in basketball.

Belmont Hill School is an independent day and five-day boarding school for boys in grades 7 through 12. Small classes, a rigorous and traditional academic program, school-wide athletics and other activities provide students with the opportunity for personal development and strong college preparation.

Local Sports Foundation to holds meeting

The annual meeting of the Winchester Sports Foundation will be held Monday, March 26 at St. Mary's Church Hall, 158 Washington St., at 8 p.m. All current members should attend, and anyone interested in joining the Foundation is certainly welcome.

Annual dues of $1 will be collected, and general business of the foundation will be discussed. The two fundraising events for the spring, the golf tournament on April 30 and the Cow Chip Roulette on June 2, will also be on the agenda.

Registration for women's tennis ends tomorrow

Believe it or not, spring is officially upon us, and it's time to register for the Winchester Women's Spring Tennis Ladder. Winchester women, 18 and older, interested in playing competitive doubles this spring, must register by March 23.

Outdoor matches, weather permitting, are scheduled from May 1 through mid-June. Information sheets are now available at the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center and at the Mixed Doubles Sports Shop on Main Street.

For further information, or to sign up, call Marianne Von Feldt at 729-8923 before March 23.

DiVincenzo ends wrestling season

Winchester High graduate Domenic DiVincenzo recently completed his second season of wrestling at Rhode Island College.

DiVincenzo, wrestling in the 177 weight class, was 10-8 this winter, including two pins for the 15-5-1 squad. He accumulated 43 points for the team and was not pinned the entire season.

Rhode Island won their third consecutive New England Div. 3 championship in February.

ABOUT TOWN

Volunteers are needed

Volunteers are needed to assist in phoning pre-notified residents to help raise funds for the annual Free Care Fund phone-a-thon. Along with phone work, volunteers are needed to address and seal envelopes.

The phone-a-thon is held from 6 to 9 p.m. March 26 to 29, a light supper will be provided; training also provided. The location is 87 Pleasant St., Arlington.

The Free Care Fund serves needy residents in many communities who need vital medical services but are unable to cover the entire cost of their care. Call 643-6090 for more details.

Non-planted materials must be removed

The Department of Public Works requires that all baskets or artificial flowers be removed on or before Friday, March 30.

All those not planted at ground level must be removed.

Waste Study sponsors contest

The Waste Study Committee and Conservation Commission of Winchester announce an Earth Day 1990 poster and essay contest. The 20th anniversary of Earth Day is April 22. Twenty years ago over 20 million people all over the Earth celebrated our planet and thought about ways to protect its environment. Now, today, you have the opportunity to do the same thing. By entering this contest you can join people on every continent and in over 100 countries in expressing your concern for our Earth and its environment.

Contest Rules

Create a poster (maximum size 22 x 28") or write an essay (no longer than two double-spaced typed or hand-written pages 8½ x 11") answering the question, "How will Winchester's recycling contribute to a healthy Earth?" Here are some ideas to start your thinking: 1) reduction of the waste stream, 2) air pollution, 3) water pollution, 4) protection of forests, 5) protection of endangered species, 6) acid rain, 7) the future of the earth, 8) toxic waste. Entries will be judged in these nine categories:

ages 3 to 4 (poster);
grades K to 3 (poster and essay);
grades 4 to 6 (poster and essay);
grades 7 to 8 (poster and essay);
grades 9 to 12 (poster and essay);

Entry of Contest

Write your name, address, phone, age, grade in school, and name of school on the back of your essay or poster.

Submit entries to Conservation Commission Office, Town Hall (71 Mt. Vernon St., Winchester) by May 1.

There will be a first, second and third place winner in each category. Winners will be notified by mail. Winners will receive a certificate of achievement. Their entries will be displayed at the Waste Study Committee booth on Town Day, June 2. Winning entries will not be returned. Other entries can be picked up at the booth (9 to 3). Entries not picked up will be recycled.

In order to save paper and reduce Winchester's waste stream, the Waste Study Committee and the Conservation Commission are advertising this contest in the newspaper and by word of mouth rather than by printing individual copies of an entry form. Please tell your friends about the contest, but do not copy the contest rules. When you have finished with this newspaper, please recycle it at the Winchester Recycling and Disposal facility. Thank you.

Any questions? Call Sharon Mastenbrook, Chair, WSC, at 721-1591 or Lisa Cronan, WSC, at 729-1006.

Rehearsals for 'Sleeping Beauty' are underway

Rehearsals have begun in earnest for this year's production by the Winchester Cooperative Theatre for Children, Sleeping Beauty.

Catherine Alexander (Mrs. A.) along with co-founder Alice Gross created one of Winchester's most popular after school programs for elementary school children in 1980. Since then, Cathy and Alice have gathered a group of talented and dedicated adults to assist them in the instruction of this assortment of children.

This year's cast of 86 elementary school children is the largest since the group's first production eleven years ago. They have been rehearsing for "Sleeping Beauty" since early January and are preparing for their opening performance on March 23.

Co-ordinating all the activities for the Cooperative Theatre is assistant director, Pam Jervery, Cathy's right-hand "woman"! Then there is the musical director and vocal coach, Carole Davidson, who teaches the entire cast every song in the play.

After learning the music, the choreographer, Linda Vacovec, with the help of her junior high school assistants, teaches each child the movements he or she will need throughout the entire production.

Brian Milauskas, with the help of Alice Gross, creates and constructs the delightful sets while Hugh Thompson, lighting designer, "lights up" the scenery on stage.

With most of the cast needing three costumes each, this enormous task falls on the creative talents of Debbie Dimes along with MaryAnne Magee, Judy Huston, and Rita Alesi.

Finally, the Ticket Chairpeople, Martha Krause and Susan Corkery make sure those seats are sold.

There are many more unnamed people who assist in the organization and workings from start to finish. Without their help this production would not be the success it is!

Make sure you have your tickets for this year's delightful performance "Sleeping Beauty." For ticket information call 729-4819 or 729-6657. Performances are Friday March 23 and 30 (Alumnae night) at 7:30; Saturday, March 24 and 31 at 1 and 4 p.m.; and Sunday, March 25 and April 1 at 2 and 5 p.m.

LIBRARY LINES

The Winchester Public Library's Children's Services Department is busy getting ready for April School Vacation Week. On April 17 they are planning two programs: "Worm Stories" at 3 p.m. for ages six and up, and a bike maintenance and safety demonstration at 4:15 p.m. for ages eight and up. On April 18 at 3 p.m., children aged three to six can "Spin, Jump, and Wriggle Into Spring" at a music and creative movement program led by musician and educator Amy Lechner. On April 19 storyteller Diane Edgecomb and Musician John Matthews will "Welcome In The Spring" for children aged four and up. Free tickets to these events will be available in the Children's Room from April 2 on. These events are being sponsored by the Friends of the Winchester Public Library.

Two to six-year olds and their parents have been enjoying Evening Family Story Time. On Tuesday, March 13, Children's librarian Cara Barlow read Jesse Bear, What Will You Wear? by Nancy W. Carlstrom, Mr. Little's Noisy Car by Richard Fowler, and Joey Runs Away by Jack Kent. The next of these programs will be held on March 27 at 6:30 p.m. in the Children's Room.

Most library users know that the books owned by their local library are listed in the library's catalogue. In the case of the Winchester Public Library, this is a card catalogue 'ocated in the Reference Room. Your search for a book doesn't have to stop there, however. There are a number of ways that the reference librarians can help you borrow books that are not available in your local library.

Winchester is a member of the Minuteman Library Network. Through this network, we are able to tell instantly if a book that you request is available at one of the other member libraries. We can then order it for you for a 35 cent reserve fee, which is payable when the book arrives. You also have the option of picking up the book directly from the library that owns it.

If a book is not available in the network, we can borrow it through the Boston Public Library. The BPL operates an interlibrary loan service for the libraries in the Eastern Massachusetts Region. This is not as fast as the network borrowing, but a greater variety of titles is available.

If a book that you request is not available through these avenues, or is too new to borrow, the library may consider purchasing it. The librarians consider such factors as the cost of the item and its value to the collection before taking this step.

If you don't find what you want in our catalogue, make your wishes known to a member of the reference staff. There are many ways that we can attempt to satisfy your request.

For information on anything mentioned in this column, please call 721-7171.

SENIOR NEWS

Keep searching those cellars

By MARY P. KELLY
Special to the Star

Seniors are encouraged to continue their search for treasures in their attics and cellars which the Winchester High School junior class will sell at their yard sale on March 31, on the high school grounds. The Council on Aging Intergenerational Committee supports this program, the purpose of which is to raise money for future class activities.

Please bring in any item for sale; they can be stored in the Center until the sale. If you have any heavy materials, they will be picked up by the President of the junior class, Jeff Russo, who can be reached at 729-3075, or you can call the Center at 721-7136.

Your support of this ambitious effort on the part of the junior class is appreciated.

Fashion show is planned for April 3

The Recreation Committee has arranged with the EnKa Society Thrift Shop in Winchester to present another showing of the excellent quality of clothing donated to the shop for sale. Come to the Jenks Center on Tuesday, April 3, at 1:30 p.m., to see some of our glamorous seniors, both men and women, modeling these clothes.

Mary Knox, an experienced commentator at fashion shows, and owner of Mary Knox Fashions in Lexington, has again graciously agreed to describe the outfits worn by the models, with appropriate piano music in the background. Many attractive coats, suits and dresses, both new and used, will be shown and there will be an opportunity after the show to purchase the clothing at a low cost. The EnKa Society depends on the sale of clothing for its charitable work.

Coiffure de Roma, of 576 Main Street, Winchester, has generously agreed to style the ladies' hair.

Seniors are urged not to miss the Fashion Show which promises to be a delightful, fun-filled event. Refreshments will be served and a $5 admission fee will be charged at sign-up time. Come and bring your friends. Everyone is welcome. Helen Murphy is in charge of arrangements.

Westley Tenants Association to hold bake sale

The Westley Tenants Association is sponsoring a bake sale at the Jenks Center on Monday, April 2. There will be goodies on sale from 9:45 a.m. through the afternoon. Anyone wishing to contribute baked goods, or anyone having any questions, should contact Marion Hatch at 729-8790.

Soup and sandwich luncheon in April

Many seniors have requested a repeat of the February Soup and Sandwich luncheon. Marc Gallagher has been selected to cater this second luncheon which will take place on Tuesday, April 10, at 12 noon, in the Jenks Center's Pond Room, at the same $4 price. Following is the menu: zucchini and mushroom soup; a choice of chicken salad on whole wheat bread or roast beef with dijon mayonnaise on white bread; one of his fabulous brownies, as well as coffee, tea or decaf.

Kit Dobelle, former Chief of Protocol for the Carter Administration, will speak informally about her experiences. This new Winchester resident will enchant us with her sparkling personality as she covers the Washington scene, planning in the most minute details the Presidential trips.

Sign up at the desk until noon on Friday, April 6. A number is guaranteed to the caterer and must be paid for. A few reservations may be added until noon on Monday, April 9, but we may not take cancellations after the county has been given to the caterer on April 6. Volunteers are needed. Please call Grace Dignam, 729-1119, if you are interested in helping.

A pizza in your future?

People who have had interesting careers and are willing to share information about their career experiences and the training required, are invited to a pizza lunch provided by the WHS junior class on Thursday, April 5, at 11:30 a.m., at the Jenks Center.

All seniors are welcome to come and meet the junior class and seniors new to the Center are especially invited to sign up to share with these students information about their career choices and their lifelong work experiences.

Some of the careers that high school juniors have expressed an interest in are: Business (Accounting, International, Stockbroker, Sales); Law, Medicine, Engineering, Architecture, Aviation, Computers, Fine Arts and Teaching.

MBTA passes are available

An MBTA Registration Team will be at the Jenks Senior Center on April 4, between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m., to issue identification cards permitting senior citizens and eligible disabled persons to ride MBTA commuter line rails, express and zoned buses, rapid transit and local buses for reduced rates. With identification cards, passengers may ride local lines for 10 cents and commuter rail, express and zoned buses for half fare. These reduced fares will be effective at all times.

To be eligible for a senior citizen reduced fare identification, which contains the name and address of the holder and a color photograph for positive identification, senior citizens must bring proof of age, 65 years or older, such as a birth certificate, baptismal record, or driver's license; proof of residency, such as a driver's license, utility bill, library card, or charge plate; and a 50 cent cash fee. (Medicare cards will not be accepted as proof of age.)

The MBTA stressed that senior citizens who already have a reduced fare identification card do not need to register again.

Dr. Gibson to discuss pacemakers

Dr. Harris Gibson, Jr., M.D., an outstanding cardio-thoracic surgeon, will address seniors at the Jenks Center on Wednesday, April 4, at 10:30 a.m., on the subject of "Pacemakers." Dr. Gibson has an extensive background of preparation for his chosen field of thoracic surgery and treatments related to thoracic surgical diseases. He is on the staff of Winchester Hospital.

He is an assistant clinical professor of surgery at Boston University School of Medicine and a thoracic surgeon at Boston City Hospital. Come and hear about how pacemakers perpectuate life. There is no sign-up and no charge.

Real Estate & You . . . HANDLING THE SURPRISES!

Between the initial meeting of the minds and the final meeting at the settlement table, most real estate transactions encounter at least some breakdowns — often major ones. This is where having a professional handle the sale of your home makes a big difference.

Real estate professionals don't view breakdowns as problems, but as challenges to be met. Many are predictable, and by anticipating them we can minimize their consequences. We can draw on our own experience and that of our colleagues to ensure that, whatever happens, the buyers and sellers wind up with a successful settlement. When disputes arise, we use our expertise to create Win-Win situations. This approach to listing and selling real estate is what makes a difference to our buyers and sellers. We go the extra mile to make sure the countless details are handled and to keep our buyers and seller informed about each aspect of their transaction.

Stomach disorders discussed

By LEONOR RICH
Special to the Star

Dr. Albert Muggia, a gastroenterologist with offices in Winchester, gave a most informative talk at Jenks Senior Center on March 16. He is a specialist in the study of diseases and pathology of the stomach and intestines. Although the gastrointestinal tract responds to emotion, symptoms that require professional attention such as difficulty in swallowing should not be ignored but must be investigated thoroughly to prevent serious conditions from developing beyond control.

Some 20 or 30 new drugs are available to treat ulcer of the stomach, often avoiding surgery, but aspirin is probably safer than some of the newer drugs. However, if aspirin becomes lodged in the esophagus, the muscular tube that leads from the pharynx to the stomach, it can make a hole in the tissue causing a very dangerous situation. Dr. Muggia advises one to be in a standing position while taking aspirin and a full glass of water should be swallowed. He cautions that it is better not to lie down immediately after taking the tablet.

Tension and stress can cause stomach spasms, increasing acidity and gas. Smokers are more prone to ulcers than those who do not use tobacco. Ulcers are not specifically stress caused most of the time, but they can be affected by tension.

Some people are troubled by a hiatus hernia which is a protrusion through the connective tissue normally enclosed. The sphincter, an annular muscle, sometimes does not completely close requiring medicine to keep acid out of the esophagus. Symptoms of the problem are nausea, often nervous tension, heartburn, and some problems that are brain initiated.

Gastritis is a condition that is serious. Technically the stomach has to be examined with an instrument to view the lining of the organ. Some people tend to swallow air causing bloating. Belching increases the intake of air which is a most uncomfortable condition.

Today colon cancer is the Number One disease common to both men and women. American Indians, people in Japan and China, Central Africa, Nicaragua and other areas of the world don't seem to have many colon cancers. Symptoms must be followed up such as changes in bowel patterns or blood in the stools. Any change is an important factor for investigation before it is too late to be corrected. It may be necessary to undergo a sigmoidoscopy or a colonoscopy to apprehend a colon cancer before it metastasizes.

Diverticulitis is another very common ailment. X-rays can detect the difficulty but a colonoscopy is more accurate because of shadows that appear in a barium enema test. "Itis" means inflammation and "osis" indicates pouches in the colon. Almost everyone over the age of 60 may have some diverticulitis.

Emotions and diet enter into the problems afflicting the colon. Dr. Muggia advised increasing the consumption of bulk and roughage, drinking plenty of water and fluids daily, and exercising to keep the bowels moving properly.

Dr. William Barone, a member of the Winchester Seniors Association Health Committee, gave a resume of Dr. Muggia's affiliations and varied interests when he introduced the speaker. During the Vietnam War, Dr. Muggia was assigned by the United States Department of Public Health to work among the Indians in New Mexico. He served for more than two years in this capacity.

His excellent presentation of common digestive problems provided a valuable learninig experience for a capacity audience who have rapt attention throughout the lecture.

CLUBS

VFW Auxiliary holds social

A social will be held Tuesday, March 27 at 7:30 p.m. at Post Home on River Street. The public is invited. We urge all our members for their help.

The Auxilary is proud of the held it has given hospitalized veterans in 1989.

The record of the following is to some of these veterans and Auxiliary projects: Bedford Hospital, cancer research, Christmas cheer, VFW Massachusetts Home for Orphans - Widows, memorials for veterans of the Korean and Normandy Wars.

Donations were also made to the Junior Olympics, Hurricane Hugo victims, Massachusetts State President's Auxiliary projects.

The veterans in hospitals look for the Auxiliary to bring them hope and kindness.

Redden directs Boy Scout camps

Minuteman Council announces that Vince Redden will return for his fifth season as Camp Director of Parker Mountain Scout Reservation, Barnstead, New Hampshire.

Minuteman Council, B.S.A. has three programs at Parker Mountain for the Cub & Boy Scouts of the 19 communities it serves.

The newest program is the Cub Scout Weekends. Two separate weekends are scheduled for boys from 1st grade through 5th to come to camp with their parents. In a weekend they get to experience all aspects of Scout Camping; swimming, hiking, handicraft, archery, sports, pioneering, great food and enjoying the outdoors. The dates for the weekends are: June 29, 30 to July 1 and July 6, 7, 8.

If anyone is interested in any of our camping programs, contact your local Cub Pack or Scout Troop, or call the Minuteman Council, B.S.A. at 438-9500.

Straight teeth talk...

WHY EXTRACTIONS?

Extractions of permanent teeth become necessary to correct orthodontic problems where the combined size of all the teeth is greater than the size of their bone support. Crowded or protruding teeth need space in the dental arch in order to be straightened, and extractions can provide the space. Most commonly, the four first bicuspids are removed, one on each side of each arch. Braces then reposition the other teeth into the correct bite and alignment over the two year treatment period.

Since no procedure in dentistry evokes more fear and resistance than extractions, there must be ample justification and no other alternative before recommending it. Indeed, extractions have been proven to be a safe and necessary procedure used in about thirty percent of orthodontic patients.

The only alternatives to extractions are: to expand the dental arch into a larger circumference or, to move the back teeth further back and the front teeth further forward. This is possible to a limited extent in less severe crowding situations, although a "toothy", full appearance to the front teeth may result.

The orthodontic specialist is best trained to determine which cases will or will not require the removal of teeth for proper correction.

COMING EVENTS

Newcomers Club presents cabaret

The Winchester Newcomers Club will present a unique evening of musical entertainment on Saturday, April 21. The theme this year is a "Jazz Cabaret" featuring contemporary jazz during cocktails, a jazz concert, and finally a variety of sounds for dancing.

The Steve Wark-John Wilkins Band is an experienced, versatile ensemble of vocalists and muscians who have performed at Berklee Hall and Ryles Jazz Club among other local jazz clubs. Their style features a blend, of the many contemporary styles of jazz including rhythm and blues, funk, latin and fusion. They will perform a mix of vacal and instrumental pieces by such well-known artists as Al Jarreau, Jeff Lorber, the Jazz Crusaders and Paquito Dirivera as well as original numbers composed by band members.

At 8:00 p.m. the Steve Wark-John Wilking Band will open the evening by playing some contemporary background jazz during which the guests will have an opportunity to talk with old and new friends, have refreshments, and find their tables in anticipation of the next portion of the evening's entertainment.

At 9:00 p.m. the Knights of Columbus Hall will be magically transformed into a "big city nightclub" where guests will enjoy a sophisticated jazz concert. "We're bringing all the fun and flavor of a Boston-style jazz club to Winchester without the extra costs and hassle of going into Boston," states club president, Jennifer Regentz.

After a short intermission, chairs will be abandoned in favor of dancing when this versatile band returns to perform the big band sounds of Duke Ellington, Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey as well as songwriters George and Ira Gershwin and Jerome Kern.

"Last's year's dance was a great success because we had a wonderful mix of Winchester residents and their in and out-of-town friends" states Regentz. "We think that this year's Jazz Cabaret will appeal to an even wider variety of tastes and age groups."

The ticket price of $20 per person includes hors d'oeuvres throughout the evening. A cash bar is also available at the Knights of Columbus Hall where the event will be held. The evening is open to all Newcomers, their friends and community members.

For ticket information, please contact Carol Burdick at 729-4080. Tables may be reserved for groups of eight or ten.

ABC bottle drive set for April 7

The next ABC Bottle Drive will be on Saturday, April 7 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. As usual, the collection will take place at the Sons of Italy parking lot, adjacent to the town transfer station. All returnable bottles and cans, either beer or soft drink containers, will be appreciated. It would be helpful to separate by plastic, glass and cans!

Winchester's A Better Chance program is in its 18th year of providing a challenging high school education to highly motivated minority students. Bottle drives provide an important source of income for ABC and townwide response to this event is always enthusiastic. Volunteers to help sort bottles are always needed and most welcome; please call Ted Martin, Chairman at 729-8451.

Those who cannot drop off their bottles during the drive may contact Alice Fuller at 729-6377 or Sandy Thompson at 729-8063 for pick up.

YMCA offers health program

The North Suburban YMCA, in conjunction with the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, will be offering an educational series called "Babies and You" starting on Thursday, March 22. The program consists of nine seminars which will be held at the YMCA at 137 Lexington Street, Woburn, from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays through May 1. "Babies and You" is a free program, offered as a public service. Babysitting is available at a rate of $2 per hour.

"Babies and You" is designed to increase parents' and potential parents' awareness of how healthy life style behaviors and health practices can help prevent birth defects and low birth rates or ameliorate their effects.

A sample of seminar topics includes: "Pregnancy After Age 35," "Coping with Stress During Pregnancy," "The ABC's of Healthy Childbearing," and "Eating for Two."

Although there is no charge for the program and participants may select which of the nine seminars they wish to attend, the YMCA requests everyone who is planning to attend to preregister. To sign up or if you have questions, call 935-3270. Fitness Director Linda Silvestri is the contact person for questions.

McIndoe plays in youth concert

David McIndoe of Winchester will participate in the 32nd anniversary concert of the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra (GBYSO) on Sunday, April 1 at 8 p.m. in Sym-

Business Spotlight

Painted by King Painting of Winchester

KEEPING UP THE GOOD WORK

What are some of the reasons King Painting has been in continuous operation for more than three decades? Third-generation owner Christopher King attributes success of the family business to skilled workmanship that's owner-supervised and service that's reliable. "We don't cut corners and we stand behind our work," says Chris. The company, which has been serving the Arlington and Winchester communities exclusively since 1959, specializes in exterior painting services that include the careful washing, sanding and priming of surfaces as well as the caulking of cracks, window glazing and securing of loose boards. All work is licensed and insured; estimates are free. Phone 729-1925.

COMING EVENTS

phony Hall, 301 Massachusetts Avenue in Boston.

GBYSO is an independent organization in residence at the Boston University School of the Arts. McIndoe, who plays percussion, is a member of GBYSO's Senior Orchestra, one of two groups being featured in the April 1 concert. He is a student at Winchester High School.

Concert highlights will include Schumann's Symphony No. 1, R. Strauss' Death and Transfiguration, J. Strauss Jr.'s Fruhlingsstimmen Walzer (Voices of Spring Waltz), as well as A Flock Descends into the Pentagonal Garden by Takemitsu. David Commandy will direct the Senior Orchestra, and Joel Bard will conduct the Repertory Orchestra.

Tickets are $15, $12 and $10 and are available at Bostix, Ticketron, Teletron, Boston University's George Sherman Union Box Office, at the Symphony Hall Ticket office starting March 11, or by calling the GYBSO office at 617/353-3348. Half-price tickets for students and senior citizens are available through the GBYSO office.

Auditions for the 1990/91 season, which will include an international tour, will take place between June 8-10 for strings and June 16 and 17 for winds, brass and percussion. For additional information, or an application, call the GBYSO office at 617/353-3348.

Antique show and sale soon

The First Parish Congregational Church of Wakefield antique show committee is busy planning the 19th annual show and sale. The show will take place on Friday, March 30 from 5 to 9 p.m., and Saturday, March 31 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the "stone church at the head of the lake."

Those who have attended the antique show in the past will find that many of their favorite dealers have returned as well as new dealers with some very unique items adding both quality and variety to the merchandise offered. Some of the articles that will be displayed this year are furniture, agates and marbles, lamps, old linens and quilts, and jewelry etc.

Once again, members of the church will be in charge of the snack bar and will be offering delicious homemade foods and desserts.

The admission price is nominal, and there will be plenty of free parking for all visitors.

Ileitis, colitis support group

The National Foundation for Ileitis & Colitis Winchester Group will have a meeting March 22 at 7:30 p.m. at Winchester Hospital, 41 Highland Ave., (Kingsbury Seminar Rm.). Admission is free; for more information call (617)449-0324.

One out of every 100 Americans has either ileitis (also known as Crohn's disease) or ulcerative colitis; 200,000 of them are children or adolescents. These digestive diseases are chronic, incurable and life-threatening. Meetings provide people with new informaiton concerning treatment. Patients and families can share problems and receive emotional support.

Dinner meeting for women in business

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce sponsors monthly dinner meetings for women in business. The next meeting will be on Tuesday, March 27, 1990 at Maximilian's Cafe and the program will be "How To Develop Your Own Personal Style" (in order to save your time, money and sanity).

Image consultant and personal shopper, Evana Anderson Maggiore, will show you how to eliminate shopping mistakes and dressing room dispair, tailor your wardrobe to your lifestyle, increase the return or your clothing investment, and enhance your own good looks. Makeover candidates, Cathy Alexander, Noreen Mc Donald and Carole Pierce will make their debut.

A professional color and style consultant since 1981, Evana is a former fashion retailer and a member of the Association of Fashion and Image Consultants. She has recently opened Evana Consulting, a firm specializing in individual and corporate training in non-verbal communication.

The group is designed for women who live or work in Winchester and is open to anyone who is interested in meeting with other women to discuss areas of mutual concern. Those attending are urged to bring business cards and brochures to help promote their business or service.

Please call the Chamber office if you would like to make reservations. (729-8870)

Crawford hosts rummage sale

A Rummage Sale and Basement Boutique will be held at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church, Church and Dix streets, on Friday, April 6 (noon to 8 p.m.) and Saturday, April 7 (9 a.m. to noon).

Antiques, collectibles, jewelry, baked goods, clothing for all ages, basement boutique, linens, household items, furniture and more will be available.

For more information, call 729-5056.

INFORMATION

OFFICE HOURS

Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

DEADLINES

- For placing word ads - 12 noon Tuesdays
- For placing help wanted display ads - 12 noon Tuesdays
- For placing real estate and automotive display ads - 4 p.m. Mondays.

BEST BUYS

Best Buys cost you nothing. If you have an item for sale for $100 or less, just give us a call. We will run your 20 word ad free for one week. All we ask is that you put the price of your item in the ad. Private individuals only.

GARAGE SALES

To have a successful garage sale, just set the date and call Century Newspapers. 15 words for $13.00, 40 cents for each additional word. In addition to your ad, you'll receive a FREE garage sale kit upon request. All we ask is that you pre-pay your ad. The deadline for garage sales is 12 noon Tuesdays.

PAYMENT

Most word ads can be billed if you are within our billing area. For your convenience, we accept MasterCard and VISA. All display ads are prepaid unless you have established credit with us before placing your ad.

ACCEPTANCE

The publisher wants to do everything that is possible within the limits of good taste and legal constraints to help you advertise your product or service to the best advantage. Acceptance of an advertising order is deemed to occur only upon actual publication. However, no change will be made to your ad without your prior approval. Advertising is subject to the terms and provisions of the newspaper's official rate card.

ERRORS

Please check your ad the first week it appears. We are responsible for the first incorrect insertion of the ad, up to the actual value of space occupied by the error.

128 Service

CAR CARE CORNER
by Dan Hogan, Service Manager

A penny might well save your life! Stick a Lincoln's head penny upside down into the tread of your tires and if the top of Lincoln's head shows, you don't have enough rubber left to get you around safely. Or you can check your tire tread depth by watching for the small wear indicator bars that appear horizontally across the tire's face. When the bars appear, it's time to change your tires. Another thing to check is your tire's "footprint" — the flattened section where the tread meets the road. It can be easy to see in dirt or mud. When that footprint is worn smooth — your tire is dangerous. Nearly 90 percent of tire trouble happens in the last 10 percent of tread wear.

Your car will drive better when it is serviced at PETER FULLER OLDS. Open 8-5. Scrapes & dents will be removed in our own body shop. We are authorized to do all Oldsmobile factory warranty work. Tel. 924-8100 for an appt. at PETER FULLER OLDS, Waterlown Sq. "Olds National Service Award Winner".

SCHOOLS

Three high school musicians win festival auditions

Three WHS musicians were selected through a second-level audition to perform with the All-State ensembles in the Festival Concert March 17 in Northborough. Kristen Herlihy, clarinet, Laura Johnson, clarinet, and Tom Moore, tenor vocalist received high enough scores in their Northeast District auditions to qualify to audition for All-State. Moore's perfect score assures him a position in the All New England Festival to be held in Pittsburgh, April, 1991.

The Winchesterites met with other outstanding performers from the rest of the state to rehearse with distinguished conductors and to perform in concert last Saturday.

Herlihy and Johnson, who played with the All-State Band, are also members of the Massachusetts Youth Wind Ensemble (MYWE), a regional group open by audition to accomplished high school musicians.

Belmont Hill students make trip to France

Eleven students from Belmont Hill School, together with Belmont Hill School faculty members, Laura Adams and Paul Morsink, are spending 15 days in France. They will spend one night in Paris and then be in Chalons-sur-Marne for home visits. They will attend school with their French hosts and go on various excursions. On April 1, the French students will begin a two week visit to the United States. They will visit Belmont Hill School and stay with the families of the Belmont Hill students. Those participating in this program from Winchester include: Scott R. Bleier, son of Dr. Joel G. and Noel Bleier; Keith M. DiBlasi, son of Louis J. DiBlasi; and Christopher D. LaGatta, son and Daniel P. and Mary A. LaGatta.

Austin Prep lists honors students

Four Winchester residents earned honors at Austin Preparatory School for the second quarter.

The are: William Aufiero, a seventh grader; Francis Mahoney III, an eighth grader; Richard Mawn, a junior; and Benjamin Rotolo, an eighth grader.

Interaction

The second grade students in Sally Walter's class have been working with the concept of "interaction" in their science study. Using pulleys, gears, batteries and bulbs the students made simple machines and experimented with various "systems." As a culminating activity to this science unit, the students made telegraphs with the help of parents volunteers.

Override is defeated

Voters turn down debt exclusion question

By ELLEN FANNING
and KAREN BUCKLEY

Months of debate and dispute ended at the ballot box Tuesday when approximately 55 percent of those voting said "no" to a limited override of Proposition 2½. A total of 3741 Winchester voters opposed the debt exclusion override, while 3008 voted in favor of ballot question one.

There were 472 blank ballots on the override question.

Winchester town officials will be back to the budgets next week, paring down the numbers to meet the voters' consensus that the town can get by without additional revenue

In March, 1989, a similar measure was defeated by a vote of 3518 to 2141 and voters also defeated a referendum to raise funds to renovate the library in Fall, 1989.

Without the override of Proposition 2½, a total of $30,954,300 will be available in revenue to the town. This includes $9,936,500 for the municipal budget and $13,791,200 for the education budget With the override, $32,475,700 would have been available — $10,269,000 for the town and $14,265,000 for the schools. In addition, passage of the override would have provided $860,000 for the capital budget

Selectmen voted in late January to place a $1.391 million debt exclusion override question on the March 27 ballot Passage of the question would have allowed the town to exclude all principal and interest payments on the town's bond issues from the limits of Proposition 2½.

Because the override failed, the town will be forced to cut the capital budget from $960,000 to $85,000. In addition, the municipal budget would be reduced by $623,000 and the school budget by $874,000.

School Committee members had indicated that if the override did not pass, the following would likely occur: closing the Vinson Owen School, establishing a middle school at McCall and reducing approximately $376,000 in salaries.

If the override had succeeded at the polls, homeowners would have faced an increase in taxes — $181 hike on a hypothetical $300,000 home in 1991.

In subsequent years, until the debt expired, the tax cost to the owner of a hypothetical $300,000 home would have been: $171 in 1992, $162 in 1993, $141 in 1994, $132 in 1995, $105 in 1996, $81 in 1997, $30 in 1998, and $15 in 1999.

Candidates, override bid aid in high voter turnout

By KAREN BUCKLEY
and ELLEN FANNING

A controversial ballot question and hotly contested seats for the Board of Selectmen and School Committee contributed to high voter turnout in the March 27 election, according to Town Clerk Carolyn Ward.

A total of 7221 voters turned out at the polls, 57 percent of registered voters.

While a number of incumbents seeking seats on town boards were defeated, the majority of those incumbents running for re-election to Town Meeting were retained their seats.

Incumbent Maryann McCall-Taylor received 3237 votes and challenger Harry E. Chefalo garnered 3075 votes to take the two three-year seats on the Planning Board. Incumbent Margaret Roll lost her post with 2782 votes.

Lombardi takes school board seat

By KAREN BUCKLEY
and ELLEN FANNING

Candidate Mark Lombardi topped the ballot for School Committee, knocking out incumbent William Jervey and challenger William McKay in Tuesday's election.

Lombardi took home 2976 votes, while Jervey received 2340 and McKay won 1503. There were 403 blank ballots.

"I wish we all could have won," said Lombardi. "I have a lot of respect for (Jervey and McKay). I really think they did a fantastic job."

Having served on the Finance Committee and 12 years as a Town Meeting member, Lombardi said he hopes to lend some of his financial experience to the School Committee.

"I really had no idea I was going to win by that margin," said Lombardi. "It was amazing."

As for the immediate future, Lombardi plans to spend time with current School Committee members brushing up on present happenings.

"Obviously, I have some things I want to accomplish," said Lombardi. "I want to work with the (Vinson Owen) situation and see what we can accomplish there."

Incumbent William Jervey commented on the "huge turnout of voters — a lot of 'no override' voters. They decided they wanted something different than what I've given them the last six years."

Jervey says he will continue to be active in local government through his seat on Town Meeting and will continue "to be an advocate for Winchester schools."

"I had a strong core of supporters who worked really hard," added Jervey.

Challenger William McKay noted, "it was my first time out and I felt really positive."

"It was tough working against two really entrenched groups. (The election) proved that people in town feel the School Committee is not working in the best of the voters, and students."

"I hope what comes out of this (election) is significant change in the School Committee," added McKay.

Schmitt re-elected as town selectman

By KAREN BUCKLEY
and ELLEN FANNING

In a close vote, Incumbent Thomas Schmitt topped the ballots in the March 27 election to retain his seat on the Board of Selectmen.

Schmitt defeated challenger Ann Matarese 3608 to 3186.

"Inevitably, any candidate has to run on his or her record, and I did," said Schmitt. "And I think the voters decided."

"While it's satisfying to win, it's also a relief to have the process over," he added.

Schmitt agreed the campaign had become a "one-issue" race, with the override tied to each candidate's platform. While Schmitt said he had personally supported the override, he noted that the move by selectmen to place the question on the ballot was not a unanimous endorsement of an override, but rather a move to give voters a choice.

"Any issue of that import is going to focus the debate ... Any strong issue tends to crystalize what's going on in town," he said. Schmitt noted that the campaign for the selectman's seat centered on issues overall.

"The campaign between Ann (Matarese) and me was never rankerous. From the outset, Ann said she would run a campaign on issues and she did," said Schmitt. "Neither of us ever resorted to personalities.

"I think Ann ran a pretty classy campaign," he added.

"The override issue was the issue. If I had been in (Matarese's) position, I would have done the same thing," said Schmitt.

Schmitt attributed his win to the actions of the current board of selectmen.

"I think the Board of Selectmen this year was fairly effective in dealing with difficult problems," said Schmitt, citing his position in directing those efforts as chairman. "I think the number one ballot position didn't hurt," he added.

When reached for comment Tuesday evening Matarese said she was "pleased to have gotten over 3,000 votes." While the numbers were coming in from each precinct, she and her campaign supporters were on the edge of their seats. She admits Precincts 3 and 4 were the downfall of her bid for a seat on the board.

When asked if she would consider another run for town office, she

League within rights in supporting override

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Despite recent allegations by resident Brian McSweeney that the Winchester League of Women Voters is a "political committee" and thereby required to file a statement of organization — a political committee, as defined by Brad Balzer of the State Campaign and Political Finance Office, is one that "raises money for the specific purpose of influencing the voters on a ballot question."

Although by law, the state office cannot comment specifically on the status of local organizations, Balzer was able to expound on the definition of a political committee. A political committee, he said, would solicit funds through mailings, for example, for the specific purpose of supporting or opposing a ballot question.

According to the complaint filed by Brian McSweeney and four other residents of Winchester: William Federico, William Meader, Mary Meader and Winchester Taxpayers Association Chairman Michael Sarraco, the League's March 1990 newsletter, "which contained their position on the question (Prop.2½)," was in violation of the General Laws, Chapter 55 (Campaign Finances).

Had the League been soliciting funds in the newsletter for the purpose of passing or defeating the override of Prop. 2½, the complaint would be valid, according to information the Star received from the Campaign and Political Finance Office (CPFO).

Balzer noted however, an organization that has taken a public position on a ballot question and has spent the organization's money to present that position, must meet a reporting requirement with a deadline set according to when the money was actually spent.

According to Balzer, expenditures between the first and 15th of any month must be filed with the Town Clerk of that town and the CPFO by the 20th of that month. Money spent from the 16th of any month to the end of that month, must be recorded by

'Sleeping Beauty' is another gem from Theatre for Children

By ELLEN KNIGHT
Special to The Star

When the kids take the stage in Winchester, everyone is in for a good time. And so it is with the Cooperative Theatre for Children's production of "Sleeping Beauty."

All the good features that one has come to expect from the children's theatre are here again in full force — the enthusiasm and gaiety, the dedication and impressive team work of the children. It is always refreshing to see that there are no "small actors" in these young casts but that everyone strives to give their best in every part.

"Sleeping Beauty" is presented with much brightness, charm and energy by a cast of 85. The score was designed to have, in the composer's words, "a wonderful spread of sounds." Thus there is a variety of musical styles and a mixture of solo, ensemble, and company singing, as well as narration and lots of effective acting.

Following a snappy medley overture and the first narration, the curtain opens on a cleverly designed set neatly constructed of tiers, steps, arches, and crenellation. Here the royally costumed and full voiced company sings the "Princess Aurora March," rejoicing in the birth of the princess. Nine-year old Prince Jonathan, however, is frankly rebellious upon hearing that his parents have betrothed him to marry the baby princess. The entire company then, in split chorus, sings "What a Joy Having Children — What a Drag Having Parents."

A greater crisis occurs, however, in the person of the wicked Disastra, who interrupts the four good fairies while bestowing their gifts to the princess. Because she had not been invited to the celebration, she spitefully recites the familiar curse, that on her sixteenth birthday the princess will prick her finger on a spinning wheel and die.

The fourth good fairy is able to soften the spell so that Aurora will only sleep until awakened by the kiss of true love. In addition the fairies plan to protect Aurora by hiding her in a wood-carver's cottage until 16 years pass.

The story then reopens on Aurora's sixteenth birthday. Frustrated that her henchmen have not found the princess, Disastra berates them, sings the spirited tarentella "Oh, What Fun it is to be Mean," and then sends them out to search again. Meanwhile, the fairies, disguised as peasant women, prepare to celebrate Aurora's birthday with "Ice Cream, Streamers, Satin and Song."

In the forest Aurora visits her friends, the animals, who sing in gospel style one of the show's ensemble highlights, "Listen to the Animals," and contrive that Aurora meet the Prince, who has been roving the forest to find the girl he has heard singing. The Prince and Princess, not knowing each other's identity, fall in love and sing a "Wistful Waltz" while bubbles fall and everyone dances.

As Aurora returns to her "aunts" (the fairies), Disastra's henchmen see her and report back. The fairies, learning of Aurora's young man, reveal to her the truth about her

POLICE LOG

Monday, March 26

9:55 p.m.

Officer Stephen Roche observed a late model truck pulling out of Purity Supreme parking lot headed out of the northwest exit.

The car then made a wide turn and proceeded to the lights at Skillings Road and headed north. The vehicle fit the description of a truck that had been identified by Officer Lawrence Hill as operating erratically.

According to police reports, the vehicle continued north at 20 to 25 mph in a 30 mph zone. The car was riding the yellow line at the curve by Main and Salem streets, said police. At another curve, both tires of the driver's side of the vehicle crossed the solid yellow line.

The police activitated the blue lights and pressed the siren, but the driver continued down Main Street, said reports. After several more siren sounds the truck was pulled over on Main Street at Sheridan Circle.

At this time Officer Hill responded for assistance. A 40-ounce bottle of mouthwash was detected on the floor mat of the front passenger's side, said reports. A strong odor of mint was also detected on the driver's breath, said police reports.

The man was identified as a 59-year-old Woburn resident. Police observed him to have thick, slurred speech. The driver told police he had just come from the dentist.

After the man failed several field sobriety tests, he was placed under arrest for driving under the influence. He was also cited for failure to stay within marked lines. His vehicle was towed from the scene and the driver was brought to the station and booked.

Saturday, March 24

11 p.m.

Officer James Covino stopped a man he observed staggering down Shore Road. When the officer questioned the man in regards to his condition, the man began to yell at the officer, said police reports.

At this time, the officer detected an odor of alcohol on the man's breath. The man was identified as a 20-year-old Harvard Street resident.

He was taken into protective custody and transported to the station with assistance from Officer Paul Austin. The man was booked by Sargent Fred Cammon.

2:17 a.m.

Officers Joseph O'Connor and Peter MacDonnell were traveling on Church Street when they observed a male staggering down the road, according to reports.

As the officer approached the man, he began to run through several yards on Church Street and headed toward Calumet Road.

After a brief foot chase, MacDonnell caught the man and brought him to the cruiser parked at Church Street and Wedgemere Avenue.

The man was identified as a 22-year-old Arlington resident. When police began to talk with him they noted a strong odor of alcohol on the man's breath and that his speech was slurred and he was unsteady on his feet.

The man was placed into protective custody but resisted efforts of the police to put him in the cruiser. With assistance from Officer Gary Rogers, police overcame the man's resistance and put the man into the cruiser with "limited force," said police reports.

Friday, March 23

10:56 a.m.

Officer Arthur Houllahan was dispatched to the Theatre Mobil station on Main Street for a reported motor vehicle break-in. An attendant at the station reported that sometime between 10 p.m. on March 22 and 6 a.m. on March 23, a vehicle parked on the lot of the station had been broken into.

The driver's side door handle had been broken and the AM/FM cassette radio and a case of motor oil had been taken from the vehicle, said police reports.

Nothing else was reported missing at this time, according to police records.

Earlier in the evening, the night gas station attendant at Texaco station chased a Main Street man out of the Texaco parking lot after he observed the man allegedly trying to break into vehicles.

On Saturday, March 24 at 5 p.m., Inspector Daniel McGee went to the Texaco station to interview the attendant regarding the larceny at the Mobil station on March 23. The attendant told police he spotted a man that may have been breaking into vehicles in the Texaco lot and chased him out. There were no signs or reports of breaks to these vehicles.

The attendant also told police he did not see the suspect flee into the Mobil lot.

McGee then went to the suspect's Main Street home to interview him. The man told police he had had an argument with his girlfriend and went to "cool off" at the Texaco station. He told police he did not enter any of the vehicles on the property and also relayed that he and the attendant had an "on-going problem," which might have spurred the attendant to chase him off the lot.

Transfer station will add new capabilities

By BRENT WOLFE
Special to the Star

The following is the second in a two-part series on recycling in Winchester.

Winchester recycling is about to have a new addition. Director of Public Works Tony Celli says that the Transfer Station will soon be taking plastic for recycling in addition to newsprint, glass, metals, and leaves and grass. Celli hopes that by March 31, the Transfer Station will be re-arranged to include a new containner where residents can put their used plastic. Residents will be able to recycle colored household plastic and opaque plastic such as milk and spring water bottles.

Recycling is more than just returning used products to be recycled, however. It is also purchasing and using goods that have been recycled. Winchester residents can do this in several ways.

Scott Henderson of Henderson Stationers on Main Street says that his store now carries many recycled products. According to Henderson the store first carried recycled products in the 1970s, but sales were slow. Today, sales have not taken off, but Henderson says they have picked up. The store carries stationary made out of recycled paper including earth notes, gift wrap, and greeting cards. Henderson says that if a customer asks, the store will use recycled paper for photocopying. In addition, the store carries scratch pads and computer paper made out of recycled paper.

While the cost of recycled paper products is slightly more expensive than non-recycled paper products, Henderson says the prices are going down as the demand for recycled products increases. Henderson also adds that the quality of recycled paper products is equal to non-recycled paper products.

Henderson is very supportive of the recycling movement and has offered space in his store windows for the schools and other groups to push recycling. As he says, "Let's get the word out and get everyoody doing this thing."

Paper products are not the only recycled products available to today's consumers. Mail order companies are beginning to provide alternatives to products found in supermarkets. One such company is Seventh Generation, Products for a Healthy Planet.

The Seventh Generation catalog offers such products as biodegradable cleaners, biodegradable diapers, organic baby food, water saving shower heads, and long lasting fluorescent light bulbs. The company's goal is to provide an alternative to wasteful and toxic products found in supermarkets. A copy of Seventh Generation's catalog can be obtained by writing to: Seventh Generation, Colchester, VT 05446-1672 or calling 1-800-441-2538.

Large companies are beginning to enter the recycling movement as well. In an effort to find uses for some of their used materials, Boston area companies are donating materials such as plastic foam, wood, plastic, and mylar to the Boston Public Schools Recycling Center in Jamaica Plain. In an era of contracting school budgets, the center provides, free of cost, materials for hands-on learning activities.

Any teacher or parent in the Boston area can make use of the center. It is open from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday thru Thursday. The center is located at 25 Walk Hill in Jamaica Plain. The phone number is 282-2812.

Recycling efforts such as these are helping to save money in the long run and help preserve the environment. They are providing Winchester residents many opportunities to recycle and to add to the process of ensuring a cleaner earth.

Correction

Due to a typesetting error, Housing Authority candidate Werner Carlson's preparation for office was incorrected listed in last week's Star.

Mr. Carlson's preparation for office is as follows: Town Meeting member, 12 years; Board of Appeal, four years; Assessor, six years; Rental Housing Association, 20 years; Property Manager, Private Building Inspector, currently working with subsidized housing units under Section 8 and 707 programs; experienced in working with state and local governments.

The Star regrets the error.

Clarification

Due to typesetting and computating errors, some of the numbers were incorrect in a chart on the impact of Proposition 2½ on the school budget which accompanied a story on the League of Women Voters' study in the March 15 edition of the Star.

The correct numbers and an explanation of the chart will be published in next week's Star.

Arts lottery funds available

The Winchester Arts Lottery Council is pleased to announce that the sum of $7464 is available for distribution in the Massachusetts Arts Lottery Program for the July 1990 funding cycle. The Winchester Council has also been allocated $1802 for the Performing Arts Student Series (PASS) program which will provide funding for public, private and parochial school children to attend peforming arts events.

Martin Hitchcock, chairman of the Winchester Arts Lottery Council, notes that "the Arts Lottery has proved to be an effective avenue for supporting and encouraging the arts in every community in our state. The Winchester Arts Lottery Council is proud to continue to fund the talented and committed artists and cultural organizations which exist in Winchester. Today, through funds from the Arts Lottery, we are able to offer a broader range of creative arts and cultural programs to a wider cross-section of our residents than ever before."

Applications for the July disbursement cycle, which are available at the Town Manager's office in the newly-renovated Town Hall, close Friday, March 30, 1990. Applicants are encouraged to design and submit applications for projects which will enhance the arts within the Town of Winchester.

For information on how to apply for Arts Lottery funding, please contact Martin Hitchcock, 29 Wildwood St. (1-800-696-0563, days or 729-2598, evenings).

League within rights in supporting override vote

the fifth day of the next month, said Balzer.

According to Lindsay McSweeney (no relation), president of the League, her organization was aware of the filing requirement as an organization with a public position, and the League intends to file before the deadline of April 5. Since the March mailing of the League newsletter was what money was spent on to express the League's position on the override question — and the billing for that mailing will arrive at the end of the month — CPFO counsel and Lindsay McSweeney agreed the April 5 deadline was appropriate.

Brian McSweeney filed the complaint personally after receiving the League's newsletter this year. In a recent interview McSweeney stated his reasons for filing the complaint were outlined in a press release issued to the Star, March 19.

"By making expenditures for the purposes of promoting a referendum question, the League of Women Voters of Winchester have re-defined themselves as a 'political committee' in the Town," said McSweeney in his press release. "The bottom line is that there are established rules of the game, and no organization, partisan or non-partisan, is exempt from them."

Lindsay McSweeney noted the League has had a "longstanding policy" of taking a stand on the Prop 2½ issue, and will continue to draw a consensus from their membership each year and announce their position. The League will not however, endorse candidates, she added. She also has stressed the League has been and continues to be non-partisan.

Lindsay McSweeney added too that in addition to raising funds specifically to influence voters, an organization would be considered a political committee only if that organization spent more than 10 percent of its revenue or more than $15,000 a year to influence an issue. These guidelines do not apply to the League, she noted.

Brian McSweeney had also raised the issue of the League's contribution of its bulk mailing permit last year to the Alliance for Winchester's Future to influence the override question.

Brian McSweeney said he "didn't know what action could be taken at the time," and has since only raised the question of the legality of the League's contribution. He did not take action to file a formal complaint before last year's deadline.

According to the CPFO, an organization that issues the newsletter with the bulk mailing permit would have to file as an organization with a public position on a ballot question and disclose the expenditure.

The Alliance had filed as a political committee and also declared the mailing permit as a contribution, according to Town Clerk Carolyn Ward.

Lindsay McSweeney noted that the League had formed a coalition with the Alliance and became members, therefore the filing requirement was met through the Alliance.

March 27 election has high voter turnout

(From page 1A)

Two three-year terms for Library Trustee will be filled by incumbent Ellen B. Browning (3122 votes) and challenger A. Deborah Pavelle (3082 votes). Incumbent Constance D. Papas lost her seat on the board, receiving 2962 votes.

Housing Authority Incumbent R. Bradford Bailey, who garnered 2569 votes, was defeated by challenger Werner A. Carlson, who took home 2809 votes.

Those who were unopposed in Tuesday's election include incumbent Moderator John J. Sullivan (5234 votes with 1987 blank ballots); incumbent Assessor Mark A. Lombardi (4346 votes with 2875 blank ballots); and Board of Health newcomer Randall W. Swartz (4079 votes with 3142 blank ballots).

According to Ward, this year's turnout of 57 percent topped last year's 47 percent voter turnout. "It was certainly a record for a town election," said Ward.

Ward also noted that more people voted by absentee ballot, 313, than last year's 174.

As for the overall operation of the election, Ward was pleased. "I think everything went smoothly. It was a long day, a busy day for everyone," she said. "Everyone kept their cool, and the candidates were very cooperative about observing the 150-foot rule." No political buttons, placards or literature are allowed within 150 feet of the polling place.

Ward said her office received some phone calls Tuesday morning regarding the placement of the ballot question above the slate of candidates, which some said was hard to notice. Ward said election officers were instructed to point the question out to voters as the latter entered voting booths.

"Last year, we had 600 blanks (on the override question) which would indicate a lot of people missed it," said Ward. "We took some extra precautions this year." Ward said the override question was printed in yellow, and a note was attached at the end of the candidate's slate reminding voters the question was above. There were 472 blank ballots on this year's override question.

"I think we did everything we possibly could," said Ward. "Looking at the blank (ballots) it's obvious even if everyone had voted on the question, it wouldn't have passed," she noted. Ward noted that the number of blank ballots is indicative of "bulleting." Voters will often go to the polls to vote for one candidate, leaving the rest of the slots blank.

Now that the election is over, Ward said her office will swear in candidates for town boards, and begin preparing for Town Meeting, which begins April 23.

A debt exclusion would allow the town to exclude all principal and interest payments over the life of a bond issue. It is effective in gaining additional revenue for the town but does not add to the tax base, and is in place only the life of the bond. Those projects, which were bonded included the public safety building, transfer station trailers, Town Hall and Town Hall computer system.

According to Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer, "The budget will decrease below the appropriation level of FY90 by $1,096,770 or 3.42 percent if the override does not pass, and will increase by $424,630 or 1.32 percent if it passes."

With or without the override, some positions will be cut, according to Maurer's report. In FY88, the equivalent of 265.49 positions were funded on the municipal side of the budget. The current level is 244.4. With the override, that figure would have dropped to 241.32; without it, it will fall to 231.82.

In education, there was the equivalent of 346.97 employees in FY88. The current level is 322.09. With the override, that figure would have been 313.19 in FY91. Without it, the number will drop to 297.2.

Maurer said that with the override, the town could have restored four firefighters and police training funds.

Even if the override had passed, a number of items must still be cut, according to Maurer's budget: $10,400 has been reduced from the health department budget, and $5,000 from Planning Board studies; one position will be cut from the comptroller's office ($17,500); two positions from Public Works and a portion of that department's materials budget ($57,600); a half time clerk position each in the administration, assessors and treasurer's office ($30,000 total); $6,000 from rent for the Council on Aging; $15,000 from street light reduction; and $40,000 from the Town Counsel budget.

responded wryly, "This is a concession speech, not a retirement one."

Schmitt said his campaign strategy was to maximize gain and minimize losses through personal contact. In those precincts where he felt his ties weren't as strong, Schmitt said he went door-to-door, or contacted residents by letter.

"You have to pay attention to what people say, follow up with those who ask questions, and follow up thoughtfully," he said.

As to the future, Schmitt said he hopes the groups on either side of the override issue can "come to some common ground."

"I think we need to get beyond (the fighting) and find common solutions," he added. "I hope people realize in some way they're not going to solve problems if we continue jousting this way."

SCHOOL NEWS

A little civility wouldn't hurt at all

By CAMPBELL FOSTER
Special to The Star

The hatred in high school is seen in almost every aspect of school life. It's seen daily in the open areas — some insecure jerks throwing spitballs at lone geeks. It's seen daily in the hallways — posters of different clubs torn down, marked with footprints and spit. It's seen on the walls of the bathrooms — peoples names written in degrading graffiti that's riddled with incorrect spellings and poor grammar.

Most Winchester High students have grown accustomed to the sight of dumped books in the hallway, accustomed to the sounds of the cool kid picking on another student in the cafeteria lunch line. It seems that one moment, "Sachem Pride" is binding the school together in a web of school spirit at a pep rally, and the next moment the so-called "Sachem Pride" is an excuse for football players to beat up on skateboarders.

Our school spirit, though well intended, is superficial and insincere because it does not extend into the private lives of many of those who should benefit from it. If our school athletes are so full of "Sachem Pride", then more of them should at least be willing to treat with respect and civility their non-athlete counterparts.

Sadly, the dearth of true school spirit at Winchester High stretches beyond the barriers of athleticism. Certain groups at the high school, namely Reaction, a school environmental group, and the Student Union, are also the focus of much student dislike. The people who these groups consist of are constantly the target of ugly stereotyping and unfair labeling. Reaction founder John Racek says, "We haven't really been given a chance. We're working hard for the town and for the environment and unfortunately we have not gotten much respect from many of the students. Being labeled a 'bunch of liberal self-righteous rich kids' grows tiresome and it's time people stopped critciz-ing us and started helping us out."

It's scary to think how mean we are to each other sometimes. Now, I'm not saying that the students at WHS should be getting along cheerfully and merrily like some bad "Brady Bunch" episode. All I'm saying is that we should at least be civil to each other. Civil means not shooting spitballs at geeks in the courtyard. Civil means not ripping down Student Union posters in the hallway, no matter how you feel about the Union. Civil means treating each other with respect. Because if we don't, we could very well end up like our arguing parents, debating whether or not to override Proposition 2½, like some bunch of four year-old kids fighting over who gets the biggest cookie. And that's the scariest thought of all.

Fundraiser is a success

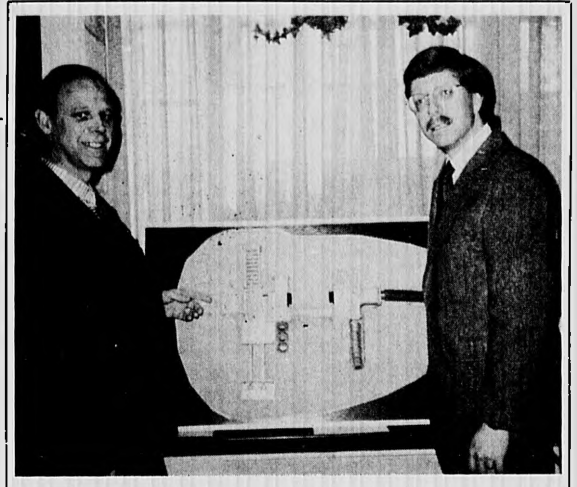
Boys and girls from the Bartlett School in Winchester scored baskets for Easter Seals during the Boston Celtics Easter Seal Shoot-out the week of Jan. 14. The total donated to Easter Seals was $5825.45. Before the Shoot-out, each student asked friends, neighbors and relatives to pledge a specific amount for each basket made. During the event students shot baskets for three minutes and then collected money for Easter Seals based upon the pledges received.

Basketball Shoot-outs are sponsored by the TJX Companies Inc. for schools throughout Massachusetts. Channel 56 and the Boston Celtics are the co-sponsors of this event, with Boston Celtic Kevin McHale serving as the honorary chairman.

All students who participated in the Shoot-out were eligible to win prizes ranging from a Boston Celtics "Shoot-out" tee shirt to a special Celtic sports bag, with the grand prize being a Boston Celtics team autographed basketball and two tickets to a Celtics game.

Among the top money raisers at Bartlett were Justin Serpone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Denis Serpone of Winchester, and Mark Garabedian son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garabedian of Winchester.

All money raised in the Basketball Shoot-Out supports local Easter Seal services for men, women and children with disabilities. Programs include summer camp, home health care, physical and occupational therapy, speech therapy, equipment loan, therapeutic swim programs, support groups for people recovering from strokes and information and referral services.



Rotary President Keith Puffer points out the handicap access ramp which the Winchester Rotary Club is sponsoring to Ambrose School Principal Richard Rogers.

Rotary sponsors handicap ramp

Sponsoring the "Mr. Flynn Park" $2,500 handicap access ramp, the Rotary Club is a service organization dedicated to community projects. Several years back, Rotary sponsored a ramp built at Ginn Field.

Mr. Flynn's Park is being organized and built by the Ambrose School staff, parents and students. It will be dedicated to the late Principal George Flynn in September. Contributions can be sent to the Ambrose School. All donors of $25 or more will be honored on a plaque within the school. For further information, call Marsha Lamson at 721-2188.

Hamblett earns first honors

Christopher L. Hamblett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Hamblett of Winchester, has achieved First Honors (all A's) for the second quarter and first semester at St. Sebastian's School where he is a seventh grader.

Hamblett also plays trumpet in the school band, and played basketball and cross country for the school teams. St. Sebastian's is a Catholic, independent school for boys from grades 7 through 12, located in Needham.

Austin Prep entrance exam

Austin Preparatory School's annual Spring Entrance Exam will be held on Saturday, March 31, at 8:30 a.m. The test will be administered at the school, 101 Willow St., Reading, near Routes 93 and 128. Preregistration for the exam is not required. All applicants must take the exam in person at the school.

This entrance exam is for students who wish to apply for openings this September. Applications will be accepted from students who wish to enter grades six, seven, or eight in the Junior School, or grades nine, 10 or 11 in the Upper School. Austin Prep accepts as students boys of all faiths.

The area prep school also offers extensive extracurricular activities and a full program of intramural and interscholastic sports. Interested applicants should call the school at 944-4900.

Wentworth earns Voke honors

Chad Wentworth of Winchester has been named to the honor roll for the second quarter marking period, according to John F. Looney Jr., Winchester's representative to the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational District School Committee.

Honors is an average of 85 or better with no grade below 75. Wentworth is a junior.

Ackerman aids in evaluation

Dr. David B. Ackerman, Winchester's Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction, was invited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges to serve on the visiting committee to evaluate Merrimack High School on March 18 to 21.

Founded in 1885, with headquarters at the Sanborn House in Winchester, the NEASC is the oldest regional accreditation association in the country and is recognized by the U.S. Department of Education as the sole agency to award accreditation to educational institutions in New England.

The Association is a voluntary league of over 1690 public and independent schools, colleges and universities, and vocational, technical and career institutions. Of these, approximately 690 public schools have been accredited through the Association's Commission on Public Secondary Schools which assists individual schools to improve the quality of education through a process of evaluation and accreditation.

Ackerman helped to review various educational components of the school and assisted in the preparation of the final report of the Merrimack High School evaluation. Ackerman's specific responsibilities were the Curriculum and Instruction report, synthesizing the reports from the various departments, as well as the evaluation of the Technology Education program.

Unclaimed money list is released

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane today released the names of 33,000 individuals and businesses that are due more than $25 million from abandoned accounts.

Under the State's Unclaimed Money Law, bank accounts, insurance proceeds, payroll checks, stock certificates and the like that have been inactive for at least five years are deemed to be abandoned. All such accounts must be reported to the Treasury, which then attempts to notify the rightful owners or legal heirs. Last year Treasurer Crane returned more than half of the $30 million in reported abandoned accounts.

Treasurer Crane said compliance with the law is improving. Nevertheless, he is not totally satisfied. "It is apparent that less than a sincere effort is being made by some institutions to find the owners. How can anyone fail to locate McDonalds, Boston University, or the New England Aquarium?" the Treasurer asked.

Treasurer Crane noted one important aspect of the Unclaimed Money Law which requires that until claimed, all funds are kept in the State's General Fund where they are invested for the benefit of all residents and taxpayers here in Massachusetts.

WINCHESTER PAST & PRESENT

Davidson lends talents to theater

By ELLEN KNIGHT
Special to the Star

This year there is something new and remarkable about the Cooperative Theatre for Children's production, quietly announced on its program but which might be heralded a bit more loudly. "Sleeping Beauty" is an original musical, especially written for this group, the book and lyrics by Chris Alexander and the music by Douglass Davidson.

Winchester audiences do not often have opportunities to hear the works of their resident composers. However, children's theatre patrons of the past have had a few samples of Davidson's work and, to judge by the success of "Sleeping Beauty," should have more in the future.

Davidson has been involved with the Cooperative Theatre from its start. He began, in the early shows, orchestrating songs for the small instrumental ensemble, directed by his wife Carole, that accompanies the children. For a few others he wrote additional music, such as the alligator music in "Peter Pan" and songs for ticket winners in "Willie Wonka." This year he composed the entire score of the show.

"Sleeping Beauty" is Davidson's fourth musical and the latest in his longer complete list of musical compositions. He has been writing music since his college years at Pomona where he was a music major and Harvard where he studied composition with Walter Piston, wrote choral and chamber music, and earned a master's degree in music.

In college Davidson also began conducting. At Harvard he conducted the freshmen glee club. For the past 25 years he has been directing music at Boston's Old North Church for which he also annually writes one or two pieces for organ or choir, the latest a Christmas anthem "Hodie christus natus est." In Winchester he has conducted open sings for the Music Society.

Though he also has an insurance business, Davidson tries to do increasingly more income-producing work in music. With his wife, who is organist at Old North and a music teacher, he has co-directed other musical projects and anticipates more. "Carole and I are really very happy," he says. "We love doing music more than anything else. We have been able to structure our lives to do more music every year and more together."

The opportunity to write a musical first came in 1975 during the Bicentennial celebration, when a playwright asked him if he could, in only six weeks, write the music for show for a dinner-theater. Davidson could and did, and "The World Turned Upside Down," a Revolutionary War spy spoof, ran there for 30 shows and was also produced in Southboro and Lexington.

Davidson wrote not only music but also the book and lyrics for his next musical, "Cleo and the Ghost," one act of which was done at a Winchester Players annual meeting several years ago. Then, for "Dr. Dack's Magical Medicine Show" Davidson collaborated with scriptwriter Bill Meikle. Containing an anti-drug and alcohol message for young audiences, this 45-minute show was performed in Arlington, Winchester, and a few other places, with Meikle himself, who is more widely known as Ben Franklin, playing Dr. Dack.

"Sleeping Beauty" was composed just last year expressly for this year's Cooperative Theatre production. As he tells the story, this show has all been a fun time for Davidson, beginning with his collaboration with Alexander.

"It was a very nice working arrangement with Chris," he declares. "He is a very talented young man. His lyrics are marvelous, and his adaptation of the story is classy and witty." In some cases Alexander first had the ideas for words, sometimes Davidson had the music, so they put their songs together both ways and, according to Davidson, were quick to understand what each other wanted.

Watching rehearsals has also been a treat for the composer. "The kids have been having a great time — more than I expected — with the songs at rehearsal," he says and continually expressed delight with the children during performance.

"Sleeping Beauty" is, indeed, fun, not only for the composer and the kids but for everyone. It also leads one to anticipate even more fun should the Theatre do more such original work in the future.

Sleeping Beauty a gem

royal birth and betrothal. Both unhappy, the Prince and Princess separtely return to the castle, anticipating an unwanted marriage.

At the castle, unsuspecting any trouble, the parents plan the wedding, debating the style of the festivities in the split chorus "Pomp and Celebrate," and Duchess Lonelyheart and company teach Duke Haverford the "Party Time Rag," another sparkling ensemble number.

During the very moment that the fairies unwisely leave Aurora alone, Disastra succeeds not only in spiriting Aurora away to fulfill the evil spell but also in imprisoning Jonathan and taunting him while she and her henchmen sing the sinister tango "See How She Slumbers."

Once the fairies release Jonathan, however, he overcomes the henchmen, slays Disastra, and awakens Aurora. The entire company then sings the happy ending, "Life is Groovy."

Everyone in the cast deserves congratulations for their performances. The show affords a delightful range of characters for the children, including the royal kings, queens, prince, and princess, the tirelessly pursuing Duchess and the long-suffering Duke, four endearing good fairies, the deliciously wicked Disastra and her comically inept henchmen, the fetchingly costumed animals, as well as narrators and numerous chorus members.

The adult crew and orchestra also deserve much credit for their roles in directing, choreographing, costuming, accompanying, lighting and otherwise supporting the production. Since the names of cast and crew are too numerous to list here, the only solution is to recommend going to one of the remaining performances on Friday evening, Saturday or Sunday afternoon, where everyone is deservedly credited on the program.

SENIOR NEWS

Juniors, seniors attend pizza party

By MARY P. KELLY
Special to the Star

The High School Junior Class is expert at making pizza, under the guidance of faculty members William O'Connor (COA member) and Ron D'Addario (class adviser), and they are offering a pizza lunch for seniors on Thursday, April 5, at 11:30 a.m., at the Jenks Senior Center. All Winchester seniors are welcome to attend this intergenerational event.

The students are particularly asking those seniors who are still active, or are retired from, a business or a profession, to attend once to talk about their careers, their training, and any kind of turn their lifestyles took that they would like to share with the students. Among the careers that the WHS juniors have expressed interest in are: business (accounting, international), stockbroker, sales), law, medicine, engineering, architecture, aviation, computers, fine arts and teaching.

Helen Weinstein waits for that lucky number during a bingo game at the Jenks Senior Center.

All seniors are welcome. Sign up now at the desk. Plan to come and enjoy the pizza and assist our students in focusing on career choices.

Seniors present a fashion show

Have you made plans for the Easter Parade of Spring Fashions? Come to the Jenks Senior Center on April 3 at 1:30 p.m. to see some of your friends attired in lovely suits, jackets, coats and dresses from the EnKa Society Thrift Shop, now located at 736 Main Street in Cutter Village. The women models are Barbara Ciampa, Mary Craven, Dot Cullen, Helen Murphy, Mary Perlupo, Sylvia Saslow, and Dorothy Wadsworth. The men are Clarence Borggaard, Charles Craven, John Giuliani, Tom Kennedy, Al Karnilla, Ray Murphy, and Sam McCarthy.

Mary Knox, an experienced fashion commentator, will describe the clothes as the models parade their finery to the accompaniment of background music with Marcia Saltmarsh at the piano. There will be an opportunity to puchase apparel at a low cost.

The Coiffure de Roma of 576 Main St. in Winchester has generously agreed to style the ladies' hair.

Light refreshments will be served and the drawing of a door prize will bring the show to a close. Early sign-ups are requested in order that adequate arrangments can be made. The admission is $5 per person and the public is invited to attend. come and bring your family and friends to observe spring fashions at their best. Helen Murphy is in charge of arrangements.

Job Bank for seniors

The Recreation Department at the Youth Center sponsors a Job Bank Referral Service. Seniors in town may call the Job Bank for junior and senior high school students who are available for part-time work or odd jobs.

The number to call, preferably in late afternoon, is 729-7129.

Calligraphy class resumes

Dr. Normand Paquette will give a six-week course in Calligraphy beginning Thursday, April 5, at 9:30 a.m., at the Jenks Center. The course will be for first-timers who want an introduction to beautiful writing. It will also be for those who have had an introduction to Calligraphy and want to review what they know and to improve their skills.

Call the Center now, 721-7136, and register for the course which starts April 5.

Movie of the month

Audubon Songbirds I, the video movie for April, will be shown at the Jenks Center on Monday, April 9, at 1 p.m. (running time: 1 hour, 15 minutes). This video will show 98 species of birds in their natural habitats and, with their sweet songs, you will be welcoming thim back to your own backyards, for the none-too-soon arriving springtime.

ABOUT TOWN

Scholarship foundation has telethon

The annual Winchester Scholarship Foundation telecast will be carried on Channel 19 from the Winchester Town Hall on Tuesday, April 3 from 7 to 9 p.m.

Please tune in for an evening of information and entertainment and be prepared to "Invest in Winchester Futures."

MWRA hosts water contest

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority today announced that the eighth annual Water Conservation Poster Contest is underway. Contest entry information has been sent to public and private schools throughout Massachusetts.

"The MWRA poster contest, seeking creative and original art work about ways people can save water and the importance of water in society, has been expanded this year to include a special essay contest about the Boston Harbor project," said Paul F. Levy, MWRA Executive Director.

The poster contest is open to students in grades kindergarten through 8th grade, with prizes awarded in three categories — K through 3, 4 through 6, and 7 through 8.

Students in grades 4 through 8 are eligible for the essay contest. Prizes will be awarded in 2 categories — 4 through 6, and 7 through 8.

Entries will be judged on clarity of message, originality, and quality of work. There may be only one entry per student, per contest; but a student, if eligible, may participate in both the poster and the essay contests.

First prize in each category is a $200 savings bond. Second prize is a $100 bond. Third prize is a $50 bond. Other outstanding entries will be eligible for Honorable Mention. All students who participate will receive certificates for their efforts. Entries will be judged by an impartial panel of educators, conservation and environmental experts, and MWRA staff members. The deadline for entries is Friday, April 20, 1990. As in the past, this year's award ceremony will be at the State House, in Boston, as part of Water Conservation Week.

Last year's poster contest, sponsored by the MWRA, which supplies water to 44 communities in Massachusetts and sewer services to 43 communities, attracted 3900 entries from 54 Massachusetts communities.

Entries may be sent or delivered to Teresa Quinton, MWRA School Programs, Charlestown Navy Yard, 100 First Avenue, Boston, Massachusetts 02129. For contest details, call 242-SAVE.

Town boards have vacancies

There is a vacancy on the Northeast Solid Waste Committee advisory board. The Board of Selectmen are seeking one member to be the Town of Winchester's Representative to the Northeast Solid Waste Committee Advisory Board. The term is indefinite.

Please submit qualifications, in writing, to the Board of Selectmen, 71 Mt. Vernon St., by March 30, 1990. Please include, in your qualifications, a daytime telephone number.

Cemetery Advisory

The Board of Selectmen are seeking two (2) members for the Wildwood Cemetery Advisory Committee. Both terms will expire May 1, 1993.

The Committee advises the Board of Selectmen on the condition of Wildwood Cometery and make recommendations with respect to the care and maintenance thereof.

Please submit qualifications, in writing, to the Board of Selectmen, 71 Mt. Vernon St., by April 2, 1990. Please include, in your qualifications, a daytime telephone number.

Compiled by the Winchester League of Women Voters.

Chamber plans annual meeting

The Eleventh Annual Meeting of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce will be held on April 5, at 5:30 p.m. at the Winchester Country Club. The Chamber announces that Alan Macdonald, the executive director of the Massachusetts Business Roundtable and Robert Sheridan, President of the Massachusetts Bankers Association, will be keynote speakes. They will make a joint presentation entitled "The Massachusetts Banking Industry: The law of gravity applies".

Macdonald, a Winchester resident and former selectman, is the executive director of the only statewide organization of chief executive officers in Massachusetts. Since 1986, Sheridan has been accountable for the planning, directing and evaluation of programs of the Massachusetts Bankers Association. The Chamber is pleased to have these two distinquished people speak to the membership about their impressions of the present status and future predictions of the banking industry in Massachusetts.

In addition, President Allan Eyden and the Board of Directors will give a brief overview of the programs that are offered to the membership. The recipient of the "Outstanding Citizen" award will also be announced at this time.

The Board of Directors would like to invite anyone from the community who is interested in learning more about the work of the Chamber to attend this meeting on April 5. Please call the Chamber office to make your reservations, (729-8870).

Host families are needed for Japanese visitors

Winchester, Belmont, and Arlington residents will have an opportunity to host 30 young Japanese students ages 14 to 20 in their homes for three weeks this summer, from July 28 to August 18. These young people are being sponsored by the American Institute for Foreign Study, an intercultural exchange promoting understanding and friendship. AIFS is the oldest and largest educational travel program in the United States.

Students will be staying with families in the Winchester community. Their visit offers host families a unique opportunity to "visit Japan" without leaving home. As ambassadors of goodwill, family and visitor will share cultural insights and everyday experiences so important to improving international relations and promoting peace and understanding. By sharing their home with a foreign student, Winchester families will be doing their part to bring the peoples of the world closer together.

They'll have a great time doing it too! While the students will be occupied most mornings with English classes at M.I.T. (transportation provided by AIFS), there are also many social and cultural activities planned in which the host families are welcome to participate. Picnics, beach parties, The Hard Rock Cafe, canoeing on the Concord River, visits to historic Salem and Boston, are some of the ways in which the students will get a glimpse of American life. Host family children are invited with or without their parents.

Any family, large or small, with or without children, can be a host family. The only requirement is a desire to welcome a foreign student into one's family circle and show him/her the same interest and caring any traveler seeks when in a strange land. It's not as demanding as it seems. The family provides a bed and meals and allows the visitor to participate in its usual summer activities. The students can be supervised until 5 p.m., if desired, to accommodate the busy schedules of today's families.

The students all speak English with varying degrees of proficiency, are fully insured and have their own pocket money.

The coordinator, Donna Gray, invites anyone interested to call 641-0595 for more information on how to make this summer the most interesting one yet for the whole family.

High honors

RECREATION NEWS

Radio City Music Hall trip

The Recreation Department is sponsoring a weekend trip to New York and Radio City Music Hall for their Saturday evening Christmas program. On Saturday morning, Dec. 1, a bus will leave from behind McCall Jr. High. Dinner Saturday will be at Top of the Sixes, accommodations are at Vista International or Southgate Hotel, Sunday is on your own, returning to Winchester about 9:30 p.m.

The cost is $239. A non-refundable deposit of $50 is due at the time of registration. Deadline for registration is May 1, 1990.

Bunnies on parade April 8

Hop on down to McCall Junior High gymnasium on Sunday, April 8, from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Meet the Easter bunny, do the bunny hop, enjoy the musical performance of Gene Stammell, and have some refreshments. This activity is especially for families with children ages 3 to 8, but all are invited.

All are encouraged to dress as bunnies. Admission is free. Goodwill donations will be accepted.

Summer camp registration

Winchester's Recreation Day Camps, age 3 by Jan. 1, 1990 through entering grade 8, are located at the McCall Junior High and Lincoln School. Each camp offers age appropriate physical, social and cultural activities to insure an enjoyable camp experience. Registration are also being accepted for Tennis and Gymnastic camps.

LIBRARY LINES

The final concert in the Winchester Public Library's "Music in the Library" series for 1989-90 will be held at the Library on Sunday, April 8 at 2 p.m. Xylophonia will perform. This trio interprets classical, popular, and traditional music on the xylophone, vibraphone, and marimba. The group was founded by Paula Rich in 1986 with original member David Crowley. Evan Lattimore joined in 1987. They began by playing ragtime pieces written for the xylophone in the 20's, then expanded their repertoire to include works by Bach and Gershwin, as well as Guatemalan marimba music. Their goal is to bring percussion into the spotlight, in order to explore the history and potential of these instruments. This program is sponsored by the Friends of the Winchester Public Library. It is free, and refreshments will be served.

Job hunters will be interested in the National Business Employment Weekly, a new addition to the Library's newspaper collection. This 60-page tabloid contains hundreds of advertisements that offer employment opportunities with many American and foreign companies. Most of the positions require considerable experience, but twice a year the Weekly offers a college supplement that is directed at new graduates.

Another new subscription is the Chronicle of Higher Education. This periodical covers new trends in teaching methods and research, as well as the administrative and political aspects of the academic world. The Chronicle's classified section is one of the most important national job markets for academics.

The Children's Services Department is busy getting ready for Spring children's programs. Preregistration for the third story time session will be held from April 16 to 26 in the Children's Room. Toddler programs (24 to 36 months) will be held on Wednesdays at 10 a.m. (May 2 to 30) and Thursdays at 11 a.m. (May 3 to 31). A preschool session for ages 36 to 48 months is scheduled for Wednesdays at 11 a.m. (May 2 to 30) and one for ages 4 and up is scheduled for Tuesdays at 11 a.m. (May 1 to 29). Give your child a delightful introduction to reading!

Remember that free tickets to the school vacation week events reported last week will be available in the Children's Room starting April 2.

Two to six-year olds and their parents are invited to another Evening Family Story Time, to be held on April 10 at 6:30 p.m. in the Children's Room. No registration is required.

Please call the Library at 721-7171 for information on any library programs or services.

Town needs input on regional plan

By DAN CHANE
Special to the Star

The recent "Day at the Races" hosted by our League of Women Voters found Town Hall Auditorium filled with the great and near great of the Winchester political spectrum.

One Planning Board member, who successfully ran the gauntlet last year, is Edward T. Rodriguez, secretary to the board and the current representative to the North Suburban Planning Council — a regional outgrowth of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council.

Ed and his wife Nancy (Pizzano) raised sons Mitchell, Steven and David here — and Nancy grew up in Winchester.

If memory serves, Nancy was a valued fullback on a few of Coach Millie Barnes' field hockey teams back in our Winchester High School days.

Some years ago, Ed became president of the old Winchester J.C.'s — and was an indispensible member of the very first Town Day Committee in Winchester. At that time, he was instrumental in publishing the Winchester Pictorial History — a valued souvenir of that first Town Day and an unparalleled historical document.

Sunday, as we talked at Town Hall, Ed waxed enthusiastically about the April 4 visit to Winchester of representatives of the North Suburban Planning Council — who will bring to Our Town their vision of "Metro 2000".

The forum begins at 4 p.m. in the Winchester Room of Town Hall and our Planning Board will welcome interested citizens to this first presentation of a regional master plan.

Ed mentioned that on becoming Winchester's representative to North Suburban Planning Council, he became concerned that the massive regional master plan for the local area was being studied in an atmosphere of minimal publicity within area towns.

Paramount to "Metro 2000" are "Growth Centers" sprinkled throughout this region wherein major industrial growth and transportation nodes would be concentrated.

Although North Suburban Planning Council is still advisory in nature, it is making attempts to take a more active role in regional planning through legislation.

In order to create more local interest, those espousing "Metro 2000" are currently making presentations in area towns.

Ed relates that the parent Metropolitan Area Planning Council has placed great emphasis on planning a viable transportation infrastructure — but is also concerned with regional industrial growth, waste treatment facilities, water management, etc.

Ed rightly feels that now is the time for Winchester to begin considering the ramifications of "Metro 2000" — and have input into the program early on.

Citizen input will be greatly valued as well — so plan to get down to Town Hall on April 4 at 4 p.m. for this vital initial planning session.

As for the part Ed Rodriguez has played — the observer hopes that winners of the current town election will have the verve, enthusiasm and penchant for hard work that Ed has exhibited during his first full year holding a town office.

Spellbound by technology

By TERRY MAROTTA

Some of the world's nicest words begin with o: ophthalmology, for example, which sounds like you're talking through a mouthful of Q tips; oology, which though it means the study of birds' eggs, sounds like something you'd say while riding an escalator barefoot just at the second you notice your undefended tootsies getting fed into that one crack near the top that eats the whole staircase.

Orthography's a nice word too. It means the study of spelling and it's our subject here today.

Way back, folks spelled things the way they wanted to spell them. A letter from George Washington wouldn't get by a fourth grade teacher today. "Perchanse I wille ride out in the mourning to shoot feasant," he might have penned in his diary.

But then Noah Webster and his pals stepped in with their dictionaries and spelling got standardized.

Nowadays with many computer software programs, you get a Spell Checker as a matter of course. I have one; it's drunk with power. It reminds me of the little man with a mustache I had as an English teacher back in seventh grade. Let's call him Mr. Jones. Whatever you offered as an answer, Jonesy would repeat it back to you. "Direct Object?" he would say. "You left the book at home?" "You think it's a predicate nominative?" sometimes adding "But do you really think at all?" I hated Mr. Jones. And I'm not too crazy about my Spell Checker either.

Here's how it treats me. Let's say I spell 'immediate' wrong, with one m, for the sake of argument. I press the button to check spelling throughout the document and imediate gets highlighted in the text. Then down under a dotted line on the screen the Spell Checker leaps into action. Did I mean imitate, it asks prissily? Mediate? Ommatidia? (Ommatidia?!)

I'm like the lady on the t-shirt, drawn romance-comic-book-style with one large pear-shaped tear coursing down her cheek, saying "I Can't Believe I Forgot To Have Children." What I forgot to do was take typing in high school. I go along lickety split just as if I knew how; sometimes at the end of page, I can't even read what it says. I'm in the dark.

But my Spell Checker is never in the dark. I tried to type 'space' once and instead typed 'pscae'. The Spell Checker leaped into action, highlighted the word and asked psoae? Did I want to write psoae?, which, the dictionary says, refers to either of two muscles extending from the lion to the pelvis. I mean, what a showoff.

And yet it isn't as smart as it thinks. It can't do a lot of words: doesn't recognize them as English even. It doesn't know noogies, for example, or fax or babydolls or cheez whiz. It doesn't even know tootsies from this very column. It leads a sheltered life.

At the same time, it doesn't know many proper nouns. It's mystified by Mario Cuomo, for example. It knows Dick Nixon but not Dan Quayle. It never heard of Nelson Mandela. And it can't spell my name. I write it sometimes, not as Terry, the name which I've gone by since I was, oh two minutes old, but my real and legal name: Caroline I write and Mr. Spell Check is all over me. Cerulean, did I mean? Carboline? Theresa I add. Theorize? it attempts to correct me. Marotta, I finish up. Muriate? did I mean? Mariti? which, by the way isn't even in my 3000-page dictionary.

My little boy is learning how to write now. He's five and he does what the teachers call inventive spelling. His latest story went like this: "Olongtimogo there was a keng and quen and thea had o babe end then the wich..." I mean, I can read it fine, about the king and queen and the o'baby and all. The Spell Checker would be on the floor with it, deliriously suggesting alternatives and drooling spittle at the corners of its know-it-all mouth.

I say to it, Yo: Listen up, Jack. You are lost: in space, not psoae. You don't know what you're missing, from the noogies to the babydolls on down. You don't even know the name of the person who owns you, and it ain't Carboline Theorize Muriate. As I wished I'd said to Mr. Jones so many times, you think my name is that, Mister Big-shot Computer. But do you really think at all?

Ask Michael Recycle

Question:
Uncle Ed, why are there so many Christmas trees left on the side of the road?
Answer:
Well, Michael, my boy, some people think that the tooth fairy will pick them up and leave a quarter in their place.
Question:
Well, that's not true. What is the real story? Are there that many litterers in our Winchester?
Answer:
You're right, Michael. There used to be a town group that would pick them up for a donation tied to the trees. But the donations were stolen and the group got discouraged and stopped removing the trees several years ago. The Christmas tree litterers just are not aware of that. They really are not such slobs as to just discard the trees there.
Question:
Well, Uncle Ed, what will happen to the trees, what should happen to them?
Answer:
The trees will stay there until the litterer gets a guilty conscience and takes them to the brush area of our Winchester Recycling Center. There they will be chipped up into chips that can be used as mulch.

Pickering says Star article was 'incomplete'

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to elaborate on a March 15 article titled, "School Board Looks at Task Force Report." I feel the information offered to the public was incomplete.

As a member of the Task Force, I would like to explain that while the majority report of the Task Force offered approximately $100,000 of possible reductions, all of which were thoroughly described with dollar values in the article; the minority opinion, supported by four Task Force members, offered approximately $478,000 of possible reductions, none of which were described with dollar values attached. These reductions were selected from a list totaling $1.2 million in possible reductions (with some overlapping) reviewed by the entire Task Force.

I encourage all members of the community to read both the majority and the minority reports which are available at each of the elementary schools. I further encourage all to review the very detailed subcommittee reports, before judging whether or not it is imperative to close a school.

I continue to support the position that our town needs five elementary schools. I believe that the monies are available, if redirected, and that this will not "sacrifice the rest of the system," as most of the reductions were in areas unrelated to direct pupil services.

I would also like to clarify the $350,000 figure described as "needed to keep Vinson Owen open." This sum is the total saved in closing Vinson Owen, consolidating classes, and creating a middle school. When this sub-committee, with the assistance of Mr. William Galatis and Mr. Colin Simson, reviewed the cost reductions/savings in just closing Vinson Owen, the figure arrived at was approximately $216,000. This is essentially what is saved when you close the building. Many expenses remain constant because these teachers will remain in the system and all direct pupil expenses will remain constant. Also, remember that the cost incurred in a middle school move has not been disclosed. However, the sub-committee report from the Task Force offers a cost of $16,000 in renovations alone.

Lastly, I continue to encourage the School Committee to find alternatives to closing a school at a time when elementary school enrollments are increasing. Let's not allow our elementary population to pay the price for declining high school enrollments.

Linda Pickering

Comments on the school system

The following letter was received prior to the March 27 election, but due to space limitations, was not published.

TO THE EDITOR:

Winchester School System budget problem and continuing discussion on the importance of education in reversing dangerous trends of the US losing competitiveness to the Pacific Rim and Europe, gives us a golden opportunity to review our system. The best way to go about it is to recognize the most important aspect of education and verify if we really comply with it. Very much different from mainly budget review approach used by the Task Force, only a thorough look at how the system really works can bring meaningful results.

Having spent years researching the reasons for success of famous achievers and verifies a number of self-improvement techniques, I have no doubt that the essence of education is individual learning. When combined with motivation, mental discipline and access to excellent instructional material, individual learning can bring incredible results, and in much shorter time, especially if self-study techniques are used (explained in my previous letter publish Feb. 1). It is self-evident that this approach is ultimately cost-effective, but more importantly, it may account for tremendous differences in performance among individuals with approximately similar abilities. Those lucky handful who, through fluke, observation or analysis, managed to discover these techniques, usually in their adulthood, can not help but wonder why, at the doorsteps to the 21st century, these methods are still not taught at school!

Systems of education can be drastically improved if the emphasis is put on individual learning with maximum speed for each student. Ironically, this could probably be achieved with more ingenuity, smarter approach and restructur-

This week in history

30 years ago: 1960

The Planning Board had withdrawn one controversial proposal and had revised another at Town Meeting that week. Article 26, which was designed to restrict industry in Winchester, underwent some changes. Also, the board withdrew its proposal that new industrial structures be limited to 35 percent of their site, and reduced its 40-foot setback and abutment ruling to 25 feet.

The Winchester Hospital Building Fund campaign entered its final month with another meeting of volunteers from most major divisions. Reported was $474,633 or 63.3 percent of the goal of $750,000 to remodel the present building and add a new wing.

The Boston Post Cane, held in many Greater Boston cities and towns by the oldest residents of the communities, was presented in Winchester to Mrs. Harriet M. Smith, 98, mother of Fred Stratton of Winslow Road. Mrs. Smith made her home with her daughter and the presentation was made there that week by the new chairman of the Board of Selectmen, H. Gardner Bradlee.

20 years ago: 1970

The Town Meeting accepted the recommendations of the Personnel Board with one amendment at the opening session of the 1970 Annual Town Meeting and voted raises totalling $196,500 for town employees. The highest raise — at 10 percent — went to the policemen, with the maximum patrolman's salary being raised to $9,185.

Mutual aid was supplied to the Arlington Fire Department in battling a fire at the Arlington Pipe and Supply Company, 24 Pond Lane. Heavy smoke and fire damage was reported to the century-old building.

More than 80 Boy Scouts and Explorers with their adult leaders cleaned up debris in the Aberjona River from East Woburn to Upper Mystic Lake that week.

The Winchester Post Office announced that week that an embargo had been declared on mail destined for New York City burroughs and Paterson, N.J. This had been necessitated by a strike of mail carriers in those areas, said Winchester postal officials.

Clarification

A letter from Anne Nevins in the March 15 edition of the Star stated that "The Board of Selectmen, composed of representatives of the Taxpayers' Association and of the Alliance, after an intense scrutiny of all town budgets, voted unanimously to place a debt exclusion question on the ballot."

There are reportedly no members of the board who are also members of the Taxpayers' Association.

ing, rather than new investment. Using self-study techniques as explained in my previous letter, students can absorb a lot more new knowledge much quicker, with excellent teachers responsible for individual curriculum selection, guidance, stumbling block detection and elimination, and progress evaluation. Parents will have to work much closer with teachers, not only in helping to develop motivation, self-discipline and better study habits, but also qualities of wisdom, responsibilty and statesmanship so evidently needed to understand and counter the ever more demanding problems of modern world. The only common denominator for the separate school entities would be the same standard of excellence and stringent performance reviews, set and conducted under close supervision of a reformed School Board. Teachers salary may have to be brought to a level competitive with that to other professionals, to reward excellence and new commitment, or allow recruitment of specialists from other professions. To finance it, administration, structure and other inefficiencies would have to be brought to a bare minimum or eliminated. Only then, if it became evident that more funds were needed, it would make sense for residents to support it, considering what having the best system in the world could do to protect the equity of their homes.

Worse yet, what is currently in place in lieu of self-study driven individual learning, is a multi-million dollar institution that operates like a factory, with a command structure of an army unit, deeply entrenched im bureaucracy, fortifies with contracts, laws and regulatins. This system must be fed an ever increasing sum of money or it will start to devour its vital sections to protect its rigid structure. Vincent Owen was chosen to be its first victim, and if the stint continues, another primary school could go down next year. Over the years, the system has developed its own ways of due process that, contrary to common sense, wastes years to reinvent the wheel. Foreign language program is the best example. Instead of importing native speaker teachers and books from Spain or France, and allow students to function in these languages starting from kindergarten, and one or two complete days a week during a few early grades when kids have a natural ability to pick up languages, the system waits happily till this ability is greatly diminished. Then, at the end of grade school, teaches them the hard way! Also, obvious curriculum changes from teaching grammar to comprehension take years to study, verify and implement! If this is not outlandish, I do not know what is! Is reinventing subtitutes for common sense what positions that of directors of departments and curriculum assistant superintendent are for?

Yet, both Dr. Mitsakos and Mr. Jervey on behalf of the School Committee claim that there is nothing wrong with the system, because it compares favorably with that of our immediate neighbors. Obviously, using the world's standard of excellence would only confirm the alarming media reports that our students fare somewhere at the end of the list of industrialized nations in Science and Math! The claim could have been acceptable a generation ago, when America was so strong that she could safely afford to forget that the rest of the world existed. Unfortunately she did, and now we can see the results of it, in us losing competitiveness not to Lexington or Bedford, but to Japan, Korea or Europe. To further confuse the issue, Mr. Jervey remarked during Feb. 27, School Committee meeting that Japanese students would not do so well if transferred to our system!

Common sense dictates that we must not compromise our standards of excellence, be oblivious of what the rest of the world is doing or become less alert, if we wish our kids to be in the winners' circle of increasingly global competition.

It seems that a majority of the School Committee members and Dr. Mitsakos have formed a pact of mutual adoration to perpetuate the system, and certainly not to restructure it. They needed more money to do so, and it appears that they devised a simple scheme of hostage taking to swing the override vote, regardless of the consequences, if this bluff is called. And this is happening right in the middle of the school system, with thousands of kids watching and learning by bad example! Things have gone too far, and the time has come for voters to reassert control over the school system. The system belongs to residents, and like a house would, it will dilapidate if abandoned by owners. It is imperative that the School Committee is brought under control too, and there is no better way than electing a new member. Fortunately, the voters will have the choice to mark their selection with common sense, and avert the need to pay much larger bills in the future.

Host families are still needed

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to thank all the Winchester families who have generously offered to host students from Nice, France from April 8 to 21. The students are all eagerly anticipating their stay in Winchester.

However, I still need to find eight families in the Winchester area who are willing to welcome a French teenager in their homes for the 12-day period. April is fast approaching!

The boys range in age from 15 to 19, and are interested in a wide variety of sports, computers, and many other activities. One lives on a sailboat in Nice harbor; another lives in Cannes and has worked during the film festival; each has some special aspect of French culture to bring to the host family.

The students will spend weekdays on excursions with their teachers and will be with their host families on Easter weekend and on week nights. You don't need to speak French or to have children the same age in order to be a host family. All you need is a big heart!

Please call me at 729-2664 if you're interested. Many thanks.

Polly Lyman

Local police are thanked

TO THE EDITOR:

May I thank the Chief of Police Perritano, and his Department for their kindness in returning my wife's combination key case and wallet that was recovered recently.

We would like to give a tip o' the hat to everyone involved including St. Anthony because we turned our home upside down searching for it.

Her car keys, license to drive in Massachusetts, and Visa card were among the debris recovered. We like your town and shop there frequently, but we don't know exactly where it was lost. I would appreciate the publication of a letter to the editor so your citizens could also appreciate the fine service rendered to your neighbors. Thank you.

James J. Geagan

Thanks to Gagel, student actors

TO THE EDITOR:

I particularly enjoyed several letters written recently about the positive things about living in Winchester. One of the things that I value most about the town we moved to over 20 years ago is the gifted individuals who have enriched us with their dedication to beauty of the spirit, and who have through selfless efforts passed on the love of art, music, dance, literature, and theatre to our young.

I wouldn't want to live in a world without beauty of soul and spirit and although I don't have the talent to contribute to those efforts, I can thank those who do.

One of those gifted people is Wally Gagel, who is directing some wonderfully talented Winchester High School students in Guys and Dolls for performances on March 29, 30 and 31. The last time Wally did this play was at Lynch Junior High in 1975. Unfortunately, I did not know how many talented kids and adults we had at that time, so I missed Oliver, too, but not Pajama Game and Bye Bye Birdie, at Lynch also, and then Annie at McCall four years ago.

How was I to know that this man gives kids the opportunity, the chance (yes, Clarence Borggaard, he gives) to give a performance worthy of Broadway. And boy, do those kids live up to his high standards. We don't go to the plays to see our kid, or even a neighbor's or friend's; we go to see a professional production, and boy do we get it.

This is my thank you to Wally and all those kids who filled my heart and spirit, and I invite all you parents who had the privilege of having your lucky kids work in one of Wally's plays to thank him by coming, and if you wish to be an angel, give me a call. And for anyone who has never seen one of our town's theatrical productions, come, and let us entertain you.

Dowd comments on school budget

TO THE EDITOR:

At the March 13 School Committee meeting the Administration, through Robert Fitzgerald, listed several items they "cannot live without" and the majority of the School Committee agreed with them. Two examples of the items the Task Force suggested to be cut and our Administration "cannot live without" are: 1. having football games professionally taped on 16 mm film at a cost of $2,000; and 2. having 11.5 custodians for 850 students at the High School when there were 12.1 custodians for 1,424 students. It was suggested by the Task Force the custodial staff be reduced to 10 for a savings of $36,000.

The Administration has no reservations about institution fees; however, they will not entertain cuts which would not affect direct services to children. The Administration and a majority of the School Committee, with the exception of Mr. O'Connell, "cannot live without" these things yet they are willing to sacrifice an elementary school!

The selectmen have been willing to make cuts, and they instituted a wage freeze in the municipal budget. The School Committee refused to do this. The School Committee is not conscientiously looking for areas in the budget where cuts can be made without directly affecting the children. Decisions are being made on a financial basis rather than an educational basis.

I "cannot live without" an effective, responsible School Committee which will put the needs of our children first. Where is it?

Stone Zoo could close

TO THE EDITOR:

I am writing to all the local papers in my area in the hope they will take an interest and make their community aware that we are in imminent danger of losing a valuable educational resource.

According to an article in the Stoneham Independent, the Walter D. Stone Zoo will close its doors on April 1, 1990. This is due to the state hiring freeze. In this new decade, environmental issues of all kinds are important and so are the endangered species and the sad situation this zoo has been placed in. I think it would be tragic to lose this zoo.

We need to have this hiring freeze lifted as soon as possible and next, we need to have the legislature pass Senate Bill 533. The passing of this bill would make the Walter D. Stone Zoo and the Franklin Park Zoo a public, non-profit organization, removing the zoos from being a tax burden on the state. I should think the state would have passed this bill but so far it hasn't.

I would appreciate any attention you can give to this very important matter. It seems to me that the zoos want to be a part of the solution of the state's financial problems by presenting Bill 533. I only hope the state will listen and pass it, but more urgently, the state needs to lift the hiring freeze and save the Walter D. Stone Zoo.

Thank you for your time.

Auction donors are thanked

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to thank the following businesses who have generously agreed to sell tickets for the Second Annual Auction for the benefit of the Woburn Council of Social Concern, which is being held on Saturday, April 7 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Veteran's Memorial Senior Center in Woburn. Tickets are available at Cambridgeport Savings Bank, Henderson Stationers, and Uptown Video.

A number of Winchester businesses and residents have already contributed items or services to this multi-service non-profit agency which serves over 19 communities, including Winchester. We are hoping to out-do the successful auction which we held last April in celebration of the Council's 20th year of serving people.

If anyone has an item or service to donate to the auction, wants tickets, or has a question about the services we provide, please contact Winchester residents: Jim Jones — President; Jeanette Baird, Janet Jones — Board of Director members; Pat Wells, Youth Services Advisory Council member, or me.

Efforts by K of C are appreciated

TO THE EDITOR:

We would just like to take a moment to thank the Knights of Columbus for doing a tremendous job the night of our Girl's High School Basketball banquet held March 22. This is the third year in a row that we have had the banquet at the K of C and have had nothing but a successful time.

The K of C and its caterer, Paul Brennan, had gone out of their way to help accommodate all the last minute changes that occured the evening before the banquet.

Once again we would just like to thank them for making the evening special for all of those involved. Your efforts should not go unrecognized.

Town Day plans begin

TO THE EDITOR:

To many of us, Town Day has become a tradition that ranks with opening presents at Christmas time or attending the Thanksgiving day football game. It offers us the opportunity to spend a full day with family and friends, renewing old acquaintances and enjoying the excitement of the day.

What many people do not realize is that this annual event is organized and planned by a small handful of volunteers who take pride in Winchester and work hard to preserve its traditions. Because of their small number, the committee members spend countless hours, planning and organizing all the activities that make our Town Day special. This year the committee is chaired by David Pywell, who did such a wonderful job last year.

Any of your readers who are interested in participating in the planning, organizing and spirit of this event can do so by calling the office of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce (729-8870). Financial support is also needed to defray the cost of the day's activities and donations can be made to the Winchester Town Day Committee.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Elaine Vreeland for saving the Nike Site, a part of the Middlesex Fells near Dennett Road, from being turned into a huge compost pile by the MDC. Until Mal, Marjorie and Elaine informed the MDC of the unusual historical and natural features of the Nike Site, the MDC had plans to cut trees, to grade the site, and to enlarge gates for trucks turning off the busy and dangerous South Border Road to dump leaves.

The Nike Site has long been a favorite spot for hiking, birding and school walks both because of the foundations of the military site and because of the variety of plants, birds and wildlife found in the fields of the Nike Site and its nearby woods and wetlands. Marjorie obtained a letter from Dr. Robbins, a curator of the national butterfly collection at the Smithsonian, who has studied butterflies at the Nike Site. He thinks that the Nike Site has the richest butterfly diversity of any place within Route 128. The MDC archeological survey of the site found that the military ruins predate the Nike and are remains of a 90mm anti-aircraft battery, part of the post World War II coastal defense system around Boston. Since it is one of the few remaining batteries, the MDC expert concluded that the Nike Site should be preserved as part of the MDC park system's unusual collection of historic military sites dating from the Revolutionary War.

Winchester Trails will be leading a family walk on Sunday, April 29 at the Nike Site so that Winchester residents can become more familiar with this beautiful and fascinating spot. (Watch the paper for details.) I hope that anyone who has information on the history, plants or wildlife of the Nike Site will share his knowledge. It is alert residents (such as Marjorie, Mal and Elaine), who are aware of local history and wildlife studies, that help preserve environmental treasures like the Nike Site for all of us.

North End Task Force seeks help

TO THE EDITOR:

After reading the article in the March 18 Globe about the huge turnout — 400 people — to protest the sludge landfill in Walpole, I feel puzzled and disheartened that Winchester's apathetic reaction to its own sludge landfill on Rock Avenue is the antithesis of the outpour in Walpole.

Why has the North End Task Force plus a dozen or so outside supporters — God love you, you know who you are — been unable to muster support to have sludge and chemically contaminated fill removed from this site?

Let us imagine that a new site similar to the Rock Avenue site were proposed by the state to be located in Winchester. Would we protest? You bet. But there is already one in town. Will we protest? No, too busy — not your neighborhood — heads in the sand — doesn't affect us.

Soon ground will be broken to build 28 townhouses on the hill which overlooks and directly borders this dump. Not only will the families who buy here have full view of the dump site (which resembles an innocent meadow whose flowering weeds — which I call 'Devil's Blooms', attempt to provide a false sense of safety about the soil that lurks below), but they will also breath the fumes thrown off by the chemicals. I feel very squeamish that 70 to 80 potential new community members, including children, in addition to the neighborhood which already exists, will be exposed to the medical and psychological uncertainties of living next to this dump.

Perhaps the apathy from our town folk is really the fault of the North End Task Force. In spite of the frequent articles in the media and the numerous Board of Health meetings which might have generated support, we never did the obvious: We never asked you directly, preferring to work instead through the town and a democratic process which has failed to solve the problem because the town created the problem by allowing the sludge to be illegally dumped.

So I ask you to look beyond your own neighborhood for a moment. Will you help us get rid of the dump site? Like the people of Walpole, we don't want sludge either, in your neighborhood or ours.

Knight answers Borggaard letter

TO THE EDITOR:

I regret having caused Mr. Borggaard chagrin by "brushing off" his hypothesis about the Sharon house's stone wall and its relation to the Symmes grant. Having believed his main interest to be the house and having had limited space, I did dismiss his hypothesis without giving supporting evidence, but at this time I will attempt to repair the deficiencies of my previous answer.

In Mr. Borggaard's opinion the stone wall behind the Sharon house marks the northern boundary of the Zachariah Symmes land grant. Since the Sharon house is located on the northwest corner of what used to be Tavern property, if the Tavern lot had been part of the Symmes land grant, then this wall could indeed be lying along part of the land grant boundary.

However, not a single document available through the town archives relative to Symmes land and Tavern land supports this idea. On the contrary, the documents present another picture.

The first identifiable owners of the Tavern land, following researches of N.A. Richardson into the deeds of the property, are members of the Converse family. According to this research, William Richardson, builder of what became the Tavern, purchased land in 1724 from Robert Converse. Converse had this land by will from his grandfather James (died 1715), son of Edward Converse who built the first house here.

Mr. Borggaard states accurately that in 1638 Edward Converse's land, as recorded in the 1638 Charlestown Book of Possessions, was located west of the Aberjona. However, the Converse family soon acquired more land, including land east of the river.

In 1638 this land east of the river was the southern section of a district called Rockfield. Part of this area remained "common" land. Other parts were alloted to several men of Charlestown; however, not all of these lots are described in the book and it has not been possible to identify exactly to whom the land that became Tavern property was assigned, if indeed it was assigned to anybody. (Because of missing information these lots are not sketched on the 1638 map, but rather some of the names of grantees were written down in the Rockfield area in possible relative positions.)

Whoever may have been given this land in Rockfield did not settle on it. At the beginning of the next decade, when Woburn was incorporated, the land east of Converse's and north of Symmes was called "common" land. This land was divided in 1668, and James Converse came into possession of land there. (This last information, summarized from Town of Woburn records, like a summary of the Tavern deeds, is available in Richardson's "Black Horse Tavern: Two Centuries of its History," located at the archives).

When the dividing line between Charlestown and Woburn was being established in 1650, the division was agreed to run "bettweene Mr. Sim's ffarme & Edward Convers's ffarme." (Transcript of records of Town of Woburn, 29 July 1650) From 1650 on, documents quite clearly place the Symmes farm in Charlestown and the Converse and Tavern land in Woburn. Time and again my research discloses that the northeast property line of the Symmes property and the southern line of the Tavern was the Charlestown/Woburn line. After the part of Charlestown that included the Symmes farm was annexed to Medford in 1753, the property division lay along the Medford/Woburn line.

Before 1650 could the Symmes land grant have included what became Tavern property? Unfortunately some pages containing the names of landholders in the 1638 Book of Possessions are lost, and the description of the Symmes grant is one of those now missing. He is listed as Converse's neighbor to the southwest, and it is generally agreed that Zachariah Symmes was granted 300 acres in Waterfield. His name does not appear as a grantee of land in Rockfield.

Zachariah Symmes bequeathed "my farm neere Woburne" to his son William. The inventory of the estate lists the farm but not the acreage or boundaries. No deeds have yet surfaced to show or even suggest that Zachariah sold any part of the land grant before leaving it to his son. Indeed, after William died intestate, the farm was surveyed (in 1705) and found to total 300 acres. Evidently the farm Zachariah left William was the original land grant. (Probate records and deeds were researched by John Adams Vinton and summarized or quoted in The Symmes Memorial.)

Where did the northeast boundary of the Symmes farm actually lie? Zachariah's descendent, Luther R. Symmes, after consulting probate records, described it as starting on Church Street where the high school (later Prince School) then stood and running "northeasterly, passing near where Edward Converse lived in 1640 ... and thence crossing the Abajona near the house of Henry W. Symmes [on the north side of Mystic Ave.], and crossing Main Street about three hundred feet south of the old Black Horse Tavern, and along the northern side of Prospect Street, to near the house of M.A. Herrick [about the south corner of Prospect & Highland.]" (The Winchester Record, vol. I, July 1885)

This description is, in fact, supported by one of the sources Mr. Borggaard cites, namely the 1854 map of Winchester. Onto this map are drawn the divisions of Winchester's six school districts, including the dividing line between the Mystic and Central districts. The Mystic school district included territory annexed from Medford when Winchester was incorporated in 1850, which territory included and was bounded on the northeast by the Symmes farm. This line falls clearly (since houses are marked and named by owners on the map) south of the Tavern land on the map. (There exists also an alternate version of this map that does not mark houses, requiring that the exact location of the divisions be guessed at.)

The northern boundary of the Tavern lot was not far to the north of the Mystic Division, but to the north it was.

The other map Mr. Borggaard cites does represent the boundaries of the Symmes land grant. However, it is not good evidence for pinpointing the exact boundaries of the Symmes lot for three reasons. First, while it purports to show the general location and boundaries of the 1638 land grants, it does not show their precise locations in modern terms. Second, the map is not strictly accurate in all details. Third, this map, though generally a good and useful map, is not a 17th-century map and cannot be treated as a primary source. Though titled "Winchester 1638," the cartography dates only to about 1885.

George Cooke constructed this map to accompany his article on Waterfield printed in The Winchester Record in January 1886. His main source was the 1638 Book of Possessions; however, he himself only claimed that it showed "relative positions and boundaries," and he did not have the missing pages of the book (including the Symmes grant) to consult. He did not explain how he came to draw the Symmes lot as he did, but it appears that he did a fairly good job. However, if the farm boundaries remained basically unchanged through the 17th century, as argued above, it can be proven that Cooke's southwest boundary of the Symmes lot is incorrectly drawn and the northeast boundary is not quite right.

The proof lies primarily in a 1705 plot of the Symmes farm made as part of the settlement of the estate. This shows that Cooke drew the northeast boundary, on the east side of the river, slightly far north and with a bend not shown in 1705. However, the general position of this line on both maps is relatively the same. But neither map plots the boundaries of the farm according to modern terms, and one must try to use a very few features — which have changed over the centuries — as points of comparison to later maps.

However, comparing the 1705 farm plot to early maps of Winchester, I find no evidence that the Symmes farm extended any further to the northeast than as described by Luther Symmes. (Incidentally, there are no stone walls marked on the farm plot.)

In short, there is not a single shred of documentary evidence to support the hypothesis that the Sharon stone wall ever marked Symmes property. All known surviving documents support the idea that the property upon which the stone wall now sits was in 1638 a part of Rockfield either unassigned or allotted to a person or persons not specifically identifiable and in the 1640s was part of common land which came into the possession of the Converse family from whom it went to Richardson and many subsequent owners.

Now, for the wall. That stone walls surround about three-quarters of the # Planning Board has final hearing on zoning changes

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Planners have headed into the final stretch of their campaign to rezone a section of north Main Street — an effort they say will help to control commercial growth and level off the influx of traffic and parking problems that have plagued the area for decades.

At a public hearing held March 26, planners zeroed in on two specific areas: the parcel at 1034 Main Street bounded by Sheridan Circle and Border Street in Woburn and two parcels bounded by Swanton, White and Hill streets.

The majority of the first parcel is currently zoned general business district (GBD), but has been used in a residential (RG) capacity since the zoning was first set in place. The property is currently abandoned and the house has not been lived in since about 1985. Thus if the property were developed, it would now have to comply with its original GBD status since more than two years have passed since its non-conforming use was abandoned, said Planning Board Chairman Daniel Chane.

A development plan, which would require GBD zoning, previously presented to the Zoning Board of Appeals by the owners was denied however, and that decision is being appealed by the owners.

A small slice of the property is in a residential district due to the former zoning and planners have proposed moving the current zoning line to conform with the property line of the parcel, keeping the entire property conforming as residential.

The change, said member Margaret Roll, "will prevent (the parcel) from taking on business use (in the future) to the detriment of the area."

Neighbor Julia Bonasera, who lives next to the parcel, said she was in favor of the rezoning.

Attorney Lawrence Murray, who represents the owners of 1034 Main Street, noted that he understood the desire of the neighbors to rezone the property residential, but questioned the legality of an action he called a "clear case of spot zoning."

Chane said the board did not feel the action could be construed as "spot zoning" particularly in light of the fact that the property has always been used as residential. Chane added however, the board would ask Town Counsel Wade Welch for his written opinion on the matter.

Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia later explained that spot zoning is when a specific spot is zoned differently for the personal benefit of the owner.

The second set of parcels includes two properties currently zoned light industry (IL), which planners want to change to GBD and RG. The first parcel, owned by Mario Covino, is located on Swanton Street, the second is Craftsman Construction on White Street.

"It doesn't seem to make sense to have a small light industry parcel in a general business and residential district," said Chane.

The two businesses that currently occupied the parcels would be allowed to retain their current IL status with the rezoning and maintain their businesses in their present form.

When the business owners decide to sell, the next owner can retain the light industry status, but must develop a business of equal or lesser zoning requirements.

In the meantime, if Covino for example, retains at least one of his light industry tenants, the zoning will remain intact. Even without a light industry tenant, the owner is given a two-year grace period before the use is lost, said Chane.

Neighbor Jeanne Amico voice her opposition to the rezoning and defended the two businesses calling them "good neighbors" and the rezoning "unfair."

Said Chane, "We don't have a problem with what is there, but what could be there."

At several public hearings during the last year, the Planning Board has outlined its proposal to rezone sections of Main Street in order to alleviate non-conforming uses, while regulating the size of the business district and protecting the residential properties with buffering.

According to Chane, the original zoning instituted in 1924 is known as "strip zoning." Currently, on Main Street a 150-foot zoning line dissects parcels on angles and renders many non-conforming to the current general business use.

After incorporating input received from actual and visual abutters, the planners will present a finished package of the 18 articles at Spring Town Meeting, a motion that requires $\frac{2}{3}$a vote to pass.

Lighting amendment

Planning Board members also presented a zoning bylaw amendment that would restrict "unreasonable lighting" in Winchester. The amendment would also open the bylaw to include GBD and IL districts in addition to residential districts, which are already restricted in the bylaw.

The change would, "give residents added strength when they go to the Building Commissioner (to lodge lighting complaints)," said Chane.

Member Maryanne McCall-Taylor noted that the amendment had been prepared for Fall Town Meeting, 1989 and the required public hearing was held. But since the Town Meeting was cancelled and time limit on the public hearing expired, planners were required to hold another such session.

Cumberland Farms gets closer look from Board of Selectmen

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Selectmen will keep a closer eye on happenings at the Cumberland Farms store on Washington Street, and will consider taking action on the store's license if the situation does not improve.

Complaints from neighbors relating to early morning deliveries, an overflowing dumpster, litter conditions and early morning dumpster collections led selectmen to request a representative of the store to appear before their board. Robert Jenness, district manager, told selectmen at the board's Monday night meeting he was aware of the problems at the site.

"There is no question that at this particular location, they've had a lot of problems," said Jenness. "I am not going to deny it."

However, Jenness said he is working to improve the conditions at the store as well as control the timing of deliveries to the site.

As for delivery problems, Jenness said his sales manager has addressed the problem with the milk distributor. That company has been told deliveries are not to be made after 9 p.m. or before 7:30 a.m.

Jenness noted that the store has been remodeled to improve the appearance. He also said he would like to see two spotlights installed in front of the store, an area which he feels is currently poorly lit. In addition, a trash container has been placed outside the store.

In a report to Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer, Health Director Joseph Tabbi said an inspection was conducted on Jan. 25 of this year. "Based on the inspection report ... a marked improvement in the overall condition of the store was noted. The present Manager is doing a good job trying to keep the store clean," said Tabbi in his memo.

Jenness said he would like to work with Tabbi to rectify problems at the site.

Sharon land suggests to me that walls were built there after the Sharon lot was sold off from the Tavern property. Perhaps the section along the north line included a remnant of an earlier wall, but as yet I know of no evidence to support this. As to who built any of these walls, when, and why I cannot say (except to repeat that there is no evidence of direct connection with the Symmes land grant). These walls have no date. I have seen no documents that discuss the stone walls.

That the north Tavern (and Sharon) property line lies obliquely to Main Street may have a remote reference to the Symmes boundary. If the Symmes line ran exactly as Prospect Street now does, it was parallel to the northern Tavern line and could have been a reference against which Tavern lines were drawn. Then the north Tavern line (perhaps walled) may have become a reference for other lines that lie obliquely to Main Street. But again neither this line nor any wall ever upon it marked Symmes land. And the answer as to why the Symmes line was laid as it was may perhaps only be answered by natural features no longer extant.

Leaving the subject of the wall and returning to the Sharon house itself, other interest has been directed to it and another question arisen. Substantial recent renovations have caused concern — even anguish — among those who realize that the interior as well as exterior of the house had great historic interest and cause to be preserved. A remnant of our past has been destroyed forever. From this the question has been posed whether the town has any ordinances to protect historic properties.

The town does not have special ordinances governing historic properties. Neither does listing in the National or State Register of Historic Places affect what owners may do with their property. The Historical Society and the Historical Commission advocate the preservation of historic property but can only advise, try to educate, and hope that owners of historic structures will respect their historicity.

State League supports local group's efforts

TO THE EDITOR:

The League of Women voters enjoys a singular reputation for integrity, ranked second in a national poll of organizations which enjoy the public's trust. The League of Women Voters has a proud 70 year history and fine traditions to uphold. We have, since our inception, been unique as a nonpartisan, political organization.

In our nonpartisan status, we never support or oppose candidates or political parties. As a political organization, the League lobbies and acts on legislation, ballot questions and other public policy issues. Our political action is based on member agreement on the issues involved, keeping us truly grassroots in nature.

Each local League works tirelessly in their community to inform voters about candidates, to educate citizens about current issues and to take action to achieve goals. We are entirely directed and led by volunteers, who give their time, energy and talents to improve their community, state and nation.

Throughout our history, we have faced stiff opposition and been in some tough fights when we take a public stand. In Massachusetts we have weathered storms over allowing women to serve as jurors, cutting the size of the House, trying to implement a graduated income tax, and current efforts to raise state revenue to fund state services adequately.

We don't limit ourselves to issues that are easy or popular. The Winchester League has taken a lot of heat for its position on the Proposition 2½ override, and they are doing everything necessary to be in compliance with campaign laws that apply to them. At the state level we are proud of their resolve and fortitude to take action. We hope that they will be an example to all citizens to get involved in community issues.

Local merchants host fashion show

In an effort to show residents what is available in Winchester stores, three local merchants sponsor a fashion show April 5 from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Ristorante Lucia.

According to Fashion Show Coordinator Trina Eliassen, "Spring into Fashion" will include clothing from T. Michaels, Topsy Turvey and Teresa's.

Eliasson, who is currently director of the Barbizon Modeling School, has her own modeling service, called Swept Away Fashion Production. Eliasson said she first worked with Teresa Pisacreta, owner of Teresa's, four years ago during a cancer benefit. As a result of her work there, Eliasson was called upon to organize a smaller-scale fashion show.

"It's not only going to be a fashion show," said Eliasson. Following the modeling, Eliasson said models and shop owners will informally meet with visitors as fashion consultants.

"The main reason (for the fashion show) is to let people within the community know what's available, with warm and attentive service," she said. "(The local merchants) really take care of their people."

Eliasson encourages advance purchase of tickets, which are available at Ristorante Lucia. Ticket at $25 include lunch and the fashion show.

Trina Eliasson, right, along with one of her models will highlight local fashions in the April 5 fashion show at Ristorante Lucia.

HEALTH

CPR courses at Hospital

Community members interested in learning CPR are invited to attend one of several classes offered by Winchester Hospital's Education Department.

A full CPR course will be offered April 10 and 12 from 6 to 10 p.m. at Billerica Regional Medical Center and April 17 and 18 from 6 to 10 p.m. at Winchester Hospital. The fee is $40.

Upon successful completion of the program, participants will receive a one-year certificate from the American Heart Association.

Included in the course will be a film, slide presentation, demonstrations of cardiopulmonary resuscitation and foreign body airway obstruction management, and mannequin pratice.

For more information and registration call 756-2227.

Visiting nurses host program

April 5 is the date of the first in a series of four Spring Community education programs — "Questions and Answers with an Attorney and Financial Planner" which is being offered to the public by Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East.

Rick Carter, Esq. and Donna Doucette, CFP, will give a presentation on the most commonly asked questions. Audience members will have their chance to ask individual questions.

The program will be held at the Visiting Nurse agency headquarters at 12 Beacon St., Stoneham, on Thursday, April 5 from 10 to 11 a.m. There is no charge for the program.

It is requested that participants call Jane Allen, Assistant Director at 438-3770 to reserve a space in the popular series.

Allen has announced that the three other program topics are: Hospice, Care of the Elderly, and Pediatrics.

Visiting nurses host phone-a-thon

McCord Winn-Textron to serve as Corporate Sponsor for Visiting Nurse and Community Health's Annual Free Care Fund Phone-A-Thon, which begins Monday March 26 to 29.

Visiting Nurse and Community Health's Free Care Fund Phone-a-Thon gets underway on March 26 and McCord Winn-Textron Corporation will be matching each dollar raised by the residents of Winchester up to $1,000.

The Free Care Fund serves needy residents who are in need of vital medical and home health services but cannot afford to cover the entire cost of their care because of limited finances. In 1989, we served over 200 needy residents in need of medical services.

The Free Care Fund Phone-a-thon tries to raise $10,000 with the financial support of residents, small businesses and corporate sponsors. The VNCH Phone-A-Thon team will be calling residents in the four primary town area: Arlington, Lexington, Winchester and Burlington. Volunteers are representatives of numerous civic and church groups such as the Church Women United of Winchester, Retired Men's Club, Zonta Club, as well as many residents.

Your pledges will help to keep this community nursing program alive in our communities. Won't you please call 643-6090 with your pledge.

CLUBS

Smith Book Fare set for April 30

On Monday, April 30, the Winchester Smith College Club will hold its 14th annual Book Fare in Hadley Hall, Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church Street at 9:30 a.m.

Sale of used books will take place for ticket holders from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. At 11 o'clock there will be a program featuring Robert D. Hale, well-known book critic, reviewing current fiction, non-fiction and children's books. Luncheon prepared entirely by club members will be served at 12:30. At 1:30 the sale of used books will be open to the public.

Donations of second-hand books, both hard cover and paperback, are gratefully received. For information on where to deliver the books or to arrange for pick-up, please call 729-5444 or 729-0295. Pricing and sorting of second-hand books will be done during April. Contemporary books in good condition are welcome: fiction, non-fiction, how-to books (especially cooking and gardening), children's, mysteries, science fiction, poetry and drama. The Book Fare will not accept textbooks, foreign language or Reader's Digest books.

The Book Fare project is held each year by the Winchester Smith College Club and its members from eight surrounding communities to provide scholarship assistance to a needy local student.

Tickets will be on sale for $10 at "Book Ends" on Main Street or from any Smith College Club member. Information may be obtained by calling 729-5444, 729-0295 or 729-3556.

Fashion show plans underway

The next meeting of the Winchester Women's Club Juniors will be the annual international dinner to be held on Monday, April 2 at the home of Florine Cucinatti, Winchester at 7 p.m.

Plans have now been finalized for the club's annual major fundraiser — the Winchester Women's Club annual luncheon and spring fasion show which will be held on Friday, May 11, 1990 at the Burlington Marriott Hotel. Reception and boutiques at 11 a.m., luncheon at 12 noon — followed by a collection of fashions by selected shops of Newbury Street.

For ticket information contact Mina Gizza at 729-0222.

Funds raised by the annual spring fashion show have supported local athletic programs, the drug and alcohol program at Winchester High School, Winchester Hospital's new childbirth center and meals on wheels programs, as well as Winchester High School scholarship foundation and Mystic Valley eampership coalition and many other deserving groups.

The Winchester Women's Club Juniors was chartered in 1974 by a small group of women dedicated to community service.

RELIGION

St. Mary's group hosts bake sale

Come to the Spring bake sale. Saint Mary's Blessed Virgin Sodality sponsors a bake sale after Masses the weekend of March 31 and April 1.

A bountiful Easter basket will be raffled at the end of the sale. Many delicious home-baked foods will be available.

Lenten quiet day is set

A Lenten Quiet Day will be held at the Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church Street, Winchester on Wednesday, April 4 to provide an opportunity for contemplation and worship in a peaceful atmosphere. The leader of the Quiet Day will be a particularly outstanding member of the Boston religious community, Sister Mary Hennessey, a graduate of Radcliffe and Loyola University (Chicago), where she received a graduate degree in Pastoral Counseling. Her special interests have been ecumenical and interreligious cooperation and last year she resigned from the faculty of Harvard Divinity School to become a member of the Jesuit Urban Center team in Boston's South End. Among other organizations, she is active with the City Mission Society, the center for Ministry of the Laity, and a Boston shelter for women, "Day is Done."

The Quiet Day will take place from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on April 4, and everyone is invited to attend, bringing a "brown bag" lunch - coffee will be served. Any questions can be answered by Chairman Mrs. Benjamin Marshall at 729-5444.

Saint Mary's Sodality meets

Saint Mary's Blessed Virgin Sodality will hold their next meeting on Tuesday, April 3 at 7:30 p.m. in the school hall. Rev. Paul G. Kelley will celebrate Mass, followed by our guest speaker, Rev. Daniel D. Magni of St. John the Evangelist in Beverly.

Many will remember Father Magni when he was a former associate at St. Mary's. Everyone is welcome.

Sodality holds evening of prayer

The April meeting of the Immaculate Conception Ladies Sodality (Winchester/Woburn) will be held Tuesday, April 10.

The program will begin in Church at 7:30 p.m. with an "Hour of Prayer and Reflection." Guest speaker will be Sister Margaret Mary.

Mass will be celebrated at 8:30 p.m. and for those who wish to socialize for a while there will be a Coffee Hour downstairs in the Church Hall and to converse with Sister Margaret Mary and Sodalist friends. Do bring your friends. Chairperson is Sister Jeanne Leahy.

Peabody Players will perform in Winchester

On Saturday, April 7 the Peabody based Fellowship Players will be performing the Passion Play at 7:30 p.m. at the First Baptist Church in Winchester (Corner of Mt. Vernon and Washington Streets).

This talented ecumenical group of actors and singers have been dramatizing the Easter events annually for 10 years in the Peabody area to capacity crowds with standing room only. It is truly a powerful, memorable, spiritual experience.

The Passion Play entitled "For God so Loved the World" is directed by the talented William Enslow III whose enthusiasm carries the day as his cast and crew of nearly 75 people joyously follow his direction with precision and personal involvement.

The group comes to Winchester First Baptist at the invitation of Pastor William Huegel, whose former church was in Peabody. There is no charge for performances. The cast depends on private donations by Friends of the Fellowship Players.

The public is cordially invited. Don't miss it.

Who's that, mommy?

Winchester tyke Jason DeCampo reaches out and touches someone — although he's not sure who, as he and mom Liz DeCampo see some familiar faces in a mirrored shop in Winchester's downtown.

High school humanities students experience Italy

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Famous works by Italian artists came to life for 34 high school students and their six chaperones when the group made its way to Italy during February vacation.

Local travellers gathered last week to reminisce about their 10-day trip, and to share stories and slides.

Though the group's trip started off on the wrong foot when a connection from New York to Milan was missed, all agreed the wait was worth every minute and every memory.

The trip began in Venice, with gondola rides along the Grand Canal and a tour of Saint Mark's Square. The time in Venice was not limited to the famous sites, but offered students a glimpse of daily life, and of the annual Carnivale, a pre-Lenten festivity.

"Carnivale" takes place during the week before Lent, and many people dress up in colorful costumes and masks. "It was almost like they were walking dead," said chaperone Carlyjane Watson. "They just floated through the Plaza."

"They were very surrealistic," agreed chaperone and art director David Ardito.

Students made their way to Basilica Saint Marco, built in the 11th century, known as the golden church due to its elaborate decoration, and to Doge's Palace. Also in Venice was the jail where Casanova — the Italian adventurer and author — was incarcerated, as well as the homes of Marco Polo, Mozart and Napoleon.

Ardito noted that the group was lucky to have pleasant weather throughout the trip, since Italy can often be cold and gloomy in February. "There was not one day without sunshine," he said.

"From an artist's point of view, from everyone's point of view, the lights and darks, textures and colors were mind-boggling," said Ardito of the Italy trip.

Along with Giovanni, the busdriver, the group made its way through the Italian countryside to Ravenna, a town famous for its mosaics. While there, the group visited a great medieval church, Saint Vitale, which Ardito said contains "some of the best examples" of 11th and 12th century mosaics.

The next stop was Florence, a city known for its art and culture.

Students viewed the Duomo (Cathedral), with its magnificent dome completed by Brunelleschi in 1434, as well as the Ancient Roman Wall. A trip to the Uffizi Gallery allowed students to see works by such artists as Botticelli, Titan and Rembrandt.

"One of the feelings you got as you walked through these cities was that time was of no consequence. It was not how long it took (an architect to complete the work), but to do it to the best of your ability," said Ardito.

No trip to Florence would be complete without a stop at the Accademia Gallery, which houses the original "David" by Michaelangelo. Also in the Accademia, students had a chance to see some of Michaelangelo's unfinished works. According to Watson, the sculpter continued to carve until his death.

En route to Rome, the group stopped at Assisi, the birthplace of St. Francis, the patron saint of birds and animals.

In Rome, students toured the Colosseum, which was at one time declared a shrine to Christian martyrs who died there, said Watson. The declaration saved the structure from total demolition, she added.

Students visited the Vatican, St. Peter's, the Spanish Steps and Piazza Navona.

Those students who made the trip were: Beth Crawford, Jennifer Riccio, Carolyn Augart, Kara Krajewski, Pitra Khaliqi, Heather Mills, Kara McGillicuddy, Katherine Herzog, Elizabeth Dahm, Megan Herlihy, Elizabeth Cavitch, Danielle Nacamuli, Beth Rinaldi, Suzanna Pavelle, Suzanne Foley, Laura Jacobs, Iris Fischer, Rachel Bonnell.

Also: Wayne Surbier, Kurt Rosenburger, Kevin Riley, Brian Vernaglia, Marc Nash, Joseph Armstrong, Jason Law, Michael Queenan, Chris Adanalian, Greg McCandless, Kelly Driscoll, Megan Mullin, Andrea Fowler, Karen Jochimsen, Sarah Power and Shalagh Murdock.

Chaperones included: Carlyjane Watson, Larry Rinaldi, David and Lois Ardito, Tom Hughes and Laurie Schmidt.

A group of 34 high school Humanities students and six chaperones travelled to Italy during February vacation.

Fundraising for CASLS

The Winchester Friends of Legal Services, a new group of 42 community-minded local attorneys, has begun a fundraising campaign for Cambridge and Somerville Legal Services (CASLS). Serving as the area's poverty law office, CASLS provides free counsel and representation to poor, elderly, and disabled community residents of Cambridge, Somerville, Arlington, Woburn and Winchester.

Since its inception in 1966 under the federal government's "War on Poverty," CASLS has helped tens of thousands of low-income clients. CASLS's legal assistance priorities include: housing and homelessness prevention, family law/domestic violence, public benefits, elderly law, immigration and political asylum and mental health and disability rights. In 1989 CASLS served more than 2200 area residents including 40 Winchester elders.

Faced with diminished cuts in government funding, Cambridge and Somerville Legal Services has been gaining support from local lawyers who are committed to the belief that all people have a right to effective legal counsel even though they cannot afford an attorney. As part of its fundraising campaign, Winchester Friends of Legal Services will be asking the more than 300 attorneys who live or practice in town to contribute to CASLS.

The new group includes Winchester residents attorneys Kenneth J. Vacovec, Deborah J. Hall, Georgeann F. Abbanat and former state Senator Sam Rolondi. Mr. Vacovec, a tax lawyer and partner in Vacovec, Rothenberg, Mayotte, & Singer, became involved with CASLS after hearing a staff presentation at the Winchester Interfaith Council last January. Ms. Hall, a probate attorney with the Boston firm of Hemenway and Barnes, worked for CASLS as a law student intern in the early 1980's.

Thayers donate books to library

As part of a state-wide program to familiarize the general public with the procedures and benefits of chiropractic treatments, Drs. Craig and Andrea Thayer of Winchester have contributed several volumes on chiropractic history and methods to the Winchester High School Library.

Their gift is part of a program of public information on the profession of chiropractic sponsored by the Massachusetts Chiropractic Society and the Chiropractic foundation of Massachusetts.

The Thayers are particularly interested in educating the student population of Winchester. Their objective is to provide an explanation of the field of chiropractic and its career opportunities to aid in counseling high school students who are considering a health care profession as a career.

The donated books include the New Zealand Report, Chiropractic Health Care Careers, Chiropractic Speaks out, and Modern Developments in the Principles and Practices of Chiropractic. They are available at the Winchester High School Library under the card catalog listing of Chiropractic.

Doctors of chiropractic focus on spinal adjustment/manipulation to help heal the body without the use of drugs or surgery. Patients of chiropractic commonly have problems such as headaches, neck pain, muscle spasms and low back pain. A case history, physical examination, x-rays and other lab tests help the chiropractor make the assessment of the patient's needs. In addition to spinal adjustments, adjunctive therapy, exercise, and dietary advice may be part of a chiropractor's treatment.

Trick Shot King tees off Friday

Local golf fans are in for a big treat when King of Trick Shots, Paul Hahn, Jr., makes his appearance at Boston's first annual Golfers' Expo '90, which is scheduled for Boston's Bayside Exposition Center March 30-31 and April 1.

Hahn will perform his bag of tricks on Friday, Mar. 30 and will be at his booth on Saturday, Mar. 31.

This professional golfer has been touring the world with his amazing and entertaining exhibition of trick golf shots and educational golf clinic.

He uses tees up to three feet in height and stands on a sports stick to hit the tallest. He goes through a line of four tees, graduated in height from six to eight to 10 to 12 inches, all the time with patter coming in the same rapid fire as he swings. On Saturday, March 31, Bob Toski, recognized nationally as golf's greatest teacher, will conduct clinics and share many of his secrets and tips on how to play golf.

This show will feature the newest golf equipment, free golf instruction, putting and driving contests and $100,000 in prizes and giveaways, including a golf trip for two.

Bayside Exposition Center is located just off Exit 15 off the Southeast Expressway near the MBTA's Red Line JFK/UMASS stop, where north and south bound passengers on the Braintree and Ashmont lines can disembark. Show hours are 4-10 p.m. Friday, Mar. 30; 10 a.m.-10 p.m., Saturday, Mar. 31; 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Sunday, Apr. 1. General admission is $6 for adults; $2 for children under 12.

YMCA encouraging public to sign up for swiming classes

Each summer we read far too many tragic stories of children drowning in lakes, ponds and even backyard pools. Children are naturally curious and water attracts them like a magnet. They are not natural swimmers and must be taught.

For over 100 years, the YMCAs in this country and abroad have been in the forefront of swimming and aquatic safety. Learning to swim at the earliest possible age is still the best means of insuring that your children will be safe in and around water.

When to start swimming lessons is less definite. For certain, all children about the age of 6 should receive some formal instruction in swimming. In the past 10 years, however, more and more parents are starting their children in lessons by three years of age. Then there are the water baby programs which will enable children to attain a certain level of swimming competency by the age of 3 or even younger.

The North Suburban YMCA not only has aquatic programs for all ages from four months to seniors, but also teaches personal safety and rescue skills for all its students. On any given day at the "Y" pool you may see a group of 3- and 4-year olds being instructed in the use of a lifejacket — how to wear it, jump in, roll and float and swim. This is a sometimes frightening procedure made easier by an understanding teacher. It's a drill they may very well need to know in the event of a boating mishap.

Older children are taught the back float, treading water and survival floating. They achieve longer and longer periods of floating time from 10 seconds for beginners to 30 minutes for our top levels. This gives you and your children an added degree of confidence around water.

You might ask what type of rescue skill could possibly be learned by a preschooler. Well, although the children are cautioned never to enter the water to help someone, there are simple non-swimming rescues which are understood even at these early ages. Reaching out with a stick or pole and the throwing of a buoyant support such as a kick board or life jacket are two rescue procedures a preschooler can understand. How to grab a buoyant support and swim with it if they themselves are in trouble is a reciprocal skill learned at the same time.

By the time the child has finished the top level of swimming in the "Y" program he/she has learned many of the rescue skills, which are taught in Junior Lifesaving, and is ready for Advanced Lifesaving programs. They will also be proficient in all the swimming strokes and will be capable of doing basic water rescue.

The North Suburban YMCA wants all the children in the community to learn to swim, but more than that, the "Y" wants them to be safe swimmers. The next set of lessons begins April 9. Registration for these classes begins Sunday, Apr. 1, at 2:30 p.m. Call the "Y" at 935-3270 for more information.

Shape of things to come

Record didn't tell the story for hoop squad

The Winchester High freshman girls basketball team did not win many games this past season, but they played with a great deal of enthusiasm and desire. Considering that four of the most experienced players were placed on the junior varsity, and only two of the remaining 12 girls had any experience at all, the overall play and improvement was remarkable.

In the first four games, the Sachems lost by an average of 30 points. Since this was the first game experience for 10 of the girls, it was not surprising that Winchester was overmatched.

Beginning with their fifth game, the Sachems started to understand the basics and became much more competitive. Winchester lost to Wakefield by only four points in that contest.

The scores of the games in the second half of the season against the same teams indicate the great progress the Sachem girls made. For example, in the first game against Reading Winchester lost by 20 points. In the rematch, the Sachems lost by only three points.

Even more impressive was their improvement against Burlington. Winchester lost by 38 points in the first game, but rebounded in the second game and only lost by six points.

"The success of this team was due to their hard work and dedication to self improvement," said Head Coach Rich Trotta. "As a group they were a pleasure to coach."

Last week the entire Winchester High girls basketball team held their annual banquet. The occasion provided the coaches with an opportunity to honor the players.

The individual achievement awards given to the freshman players at the banquet included: Manager Awards — Erin Walsh and Alecia Barry; Captain Awards — Tysun Smith, Jen Russo and Kathryn Wilson; Sharpshooter Award — Diana Grande; Sixth Player Award — Jen Deering; Best Defensive Player — Kathryn Wilson; Top Rebounder — Jen Russo; Most Improved — Diana Grande; Most Valuable Player — Jen Russo; Coaches Award — Jen Dooley.

First annual ladies' golf tournament 'heart felt'

Among the outstanding outdoor events to welcome in the late spring and early summer this year is a golf tournament, specifically organized for women, to benefit the Greater Boston Division of the American Heart Association. The first annual Ladies' Golf Tournament will take place on Monday, May 14 at North Reading's Thomson Country Club

This event is currently in the planning stages under the guidance of an active group of women comprised of Barbarb O. Russell of Reading; Faye Deeb of Peabody; Janet DiModica and Coreen Peters of Melrose; Ann Merry of Wakefield; Barbara Sarno, a Topsfield resident; and Nancy Serafini of Wellesley.

In what promises to be a fun event with many prizes to be awarded, the committee is especially seeking the involvement of local Northshore and Greater Boston businesses and corporations as sponsors and foursomes to play golf in May.

The First Annual Ladies' Golf Tournament will be an 18-hole event, best ball of foursome.

According to committee member Barbara Russell, "Local women's golf club members are urged to organize teams and to join in one of 1990's early summer open air events."

Money raised through the per person entry fee of $80 will go to the American Heart Association's Greater Boston Division to support its programs of research, public and professional education and community service.

Companies, businesses, individuals and teams interested in being part of the First Annual Ladies' Golf Tournament are urged to contact Barbara O. Russell, 168 Belmont St., Reading, MA 01867, or telephone 944-0375.

Saez named to Globe Scholastic wrestling team

Winchester High senior Roberto Saez was named to the 1990 Boston Globe All Scholastic wrestling team in the 145-pound division.

En route to his championship at the Central sectionals, Saez dominated all four of his matches, pinning all his opponents in less than a minute. Roberto was 38-1 this winter and took third in the New England championships. Saez captained the Sachems to the Middlesex League title and took top honors at the Methuen Invitational and Belmont Invitational tournaments. At Belmont, Roberto was named Outstanding Wrestler. His final career mark stands at 104-13-1.

Sophomore Will Thilly made the All Scholastic second team at the 125-pound division. Prior to the New Englands, Thilly's only two losses came to Franklin's Paul Davis who was named to the first team. Likewise, Davis' only losses came at the hands of Thilly. Both are sophomores and the rivalry still has two years to go.

Brian Walsh plays pivotal ski team role

Brian R. Walsh of Winchester played a major role as the varisity cross country ski team of Belmont Hill School completed an undefeated season and then went on to win the New England Class B prep school championship.

Walsh, a senior and the son of Richard M. and Anne W. Walsh, helped the Belmont skiers attain a record of eight winning races during the regular season before traveling to Putney, Vt., where they won the Class B championship.

Great team spirit and the tutelage of Coach Fran Kirby were credited by Walsh as the leading factors in the team's success.

Correction

In last week's article regarding the Pee Wee hockey team's State Invitational Tournament championship, several players had their names misspelled.

The correctly spelled names are James Duval, Matt Breuer, Paul McGowan, Alan Riley and J.J. Wrighton.

Also, Matt Breuer appeared in the third row of the team photo but was not identified. The Star regrets these errors.

"The Student" has received several journalism awards in recent years. It garnered a first-place award with its outstanding format, content and presentation. It also captured a first-place award for an editorial from the Main College Newspaper Contest held at the University of Maine at Orono.

Small, daughter of William and Elizabeth Small of Stowell Road, Winchester, is a 1987 graduate of Winchester High School.

Strathmore awards Sardella second prize

Winchester resident Robert Sardella recently won second prize in the Strathmore annual Blank Greeting Card contest. The winners were chosen from over 3,000 entries nationwide. Judges examined each entry for its use of the paper, the quality of the artistic execution, originality and the overall impact of the card as a piece of art and a greeting card.

According to Thomas Richards, Strathmore's manager of sales and marketing, artist products division, "The quality of this year's entries surpassed even last year's, something I didn't think possible. We are finding that people of all ages are developing as artists, and the range of techniques and approaches is truly amazing. The judges had a very difficult time narrowing down the field to just a few winners, because so many entries were outstanding for their type."

Century 21 has annual meeting

Century 21 Winchester Realty sales associates Loraine Murtagh, Stephanie Litchfield, Gertrude and Marlowe Kirkendall and Mary Price recently joined some 7,000 Century 21 brokers and agents from all over the world for the annual Century 21 International Convention in Orlando entitled "Shaping the Future."

While there, they were congratulated by an assembly of Century 21 dignitaries and guests including Century 21 President and CEO Dick Loughlin, who offered the corporate address.

Highlighting the convention was a keynote address by Jack Kemp, U.S. Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, along with motivational and informational speeches by Harley E. Rouda, president-elect of the National Association of REALTORS and football legend Terry Bradshaw.

Conventioneers were updated, via skill-building sessions, on programs and systems designed to increase productivity while focusing on promoting a "consumer service culture" throughout the Century 21 system-the primary goal for the 1990s.

In addition, they were entertained by Frankie Valli and The Four Seasons. Pat Boone paid tribute, on behalf of the Easter Seal Society, to the Century 21 system as top corporate sponsor of the charity for the 11th consecutive year. As such, the organization has raised in excess of $25 million during that time.

Upon their return, they were proud to announce to the staff that in 1989, "the Century 21 System was still the top real estate brokerage organization, participating in more than $60 billion worth of transactions."

Century 21 Winchester Realty is located at 40 Church St. in Winchester.

Boutique raises funds for shelter

At their monthly meeting in December, the realtor members of Council L of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board held a Christmas boutique to raise money for project R.A.I.N. — Realtors Assisting Individuals in Need. A total of $500 was donated to Mary's House, a shelter for homeless families that serves the Council L towns of Winchester, Arlington and Belmont.

The Christmas boutique committee was headed by Maren Judd of Merrill Lynch Realty, Winchester. She was assisted by Frances Cosentino of Ann Blackham, Mary Ellen Sexeny of Century 21 Winchester Realty and Betty Vallee of Hunneman, Winchester.

Plans are already underway for the 1990 fundraising activities of Project R.A.I.N., including the Christmas boutique which will again be chaired by Judd.

prizes of $500 each. The judges gave one second place to Sardella for his incredibly detailed ink and airbrush illustration of a jukebox. Use of airbrush on Strathmore paper is relatively rare, and the judges felt that Sardella used the unusual combination to full effect.

This year's judging panel comprised a fine artist, a graphic designer, and the editor of one of the nation's leading artist magazines.

Fitzgerald attends real estate school

Courses in Banking-Brokerage and Foreclosures have recently been completed at the Spencer School of Real Estate in Newton Highlands.

Michael E. Fitzgerald of Vinson Circle, Winchester completed the Banking-Brokerage course.

The courses are conducted by Dr. Jack Porter in small tutorial seminars which he considers far more effective than large classes.

The school also offers courses in Appraisal, Property Management and many other aspects of Real Estate.

Three performed in TCNE concert

On Sunday, March 25 the Treble Chorus of New England performed the world premiere of "Beauty and the Beast" by Libby Larson, with the Indian Hill Symphony Orchestra at the Ayer High School auditorium. Paul Gay, Music Director of Indian Hill, conducted. Mime narration for piece were performed by David Zucker. TCNE members from Winchester participating in the March concert are Megan Brady, Samantha Margles and Carrie Marotta.

Founded in 1975 by Artistic Director Marie Stultz, The Treble Chorus of New England specializes in singing classical music, both sacred and secular. The Chorus draws children ages 6-17 from 24 Massachusetts and New Hampshire communities. TCNE and child soloists from the chorus have sung for such international conductors as Seiji Ozawa and Michael Tilson Thomas, and with opera companies and symphony orchestras throughout New England.

Two are on Providence dean's list

Two area residents have been named to the dean's list at Providence College for the Fall semester, 1989. Named to the honors list were: Jennifer Bush of Buckman Drive, Winchester, an undeclared major and member of the class of 1993; and Maria S. DiChiappari of Russet Lane, Winchester, a humanities major and member of the class of 1991.

To attain the dean's list, a student must maintain a 3.250 or higher cumulative average, with no grade lower than 'C'. A grade of 'B' at the college is equal to a 3.0.

Elliot awarded Tawara medal

Professor John F. Elliott of Winchester is to be awarded the Tawara Gold Medal of the Iron and Steel Institute of Japan in early April in Tokyo. This award is given to the researcher or engineer who has contributed greatly to the development of the iron and steel industry and to the development of iron and steel technology in the world. Selection for this honor takes place only every five years, and only one other American has been chosen since the award was established in 1965.

Professor Elliott is Professor of Metallurgy in the Department of Materials Science and Engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and has been the recipient of many professional awards, including the American Iron and Steel Institute Distinguished Professorship. He is a member of the National Academy of Engineering and of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. A symposium in his honor is to be held at MIT in June.

Kirkpatrick is on dean's list

Kathleen Kirkpatrick, daughter of Edward J. and Kathleen Kirkpatrick of Francis Circle, has been named to the dean's list at Simmons College in Boston for the fall semester.

A senior, Kirkpatrick is majoring in retail management.

Reinfeld makes Rochester honors

David Sargent Reinfeld, a sophomore majoring in political science at the University of Rochester, was named to the dean's list for the fall semester.

Reinfeld is a graduate of Phillips Academy, and a resident of Old Lyme Road.

Bentley dean's list announced

Four Winchester students were among those named to the dean's list at Bentley College in Waltham for outstanding academic achievement in the fall semester.

To be named to the dean's list, a student must have a semester grade point average of 3.2 or higher with no course grade falling below 2.0 during the term.

Those students from Winchester are: David C. Colozzi, a junior liberal arts major; Douglas A. Oram, a senior computer information systems major; Cynthia M. Pascuito, a sophomore marketing major; and Anthony R. Porter, a freshman computer information systems major.

Myers earns Army medal

First Lt. Stephen C. Myers has been decorated with the Army Achievement Medal at Fort Stewart, Ga.

The achievement medal is awarded to soldiers for meritorious service, acts or courage or other accomplishments.

Myers, son of Elaine J. Myers of Olde Village Drive, is a firing battery platoon leader with the 41st Field Artillery. He is a 1983 graduate of Winchester High School and a 1987 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y.

Two residents make dean's list

Winchester residents Alexios G. Carayannopoulos and Anne M. Reno were recently named to the dean's list for the 1989 fall semester at Connecticut College.

Connecticut College is a coeducational, privately supported liberal arts college in New London, Conn., with strong programs in the humanities, sciences, social sciences and in the creative and performing arts.

Fallon named employee of month

Paula Fallon was recently given the 110 Percent Club employee award by Creative Professional Services, Inc. (CPS), a direct marketing company in Woburn, Mass.

Fallon, a CPS employee for four years, is in charge of all billing and postage.

In announcing the award for "superior employee contribution to customer satisfaction," MaryAnn Encarnacao, accounting supervisor and office manager, said, "Paula has done a remarkable job since billing and postage were computerized."

Besides recognition in her personnel file and the addition of her name to the 110 Percent Club plaque, Fallon received a cash award and a parking space reserved with an "Employee of the Month" sign.

CPS provides direct marketing services ranging from strategic planning through project concept, list processing, production, mailing, and fulfillment.

Real Estate & You . . . DO YOU WANT TO BE A LANDLORD?

While it's impossible to predict what a specific house will be worth at any point in the future, the single family home has a track record of being an excellent investment. If you want to take the plunge for yourself, what should you look for?

Location is the prime factor, because a great location will make a property easier to rent or sell later on for top dollar. You will also want to consider the cash flow situation you will face. Often, it is difficult to break even or show a profit from your rental income for the first few years of owning an investment property. Remember, though, the property appreciates while you own it, so you'll want to consider the amount of equity you build each year. If you're planning to become a landlord, consult a good Realtor and a good accountant who can help make your purchase of investment real estate an informed one.

'Les Miserables' guaranteed entertainment

By MEREDITH FIFE DAY
News Correspondent

No wonder audiences return to see Les Miserables a second and third time. The grand epic musical is guaranteed entertainment, with climactic moments of thrilling exhiliration, despair, inspiration and intense feeling, in abundance. Its emotional range is all-encompassing, and the layered plot provides a fertile context for the exhibition of all that is noble and base in human nature.

Never mind that there's little room for the subtleties in between. From the beginning we are convinced that what we experience here is larger than life, and we willingly suspend any requirements for nuance. Good and evil are drawn broadly and with a breathtaking flair for showmanship.

The driven and finally haunted Javert comes closest to complex characterization as written. But as played by baritone Robert DuSold, Javert, too, is broadly drawn — mean and snarling, stomping around assertively or standing macho, balanced on the triangle of his spread legs. Only in his final scene, magnificently staged, does DuSold reveal some of the workings of a complicated soul. His long hair draped across his shoulders, he sings his soliloquy without a forced conviction we'd seen earlier, and with redeeming pathos.

More than once, hero Jean Valjean is referred to as "a saint." No problem in convincing us. Played by tenor J. Mark McVey, he sings like an angel and, after an early conversion to goodness by The Bishop of Digne, is so forgiving and generous of spirit that only sainthood could account for his kind, noble deeds in the face of his fugitive status and a hard, cruel world. Valjean's paternal caring for Marius and plea to "Bring Him Home" is without a doubt the high point of a performance chock full of high points.

Jennifer Naimo as Eponine is spunky, sweet and convincing. Her voice suits the role and her characterization is always on target. Charged with a fiery courage exhibited by no other female character, she triumphs over the vulgarity of her parents and obliviousness of Marius. In an ironic contrast, her presence looms largest when the stunning set of night streets of Paris, lit by a speckling of varied golden windows, dwarf even more her diminutive physical size, as she sings "On My Own" with poignancy that makes our throats catch.

The rest of the cast is outstanding, as well. Especially impressive among them is Peter Gunther as the student leader Enjolras. Though their buffoonery is ultimately carried too far and carried on too long, Drew Eshelman and Rosalyn Rahn as the Thenardiers give energetic performances, popular with the audience.

Turning fates on the wheel of time (three decades in all) are given a wonderfully concrete context in the turning stage and superbly composed movements throughout the performance. When the actors aren't moving through time on this wheel, they almost always face us head-on, directly, with an agressiveness that is powerful without being threatening. The great barricades are powerful, too, making for an imposing dark gray Cubist spectacle that adds immensely to the tone of the epic.

The orchestra's terrific. The music lingers and reverberates long, long after the final curtain.

If we could make an alteration to the truly spectaular musical it would be to replace the somewhat disjunctive wedding scene near the end of Act II with something as uplifting as "Red and Black" sung by Enjolras, Marius and the students, or the ensemble performance of "One Day More" at the end of Act I. The only other alteration might fall in the category of coifing. While Javert's loosened pony tail contributes to final drama of his performance, Marius's rock-star haircut, Fantine's puffy curls left after the selling of her long hair, The Bishop's ironed-down gray pageboy, and Valjean's country-western singer white hair and beard are unfortunatley just too anecdotal and out of sync with the grandness of this splendid production.

Les Miserables, based on Victo Hugo's classic novel set in 19th century France, is presented at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, through May 26. Performances are Monday through Saturday at 8 p.m., with matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2 p.m. Tickets are $25 to $50. Special student tickets are $16. Call the Shubert at 426-4520 for information.

COMING EVENTS

Sleeping Beauty takes the stage

Love conquers all? Or should we say "Good wins over bad!" Whatever the phrase we know that there is a happy ending for all. Such is the story that unfolds in Sleeping Beauty now in production at the Lincoln School Auditorium by the Winchester Cooperative Theatre for Children. The adored infant Aurora played by Nancy Marmon and Casey Oakes, grows up to a lovely young lady pursued by the handsome Prince, Mark Campbell and Tim Nolan. Of course, there is your evil Disastra, Amy Lerman and Courtney Simpson, and good fairies, Annabelle (Cora Stryker and Kimberly Bergin), Christabell (Blair Evans and Lindsay Scott), Laurabelle (Colleen Kassner and Katie Orman), and Lilybelle (Liz Breuer and Diane Soboski). What transpires in between is a delightful and colorful musical presentation of Sleeping Beauty.

This lively cast is continuing their performances through this weekend with performances Friday evening at 7:30 p.m.; Saturday at 1 p.m. and 4 p.m.; and Sunday at 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. All seats are reserved. For ticket information call 729-6657 or 729-

Guys and Dolls opens this week

Winchester High School students hit the stage the stage this weekend with their spring musical, Guys and Dolls.

Directed by Wally Gagel, the book was written by Jo Swerling and Abe Burrows, based on characters by Damon Runyon. The music and lyrics were written by Frank Loesser.

The Winchester High School production involves 70 cast and 30 orchestra members, as well as 24 in the stage crew and 30 support parents.

Tickets at $5 per person are available at the high school (721-7020), D. Duck, Cradock's and The News Shop. Showtimes are Thursday, March 29 at 7:15 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, March 30 and 31 at 8 p.m.

Newcomers Club presents cabaret

The Winchester Newcomers Club will present a unique evening of musical entertainment on Saturday, April 21. The theme this year is a "Jazz Cabaret" featuring contemporary jazz during cocktails, a jazz concert, and finally a variety of sounds for dancing.

The Steve Wark-John Wilkins Band is an experienced, versatile ensemble of vocalists and musicians who have performed at Berklee Hall and Ryles Jazz Club among other local jazz clubs. Their style features a blend, of the many contemporary styles of jazz including rhythm and blues, funk, latin and fusion. They will perform a mix of vacal and instrumental pieces by such well-known artists as Al Jarreau, Jeff Lorber, the Jazz Crusaders and Paquito Dirivera as well as original numbers composed by band members.

At 8:00 p.m. the Steve Wark-John Wilking Band will open the evening by playing some contemporary background jazz during which the guests will have an opportunity to talk with old and new friends, have refreshments, and find their tables in anticipation of the next portion of the evening's entertainment.

At 9:00 p.m. the Knights of Columbus Hall will be magically transformed into a "big city nightclub" where guests will enjoy a sophisticated jazz concert "We're bringing all the fun and flavor of a Boston-style jazz club to Winchester without the extra costs and hassle of going into Boston," states club president, Jennifer Regentz.

After a short intermission, chairs will be abandoned in favor of dancing when this versatile band returns to perform the big band sounds of Duke Ellington, Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey as well as songwriters George and Ira Gershwin and Jerome Kern.

"Last's year's dance was a great success because we had a wonderful mix of Winchester residents and their in and out-of-town friends" states Regentz. "We think that this year's Jazz Cabaret will appeal to an even wider variety of tastes and age groups."

The ticket price of $20 per person includes hors d'oeuvres throughout the evening. A cash bar is also available at the Knights of Columbus Hall where the event will be held. The evening is open to all Newcomers, their friends and community members.

For ticket information, please contact Carol Burdick at 729-4080. Tables may be reserved for groups of eight or ten.

ABC bottle drive is set for April 7

The ABC (A Better Chance) Spring Bottle Drive will take place from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. April 7 in the Sons of Italy parking lot, 117 Swanton Street, Winchester.

For pick up, call Sandy Thompson, 729-8063 or Alice Fuller, 729-6377. It would be helpful to separate plastic, glass and cans.

COMING EVENTS

ABC bottle drive set for April 7

The next ABC Bottle Drive will be on Saturday, April 7 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. As usual, the collection will take place at the Sons of Italy parking lot, adjacent to the town transfer station. All returnable bottles and cans, either beer or soft drink containers, will be appreciated. It would be helpful to separate by plastic, glass and cans!

Winchester's A Better Chance program is in its 18th year of providing a challenging high school education to highly motivated minority students. Bottle drives provide an important source of income for ABC and townwide response to this event is always enthusiastic. Volunteers to help sort bottles are always needed and most welcome; please call Ted Martin, Chairman at 729-8451.

Those who cannot drop off their bottles during the drive may contact Alice Fuller at 729-6377 or Sandy Thompson at 729-8063 for pick up.

U.S. SAVINGS BONDS
THE GREAT AMERICAN INVESTMENT

Annual rummage sale is April 7

The annual rummage sale is planned for Saturday April 7. The women of the Second Congregational Church of Winchester are busily working preparing the many donated articles for sale. A few of the items that will be offered are hats, pots, pans, linens, games, toys, small funiture, clothing for the whole family, many good books and some sporting equipment. The dish table has many interesting items and the sharp shopper may find a real bargin, antique or otherwise. The jewelry showcase is filled with new and used accesories. Care is taken to have things clean and in good condition.

The sale will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. During the morning coffee, donuts and muffins will be served. A light luncheon will be available around the noon hour.

Rain or shine the sale will be open in the meeting hall, at the corner of Washington St. and Kenwin Road, Winchester. See you there.

Westley Tenants' group bake sale

The Westley Tenants' Association is sponsoring a bake sale at the Jenks Senior Center April 2.

The sale begins at 9:45 a.m. Many delicious home-baked goods will be available.

Craft auction is March 31

The fifth annual Craft Auction, sponsored by the Women's Guild of the Melrose Highlands Congregational Church, will be held in Fellowship Hall Saturday, March 31 at 12:30 p.m.

This promises to be an afternoon of fun and active bidding. Some of the hand-crafted items which Brad Hutchinson, auctioneer, will present for bidding will be stained glass, needlework, knit goods, quilts, decorated baskets and unusual Spring door pieces. Brad will also tempt appetites with delicious home-baked goodies.

Mrs. Louise Cook and Mrs. Florence Hutchinson, co-chairmen of the event, together with church members, are busy creating handmade articles for this popular auction. Light refreshments will be available for sale during the afternoon.

Come, bid, enjoy and bring home a lovely hand-crafted treasure.

Shir Tikvah has Seder service

Temple Shir Tikvah has Second Night Passover Seder on April 10.

Reservations must be made by April 2. The cost $14 for adults, $9 for children under 10. For more information, call Karen at 862-2772.

Our Dining Spotlight!
Hana Sushi
Authentic Japanese Restaurant & Sushi Bar
From the moment you enter Hana Sushi you'll be treated to a truly delightful, thoroughly pleasant, authentic Japanese dining experience. To begin with, you'll be personally greeted by chefs/owners Mr. and Mrs. Ju, who thoughtfully named the restaurant after their beautiful 5 year old daughter, Hana.
Inside, you'll find an intimate, quiet, relaxed, yet casual atmosphere, suited equally as well for friends, family and business alike. Decor is traditional Japanese - immaculately clean, light and airy, with rice paper partitions, natural solid oak and filtered skylights.
Once seated, you'll marvel at the menu offerings - and reasonable prices. Specialties include a full range of cooked meals such as Tempura and Teriyaki, as well as traditional Sushi and Sashimi, for which they enjoy an unparalleled reputation for serving only the finest, freshest varieties.
In addition to serving lunch and dinner, Hana Sushi also prepares most items on it's menu for take - out service (free delivery to Arlington, Belmont, Cambridge, Medford and Somerville). And if you're entertaining, they prepare party platters and provide catering services as well.
Try Hana Sushi today. Call 868-2121 for hours and more information.
Reservations not required. All major credit cards accepted.

CAR CARE CORNER
by Dan Hogan,
Service Manager

Nine out of 10 times, people change the wheels on their car for purely cosmetic reasons. Just as with tires, the critical element here is to find a knowledgeable dealer and be aware of safety factors. The key question is "Which wheel is made for your car?" Makers of high quality wheels make very specific recommendations for various cars, with the intent of improving a car's handling. The nice thing about wheels is when you put the right wheel on a car, everything works right. Steering is better, ride is better, everything is better. Higher quality wheels are also easier to balance.

PETER FULLER OLDS is within walking distance to public transportation making it convenient to have your car serviced here. Open 8-6. Tel. 924-8100. M/C, Visa & A/E honored. ## DO THIS FOR YOURSELF.

At Private Healthcare Systems Ltd., we believe that teamwork makes your work a lot more fun and effective. That's why, in our managed healthcare firm, we provide a friendly and professional environment where management and staff pull together in an effort to ensure high-quality, cost-effective medical care. And while we do this for the benefit of patients, hospitals and insurance companies, joining us could be one of the best things you'll ever do for yourself.

Secretary

If you are energetic, well-organized and professional, PHCS has an opportunity for you to provide secretarial and administrative support for our managed care programs. You will also generate correspondence and reports using Wordstar, Lotus 1-2-3, and Harvard Graphics. The ideal candidate will have previous secretarial experience, a typing speed of 55 wpm, and a working knowledge of word processing. Excellent communication skills and the ability to work independently are also required. Lotus 1-2-3 is a plus.

Data Entry Clerk

You will input data regarding physician applications and/or financial information in support of PHCS managed care programs. Other responsibilities involve filing, photocopying, collating and telephone contact to verify information. A typing speed of 45 wpm and previous data entry experience are required. Knowledge of billing within the insurance industry is a definite plus.

Come to PHCS and you will enjoy a great salary and benefits that respond to your needs, including 3 weeks' vacation, a dependent-care savings plan, a nonsmoking office, on-site aerobics, and much more. Do something great for yourself now—give us a call at (617) 861-5659, or send your resume to Private Healthcare Systems Ltd., Dept GH, 20 Maguire Rd., Lexington, MA 02173. Equal Opportunity Employer.
